General Rains Wednesday Aid Crops, Dryland Needs More

Two Charged With DWI By Lamb Officers

Two out-of-state men were charged with DWI by County Sheriff's officers when arrested. Edward Owen Eddens of Pagosa Springs, Colo., was arrested last Saturday afternoon by Homer McLaurry, deputy at Sudan, and charged with DWI. He was freed on a $1,000 bond on a not guilty plea.

Raymond Williams of Ney-soma, Calif. was arrested Monday evening by V. L. Smith, Sr., chief deputy, and charged with DWI. Williams was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail on a guilty plea.

Two other arrests were made, both by the Highway Patrol. One was charged with disregarding police warning and the other with throwing trash on a public highway.

About three inches fell in an area south of Anton and in the area southwest of Pep. This was the heaviest moisture fall in the area.

T. Fife, who lives five miles south of Sudan, reported the rain measured 2.3 inches and "it fell hard."

Other reports from the area west of Littlefield included Bula where just a shower was reported by Jim Claunch. However, Bennie Claunch said he got three quarters of an inch.

Anton received .6 inches with just a shower reported north of that city and spotted rain east.

Rain measurements varied around Spade. Two miles north of the community the report was .5 inches and eight miles north the rain measured one inch. South of the Spade highway moisture measurements were .4 inches.

Amherst received about a quarter of an inch both in town and in the surrounding area.

Fieldton had a heavy shower. Springlake had enough to dampen the highway as did Earth and the Rocky Ford area, north of Littlefield, received about .25 inches.

TOWN and COUNTRY

by Wendell Tooley

There's no music sweeter than the sound of rain falling on the roof and no smell better than rain on the parched earth of West Texas.

It wasn't any trouble to accurately Wednesday morning. I could hardly wait for the rain gauge and it took so long since I'd had a good downpour that I visualized and hoped for more than the half inch gauge showed.

Over nine inches of rain in time last year and just over three this year, it was time to go into the rainfall records when it has ever been before. Carl Pillion with an old rain chart in a year or two back (wet when we weren't ash-to run such a record) and back on the report began in 1911.

It seems that the year 1917 was like this year... by the end of June that year it rained only 2.90 and the total was 8.73... and was the driest year on record. The average rainfall in this area is 18.50 per year. In 1945 it had rained only by the end of June... and the year 1927 showed only inches, with 4.47 registered at the end of June.

Folks out at Pep still optimistic about getting a crop planted. I talked Sil Diering Wednesday and he said last year's crop was good.

Penn Point By D.H.P.

Speed has become the number one American Mania! We must ask ourselves, why do we speed? The usual reasons are: to get where we are going faster; to impress others; or merely because we are geared to a "speed for speed's sake" philosophy.

onomics. Treasury Secretary Dillon, who should know more about economics than practically anybody, tipped us off in his recent speech to the Financial Writers Association in New York in promising "a top to bottom reduction in the rates of income tax".

The finances of the State of Texas should be somewhat better at the end of this year than last. The report issued from the office of Robert S. Calvert, comptroller, showed that for the first time this year the total expenditures from September 1 to May 31 are about $117,000,000 less than the income.

By itself, a tax "readjustment" might not be too significant. But, with the announcement coming on the heels of Mr. Dillon's plea for a still higher ceiling for the national debt, the picture of the New Frontier of Plenty - without - Perspiration begins to come into focus.

This is a far cry from being in the red as the state was at this time last year. Expenditures for May were $110,618,188 and the income was $203,814,246 or about $93,000,000 more than was spent.

The limited sales tax bill which went into effect last year is now the third highest source of income for the state. Only the gasoline tax and public welfare grant from the Federal government exceed the sales tax income.

Hollywood certainly has its ups and downs. Recently one of the "dumb blonde type" actresses was released (fired) from a motion picture because she never showed up for filming.

With tax reductions, there will be dancing in the streets. What else have we been waiting for? But why stop here? There have been tax reductions before - if you can remember that far back.

