THE FUTURE OF THE SMALL TOWN—

Under the caption, "The Small Town," The Texas Weekly says: "So many thinkers and observers of various kinds are saying nice things about the future of the small town in the United States, that more ordinary significance must be given such utterances. For example, in a 540-page book on human stupidity, which purports to be only a short introduction" to the history of the subject, Walter B. Pitkin has the following to say:

"The typical small town that is ruled by one mill or one mine or one railroad, but lives on a dozen industries, all small, and has a good farming district around it is, I venture to say, the best of all places on earth wherein to grow up and live. . . . The sooner Americans abandon their big cities, their factory towns, and their mining slums, the better for all concerned."

"For a period following the World War the small town was the favorite target of the American intelligentsia, the vogue being started by Sinclair Lewis' 'Main Street'. Now the pendulum is swinging in the other direction. This is significant. It is especially significant that a writer like Mr. Pitkin, who has discovered such an immense amount of human stupidity in every day life that it takes him 540 pages only to begin to tell about it, should find the typical small town to be the least stupid of all men's dwelling places.

"There is plenty of reason to believe that the future belongs to the small community. Powerful econom-

ALL VOTERS ARE URGED TO CAST BALLOTS EARLY

Local Newspaper Joins With Other Weeklies in Straw Vote

Interest of the voters in the presidential campaign is becoming keener each day as Presidential straw-votes are being conducted throughout the country. For the most part these straw-vote polls are being conducted by newspapers published in metropolitan territories. In addition to these the Literary Digest is conducting a nation-wide poll, all of which is highly interesting in a political way and from experiences in the past, may be relied upon to rather accurately reflect public sentiment toward the candidates, their parties, platforms and the major political issues.

Another nation-wide vote for president is now proposed in a poll that will reflect the political leanings of small town and rural America. This straw-vote poll is to be conducted by weekly newspapers, more than 2,000 of them, located in every state in the union and with an estimated combined circulation of six to ten million readers and voters who reside in small town and rural districts.

HOOVER or ROOSEVELT . . . Which?

One of these two candidates is going to be president of the United States for the next four years. Which one will it be? . . . No man knows, but . . . the nation-wide straw vote by subscribers to weekly newspapers throughout the country will show pre-election sentiment in small town and rural America. This newspaper is conducting a straw vote in this territory. Clip the straw-vote ballot in this issue, vote for your favorite . . . and send it to this newspaper. It is a secret ballot and incurs no obligation.

LITTLEFIELD AREA GETS SEVEN-DAY RAIN; TRAFFIC IS DEMORALIZED

Rainfall in the Littlefield section began late Wednesday afternoon of last week and continued until Tuesday morning.

The sun came out Sunday morning and was soon overshadowed with heavy clouds and drizzling rain. The sun reappeared Sunday afternoon for only a short time and a slight precipitation continued intermittently until near noon Monday. A heavy rain fell again Monday night.

STOVE EXPLOSION SERIOUSLY BURNS MOTHER, DAUGHTER

FATHER AND BABY RECEIVE MINOR INJURIES

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Buck and two children, Catherine, age 4, and a baby, of Hart's Camp, received burns Tuesday morning when a stove exploded.

The father and baby received only minor burns, while the mother was seriously burned about the face, arms and shoulders, and Catherine was severely burned. Catherine also inhaled fumes, causing a pneumonia complication, according to Dr. J. D. Simpson, the attending physician.

The parties were brought to Littlefield, however, due to bad roads, caused by recent heavy rains the trip could not be made rapidly.

The Buck family, formerly of Littlefield, had just moved from Fieldton to Hart's Camp and erected a building for a general mercantile business. It was in this building that the family was living.

NEW REGULATION IN EFFECT UNTIL DECEMBER 31

Payment Urged in Order to Assist City in Meeting Obligations

At a meeting of the City Commission Tuesday night, the commissioners voted to waive penalties and interest on all delinquent city taxes, provided payment is made by December 31, 1932.

The waiving of penalty and interest on delinquent city taxes comes as a result of a new state law, passed at the last special session of the legislature, releasing penalties and interest on delinquent state and county taxes, provided they are paid by December 31, 1932.

