Porcher Outlines Program As Farmers Show An Interest In Work

Soil erosion experts and county agents this week swung into a series of meetings in connection with the SCS and CCC camp program in Lamb and parts of four neighboring counties.

With how much help farmers get depending on the amount of interest they show in the program, Camp Superintendent J. T. Reese and Agricultural Engineer J. Stoney Porcher urged every grower to fall in line with his neighbors in a cooperative move to "block off" land for the work.

"If farmers get together in each school district and agree to do their part in the program, they will get more help than they realize. The group showing the most cooperative spirit with the work will be first to get help," Mr. Porcher declared.

Erosion prevention work to be done within a 25-mile radius of Littlefield includes terracing, pasture farrowing, contour listing, anti-gully control work, shelterbelt tree planting, plus an outline of help for each farmer in keeping erosion.

CONSIDERABLE REPAIR WORK ON LOCAL SCHOOL

Two New Rooms Added; New Showers And Some New Lockers

In addition to the two new rooms that are being added to the high school building there is considerable repair work being done by the Littlefield School Board on the buildings in preparation for the coming term.

The boys dressing room has been enlarged to twice its original size this year. New showers are to be added and some new lockers added for the use in storing individual equipment of the players. A new door has been added to the west side of the dressing room that leads directly to the outside and new steps are being added to the incline leading into the dressing room.

The entire stage has been reworked and sealed with Celotex to improve the acoustics. A real paint job has been added to the stage and entire auditorium with an aluminum finish for the entire heating system. This will add to the attractiveness of the auditorium.

The walls and ceiling of the study hall are to have a coat of paint together with the woodwork of the high school. This in addition to the paint job on the gymnasium makes the high school look almost like a new place for work this fall.

A complete outside paint job has just been completed on the School Cafeteria and the manual training building.

The walls of the entire Grammar School are to be refinished in a light color that is calculated to give more light in the building that is naturally dark.

There has been a contract let for 400 desks to be completely overhauled and refinished. All these desks are to be refinished in a dark mahogany in order that they may not show the sand.

Mrs. Ed Patterson and children and Mr. and Mrs. E. Turner of Blackwell, Texas, returned home Sunday after spending a few days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Patterson.

Cotton Crop Is Estimated At Over 11 Million Bales

Case against Russell Harmon, indicted last week on a charge of alleged rape, was dismissed on motion of District Attorney Chas. H. Dean.

No arrests had been made in the other seven indictments.

Pioneer's Eyesight And Memory Is Keen As Ever

Passage of time has not dimmed the eyesight nor the keen memory of S. E. Golightly, one of Littlefield's pioneers.

Mr. Golightly, now of Roswell, N. M., dropped into The Leader office Saturday, glanced at our picture captioned "Littlefield, 1921—Remember?" on the front page of The Leader Pioneer edition of a month ago, and identified himself as the man driving the buggy in the right background of the picture. Nobody in the office could dispute his word.

While the buggy he was driving was too small in the picture to recognize his features, Mr. Golightly remembers driving toward Phelps Avenue at the very minute when the photo was snapped from the roof of C. A. White's Cafe, the present Homer Hall Grocery location.

Mr. Golightly, who came to this territory in 1918, was in Littlefield Saturday to visit a daughter, Mrs. T. R. Lenn, who is recuperating from an operation undergone at the Littlefield General hospital.

The child was playing in the earth water tank at the farm home of his parents, when his body came in contact with glass.

His mother stopped A. H. Mabry of Plainview, division manager for the Panhandle Refining Co., who rendered all possible first aid and brought the boy and his mother to the Littlefield hospital.

The boy's wounds were dressed and closed by Dr. C. E. Payne.

All employees of the Panhandle Refining Co. are required to study first aid, and a knowledge of caring for the injured came in valuable in caring for the boy until he reached the hospital.