The most recent incident in the filming came when the "leading" man resigned. So, all you movie fans, you will never get to see this one.

That will be IT! Noted in the Congressional Record on Monday (under extended remarks in the Appendix) by Rep. Widnall (N. J.) and on Tuesday in the same official journal by Rep. Derounian (N. Y.), was the correspondence between "a little girl in Washington, D. C., named Virginia" and the Circulation Manager of the N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE.

Now, at last, we know where that New Frontier is!

"Dear Sir," wrote the little girl, "I am three years old and my three - year - old friend, Caroline, says there is no New York Herald Tribune. So I'm writing to ask you if she is telling the truth."

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Herald Tribune. It exists as certainly as Walter Lippman and Joseph Alsop and Roscoe Drummond exist, or Red Smith and Eugenia Sheppard and Clementine Paddleford exist. It exists as long as the love and generosity of its backers exist and, no matter what your friends in Washington tell you, the New York Herald Tribune is everywhere."

"Not believe in the Herald Tribune? You might as well not believe in David Lawrence or Hy Gardner. You could get your father to watch day and night to see if the Herald Tribune is placed on the White House lawn, but even if he never saw it, this still wouldn't be proof that it doesn't exist."

"Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance and beauty can push aside the curtain and view the glory of this great American newspaper."

Whitharral Superintendent In Report At South Plains College

Editor's Note: The following feature story was written by Mrs. Niles E. Rodgers of Whitharral for a course she was taking as a student at South Plains College. It is published as a tribute to J. W. Bowman and as an inspiration to young people.

by Mrs. Niles E. Rodgers
James Weldon Bowman fits no nutshell, does not conform to conformities sake, and does not believe in the tail wagging the dog. Walk into the halls of learning at Whitharral High School and the corridors will be echoing with his booming laughter or his sagacious voice will be expounding the wisdom of science and physics that ignites the pupils to dig out the answers for themselves. He has an amazing philosophy on young people. Since it was not too many years ago that he passed this fence row, he has a genuine insight and capacity to help his students with their problems. He encourages many not only to finish high school but so inspires them that the highest percentage from any public school is now attending college.

Weldon was next to the youngest of seven children born to Mervin and Opha Bowman in Comanche county near Comanche, Texas. Bowman's Dutch grandparents had moved there shortly after the Civil War in 1864. His great-grandfather was the first business man in Comanche and operated a hotel, blacksmith shop, bar, and a cotton gin. Bowman was raised on backwoods Methodist training in the brush arbor and circuit rider days. His father dealt with firm discipline and his mother kept the pomegranate bush well pruned with impromptu switchings -- Bowman often being the recipient. His environment was typical farm training with all the work graduated from the youngest on up. Being next to the youngest, his lot most often fell to picking up cow chips and kindling for the fire. Every day was a work day except Sunday, Christmas and the Fourth of July -- this was a day for picnicking and swimming at the nearby creek.

From age six on, his life has the nostalgia of adventurous Huckleberry Finn. One of his earliest recollections of school is of one Sam Culppepper. Bowman says: "He should be in a shrine along with the paddle he used, which was a baseball bat planed down; believe me, he could make a lasting impression."

Mediocre grades came with little or no effort the first few years of school, and he was generally content with this system. To own a bicycle was his only ambition at this time, which his mother promised him when he was in the seventh grade ... if he made all A's. With just a little effort, he made all A's. He decided at this point to play a little hooky and he still made good grades. Feeling quite cocky, he decided to see how far he could go. He went swimming in the creek, visited the syrup and peanut mills, and walked the railroad tracks. He became more rebellious and played hooky attending class only the required number of days to receive a grade. On occasions of absolute necessity, he could persuade one of his sisters to write him a note.