The law provides that it is optional with cities whether or not they waive penalty and interest on delinquent taxes.

The new law is expected to encourage the payment of delinquent taxes.

Additional funds are needed to meet the interest on the bonded indebtedness of the City of Littlefield, and the commissioners hope that very large numbers of those who are in arrears in the payment of their taxes will take advantage of the new city regulation which eliminates penalty and interest provided delinquent taxes are paid prior to December 31, 1932.

Meeting of Farmers Here Is Postponed

The farmers' meeting, which was scheduled to be held last Saturday afternoon at the First Baptist church, was postponed indefinitely due to the rain.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss prices to be paid for cotton picking and boll pulling in this section.

The decision to call the meeting was made following a request of a committee of farmers from the Spade community, asking the aid of the local Chamber of Commerce in seeking to stabilize cotton gathering prices.

FORECASTING THE ELECTION

Wouldn't you like to know who is going to be elected President of the United States this fall?

We are trying to find out, and we are giving you a chance to help us find out. In cooperation with several hundred other weekly newspapers all over the United States we are asking our readers to record their individual preference for President. Elsewhere in this issue you will find a straw-vote ballot which will take only a minute of your time to fill out. If all of our readers will do this promptly and send their ballots in at once, we will soon have a pretty good idea how this community stands on the Presidency. Then, when our report is combined with the reports from all over the rest of the country, it will be possible to tell pretty closely just who the small towns and rural America want in office the next four years.

Experience in previous elections has proved that the most accurate advance estimates of Presidential elections that have ever been made have been made by just such newspaper polls as this. In 1928 one nation-wide newspaper poll foretold Mr. Hoover's plurality within 5 per cent of the total vote. In other elections similar straw votes taken by newspapers have invariably proved to be accurate forecasts of the final result.

There is hardly any more interesting game than trying to predict what is going to happen before it has occurred. Predictions are foolish, however, unless they are based on facts. But when a large group of newspapers can get two or three million people, scattered all over the nation, to tell how they are going to vote it usually turns out that the forty or fifty million people who actually do vote on election day will cast their ballots in just about the same proportion, for one candidate or another.

We earnestly urge every one of our readers to register his or her "straw vote" and so help everybody to find out in advance whether the next President is going to be Mr. Hoover or Mr. Roosevelt.

CENTENNIAL AMENDMENT

Every Texan favors a Centennial celebration. There are some who may vote against the amendment unless they understand its terms. These are plain. To quote from the amendment itself, it would "authorize a Texas centennial, commemorating the heroic period of early Texas history, and celebrating a century of our independence and progress, to be held at such times, places, and in such manner as may be designated by the Legislature of Texas."

It is merely a referendum or enabling act to decide first, whether Texans want Texas to celebrate its centennial anniversary, and then whether the Legislature, in the exercise of its judgment, may provide for it. It does not provide for any bond issue or new tax.

If conditions do not seem to justify the centennial in 1936, the Legislature may construe "the heroic period of early Texas history" to mean any time from the first settlement to the admission of Texas into the Union, and may postpone it to a later date or drop it altogether. Most Texans believe now, however, that long before 1936 Texas will be in better financial condition than at any time in its history, and others assert that a creditable centennial celebration would do more than anything else to bring about economic and business rehabilitation.

The legislature is left to decide the extent to which the State shall take part in it if at all. It is expressly provided that "this authorization shall not be construed to make appropriations for any future exposition or celebration of any kind or character" than this one-hundredth anniversary observance.

The suggestion occasionally heard that private capital should finance the centennial is impractical. First, it cannot be secured, and then, if it could be, the centennial would be a private exploitation of the public rather than a proudficial State celebration.

The Chicago "Century of Progress" is already an assured success a year in advance of its opening. The California Legislature appropriated $1,000,000 for the recent Olympic games, and this was paid back with $1,000,000 more profits to the State treasury. Certainly Texas can do as well whatever it undertakes. Vote for the amendment and make the centennial possible.