THE DISAPPEARING DUCKS

In a booklet issued by the National Association of Audubon Societies is the following statement:

"J. N. Darling, chief of the United States Biological Survey, who is in a more advantageous position than anyone else in the United States to know, estimates (Bird-Lore, May-June, 1935) that there are one to twenty million ducks left on the North American continent. Approximately 600,000 'duck stamps' were purchased during the 1934 hunting season. On that basis, for every licensed hunter of wild waterfowl in the United States, less than 40 birds remain.

"Mr. Darling has also publicly estimated that during the 1934 open season from 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 birds were bagged by man. Any business man—any biologist—considering these figures, would immediately reach the conclusion that bankruptcy lay 'just around the corner'."

In fact, the danger point in the duck situation was reached years ago. What the country faces now is a condition of plain foolishness. The danger has been pointed out repeatedly in the last ten years, but measures to combat it have been far from adequate.

The drouth took terrible toll of ducks. That was a natural force at work, but it was working on an already greatly decimated number of birds. The toll taken by the hunter in connection with severe reduction of breeding areas for the birds is perhaps the most serious danger. The point has now been reached where some kinds of ducks must be right now in extreme danger of extinction.—Borger Herald.

Help! . . . Police

"Yes sir, Phillips 66 helps the police. The radiators on our radio squad cars were boiling over like teakettles . . . and mileage per gallon was as low as a racketeer's forehead. But we found the culprit—gasoline that just wasn't suited for hot weather driving. Now, with Phillips 66 we're getting cool running, plenty power, and plenty more mileage. For real performance at low cost, this gas sure rates a gold star."

SLUMBERING GOLD

by Aubrey Boyd

AUTOGASTER SERV.

TENTH INSTALLMENT
 Malone, hardened gambler, Maitland, son of a seafaring England family, were part of the Yukon gold rush of '97. On the trip north in a boat that included Frenchy, the man, Lucky Ross, the beautiful girl who took a fancy to Maitland, leader of the miners, Maitland's interest in the gold was not the only thing that interested him. He was a gambler, and he gave Maitland and Frenchy a lesson in the game of cards when he quit the outfit and his drunken partner, Owens, who was drowned in a brawl, Pete turned out to be a cheat of a shell game. Months later he was arrested and jailed for his murder. He got out while he waited for Lefty, who tried to help him, to get back the mail he had been carrying for the Mounties at Bennett—where Drew and Cathcart were stationed—he was recaptured by his enemy Fallon. But Maitland and Pete rescued him as Fallon was about to lynch him. They made for their camp at Bennett—Pete and Maitland with the horses, by one route, Speed by another. Led by the lead dog, Rusty, they found Dalton's deserted cabin. The second morning, Dalton staggered in mortally wounded—and died before he could tell Pete where the claim was—Two Mounties arrested Speed and Maitland for the murder (of which they are innocent) of a Siwash on Lake Lebarge. Garnet defended them at their trial. Cathcart said he had long thought the mysterious Siwash was a blind for a white prospector who wanted to keep his gold discoveries to himself, and the finding of the dead Siwash and the dying Dalton proved this point. He thought Maitland and Speed had known of a letter Dalton had sent to Owens mentioning his gold find. Rose Valery, the singing girl, started her story, and told how she decided to sing in the gold camps when a man who heard her voice told her he was going to Nevada, and would take her and give her a steer. Rose Valery, the singing girl, and a surprise witness, is now telling her story from the stand. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

"In Nevada, the woman in the saloon told me my fingering wasn't so good; took the guitar and showed me. That interested me a lot. I ask her to have supper with me. "She had sung in the camps in the Seventies, when mining was a big game on both sides of the Sierras. In Pacerville, on the California side, she had met a young adventurer named Dalton. She took him at first to be a prospector, and he did prospect to some extent. But a little later, when she became his sweetheart, she learned that he often took the road with a route agent he called Reeves. They worked the mountain passes, holding up pack trains and wagon shipments of gold till the country got too hot for them, and they disappeared.

"So May's love affair didn't last long. I gathered it was she who did most of the loving. Dalton was a swaggering young rascal, with a lot of life and good looks, and no heart to speak of. It was that, I think that attracted her. She was used to being courted.