His sisters thought he was an absolute genius. He would practice working their algebra problems in the afternoons when they were busy with chores. When they did their homework at night and got stumped on a problem, he would call downstairs and tell them the answer. He was quite high in their favor. Of course, he never told them he practiced their problems. World War II had reached its crescendo and all of his brothers were in the service. As each one left he had inherited their work load and now he not only had to pick up the kindling, he had to cut it, bring it in, bring in the water, and tend to the livestock. He was now man-size and doing a man's work. In the summer he loaded bales of hay behind a peanut thrasher for three cents a bale and made nine dollars a day. He also made a crop and had more money in his pockets than he had dreamed of. He decided he had had enough schooling for a lifetime. He told his parents he was striking out on his own -- after all, he was almost rich and had an eight-grade education. His mother gave him his sugar ration card and he struck out for the wheat harvest.

His patriotic pulse was pounding heavily, and he wanted more than anything to be one of Uncle Sam's doughboys. He contrived to get a draft card which he filled out, but before he could get in the army one of his friends ran away from home to join him. His friend's parents had law enforcement officers to look for him. When the officers found them in a hotel at Plainview, his invalid draft card was seized. This left his voluminous ego deflated and his plans wrecked. There was little left to do but to go home.

He was now a freshman in high school. He liked the agriculture teacher and he attended school two hours each day and played hooky the remainder of the day. His high school transcript shows him to have one and one-half credits. His agriculture teacher had a tremendous effect upon him however, and he gives him much credit for inspiring him to further his education later. Meantime, he bothered his parents continually to sign for him to get in the army. When he was seventeen they finally relented and signed a statement that he was eighteen. Bowman says his mother is still bothered by this fib she told. He finally got into the army medical corps in 1946 before the war was over. In less than a year he was first sergeant; he soon became sergeant major of his group, and when he was transferred to the Air Force he was operating room assistant.

Colonel William DeWitt treated him as a friend and ally and placed confidence in him, teaching him many things including closing up after surgery. Anytime the colonel had to get up after twelve at night he would call Bowman in to assist him. The colonel would not go back to bed after being awakened, and Bowman and the colonel often spent the rest of the night talking while the colonel smoked Bull Durham and sipped on tequila. Because of the colonel's influence, Bowman became interested in pharmacy, which he took in college.

Bowman's army career lasted two years, eleven months and twenty one days. When he was discharged he returned home to marry Elaine Banks who had been his sweetheart since she was fourteen and he was fifteen. In December 1948 she took him for better or worse. He had an eighth-grade education and a pocket full of ambition -- she had a year of college work and much love, faith, and courage. Without her help and encouragement Bowman says he never could have made it.

He now found he had more ambition than his money could buy. He went to Daniel Baker College for one year, and here he met Paul Tyson, a bachelor coach who had coached at Waco from 1919 until the early 1940's. Tyson lived to work with boys; his "boys" did things not because he made them, but because they wanted to. In Tyson Bowman found a pattern to follow. His influence was so strong that he changed his major from pharmacy to science and was determined to become a teacher.

As a freshman in college, he was paying for a car, a house, and little Steve arrived in 1949 -- all on forty cents an hour.

He could not afford the busy work for A's, but he made B's and C's easily. He watched the bulletin board for jobs, having three or four part time jobs at the same time. Money was so scarce he often went to school without a cent in his pockets so he would not be tempted to join the coke and coffee crowd.

Elaine started to work for ninety dollars a month -- but by the time she paid the baby sitter and other expenses she only took home about fifteen dollars a month. She gave the job up. A little later she got a job at the University of Texas where Bowman attended school for three years. She was paid one-hundred and forty-five dollars a month, and she worked off and on for three years. The stork paid another visit in 1952, this time bringing Tom.

Bowman graduated with a B. S. in education from the University of Texas in 1953. He and his family moved to Goldthwaite where he taught science in high school for four years.

Once he became broke and quit teaching for six months to go to Houston to work in a pharmaceutical house which paid two and one-half times more money than teaching. But he hated the job -- and he missed being a young man. He did some work for the Methodist Church, but it was not the same as teaching school. He became depressed and felt as though anyone could be picked off the street and trained for his job, but he knew just anyone could not teach. Back he went to Goldthwaite and the profession he loved.