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

An increase of 10 per cent was noted in August sales of 96 retail stores reporting to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. These sales totaled $2,618,644, as compared with $2,371,733 in July. The usual seasonal increase is only 3 per cent. This notable increase is attributed partly to the cool August weather which naturally interested customers in fall merchandise, and partly to improved business sentiment generally. These 96 stores include department stores, dry goods and clothing stores, women's specialty shops, and men's wear shops.

New York newspapers are devoting departments to "Tropical Fish As Pets, Their Care and Culture." That may give you some idea of the extent to which these pets have found their way into New York homes.

Wednesday afternoon a contract was signed by W. L. Elwood, owner of the famous Spade ranch, whereby the entire 175,000 acres of this well known pasture will be eventually put on the market.

J. E. Brown, living four and one-half miles northwest of Littlefield brought the first bale of cotton for the 1924 season. It was turned out at the Davanay gin, weighing 429 pounds. The bale was bought by J. T. Street, who paid 23 1/2 cents per pound for it, being two cents per pound above market prices. Mr. Brown received from the business men of Littlefield a bonus for the first bale amounting to $136.

John's desire for an engineering course at Columbia University advances the money. . . . comes to know Josephine, Van Horn, and during his school days falls in love with her. . . . has a rival for the love of Josephine, a rich man of the world by the name of Rantoul. But John wins out. He proposes and Josephine accepts. Breen gives all his attention to his job which worries Van Horn—Finally Josephine goes to Paris for her trousseau. And at the last moment Rantoul sails on the same boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

As they sailed, Josephine, too suddenly glimpsed the essential quality of John. In fact, if she was not engaged, and piqued, and what not, John might have easily been a hero in her eyes. That horrible night at the tunnel shaft, and the frightful garlic smell of the acetylene, and the confusion, began to look less crude. John certainly did carry himself with an air of confidence, and—how easily he had assumed the character of a gentleman! Josephine noted this especially. Of late Gerrit Rantoul had told her a great deal about John's early life on the Bowery and in the Ghetto, and the things he had picked up in conversing with Malone. It seems John had lifted himself far above his normal station in life. Fortunately, for Rantoul, Van Horn had no idea of this phase of his conversations with Josephine.

two and some places four city blocks, straight down in the rock crust of the earth, of lining it with concrete, mixed by machinery, spaded and tamped behind steel forms, of fitting monster bronze gates and valves, of carrying out the magnificent details of conception, all unthought of, un-sung, unknown, except in its lists of deaths, occupied John Breen, C. E., through the winter and into the early spring of 1912.

A month later, John was visiting Harbord at the University. "I've had a taste of the city work, I'm going to stick. This place," nodding out of the high window, "is so full of big things it's a challenge to a fellow with a grain of kick in him. That bridge off there," pointing to the huge new span of massive steel rising above Hell Gate, "is enough to make a man stick. I've had a taste of this for some time, it's full of chances. Dammit, Harbord, this city is a challenge to a man. You've heard of Hammond, the mining engineer? Well, he said something the other day, 'This is a big man's town,' was his advice. 'Go west, or go anywhere, if you feel yourself to be about the average, but if you have the punch, stick in New York—and win!'" Gilbert and Josephine were in Paris

He suddenly drew her to him, fiercely—nor did she resist

Van Horn remarked to John. "Fine, that'll keep Josephine occupied. He's handy." John had no special reason to accept Rantoul as anything but a very agreeable old man.

"When you're married next spring I'll have a very important thing to say, John," Van Horn held John's hand, looked steadily into his eyes. Their glances dimmed momentarily.

"Gilbert dear, John's mine, not yours. Give me a chance, please." A sudden mood seized her, there on the deck she hugged John his arm was over her shoulder, their lips met.

Gilbert Van Horn, a smile on his face, stood near them. Suddenly his ashen look seemed to wash away. He became genial, agreeable. He looked at Rantoul, but that distinguished cosmopolitan was busy waving at his friends on the wharf. A whistle was blowing. Visitors were leaving the deck of the steamer.

