MAYOR CHESHER CALLS MEETING OF CITIZENS

Asked Advance Is In Vicinity Of 50 Per Cent

The matter of whether General Telephone Company, successor to Southwestern Associated Company, which serves Littlefield and this area with telephone service, shall be permitted or enabled to sharply increase local rates for monthly rental of telephones, which has been in discussion stage for several months past, between the company and local city officials, was brought into focus and moved toward a decision Friday morning.

The move came in the form of an action filed in District Court, by T. Wade Potter, attorney, representing the company, a voluminous document, in which a temporary injunction is asked, according to our

Appliance Dealers Organize Lamb County TV Association

With television certain to become a reality in this area, probably within the next six months, as a result of networks installations approved for both Lubbock and Amarillo in Washington the past two weeks, several local appliance dealers, who plan to sell and service television, this week took the initiative by forming a Lamb County TV Association, formed for the purpose of education of the public on television, before it comes.

These are the firms which the public does not know, and needs to know, according to people in the know.

Below is a service report given the Lamb County Leader the past week, by Lt. John Robinson, local Salvation Army official, outlining the social, welfare and work relief done here the past year.

We believe it is of interest to many, who often wonder just what the Salvation Army is doing—how much good they do—and if it is a worthwhile organization, a question raised especially at this particular time when the Salvation Army Fund Campaign is in progress.

This report includes January through September:

Lt. and Mrs. Robinson said, "There are more needs than were able to be met in the past year. We have taken care of those who were most destitute and counseled or referred others. Welfare and charity are wonderful but expensive, and it is our hope that we may more completely serve during the coming year. We urge you to give generously of your means at this time—so that those who have so little might share."

Mr. and Mrs. James Utterback of Amarillo spent the weekend here visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lyman and little daughter Kay Lynn. Mrs. Utterback remained for a few days visit.

ROBBERS MISS $150

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP)—Robert Antrim had to take off his pants for a frisking when he told two holdup men he didn't have any money. After they gave him his pants back and went away, Antrim found his $150 still safely in the pants.

A highlight of the F.F.A. meeting held Tuesday night, was the election of the F.F.A. Sweetheart, Wanda Webb, and the F.F.A. Plowgirl, Beva Jean Ray, for the coming year.

Miss Webb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil E. Webb of near Littlefield. She is 16 years of age, and is classified as a junior in Littlefield High School.

WATER RIGHTS ATTACKS FEDERAL THREAT TO WATER RIGHTS

Thur P. Duggan Is Elected To Directorate Of Water Conservation Group

Thur P. Duggan was elected director of the Texas Water Conservation Association at the annual convention held in Dallas, last Tuesday. He is a M. Collins of Plainfield, Mo.

The late Alvin J. Wirtz of Seguin and the late Senator Joe Moore of Hunt County and Austin. Escaping the attack of the Texas water group were the Army Corps of Engineers, the Soil Conservation Service and the U.S. Geological Survey. Work of the three agencies was praised in resolutions. Most bitter resolution was directed at President Truman for his veto of legislation confirming Texas ownership of the tidelands. The group also went on record requesting the Texas Legislature to submit a constitutional amendment to the people providing for limited state financial assistance at the lowest practical political subdivision level in planning and construction of water conservation and supply projects with ultimate repayment to the state. A resolution recommended that the National Reclamation Act be changed so that it could benefit Texas. The resolution urged elimination of the automatic authorization of projects by the secretary of the interior and instead place the authorization power with Congress. The resolution also asked elimination of the 160-acre land limitation provisions of the act. Another resolution condemned "the progressive invasion by federal government agencies of activities hitherto considered to be state governmental functions." Federal valley authorities were termed "undemocratic," destructive of state sovereignty and "likely to lead to an experiment in state socialism." The delegates voiced strong opposition to the four-state public power net of the Southwestern Power Administration, as "a duplication at taxpayers' expense of a service which private power companies and state agencies already offer." Also adopted were resolutions: Asking Congress to repudiate the claim of federal agencies that "there are and can be no private rights in the waters of a navigable stream." Asking repeal of that part of the federal power act under which the federal government can claim title, after 50 years, to any dam or power plant on a navigable stream under FPC license.