Times were tough for awhile. Two more blessed events arrived, a baby girl, Sherry, in 1954, and a baby boy, Ricky, in 1956. Bowman drove a bus for one-hundred and ten pupils, taught six classes a day and he was farming two farms twenty miles from town. When he finished the bus route he would start the pumps, set the canvases, milk the cows, and do chores for the other livestock. He had to go back to town many nights for play practice, to take money up at the gate or to do other extracurricular activities. When he arrived home he would plow until he had to quit for physical rest.

At the Goldthwaite Methodist Church he found the high school kids did not have a class because no one wanted to teach them. Here he taught his first Sunday School class. His house soon became their Sunday hangout. In one year they consumed four-hogs, one hundred chickens, and four calves.

When he started teaching there the pupils in high school were made to take science. Before he left, he was teaching one hundred *fifty six pupils science and biology. The coach was drawing eight hundred dollars above the state minimum salary -- none of the teachers were drawing above the minimum salary. Bowman asked for a raise equal to the coach's salary for the work he was doing. The pupils offered to quit football for him to stay as a teacher because they had realized what they needed and wanted. The board came through with the raise in salary. But Bowman did not go back the next year. Bowman said: "I couldn't go back because I would have been controversial, I had proven my point. A school can operate without a coach or superintendent -- and a school doesn't need all of its money at the top."

In 1958 Bowman was one of the fifty teachers chosen from eight thousand teachers from three states for a scholarship to go back to school to study science for two summers. He received his master's degree with physical chemistry as his major from Texas Tech in 1959.

He moved to Roosevelt as high school principal for one year. From Roosevelt he moved to Whitharral as superintendent in 1960 at thirty years of age. "Money is not the most important aspect of teaching," says Bowman. He admits that he derives much from praise. And he is praised much at Whitharral -- not because he seeks praise -- but because he deserves praise. His students respect him, but not from afar. He is respected for his scholarly appearance and his genuine interest in the future of his pupils. He not only counsels those now in high school, but he always has time for those that are now in college -- many of which admittedly would never have gone except for his influence. From the 1961 graduating class of fifteen seniors, thirteen are now enrolled in college.

Not only is his influence felt in school, but all over the community. This year he was elected president of the Lions Club and under his leadership the Whitharral club won first place in America for percentage of membership increase. In February he was presented the Man of the Year award, the highest honor this little community can bestow upon one of its citizens.

He is young as long as he is teaching people. He is well paid with people's confidence and support of his programs, and he is happy doing a better job than has previously been done and knowing that the people are pleased.

When asked how long he intends to teach, he replied: "I will teach as long as I can feel the hair on the back of my neck rise with the thrill of helping a student accomplish something" -- and borrowing an expression added, "A person cannot be successful unless he succeeds every once in a while." He believes a teacher should quit teaching and follow another line of work when he loses his feeling of tolerance or has no direct influence, gets out of touch with what students need, or when he loses perspective and becomes self-centered. He believes just as firmly in doing whatever can be done to keep the really good teachers -- get them better houses, raise in salary or whatever is needed.

He believes there is a lack of rigid requirements for good teachers. He believes that teachers should be screened rigidly, before being hired, concerning their temperament, desires, and industriousness. He believes they should be watched in their habits for two years before being allowed to take an education course. He believes that if it was not for the loop-hole in the certification clause we would get more teachers really qualified to teach, and if a teacher couldn't be found that was really qualified to teach -- leave the place vacant. Soon people would wake up to just how serious this business of teaching is. His views are too idealogical for the present generation he admits, and it would not be something that could be done in a hurry, he says. Herein lies the only temptation he has had to get in politics. He calls himself an agitator and admits a desire for being in the Senate or House to remedy this situation among other definite views he holds.