"Good-bye, John, good-bye!"

is early in April. Josephine completed her trousseau. Rantoul had gone on ahead to London. Then they were at the Cecil for a few days. Rantoul had preceded them. A letter from John reached Van Horn as they were about to embark for New York. Pug Malone was waiting for his return. He had planned a walking trip through the Berkshires. "A regular Malone hike," John had written. "Pug wants to get away from his work. He's had a rotten winter, Greenbough filled with bad livers. I am full of tunnel air and need a change. American dust will do you good. And, Gil, I'm crazy for Josephine, crazy for her again. I never knew what love meant until now." Poor John! It was spring. Gilbert Van Horn carefully folded the letter and gave a sigh of satisfaction. Thank God they were home-ward bound. He cabled Marvin Kelly, "Sailing tomorrow. All well."

Few were out, but Josephine, on the arm of Rantoul, both in ample steamer coats, walked the deck, broad and white, like a lighted avenue in a deserted city. In a spirit of adventure, Josephine, nodding at a ladder, pulled her escort. "Let's go up, Monsieur Gerry." How quickly he responded to her mischievous spirit. They were on the deserted boat deck and walked aft, far about the funnels. The peculiar spiral of black smoke twisting rapidly over the rims of the huge stacks and curling astern, was the only indication of their speed. They looked down over the steep side, from the rail. A singing white streak of water rushed by the black hull, a seething phosphorescent band of light.

Rantoul knew that time was getting short. He instinctively felt the moment had come. If the heart of Josephine was to be captured he had at last arrived at the final movement of assault. He walked with her in silence, holding her close to him. The rustle of her loose dinner gown, under the folds of her loose warm cloak, the intimate detachment of the sea, her laugh, her evident enjoyment of the night, gave his resolution. He too was being somewhat carried away.

They had walked back and forth for almost a half hour and were now leaning on the after thwartship rail again, sheltered by the bulk of a large life-boat, looking down into the sea. A sigh from Josephine, a slight shudder, caused Rantoul to place his arm about her, a thing he had never done except when dancing. She rather yielded to the embrace. She was thinking of the end of such things. John, grubby, hard, unsympathetic, practical John, always dirty and smelly, in the tunnel, would be so different.

Much of this was in the sigh; an implicit answer to the many days of their circumspect intimacy. Rantoul caught her bare hand, with his free arm partly muffled in the warm wide sleeve of her cloak. Words were so inadequate, so unnecessary. He suddenly drew her to him, fiercely, nor did she resist. Their eyes flashed a message to each other in the dark above the rushing night, above the blue-black water scarred with fire. She dropped her lids; his eyes, burning, eager, were on her own. They seemed to be buoyant, her cloak fell apart and he crushed her to him. Rantoul, utterly out of control, kissed her with the pent-up yearning of months and years of his waiting. Passionately their lips met in their warm embrace.

A screaming rocket rose a thousand feet, curving, slow, an increasing toppling bend. It burst with a loud detonation. Showers of stars dropped from the black sky, suddenly shutting out the firmament with their closer fire. The boat deck was lit by the falling glare. The speed of the great steamer altered perceptibly. Josephine held to Rantoul, her eyes dilated. What beastly business was this? Already he had begun to wish himself quietly in his bunk. Josephine was a trifle heavy, for one so young and willowy, and all that. Also it was decidedly cool; cold.

Another disturbing rocket rose above them. Those officious fools on the bridge were always signaling, or something. Rantoul was irritable. Then another and another rocket lifted into the blackening sky. It was late. Josephine was unnerved. A loud shuddering screech of escaping steam thundered above them on the funnels, the shaking white clouds bulging like cotton overhead. Josephine clung desperately to Rantoul. What a terrific strength the girl had! The engines were stopped and safety valves were lifting on the tortured boilers.

The sea had changed, the great ship was sluggish. Peering off into the dark, Rantoul saw a ghost-like wall, a towering apparition looming above them, above the funnels, close aboard and drawing slowly astern. Ice, of course. How lucky they had missed it. Ugh! It was cold. His limbs ached, he shivered. He wished Josephine in hell. Perhaps, he had been a bit hasty. She stirred uneasily, she also saw the ice. A feeling of guilty terror seized them. His arms were tired; he was no longer as vigorous as he had been in years past.