"After Dalton left her she had a baby girl. Whether it was his or not, she didn't know for certain. She'd known him that short a time. It interfered with her work, so she sent it away to be cared for, shut it out of her life and forgot about it, out she tried to forget about Dalton.

"Then she met a rancher named Owens, who was taking up a grazing claim on the Nevada side, south of the Carson Valley. So she married Owens, and went with him to Nevada, to settle down and be a faithful wife.

"Her marriage to Owens was unhappy. He was ungenerous and unsocial—almost a miser. The ranch was a day's journey from any neighbor. No one, hardly, came near it. He was jealous of that old life of hers—had suspected, when he married her, what it had been. He worked the ranch himself, so there was no one to talk to but him, and he didn't talk.

"One night in summer, when Owens had watered the stock and she was watching him for the umpteenth time draw a lamp alongside the table, fix the wick and read some month-old newspapers, she heard a faint tapping on the door. She opened it, and there stood a visitor. For her!

"A little visitor about three years old, and small for her age, with a cute, solemn baby face, and wet eyes blinking in the lamplight, looking lost.

"Nice man said you know where is my Daddy?"

"The woman gave a smothered cry and gathered the child hungrily in her arms, not asking yet how nor why it had come there.

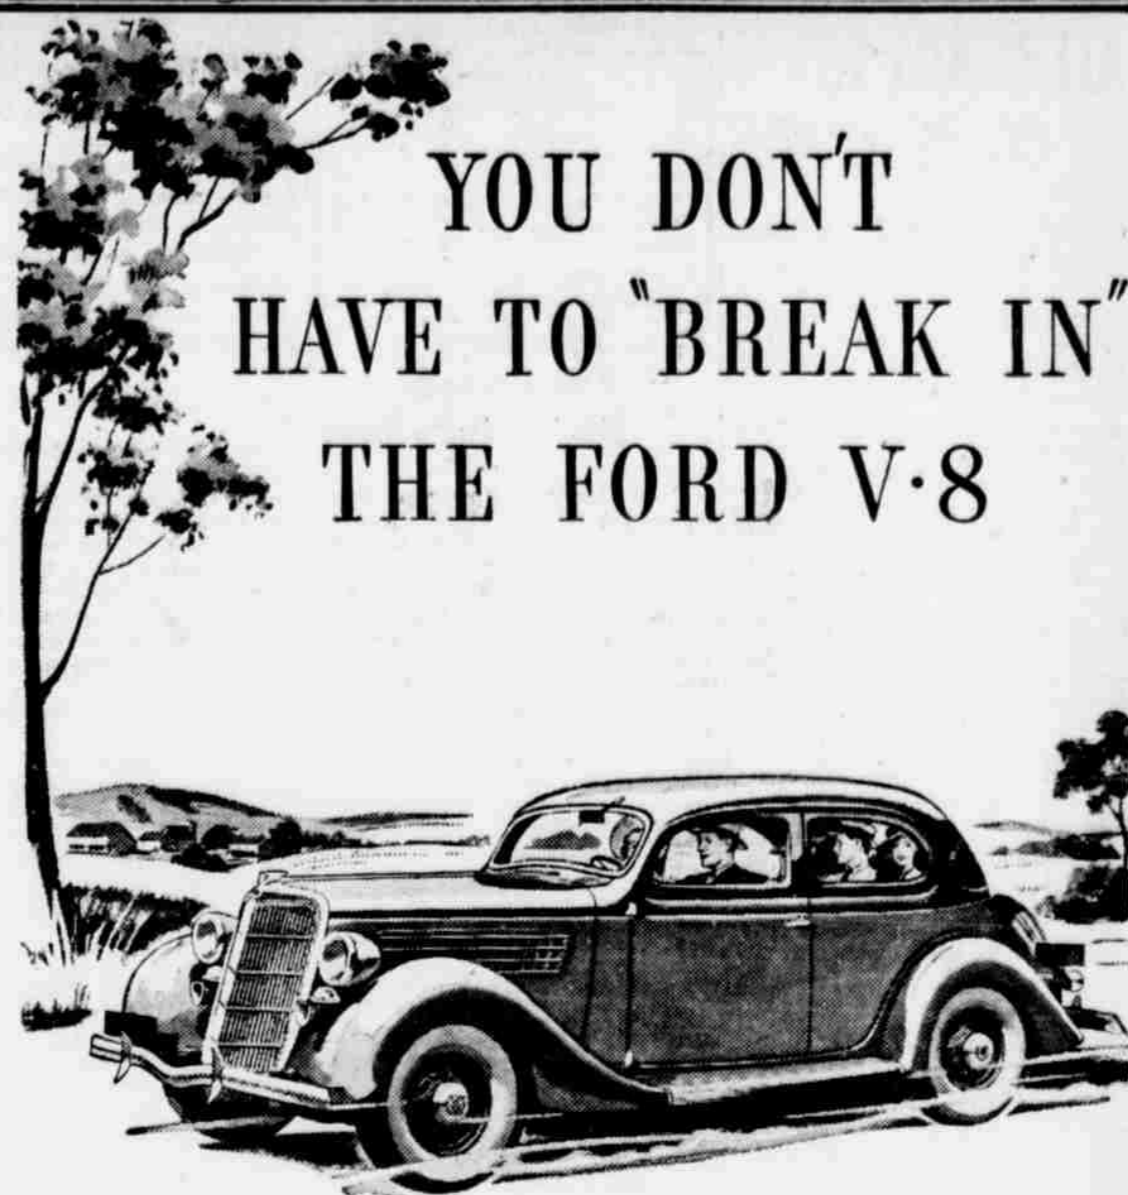

"Owens lit a lantern to go out and see who had brought the little one to the door. The rider was out of ear-shot now, but on the porch was a sack of gold and a note saying, 'This baby wandered off a train during a hold-up. Keep her till the posse comes looking for her. The gold is from the robbed train, and is yours if you want pay for your trouble.'

"That was all. The rest they tried to piece together from what they could make of the child's talk.

"For hours Owens pored over that note and over the gold, handling it, counting it—And the woman was yearning over the treasure in her arms. Suppose, by some great fall of chance, it was never claimed?