J. W. BOWMAN

Under Bowman's guidance and foresight the Whitharral school plant has undergone an internal change as well as a facial -- forty seven improvements had been incorporated when the last inventory was taken. Physics has been added, the emphasis on testing has changed to avoid academic tags from being put on students, the centralized library has been decentralized with subject books put in the subject rooms with the teachers supervising the studies to insure good habits. Here the teachers serve attitudes and each is pushed to the limit of ability and the slow learner is given additional help. A physical fitness program has been initiated into all twelve grades and records are kept on physical fitness at each grade. A speed-reading machine program has been put to use at the grade school level. New sports equipment has been added including a new court and trampolines. Plans are now being made for an additional building. Whereas small schools' enrollment has decreased, Whitharral's enrollment is up twenty two percent last year, with some of the increase being high school transfers from Littlefield and Llanelland to Whitharral.

What teenagers do with their time is of prime concern to Bowman. "In the 1930's 90 percent of the young people had jobs," he said, "but now only ten per cent work and there is a tendency for more activity and less work." He believes that young people must develop individual initiative, self-reliance, and pride in achievement. He strongly believes that children want their excesses limited and as they become adults the limits are their own. He believes that children who watch television can be (See REPORT on Page 7)

The Meaning Of A Father

By James D. Poe, Pastor Church of the Nazarene

As we approach that special day set aside to remember our fathers, the question arises as to what it means to be a father.

A father is in partnership with God! He is the leader for tiny feet to follow, the guiding hand for adoring lives, the one who charts the course for those formidable years.

A father spends much of his time and energy trying to make the money necessary for everyday comforts and essentials of his children. He listens to the tall tales of the children, works in the garden and yard at home, plays all sorts of games with not only his own, but all the children of the neighborhood, but his most important role is that of molding these little lives into strong personalities, especially is it important that he does his best in helping his children to mold a good Christian personality. A father recognizes that no fortune compares in any way to the joy and pride of those small feet who wish to follow in his footsteps. For in the eyes of his children, a father is the greatest man on earth, a man who is capable of only goodness, purity and right. He is one who always has the time to hear all the problems and heartaches of their young lives, one who is able to meet every obstacle they encounter. From his heavy schedule, he is one who takes the time to walk along with them, hand in hand, and not only answer present day questions, but also takes the time to speak to them of their eternal Father, who has a plan for their lives.

A father plans all the everyday activities for his children; he learns about ships, airplanes and toy trains from them; he discovers the new dolls with real hair, the delicacy of a real mud pie and all the things that pertain to a child's world.

A father is the "shepherd" who keeps his "lambs" alerted to time of various functions; he is the teacher who explains confusing problems to small minds; the companion who has time to help with school problems and term papers, or the construction of an entrant in the local "soap box derby."

A father is the strength of a child's life, for he is the one who holds them fast in the middle of the road in those beginning years. His quiet patients, his firm discipline his unwavering solidity compose the foundation upon which the child builds his life.

A father is the courage in a child's life, for he gives, in all the crises experiences of early life, a special tenderness, love and understanding. His strength and faith in these times give courage to young hearts to go on, no matter what arises. His faith, his gentleness, his trusting sympathy provide the ingredients which the child transforms into courage.

A father is his child's conception of God. The love of our Heavenly Father is beyond the ability of our human minds to grasp. But when a child observes the love of an earthly father compares it with that of a Heavenly Father, then realization comes that the Love of the Heavenly Father surpasses this earthly expression — the comprehension comes! Faith Comes! Love Comes! A Christian life is begun! For in the life of his father the child sees the translation of a living GOD.

You Need The Church The Church Needs You

Two centuries ago a glassmaker in Pennsylvania provided the land for the erection of a church. But he attached a string to his gift. Each year the congregation must pay to him, or to his descendants, one red rose, forever.

Annually in a traditional service the members of that church fulfil the terms of their deed. In the words of a reverent visitor, "God's rent is paid in coin more worthy than man's."

What strange thrust of imagination devised such a price. Certainly it was more than a man's love of roses . . .

