Quota Restrictions Lifted By U. S. Army

Quota restrictions for enlistments in the U. S. Army have been lifted, T-Sgt. Gerald F. Cutshall, local recruiter for the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force announced here today.

The quota which has been in effect since January 1 of this year does not effect the mental requirements for enlisting, Cutshall
said.

The applicant for enlisting must be unmarried, 17 to 34 years of age, (17 year olds must have parents consent) physically fit, pass
the required mental test, have no police record, birth certificate for those under 21 and be able to produce three letters of recommendation.

Original enlistees may be assigned to: Airborn unassigned; Far East Command, Regular Army unassigned; Coast Artillery unassigned; Field Artillery unassigned; Corps of Engineers unassigned and Infantry unassigned.

Three City Delegates To Attend State FHA Meeting

Ruth McCormick, Preble Lewis,
and Eva Jane Fields will be Littlefield delegates to the annual state meeting of the Future Homemakers of America to be held in San Antonio Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 27, 28, and 29.

Approximately 6000 FHA girls will attend the meeting from 852 chapters in Texas. The meeting is sponsored by the homemaking
division, Vocational Education,
Texas Education Agency.

The three Littlefield delegates will travel to San Antonio by car accompanied by Miss Laverne Hayherst and Mrs. Francis Ne-smith.

"Future Homemakers Ahead Toward New Horizons" is the theme of the program which will feature talks by Mrs. Joe A. Wessendorff, member of the State Board of Education, Betty Ruth Etheridge of Crossett, Ark., national FHA president, and Betty Jo McDonald of Rosenberg, state FHA president.

Mrs. Wessendorff's subject will be "What I See From Where I Sit."
The national president is to talk on
"The Wheel of FHA," describing the operation of the state associations within the national organization, and the state president will discuss "The Hope of Tomorrow."

Highlights of the Friday afternoon session is a film and panel on "Democracy in Home and Community." Dr. Bernice Moore, home and family relations consultant in the Vocational Education Homemaking
division, and mental hygiene consultant with the Hogg foundation is to direct the panel.

Play night is scheduled for the group Thursday night. On Friday night a barbecue and floor show are scheduled at the Municipal Auditorium where all sessions are to be held.

CANCER TAKES 1 IN 8

One out of every eight deaths is due to cancer. The American Cancer Society says this rate can be cut through early detection and prompt treatment. Radiation and surgery save 67,000 cases of cancer annually.

To Address Men's Club Of Emmanuel Lutheran Church

Improvements in the physical plant of our high school is the main thought which will occupy the thinking of Joe Hutchinson, Littlefield High School Superintendent, as he addresses the Men's Club of Emmanuel Lutheran Church this coming Friday night, April 28, at 8:00 p. m. in the basement of the church. A question period will allow those who are in attendance to get information on any particular phase of the new school building as well as its program. The main event over, a few moments in fellowship will bring the evening's gathering to a close.

An estimated 350,000 cases of cancer will be diagnosed in 1950,
the American Cancer Society declares.

Rev. Schulte At Lutheran Meeting

The Rev. C. Schulte, pastor of St. Martin Lutheran Church returned Friday, April 21 from the Texas District Convention which was held at Galveston on April 17-20.

Convention host was First Lutheran Church of that city which entertained the convention of the American Lutheran Church in connection with the 100th anniversary celebration of their church.

Pastor Schulte served as secretary on the floor committee on the state of the church, which among other things brought a resolution to the floor of convention favoring the merger of the American Lutheran Church with the Evangelical Lutheran Church and the United Evangelical Church.

The merger resolution was passed by a large majority, thus putting the Texas district of the American Lutheran Church on record
as favoring such a merger.

Among other business of the convention was the financing of the purchase of a Bible Camp site
at Kerrville, Texas, a full program of parish education, and the completion of the National Lutheran Council Evangelism Campaign.

Does Success Depend Upon College?

Shall I go to college? Will college help me achieve my aim in life? Can I make the grade in college? As commencement season looms before communities like ours across the nation, these three questions are beginning to prey on the minds of more than 3,000,000 high school seniors.

The first of the questions is a broad one, and its answer depends upon the replies the average high school graduate makes to the other two selfqueries. Few high school seniors worry about the need of American youth for more enlightenment—not less.

Perhaps this last is a problem for the educators to solve by re-orienting vocational and academic learning in schools with requirements patterned after the abilities of the average high school graduate. This gives the educators a hard row to hoe—demanding they produce cultural fruit on strictly utilitarian stalks or vice versa. And the mind of the average high school graduate takes some hoeing.