"Neither of them slept that night, and the next day they waited and watched the trails. The same hope was in their minds, though their reasons for hoping were far apart.

"Several days passed with no sign of the posse. Finally Owens made a

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip—to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

get the news. In his absence, the trip to the nearest freight station to woman started making a little suit of overalls for the girl.

"Toward sundown she went into the barn to look for eggs for the baby's supper. While she was groping for nests in the hay, she caught hold of a man's foot. She didn't scream. The first thought that flashed through her mind was that this was the man who'd brought the child and the gold.

"But the man sat up and smiled at her, and then her knees almost gave away. It was Dalton—whom she'd never expected to see again. He'd probably learned she was married to the rancher, and had counted on her helping him, if it came to that.

"It was his turn to be surprised when she spoke about the child and the gold. He hadn't had anything to do with leaving them there. But after thinking it over, he told her how it must have happened.

"He and the man he called Reeves had been waiting by a lonely stretch of railway track in the desert to stop a pay train, when a stranger on a bay horse rode by the place they were hiding. He looked like a good gun hand, and they cut him in. During the hold-up the child strayed off the train. When it pulled out and they found her, Reeves wanted to leave her there. They split on that; the man with the bay horse picked her up and rode south alone, with his share of the loot. Dalton believed he had happened on Owens' ranch by letting his horse hunt

"The other two struck west for the mountains. Dalton's horse had gone lame, and Reeves took all the gold on his mount to lighten its weight. But it still lagged and when the posse caught their trail, Reeves was far ahead and kept going. Dalton left the lamed horse on some rocky ground, so he would seem to have have gone on with Reeves, riding double, and after several days trailing on foot by a roundabout way, came to Owens' ranch.