Wisely he realized our tendency to take for granted our blessings. Fer- vently he prayed that we would forever treasure the privilege of worship. Gently he reminds us that there is beauty and happiness in every sacrifice for the support of God's House.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Store All Surplus Forage As Silage

Farmers who plan to expand their silage feeding program may want to investigate the use of horizontal silos, says W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer. These silos are classified into three types — stack, trench and bunker. The type that can be used most economically will depend on the situation on each farm.

Of the three, the stack type is the least expensive in first cost. This type has generally been used for emergency silage storage but some farmers have success with them and continue to use them for several years, points out Allen.

The stack is made by piling the silage on the ground at a height of 4 to 7 feet. Usually the stack is from 20 to 30 feet wide. The plastic cover must be anchored securely around the edges and over the top to prevent the entrance of air. Many farmers place a concrete slab on the ground to provide for better feeding and storage conditions. For more information on stack type silos write for MP-525, "Handling Silage in Aboveground Silos on the Coast Prairie."

The trench silo is made on the side of a hill. The sides and bottom may be of earth or of concrete for permanent use," says Allen. For self-feeding and removing silage with a tractor scoop, the depth is usually 6 to 8 feet.

The bunker silo is built above ground and can be more conveniently located than the trench silo. For durability, it should be constructed of treated poles and planks or with tilt-up concrete panels and buttresses. A 4-inch thick concrete floor is recommended for all permanent horizontal silos. "Treated poles and 2-inch tongue and groove oak board sides will be useful for 20 to 30 years with a minimum of maintenance," says Allen.

For plans for horizontal silos visit your county agent or write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

Therefore an extensive summer program is planned that will include tennis, basketball, volleyball, bowling, shuffleboard and the trampoline. Emphasis will be put on the family and the community, and everyone will be invited to go swimming once or twice a week with a school bus used for transportation. Sandhills Philosopher

Philosopher Ponders Ability Of Reds To Worry About Bosses

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm takes a look at Russian agriculture this week. We guess that's what he's doing.

Dear editor:

As everybody knows, if American space scientists were as far ahead of Russian space scientists as American farmers are of Russian farmers, we probably would already have conquered the moon and been eyeing Mars or Venice. In fact we might have been to those places too and come back saying there's nothing out there worth conquering.

I don't know why this is, unless it's just that farmers are smarter than scientists, although maybe not as well paid. But what brought this up was an announcement last week by Mr. Khrushchev that he was raising the price of meat and butter in Russia by 30 percent and what interested me was the little speech the dictator gave following the increase.

Kill Those Bagworms Early In Year

Bagworms are now occurring in rather large numbers on trees and other plants in many parts of the state. This insect is a general feeder and can cause serious damage to certain trees, especially evergreens, points out C. F. Garner, extension entomologist.

At this time, the worms are small and can be successfully controlled by proper spraying or dusting of the plants with insecticides. It is important to apply chemicals early enough to control the worms before they become too large, and cause serious damage, adds Garner.

He suggests a check of all plants around the home, especially evergreens for the spindle-shaped sacks which may be hanging from the twigs and branches.

The following insecticides are recommended for bagworm control. Malathion (50% emulsifiable concentrate 1 to 1 1/2 ounces per 5 gallons water), Toxaphene (90% emulsifiable concentrate, 2 1/2 ounces per 5 gallons water), or lead arsenate (2 1/2 to 3 ounces per 5 gallons water).

In addition to these materials there are several brands of combination sprays (two or more insecticides combined together) on the market which will give good control of bagworms as well as other pests. One of the common combination sprays contains malathion plus DDT. Combination sprays and other insecticides can be purchased from any store or business establishment which handles household or agricultural chemicals, says the entomologist.

Sprays are preferred over dusts and the label instructions should be followed for mixing.

Mrs. Street Is Honoree At Coffee

The WMS of Central Baptist Church honored their former WMS president, Mrs. M. C. Street, with a coffee Saturday morning from 9 to 10:30 in the home of Mrs. Eva Dee Wright. She was presented a coming ware tea pot and percolator. Refreshments were served to about twenty guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Street will move to their home at 727 E. 12th St. in Littlefield this week.