So perhaps the cleavage between vocational and academic instruction never will be completely sealed. Each high school graduate is faced with this cleavage and affected by it through life as the result of his choice between "culture" and "business." He should not have to make such a choice.

The average youth bypasses intellectual development because the activity of making a living and a place for himself in the modern economy leaves him little time or interest for anything else. The average student must consider his goal in business and his abilities therein first. They alone must determine his decision about attending college. And his abilities have the final word.

Don't enter college for cultural attainment alone unless you can wipe your hands of making a living. Now let's see when making a living depends upon a college education and when it does not.

If money is your yardstick of success—it will determine your standard of living—your aim is to acquire financial well-being. Men of little education have accumulated great fortunes as well as college graduates. So your decision about going to college rests upon how you plan to make your money.

A decision to become a lawyer, doctor, engineer or member of some other learned profession automatically indicates a need for higher instruction. Without college training, a spot in these professions is impossible to achieve.

But of the 17,000 separate occupations in this nation, the great majority of them do not require a college degree. And this great majority includes some of the most remunerative.

Suppose you have decided upon becoming a lawyer. You must make your way through a long and arduous college career. If you have some idea of what legal training implies and have sincerely appraised your aptitude in this endeavor, you probably will make the grade. If your intention is not just a whim, but is a mature plan that has failed to collapse upon obstacles mapped ahead, you will make at least an average law student.

But there are other means besides measuring your determination and choice of profession for predicting your success or failure in college. These means repose in your high school experience. Forgetting your actual grades, for standards of grading vary in different schools, compare yourself as a student with the members of your high school class. If you are in the upper half scholastically, consider yourself good college material. If not, give the matter serious study before adopting lifetime aims that require a college education.

Possibly you have your heart set on an occupation without certainty whether success in it depends upon college training. Remember, many a manufacturer, merchant, banker, inventor, writer, artist or movie star has never felt the need of going to college.

When one of these needs an employee, he rarely hires a college graduate. A textile manufacturer may think the young man who wastes his time going to college to become an executive in a textile mill could profit more from two years in a textile institute.

A job as a salesgirl plus a few vocational courses will make a girl a $10,000-a-year department store buyer quicker than a A B from a university.

Future happiness depends upon making the choice between college and job-plus-vocational-study with the requirements of one's lifetime aim in mind. What advice can be offered to the high school graduate unable to crystallize his lifetime aim?

However uncertain he may be about his choice of a specific vocation, he should have upon graduation a pretty good idea which of the two classifications it will fall into—one of the professions demanding complete college education or one of the occupations requiring experience with vocational training.

Another factor should be determined before you set out for college—your emotional maturity. You must be able to take care of yourself when you are on your own. You will have no one to tell you what to do, to awaken you from sleep, to make you study. If you like to oversleep, to cut classes, to go to movies or parties when you should be studying, or to prepare assignments only when you feel like it, stay away from college until you grow up.

The pupils who will take part are: LaPearl Jones, Don Crawford, Edith Gholke, Lella Ann Thompson, Karilyn Inuse, Sarah Lou Armstrong, Sam Sewell, Polly Lou Alexander, Maria Johnson, Alice Fay Gohlike, Virginia Rodgers, Mary Cameron, Anne Betty Byars, Willie Jay Griffin, Harold Byars and Patsy Lou Griggs.

Institute Attracts Lutheran Teachers

The Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Heckmann and a group of Sunday School Workers from the Emmanuel Lutheran Church of Littlefield attended a semi-annual Sunday School's Teachers' Institute at the Redeemer Lutheran Church in Lubbock Sunday afternoon, April 23.

In addition to Rev. and Mrs. Heckmann were Miss Helen Synnatschek, Miss Francis Lorenz, Miss Martha Neuenschwander, Mrs. Fred Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Vastine Hobrathschek, Herman Gholke, Hubert Gholke, and Rufus Overise.

The Rev. Paul Heckmann, pastor of the opening Lutheran Church of Wilson was in charge of the opening devotion.

"Teaching for Salvation" was the title of a paper read by the Rev. A. H. Hoyer of Big Spring. Mrs. Harry Wheeler of the Redeemer Lutheran demonstrated the teaching of a beginners class using her own class.

Sectional meetings for all departments were held with special discussion topics for each section. The Rev. D. V. Hafemann of Plainview led the closing devotion. In addition to the Littlefield delegation there were representatives from Lariat, Plainview, Wilson, Lamesa, Spartenburg and Lubbock.

The "Pup" Who Wanted To See The World

By Faith Helen Faust

Once there was a puppy named Pal. Pal lived with his mother and brothers and sisters in a warm dog house. Outside the dog house there was a big yard, a fence around it to play in. There were three little toy cats and two old boots to play with in the yard.