"As to the child, Dalton thought it was a bad break to find her there, but he encouraged May's desire to keep her—since giving her up would ruin his hideout. So the baby had its hair cut, as well as being put in overalls.

"Just after May had done this rash thing, Owens came in that night with the news. The posse seemed to have lost the trail of all three of the fugitives, but the father of the

SPORT WORLD

By BILL NORRIS

Back in the harness again this week after an absence of nearly three weeks from the department, finds this old scribe without a thing to write about. Which leaves just one subject, and one about which you can scribble for years, never say anything, and will fill gullies and gulches of space. It's baseball.

At the present rate of gentle decay, this time honored sport should, within another five years, be lifted into a class with the minor arts. Your rascal today must be broad-shouldered, grim-faced, hairy chested, and lastly, a polished actor. A rare combination to look for in an athlete, hey?

But on the bashed-in face of things, it's true. Let us leave, for the nonce, this weary present and gaze five years into the mystic future. Here's what we might see on the sport page of the Manhattan Blatt:

Wrestling fans and movie scouts last night saw Luke "The Loat" McGluek back and batter Horseface Harriety into sublime submission in two fast and interesting falls at the Garden.

Horseface, always a local favorite with his ability to register superb agony at an instant's notice, was at his best throughout the brilliant show. He brought theatre scouts to their feet early in the bout when, with The Loat crushing him in a rib-scissor, he revealed one of the most realistic expressions of contempt ever seen in the Garden ring. Horseface is a cinch to get a juicy part in "Perils of Passion," the next Walter Squinchell production, show-goers believe.

The Loat, with a one-fall advantage, clinched the bout when he gazed limpidly into Horseface's brown eyes while both wrestlers were waiting in a neutral corner. Movie scouts, looking for material, quickly signed him for a fat role in the next big Super Stupor picture.

Some tapotch acting was revealed in the preliminaries when the Great Unknown, thrown into the laps of sports scribes by Dangerous Dave Petrovick, registered the blindest amazement seen in the Garden arena for weeks.

Other wrestlers turned in finished performances, and several were signed for acting bits in Western pictures.

Sounds a little odd, doesn't it? But you can't ever tell.

Bill Sanders, new Wildcat coach, and Earl Hobbs, Grammar school mentor, are said to be picking up a wealth of good pointers for the fall grid campaigns from Tech's Coaching School. Hobbs, in at the start, will not leave Tech until the last of August. Sanders, who just recently became established in Littlefield, has witnessed only part of the instruction.

But this splendid athletic tutorage combine should turn out some fine grid stuff this fall, despite a shortage of veterans.

OK Yantis, diminutive back of the '34 Cats, was home last night from a summer in the Odessa oil field. Yantis will go to Wayland College, Plainview, this fall, he says, and hopes to interperse a little football while winding up his high school work. Good Luck, Yantis.

Kenneth King May Lose Sight In One Eye; Hit By A Nail

Kenneth King, 8-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. King here, may lose the sight of his right eye, result of an accident late Monday.

BLACK WIDOW BRINGS LARGE CROWD TO LEADER OFFICE

Large numbers from Littlefield and trade territory have called at the Leader office since reading the item in regard to the Black Widow Spider being on display here. To most people this spider was not a stranger, many of the folks stating "oh, I have seen lots of them, but didn't know what they were," and "there are lots of them down home," etc. meaning in Central and East Texas. The majority of Texans have seen many number of these spiders, but didn't place a significance on them until the newspapers started publishing facts regarding deadly effect of their sting.

A few days after Mrs. C. E. Purvis of nine miles south of Littlefield brought the spider to the Leader office one of the staff discovered a million, more or less, small spiders had hatched out, and so believed it necessary to tie a piece of cotton cloth over the top of the jar, which had been punched with holes to permit sufficient air.

If anyone should be unfortunate enough to let the jar fall, and it is cracked already, there would be no telling when the next paper would be published.