Urging revision of the state surface water code to strengthen administrative powers of state agencies and provide for inventory of the state's water resources and cancellation of unused and abandoned water rights. Urging construction of master feeder channels inland from the Intracoastal Canal. Urging the Corps of Engineers, in contracting with public agencies for conservation storage in flood control projects, that such agencies be required to pay only the incremental cost of the conservation storage used rather than a charge based upon a proportion of the total cost of the structure. Also add provisions to contracts protecting the prior rights of the agencies to renewal.

Urged amendment to the 1944 flood act which would require the secretary of agriculture and the FPC and other federal agencies having to do with water and power projects submit project reports to each other and to the governors of the affected states for comment. Fred H. Husbands, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, urged every city in Texas to appoint a standing committee to investigate long range water programs and to study resources. Allocation Costs Outlined Husbands was a moderator of a panel discussion of multicounty water supply projects. R. T. Piner of Big Spring, president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, serving Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder, told the delegates that a district could be successful with good directors and no intercity rivalry. S. W. Freese, Fort Worth engineer, outlined allocation costs between cities in a multicounty district. John D. McCall of Dallas, general counsel of the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District, explained the legal phases of organizing districts. Texas, most important water problem, said Carl H. Brown of Washington, is reduction of the annual flood damage in creek watersheds above major flood control works. Brown is assistant chief of operations of the Soil Conservation Service.

Europe's Tax Burden

The next Congress is expected to take a critical view of foreign aid, and one approach will be to determine whether Europeans are bearing as heavy a tax burden as their American benefactors. Our allies reasonably should help themselves as far as they are able so that the mutual security program will not be so onerous to the United States.

West Germany and Austria each bear heavier tax burdens than does the United States. Revenue actually collected in these countries represents a larger proportion of the gross national product of each than does the total collected in the United States. In Britain 35 per cent of the gross national product goes for taxes; in France it amounts to about 31 per cent, and it is less than 26 per cent in the United States.

Coleman Conservation

Coleman County's farsighted progressiveness in water and soil conservation in Central West Texas was reviewed Sunday in the Star-Telegram's Texas Ranch and Farm.

The provision of a water supply for farms and ranches as well as towns in Coleman County and the conservation of soil through large and small flood control measures have been the result of local initiative and effort, with the invaluable co-operation of the Central Colorado River Authority and the U.S. Corps of Engineers. The Army engineers, at a cost of $2.3 million, built Hords Creek Dam, which was completed in 1948 and serves the town of Coleman. That town participated in the project by contributing $105,000 as a part of the conservation pool.

material benefit. On ranches and farms 1,400 water facilities have been built, and detention dams have curbed flood damage over the watershed at the points where rains fall and conservation should begin.

Coleman County as a result has water for domestic, agricultural and other uses in a period of prolonged drought, when only a few years ago it was necessary to haul water into the county in dry seasons. The first project for a farmer was built by the river authority in 1936. He had hauled water for 40 years.

Yet the sponsors of this program feel that not enough has been done in Coleman County in the interest of water and soil conservation and, hence, that this constructive program should be continued. That policy takes into consideration that more water in Texas means more demand for water. Coleman County in its resource conservation is setting an impressive example to other counties in Texas.

It first must be moved to refineries, where gasoline, fuel oil, residual oil, wax, asphalt and a host of other products and chemicals are extracted. From there it is shipped to the thousands of jobbers and dealers or manufacturing plants which relay it to the consumers and market places, or process it further into special products of their own.

Roosevelt, reads the first article of a biographical series on the Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson in the Uvalde, Tex. Leader-News as he sits at desk in his Uvalde home. Garner would make no further comment on his recent letter to Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), saying that he was going to vote the straight Democratic ticket in November. Garner did say he was glad that the Leader-News, which is supporting Eisenhower, was presenting both sides of the campaign. —AP Wirephoto per in her hands. On her it looked good.

Just A Love Match Ralph and Nancy Kiner

She stayed there for much of the talk that touched many subjects—talk of her husband Ralph, the Pittsburgh Pirates' home run ace and the most famous baseball slugger since Babe Ruth, her own career as U. S. indoor tennis singles and doubles champion for the last three years, their romance, their home in the California desert, their future.