Pal wasn't satisfied. He wanted to see the world. One day he wiggled under the fence and started out to see the world. Pal walked and walked and walked. Soon he came to a stream.

Pal swam across the brook. He was very proud because he had swam what he thought was a very large river.

He kept walking and pretty soon he saw a cat.

"Where are you going?" asked the cat.

"I'm going to see the world, Pal answered." Do you want to come?"

"No, home is best," said the cat.

BULL LAKE PHILOSOPHER CAN'T UNDERSTAND ALL THE HUM-BUG ABOUT FOREIGN POLICY SECRETS

Editors Note: The Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Bull Lake is getting off on a subject he doesn't know anything about this week, the same as a lot of other weeks, but we print his letters in the interest of freedom of the press.

Dear editor:

There has been so much in the papers and over the radio about "foreign policy" and the trouble with keeping our secret, I was like ain't nobody in Washington who trusts anybody else any more, and newspapers have been turnin up out here filled with such news with the regularity of my wife's nagging that I would like to have you clear up a few points for me.

As I understand it, Washington officials are wrought up over the fact every time a new foreign policy is being hatched the news about it leaks out.

But what I want to have cleared up for me is why any other government needs to hide somebody to find out our foreign policy? Is there any country left that don't know it?

Maybe I'm too ignorant to be talkin about it, which up to now ain't been no bar to talkin about it out here or in Washington either, but I have understood all my life our foreign policy was to lend all the money all other countries asked for durin peace time, then shut her down except for our allies durin a war, double up on our help to them till the fightin is over then finance them back on their feet and go back to helpin our former enemies until they was able to get a new war machine goin on their own, meanwhile keepin up whatever loans our regular customers needed to keep goin in their accustomed style.

Of course this is just a rough outline, but it appears to me to be about the size of it.

Now what I want to know is how you gonna keep such a policy as that secret? Might as well try to keep a Maine potato grower from findin out what Washington's payin for potatoes. Might as well try to keep a busted grain sack secret from mice.

There may be one, but I ain't heard yet of the country so absent-minded it forgot Washington was the place for the money.

Of course I don't blame em for tryin to swing a loan, I'd do it myself if I figured there was a chance, although I ain't sayin I'm entitled to get on my feet as Germany or Japan, but what I can't understand is all the hum-bug over the news leakin out about what every foreign Prime Minister and hand-me-down King is required to know before they let him get in office.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

"No answered the horse. Home is best."

Pal went on and pretty soon he got hungry. He went on a little farther and then got tired. He had to stop and rest. Then he saw the cat again.

Pal said, "Hey, kitty, do you know where my home is?"

"Yes," said the cat.

"Please take me home," Pal

said.

"No," said the cat. "I knew that home was best. If you keep going straight you will reach home. You have been going in a big circle."

Pal walked and walked and walked. Soon he came to the stream. He took a drink and crossed the stream. Then he saw home ahead. Pal started running. He reached home in time to get supper. After that Pal stayed home.

Yes, home was best.

THE LINE OF DUTY

(A Short Story)
By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

"TWO CONVICTS are reported to have escaped from the penitentiary at Shapleigh," Paul Perry said. "It isn't safe for you to stay here. I've come to escort you back."

Sylvia eyed him coldly. He cut a striking figure in his olive-green ranger uniform. He had broad shoulders and slim hips and a strong masculine face. Two days ago, at the rangers' ball down in Shapleigh, she had tried to flirt with him. His indifference to her excited not only her resentment but her interest.

"I'm not a child," she said coldly. "I don't need to be taken back. When I get ready to go, I'll do so."

He smiled whimsically. "That comes in the line of duty, too."

Before she could protest he was gone. Sylvia sat very still. Her horse wanted to graze, but she held its head rigid. Her heart was pounding wildly. This was a new and terrifying experience. The cool arrogance that had always been her chief quality gave way to fear.

Suddenly there was a shot. Sylvia wanted to scream. She wanted to turn and flee.

Unexpectedly her horse whinnied, and an answering whinny came from beyond a bend in the trail. Sylvia was beset by a terrible premonition that the approaching animal would not bear Paul Perry. But a moment later she saw his olive and green uniform moving among the trees.

"Sorry," he said. "I had to leave you. We're safe now. They quit without any fuss at all."

"I heard a shot."

"That was I. The one with the gun got frisky and I had to shoot it out of his hand."

"Then—then there's no danger?"

"No. I let 'em in the cabin, tied up and—Holy cow! What's wrong?"