Members of the Laurence Street Church of Christ met after church Sunday night for a social and back yard supper at the Pat Byrum home. There were about seventy five present.

Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Bennett, Dallas, were visiting old friends in Anton last week. Rev. Bennett was here to officiate at the Bennett-Maynard wedding.

Mrs. Thelma Burkett, Post, and Mrs. Hattie Burkett, Lubbock, visited in the homes of Mrs. C. D. Nelson, and Mrs. Eva Wright, Friday, and Saturday, and attended the coffee for Mrs. M. C. Street Saturday morning. Mrs. B. Westbrook, Friona, spent Sunday night and Monday with her mother, Mrs. T. J. Bevel.

Visiting in the home of their mother, Mrs. J. A. Jackson this week is Mrs. A. W. Strimple, San Antonio, Mrs. Jesse Turn-

"I wouldn't say this is pleasant for the people," he said "but the people understand that this is far more unpleasant for the Central Committee and for the rest of the government."

Now this type of "understanding" baffles me. If the Russian people can understand how it's more painful and unpleasant to the Communist bosses, who already have all the cars, all the best apartments, and all the best food,

Milk Princess Is Traveling Texas Maiden

Miss Louise Knolle of Sandia, since being named National Dairy Princess at Chicago last September, has traveled widely telling of America's great and vital dairy industry. As a spokesman for the million dairy farmer members of the American Dairy Association, A. M. Meekma, extension dairy specialist, says she has visited 26 states and South America and currently is on her June Dairy Month tour urging consumers to use dairy products for health reasons.

The South Texas beauty has traveled by plane, train and automobile and has run the weather gamut from snow, blizzards, fog and drizzle, rain to the clear and sunny. She has experienced temperatures ranging from 30 degrees below zero to 90 degrees above and by her own word has enjoyed every minute of it. Meekma reports that she has

Observer Recharge Well Will Be Added

A new observation well for the artificial groundwater recharge program will soon be added at the High Plains Research Foundation.

James Vaillant, Associate Water Engineer, stated the new observation well was being added to better study the effect of recharge upon the underground formation. The well will be used to study ground water movement and using insecticides, cautions Garner.

Several different types of hand sprayers are available which can be used for applying the sprays. The common types are the compressed air sprayers, trombone sprayers and garden hose attachment sprayers.

Insecticides are poisons and should be handled with caution. Follow safety directions listed on the label and keep children and pets out of the treated area. After spraying, wash the grass to remove the chemical residue, advises Garner.

Mrs. Troy Woods, Friona, former Anton resident visited friends here Saturday and Sunday and attended Central Baptist Church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hinkle of Mena, Ark. are visiting this week with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Barton, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Parker went to Quitaque Monday to attend funeral services for her uncle.

The Builders Class at Central Baptist Church met Thursday night in the home of their teacher, Mrs. L. L. Anderson for a social.

42 was played. Home made ice cream, and cake were enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Rex Easter, Rev. and Mrs. Darvey Lavender, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Wooten, Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Spradley, Mrs. Claud Nowell, and the hostess, and Mrs. Anderson.

Visitors in the A. L. Bell home Sunday was Mrs. Dorothy Burke, and Mrs. Lucy Clevenger, Donnie and Craig, all of Lubbock.

to raise prices on food because there's not enough to go around, then they're far more sensitive than the rest of us. I can see an ordinary Russian walking past a Communist official's house and imagining him inside eating a steak and buttering his bread and feeling downright sorry for him because he's eating with the memory still fresh in his mind of having to vote to raise the price of meat and butter by 30 per cent. It's enough to take away his own appetite for the cabbage soup waiting for him in his one - room apartment.