"We want a Mr. and Mrs. TV show," said Nancy. "Fifteen minutes twice a week. Interviews with personalities with emphasis on sports. I want to film it and do it at our house—by the pool sometimes. Our agent is working on it now.

"Before I married I was on a TV sports panel show on a local Los Angeles station three times a week—and last summer Ralph had a show of baseball commentary on a local Pittsburgh station."

How does it go trying to match two big-time sports careers to one family, Nancy?

"All right—as long as I don't forget I'm a wife first and a tennis player second. You can't go in two directions. I decided this myself. A few months after we were married, I was named on the Wightman Cup team, which would have taken me out of the country six weeks in the ball season. I talked it over with Ralph and he said, 'It's up to you, but I'd rather you didn't do it.' So I gave it up."

"I'd even say two athletes in a family is an advantage. I understand the terrific pressure that's on him all the time to hit home runs—and how he feels if he has a bad day."

Kiner has been home-run king of the National League the last five years.

The Kiners met on Nancys TV show when Ralph was a guest. Eight months later they became engaged—but millions of other people heard it officially before Nancy did. They were both in New York at the time—Ralph to play baseball and Nancy enroute to the Wightman cup matches. Ralph was giving her a farewell supper party. Because Nancy wanted to see her mother off at the airport, they agreed she would join the party at the supper club.

Nancy was unavoidably delayed and raced home to dress. She turned on the radio and popped into the tub, just in time to hear a famous commentator say: "Ralph Kiner Kiner and Nancy Chaffee will become engaged officially tonight."

"I almost swallowed the soap," says Nancy. "I loved the guy so much I wanted it to be true—but it was news to me. Wasn't it lucky I didn't faint and drown?"

Her hands shook a little as she reached the supper club, wearing

After a while he drew her to the dance floor and slipped a two carat diamond on her finger. The stars came out in Nancy's big grey eyes.

"Now, don't start hugging and kissing me here on the dance floor," said Ralph hastily, red-faced at the thought.

"Then can't we just slip into the garden a minute?" asked Nancy.

They did—and last October they were married.

Now they divide their time between Pittsburgh, where they have an apartment, and Palm Springs, Calif., where Ralph built a house with an outdoor pool, near the Thunderbird Golf Course. Between seasons Ralph spends his time at golf and Nancy divides hers between housekeeping and tennis. When the Pirates travel, Nancy goes too.

Petroleum and Agriculture

Since the advent of power-farming, America's food basket has never been found wanting. Farmers now use more than 10 billion gallons of petroleum products annually, as fuel for their machines; heat for their homes, barns and courers; insecticides, herbicides, fungicides, fertilizers and many other ways. Many specialty products have been developed by oil research for agriculture, such as chemical sprays, fruit-ripeners and flavor-sealers. Because of them, luscious fruits, vegetables and other products are available at virtually every grocery store in the country.

Teen Talk

BY VIVIAN BROWN

Too many young girls think a kiss is the most important part of the date. But 'taint so, says cute 17-year-old movie starlet, Marlene Cameron.

Marlene oughta know because she's just had her first kiss (on the screen, that is). She thinks girls who kiss on the first date are a wee bit tetchy. Says she:

"How can you have established a like or dislike at the first meeting? It's ridiculous to get so romantic when you hardly know the boy."

She thinks it is too bad that some girls kiss a date merely because "they're afraid the boy will not call again, what have you lost with a boy of that type?"

She's not too popular with boys, she admits, but thinks it is because she's shy. As a matter of fact she remembers one boy who lived next door to her who absolutely hated her. But once he invited her to a movie and they had a wonderful time and were pals from then on.

Marlene thinks girls should be popular with boys if they "just act natural, instead of pretending to be Lana Turner or some other glamor girl." The pixie-like, blue-eyed Marlene finds the main trouble with teen-agers is that they are likely to do anything to get attention when they are just emerging from the "cocoon stage."

She recalls that there was a time when she got annoyed because some boys didn't like her. But now will let her carry on for a year or two.