Just what the management will do with the spider and all the little ones hasn't yet been determined, but in all probability they will get a dose of gasoline or such like in the near future.

A second spider of the same species was brought to the Leader office Thursday by Marcella and O. L. Roberts, Jr., small son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Roberts of one mile west of town, who stated their father had found it in one of their out buildings. Marcella also said she found one underneath an old doll dress that had been laying in their yard for some time.

C. C. Weigle, who with G. E. Orr, are employed by the Bureau of Entomology Plant Quarantine for the U. S. Government, at Littlefield, put in his bid for one of these spiders, which he plans to put in alcohol and send in to his headquarters at San Antonio, Texas.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH

J. W. Hendrix, Pastor

Last Sabbath day seemed to be quite a success. The hour of morning worship was well attended and the atmosphere of the service was excellent. The people seemed happy and glad they came. The evening hour, under the direction of Bro. D. B. Cobb, was greatly enjoyed and well attended. The report is a very fine sermon at the evening hour.

Church school will open its session at 9:45 a. m. This is an opportunity one can ill afford to miss. It is open to you, to your children, and to those afar off. Some fifteen teachers offer their services to you and yours.

There will be just one hour of public worship—11 a. m. In interest of revivals now in progress in our city, the Baptist and Nazarenes, we will have no evening service. This is only that our people may attend these other services. However, the young people will have their regular hour, meeting at 7:30 p. m.

We urgently invite you to the morning worship. The choir will offer their utmost cooperation in the service and they know how to do their part. The pastor will deliver a sermon, using as subject, "Trampin' Up The Truck." The pastor delivered a sermon along this line one evening and some in the audience suggested it should have been preached to the morning group also. It endeavors to answer what the church is and what it is trying to do. You might like it. At least it is revealing, it will help you to understand some matters.

Remember the pastor urges all his people to attend these other services in town every morning and evening, except 11 a. m. next Sunday.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

Premillennial, Missionary Evangelical

Jno. R. Denning, Pastor

Because we wished to take advantage of every minute of time afforded us by the presence of the Floydada Gospel Quartette last Sunday morning, we did not bring the morning message as announced. Therefore, we shall begin next Sunday morning a series on "The Sermon on the Mount."

Are you listening in on our "Gospel Half Hour", over KFYO at Lubbock each Sunday morning at eight o'clock? The Lord is blessing this effort in His name in a most gratifying way. The theme for next Sunday morning on the air will be "Gethsemane," and the program will be sponsored by L. B. Stone, of Stone's One Cent to Five Dollar Store, and to whom we are deeply grateful.

Next Sunday night, we shall preach on this subject: "Did Judas Iscariot Go To Hell?"

We are anxious to have you visit with us, so that we might shake your hand, and become better acquainted with you, and you with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hersch Lose Personal Belongings In Fire

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hersch at Memphis burned to the ground late Saturday, destroying all furniture and clothing. It has been learned.

Mrs. Hersch is the former Miss Cella Replin. She is manager of Replin's at Memphis. The couple were married June 2 and had lived in the home less than two months. Both were at the store when flames, origin unknown, broke out.

Rev. Denning Speaks To Filled House At Ralls Sunday

The worshippers at the Tabernacle Baptist Church were most pleasantly surprised last Sunday evening morning when their pastor returned from his radio broadcast at Lubbock, binging with him the members of the Floydada Gospel Quartette, viz: H. L. Sims, Arthur Tubbs, Earl Rainer, and Margaret Tubbs, with Mrs. Arthur Tubbs as pianist. The singers took charge of the entire morning service, and their gospel numbers were rendered with such depth of feeling, and in such spirit, that the eyes of many were kept wet with tears.