With this type of understanding, there's no limit to what the Russian bosses can pull off, in time though the Russians may learn that it's easier to order up a space craft than a crop of wheat.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

 No reasons were given when the board of regents for state teachers colleges fired Dr. Koening. Also no criticism of his teaching ability was brought out at the hearing...
 The college professors association does not employ a strike or a picket line when it feels a professor has been done wrong. It merely "blacklists" the school by giving notice to other college teachers that it is not the best place to accept employment. Gradually, over the years, faculty members who feel Koening was done wrong will accept jobs at other schools which are not on the "blacklist."

 When May started, the deficit was $73,934,636. But heavy collections of corporation and insurance taxes wiped out the deficit, which has been present for nearly four years. This put the fund into the black by the middle of the month...
 But when the school payments came due, it pulled the fund $9,391,468 into the red at the end of May. Early June expenditures made the deficit $28,015,980. It will go back into the black when sales tax payments reach the treasury in July...

 Atty. Gen. Will Wilson has filed one civil lawsuit, contending that a group of operators drilled four wells on a slant so the bottoms of the holes were on someone else's property, and that they plugged two more wells with cement before they could be tested...
 Civil suits are being filed by oil companies against owners of nearby leases, contending that crooked holes have drained away oil which belonged to them. So far, eight suit suits have been filed...
 If court - type evidence is found by the commission's engineers and Texas Rangers, evidence will be turned over to U. S. Dist. Atty. Dr. Philip Hoffman, University of Houston president, appeared pleased. He said the Commission's adoption of a large portion of a "role and scope" plan was a "satisfactory recognition of the needs of Houston and the State."
 Commission also agreed to consider at its July meeting the merger of the law and pharmacy schools at Texas Southern University with similar schools at the University of Houston. A Commission member said he didn't think the state could afford two schools of law and pharmacy so close together...

Weed Control Makes Good Pastures Better

Weeds compete with pasture and meadow plants for moisture, plant nutrients, light and space. They often reduce yields by half, says E. M. Trew, extension pasture specialist.

Weed control is necessary for top returns from productive pastures and meadows, he adds, but may not prove profitable where yields are low.

The specialist points out that weeds are best controlled through preventive measures. Practices which encourage dense, vigorous stands of grass are the best preventive measures and include thorough seedbed preparation, using adapted plants, planting the right amount of high quality seed by the best known method at the proper time, using adequate fertilization and proper grazing and forage use.

Both mechanical and chemical weed control methods are outlined in a recent Texas Agricultural Extension Service publication, L-476, "Weed Control in Cultivated Pastures and Meadows." Trew and John A. Long are the authors. Copies are available from the offices of local county agents or by mail from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

In connection with weed control, Trew says that rotary hoes do an excellent job of controlling seedling grass and weeds in new plantings of Coastal and Midland Bermudagrass. Killing the weeds when they are small will conserve moisture for use by the grass, he adds. If new plantings of Coastal and Midland are grazed before a complete cover or stand is obtained, it can mean that two years instead of one will be required to establish a good stand. This, he adds, is costly and multiplies the weed problem.

Trew recommends top-dressing summer temporary and permanent pastures with nitrogen after each grazing or cutting if soil moisture is adequate. This practice helps as one of the cheapest ways to get increased forage production and quality.

Mexico University in Portales, and Elaine Simnacher, spring graduate of Texas Tech, are spending the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simnacher and family. If variety is the spice of your life, see the choice selection of buys now at your Chevrolet dealer's One-Stop Shopping Center. One of those new Chevrolets, Chevy II's or Corvairs should suit you perfectly and spare your budget any strain!

We wouldn't presume to tell you which one to buy, but your Chevrolet dealer has more ways of helping you make up your mind. Like the Jet-smooth Chevrolet Impala, luxurious, extremely comfortable, undoubtedly the best riding car in its field; the Chevy II Nova, lively, lovely, and inexpensive, too; the Corvair Monza, a family car that rather thinly disguises its desire to be a sports car; and the Corvette, America's out-and-out sports car. As you see, your Chevrolet dealer has just the tonic for that "let's go traveling" look in your eye. And, what's nice about buying one, you won't have to juggle your life around to afford it. You know?