Marlene is happy with her family (named Blatz) though, and isn't too anxious to leave her Ridgewood, Queens, home even for travel which she adores. Says she:

"If a teen-ager wants to be successful in the theatre, you must have the help of parents. That's half the battle when you are trying to get ahead."

Before signing with Columbia, Marlene had been popular on radio and the stage. She plays brat parts as a rule and enjoys them, although she says they are difficult to do without being so obnoxious you antagonize the audience. Some critics can't bear "fresh child actresses," she says.

The biggest thrill she's had to date occurred (at 15) one of her radio appearances with Peter Lawford.

He kissed her on the cheek and she's never forgotten it. She blushes when she thinks of it.

she realizes that she just wasn't extrovert enough to entice them. Says she:

"Take Bobby Driscoll, who had to kiss me in 'Happy Time,' the movie we made together. He wanted to get it over with real fast at first, but he got used to me after we'd rehearsed the kissing scene 15 times, and didn't seem to mind a bit."

In the picture Marlene plays the part of a 12-year-old tomboy (a role she adores). She wears braces on her teeth and "is pretty repulsive" for most of the picture, she says. But lo and behold, a magic wand touches her and Cinderella emerges from her pumpkin as a pretty, attractive teen-ager. (This is what captivated Bobby, apparently.)

The talented Marlene comes from a show-biz family. Her mother was a George White Scandals girl and her father was a musician. Her 24-year-old sister is a Rockette. Marlene combines the talents of all three.

She can sing anything from Bop to Opera, and has only studied voice for 3 years. Besides being a lyric coloratura and singing in Italian, French, Spanish and Latin, she dances tap or ballet. She is a good pianist. In her spare time she loves to knit—particularly argyle socks.

Marlene loves to entertain and her simple buffet suppers usually consist of cold cuts, roast beef, frankfurters or hamburgers, all boy-food specialties.

Although she had her first date at 15, she's never really gone steady with a boy, she says. She wants to go to college, then travel, and she'd like to be successful "at something" before she gets married, which she doesn't plan to do until she is at least 24 or 25. Then she hopes to find a man who is a little sympathetic to her career and

Milliner Gives Glamour Tips To Girls Who Wear Glasses

HATS AND GLASSES—Here are three types of hats which are becoming to the girl who wear glasses, says Sally Victor, who designed them. Left, the "double-hull" felt bonnet, worn off the face.

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Fashion Editor

See, do, too, make passes at girls who wear glasses—if they wear them with an air and choose the right hat to go with them, says Sally Victor, millinery designer whose chief purpose in life is to make women look pretty.

For the eyeglass brigade Sally has a few tips on hat selection:

1—If you wear glasses, never pick a narrow hat, which focuses on and enlarges your glasses.

2—Never choose a hat that is worn over the forehead, because it lowers the face area too much and cuts off the natural frame made by your forehead and hairline.

3—Select any hat that has width, but not necessarily with a brim.

4—Pillboxes are a good choice, if they are wide enough and show the forehead.

5—Sailors are all right, if they have width in the crown and are worn off-the-face.

6—Provide an adequate frame for the face. Note that a different type of eyeglass frame is worn with each hat. Heavy, dark-rimmed glasses, for instance, should not be worn with glamorous after-dark clothes.

7—Particularly good are hats with symmetric lines, flaring away from the face—uneven lines with plenty of forehead showing.

8—Cloches are good if tilted back on the head.

Also, cautions Sally, the girl who wears glasses should have several pairs, in different kinds of frames, for evening wear, for general wear and even for sports wear.

The one thing most envied by women of other countries is the beauty and availability of American nylon stockings.

In the making of stockings, as in the manufacture of motor cars, there's no beating U.S. know-how. Year after year American manufacturers put the sheers and most flattering nylons within reach of every budget, and year after year American legs grow more glamorous.

This year a number of new gimmicks are offered for the further

"For the first time since the ingrained silk stockings of Ziegfeld Follies days, the leg with a gleam can be yours again."

New decorations such as jeweled clocks and embossed velvet motifs are in vogue for after-five wear this year. The latter, designed by Ardmore, features a black embossed lacing at the back of the stocking.