Immediately after the service, three autos, bearing the singers and members of the local church, left for Ralls, where Rev. Denning spoke in the City Auditorium at three o'clock. In addition to the large attendance of Ralls people, representative groups were present from many sections of the Plains, including: McAdoo, Crosbyton, Owens, Lorenzo, Petersburg and Floydada, completely filling the auditorium, where, in spite of the unusual heat of the day, they listened with unusual attention for nearly two hours, as Denning spoke on "Historical Proofs of the Inspiration of the Scriptures."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

9:45—Sunday School.
10:45—General Assembly—Announcements.
11:00—You will be invited to take part in the morning song program.

8:30—Rev. John Evans invites you to take part in the song worship, plenty of books for all.
8:50—Rev. E. F. Cole in Evangelistic Message.

If you have not heard Rev. Cole we urge that you do hear him, you will find him different. He is a man of God with Gods message. There will be services each morning at 10 o'clock and each evening at eight fifteen through the week of August 25. COME.

Church Of Nazarene Meeting Progresses; Interest Increases

The revival meeting at the big tent on Phelps Avenue is progressing with increasing interest and good attendance. This campaign, which is sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene is being conducted by the Parks-Hawkins Quartette-Evangelists, singers and musicians who are well known for their work on the Pacific Coast and in the Southern States.

Music is the special feature at all services. Quartettes, trios, duets and solos are sung by this group of workers who sing a variety of gospel songs, Southern, spirituals and original compositions.

The quartette is composed of Rev. R. M. Parks, Mrs. Parks, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hawkins. Rev. Parks who is a native of the State of Texas, besides having wide evangelistic experience, has served several pastorates including Central Church, Dallas, Texas, and First Church, Seattle, Washington. Mr. Hawkins is the writer of many gospel songs. The quartette has given programs over numbers of radio stations.

Saturday evening at eight o'clock the quartette will give a special musical program. At this service Mrs. Parks will speak, giving interesting bits of her experience. The public is cordially invited to attend all services. The tent revival will continue through this week, closing next Sunday night.

Ministers Meet Monday Morning At First Baptist

A called session of the Ministerial Alliance of Lamb and Bailey counties was held last Monday morning in the First Baptist church, Littlefield. The attendance was short because of the many revivals being held in the territory of the Alliance. The matter of the coming election was the main subject discussed in this meeting and it was agreed to have letters go out to all the membership of the Alliance urging the ministers to see that some one make it their business to get our people to the poles to vote and save the Dean law now on our statute, also to inform the voters as far as possible of the danger of voting what is styled the free text book amendment. Such amendment could in no way help Christian or private schools, and as all children now have access to free text books if they wish to attend our free public schools, the text book law should remain just as it is.

The next meeting place was not mentioned in the meeting neither the time of the next meeting, but as soon missing child had been killed in the hold-up, and—worse than that—was a United States marshal."

"The man in the barn had plenty of time to take stock of Owen's character and of his own position. As the pursuit died away and no word came from Reeves, Dalton realized that his partner had deserted him. He had also done some thinking about the way the posse had been mistracked.

"Dalton proposed staying at the ranch as a hired man until the trail was cold, and calling himself the father of the little 'boy.' The very daring of the scheme would protect them.

"Though the police had given up hope of finding the lost child, there was no slacking in the hunt for the three road agents involved in the killing of the Federal marshal, and Dalton knew that there would be none.

"Deciding to leave the country, he demanded a grubstake from Owens, to take him prospecting in the North. The rancher grudging the money, but was anxious to get rid of him.

"Owen's Jealousy got worse after the man was gone. In his brooding rages, he spoke of Dalton's willingness to appear as the child's father as if that were a deeper sign of understanding between them. His fury drove him to charges that may have bordered on a truth he didn't know.

"He gave her such a terrible time that finally she left him and her adopted baby, and went back to her old life, where I found her, in the dress of it.

"Some years later I came into Carson City, just before the rumor broke about the big gold strike in the North. And there the thing happened that begins to tie this up with—"

Fallon, twisting in his chair, caught her eyes now, squarely.

"You don't dare—" he blurted out with a dark menace.

"Do you dare threaten a witness in Her Majesty's Court?" Judge Dugas demanded.

Muttering something, Fallon bit his tongue and waited.