He reached out in time to catch her as she fell from the saddle. She recovered almost at once. "I'm all right. I—I can take care of myself."

"So you observed before, and I'm beginning to believe it." His arms were still about her and he kept them so, looking down into her face. Impulsively he bent and kissed her, expecting to be slapped. Instead, she smiled.

"Is that in the line of duty, too?"

"From this moment on," he replied, and she lifted her lips to meet his.

"I'm not a child," she said coldly.

Cox Gains Trophy In Junk Car Races

Tom Cox of Littlefield, driving his souped-up P-38, took the trophy race at the Littlefield Junk Car Races for the second week in succession on Sunday, April 23.

Cox was the top prize winner of the day also, winning the 25 lap main event as well as the trophy race on the improved Littlefield Speedrome, three miles north of town on Highway 51.

The Littlefield Speedrome awarded Cox the trophy after he out speeded Dub Posten of Lubbock who placed second in P-29 and last week's big money winner Doyle Rutherford of Lubbock in P-51. The trophy race is a six lap dash on a quarter mile track.

The races, which were broadcast in part over KVOW, drew almost double the attendance of last

First Spring Garden Crop Is Appetizing Radish
Radishes are sown in almost every garden at least once. That once is enough to discourage many gardeners, because so often when the crop matures they have to throw away most of it.
The reason is the radish is one of the earlier vegetables, because it grows so fast. From seed to harvest is 20 days for the small globe type. Having rushed to maturity, it just keeps on rushing, and within a week the root turns pithy and the plants begin to think of going to seed. That's when the discouraged gardener digs most of the long row he planted and throws the roots away.
Keep in mind that the faster a variety grows, the shorter the time it remains in edible condition. The trick is to sow only as much as you can use during that short period, and make another sowing to mature just when the first one bows out.
In the case of the early globe type sow a week's supply at a time, which should be about six or seven feet in the row. Remember this type does not like hot weather, so stop in time to avoid that, and change to a midseason variety, which will be usable for two weeks, so two weeks' supply of them can be sown.
If you want a supply all summer, sow a late, summer variety for hot weather. But frequent sowings in small lots is a good rule for all except winter radishes which take two months to mature and remain good for six weeks. They grow very large, some weighing several pounds.
One way to grow early radishes is to mix them with the seeds of parsley, parsnips, carrots and beets, all of which are slow to germinate. Not more than a tenth as many radishes as the other seeds should be used. The radishes will germinate quickly, "making the hole" where the other seeds will assist you in covering them. Be sure to pull and eat the radishes they mature before they slow the slower crop.

Sudan Farmers Receive $28,000 In Dividends

Sudan area farmers who are stockholders of the Sudan Farmers Co-Operative Gin received approximately $28,000 when they met for the annual stockholders meeting of the organization in Sudan Saturday last at 2:00 p. m.

This amount, according to manager Earl Chester, represents earnings made by the Co-Op during the past cotton-ginning season and is an all-time record for the organization.

The group, which comprises dozens of Sudan area farmers also heard an annual report of the financial standing of the organization together with a complete audit account presented by Melvin Marrifan, of Lubbock.

A well-rounded program was enjoyed. There were speeches by several prominent people connected with the cotton industry. Mr. Davis, manager of the Co-Op Oil Mill, from Lubbock, and Mr. Raymond H. McRae, of the National Cotton Council, from Memphis, Tennessee, guest speakers.

Dick Carl, manager of the Rural Electrification program in Lamb County, from Littlefield addressed the group and discussed progress being made in securing rural telephones for Lamb County farmers.

CONSIDERED TWICE!

REJECTED TWICE!

FATHER-BEDDING!

When-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been

Boarding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were

The Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation and compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good . . .

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good . . ."

PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT

Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation . . ."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

Ag. Teachers Will Hold FFA Meeting

Vocational agriculture teachers from this district will meet at the Agriculture Building at Littlefield High School Monday, April 30, at 4:30 p. m.

At that time candidates for state offices in the FFA will be selected from this district which includes nine departments. The departments are at Littlefield, Spade, Olton, Springlake, Sudan, Amherst, Muleshoe, Three Way and Bula.

Three student delegates from each FFA chapter will also be represented at the meeting.

The group will also check Lone Star Farmer applications to see if all requirements have been filled. An FFA boy applying for the Lone Star Farmer award must meet right standards based on leadership and ability in FFA work, have earned $250 with a project program, have been active for two years in FFA, complete three years of vocational agriculture or as many courses offered in his school and have been active in other organizations in his school.

Five applications have been presented from the Littlefield chapter.