Wonder How Miss Gilbert Is in "History"?

From where I sit, I'll bet this makes her even more popular with the students. It's nice to see an expert admit she occasionally makes a mistake. Too many so-called "experts" claim they're never wrong on such subjects as what you or I ought to eat... what we should wear... whether we should enjoy beer or buttermilk. A really wise person never claims to "know all the answers" all the time.

Fundamental Baptist Leaders Denounce New Bible Version

A meeting of representatives of Fundamental Baptist Churches in Lubbock last Wednesday resulted in the first concerted opposition to use of the new Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible to be announced in this area.

"Entirely the work of liberals in theology, and calculated not to increase but to obscure real Bible knowledge," was the unanimous decision of the group, which voted against use of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible in Fundamental Baptist Churches.

The meeting, the Tri-State Fellowship of Fundamental Baptist Churches, was attended by ministers and lay workers from over the Panhandle and South Plains and the border territories of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

There also were visiting ministers and representatives from Kansas and Colorado.

Sessions were held in the Temple Baptist Church, 2602 1st Pl., with the Rev. Ralph G. McCoy as host pastor.

There was this further criticism: "Its effort to undermine the doctrine of the Virgin Birth of Christ, as evidenced by the changed reading of Isaiah 7:14; its effort to undermine the doctrine of the Deity of Christ, by addressing God the Father as 'Thee,' 'Thou,' 'Thy,' and 'Thine,' whereas Christ the Son is addressed as 'you,' 'yourself,' or 'yours'; its effort to undermine the doctrine of the innate sinfulness of man, as is seen from the change made in Psalms 8:6 and Hebrews 2:11; its effort throughout to undermine the Bible doctrine of verbal inspiration."

"In short," a news release issued after the meeting read, "the new translation was described as a book prepared by a crowd of self-proclaimed modernists and liberals, whom even the FBI has labeled 'subversive.'"

Chairman of the Tri-State Fellowship is Dr. Weldon B. Meers, Littlefield. Among visitors to the meeting were the Rev. William T. Frigate, pastor of the Fellowship Baptist Church of Garden City, Kan., and Dr. Harvey H. Springer, Englewood, Colo.

Dr. Frank A. Godsoe, pastor of Amarillo's Central Baptist Church, attended the meeting and announced he will speak on the new version of the Bible in his Sunday morning sermon.

information, in effect restraining the City and its officials, from interference with the placing in effect a proposed telephone rental rate increase.

Potter, attorney for the company stated that the overall actual increase requested by the company is slightly less than fifty per cent, and added that the rate increase now company proposed would raise local business phone rates from the present $6.50 to $9.50 per month. It was understood that slightly less of an increase was being asked for residential phones.

City officials met with the telephone company some months back for discussion of a proposed rate increase, but at that time no action was taken. At that meeting it was brought out that a rate increase had been put in effect here in 1949.

The attorney for the phone company told the Leader that the company, under present rates, is earning less than one per cent on its investment, and that if the rate increase is put into effect, the net return to the company would only approximate eight per cent.

Return date on the District Court injunction was listed as December 1, 1952, at which time the Company plans to ask the Court to enjoin interference with the proposed rate increase.

Mayor A. C. Chesher stated that papers in the action had been served upon him, as head of the City Government, Friday morning. After a conference of City Commission members with City Attorney Duggan, it was decided that a mass meeting of interested citizens should be called, for the guidance of City officials, as to whether it was the wish of citizens to yield to the telephone rate increase, or to contest it in Court, and otherwise.

The Mayor, therefore, immediately announced a mass meeting to be held at Palace Theatre in Littlefield, at 9:00 a.m. next Tuesday morning, Oct. 21, to which all citizens, and specifically telephone subscribers and users are urged to attend, and take part in discussion, and presentation of their views on the matter, as a guidance to City officials—who are faced with the decision of either permitting the increase to become effective Dec. 1, through non-contest of the asked Court injunction, or whether the majority of the local telephone users, wish the City to completely oppose the increase, or possibly a compromise rate increase. He coupled his announcement of the mass meeting with an urgent ap-