"I was crossing a planked sidewalk," continued Rose, "when I almost bumped into a man stepping down from the porch of the Nevada Hotel. His face came back to me over a long gap of time as well as distance. He'd changed some. I passed him blank.

"We met again in a place where I sang, and he invited me to drink something. I did, because it was rather funny to talk to a man who'd tricked me with April Fool candy the way he'd done and not be remembered.

"So I said, 'Your face looks kind of familiar. Haven't I seen it tucked up in the post office of somewhere?'"

"He almost jumped, I hadn't had a notice, how near the truth a reward poster might be. When I smiled, he gave a laugh the sounded flat.

"You've got the start on me, baby," he said, patting my hand. "The nearest I ever came to imaginin' you was a fool kid I met once in Frisco. You're pretty wise and you've been around. Maybe as a woman, you can answer a question that got me curious once. It just came into my mind. Do you believe a girl could be brought up as a boy without anyone on the outside guessin' it?"

"It depends on the girl and the surroundings," I said, still not suspecting anything in particular. "I think it could happen, but I wouldn't bet on a particular case without seeing the boy you suppose to be a girl."

"Well, you'll never see him," Fallon said, a little too offhand. "It just came into my mind."

"He started his meaningless love-making again and I left him.

"What he'd said chimed with something else in my memory. Though I didn't recall right at first what it was, I kept looking as I played the camp for a boy who might not be so boyish except for the clothes. The only one I noticed was a boy with gold hair. He didn't look girlish—worse his clothes, I mean, as if he had a right to them. But it struck me that I could have dressed him up as a stunning girl, and it was a crime to see hair like his wasted on a boy. He was with an older, whisky-faced man I'd never seen in the camps before, and whose name I learned to be Owens. The man was buying an outfit to go to Alaska.

"Owens are uncommon, but it was the name of the rancher May had married, and with that I remembered, in a shock of understanding, that the child left at the ranch house had blonde hair and had been dressed as a boy.

"Dalton had gone North. Owens had staked him. A man like May's Owens wouldn't make that trip without a solid lead to go on. I remembered his passion for gold. Dalton must have made a strike and sent for him.

"Certain this was the same man, I wondered how much Fallon had guessed. Maybe he just suspected a girl in boy's clothes and was curious. She was young and innocent, and he liked them that way. Her name, 'Pete' was as boy-like as possible, but since it didn't fit her appearance, it was a kind of giveaway."

The chortling voice of the river rippled through the silence as Rose paused. Speed leaned on the bar of the prisoners dock, intently watching her across the red-coated shoulder of the police guard. Fallon half-reclined in his chair, in a smouldering silence—the sheathed fire of one who holds a final answer in reserve.

"That same night, the big Yukon news came down on the wires from Seattle. Prospectors who had been waiting and ready were pulling stakes for San Francisco and the first steamers. Owens beat the gun by starting ahead of them and showed that he'd had a definite lead or something.

"I caught a train for Seattle, and overtook Fallon's steamer there. He was wary enough to keep Owens out of my way, Pete avoided me of her own accord. My talking to Fallon may have given her the idea I was a friend of his, and she mistrusted him by instinct.

"Fallon startled the rancher Owens drinking and gambling—a first sign that he had guessed true about the gold. That it was true, I made sure in a more direct way."

Wade rose to object.

"Your Honor," he said, "I have listened to the witness's vivid story without offering an objection till now. I feel it my duty, as counsel for the Crown, to object to it as theoretical and move that it be thrown out."

Judge Dugas looked reflectively at Rose. "How did you prove Miss Valery, that there was a gold mine at stake?"

Decesed was the daughter of David K. and Jane Latimer Jamison, and the grand-daughter of James Latimer, who settled near Clarksville in 1833. She was a niece of Albert H. She had a friendly greeting for all, and her charming personality has won for her a host of friends. The high regard with which she was held and the love borne by her relatives and friends was manifest by the large array of beautiful floral offerings at the services.