Then the boat deck was stirring with men. Far forward on the bridge lights flashed. It had been in darkness before. The radio was sending. The steamer seemed to shake. Seamen with axes and knives were running aft. An officer, his trousers hastily tucked into short boots, brushed past them. He played his flash lamp on them momentarily. Josephine thought she saw him smile. But why the rushing about, . . . the excitement . . . what had happened?

"Night World" To Be Shown At Palace Today and Friday

Mae Clarke thought she was immune to motion picture emotion. She has the reputation of being able to maintain an emotion and to keep it on tap for from nine o'clock in the morning until five in the afternoon. It is a faculty that every director appreciates and few ever find in a player. Mae Clarke boldly asserted that the exercise of this ability took nothing out of her. She was wrong. No part she ever played took more emotional vitality than the role of Ruth Taylor in "Night World", which will be shown at the Palace Theater tonight and Friday.

The whole action only takes 12 hours on the screen, but it is 12 hours of concentrated gaiety, excitement and tragedy.

When the last scene was shot, the self-reliant Mae Clarke went to a sanitarium. Word has just been received that she is likely to stay there for two months.

In "Night World", Miss Clarke supported Lew Ayres and appeared with a remarkable cast including Boris Karloff, Dorothy Revier, Russell

Hopton, Bert Roach, Dorothy Peterson, Florence Lake, Hedda Hopper, Gene Morgan, Paisley Noon, Greta Granstedt, Louise Beavers, Sammy Blum, Clarence Muse, Eddie Phillips, Harry Woods, Arletta Duncan, Pat Somerset, Joe Wallace and Charles Giblyn.

LAMB COUNTY SHARES IN TEXTILE EXHIBIT AT PLAINS FAIR

Much favorable comment is being made concerning the textile department of the South Plains fair at Lubbock.

The rug display in this department is unusually attractive this fall. Hooked and braided rugs made from burlap, old work shirts and overalls, old silk hose and underwear, woolens and other materials are included. Some unusually artistic designs have been worked out and colorings draw attention. These rugs are from Floyd, Hale, Lamb and Lubbock counties.

Miss Ruby Mashburn, Lamb county home demonstration agent, has done some good work in Littlefield and Lamb county in directing home beautification projects, and the rug-making instructions have been among her outstanding accomplishments.

9:45—Sunday school. Our new literature is to be here for Sunday.

The past quarter has taught us a lesson regarding literature.

10:45—General assembly. Superintendent's announcements.

11:00—Morning worship, beginning with old-time gospel hymns. Join with the singers in this service.

11:30—Sermon by the pastor.

6:45—B. T. S.

7:45—Evening worship.

We were happy to see the good congregations for both services last Sunday although the roads were bad.

There were quite a few from several miles out present in the services. Keep coming, friends. God blesses just the same in wet weather as in dry, and our obligations to Him are just as great one day as another.

There are new people coming to our town every day. Many of these are Baptists. We need to find them and make them welcome here while in town. Many are not Christians. Let us do all we can to help them during their stay. In fact, let's meet the strangers and tell them that our doors are always open to strangers and that we will appreciate them in all our services, regardless of denomination or no denomination.

Joe F. Grizzle, pastor.

VERY LATEST

By Patricia Dow

The influence of style trends seem to know no limitations, as exemplified in the first showings of lingerie for fall and winter. The popularity of the pajama continues, principally, because of their comfort . . . but in their carrying over to another season they seriously take up the task of following the fashion lines which have proved popular in the more formal garments such as dresses—and even coats.

It is all shown in the necklines and sleeves. The former is higher, as in dresses . . . and the latter, the sleeves have taken on a fullness . . . which fairly shout "comfort".

Nightgowns are in vogue and the dainty creations are entirely feminine in every line. A loose tie belt, which makes for a high waistline, brings back the Greek lines in drappings and there is dainty handwork on bodice which cannot fail to appeal to the vanity of all.

Pajamas in bright color combinations are in the new silk fabrics, heavier and sheerless, the jacket being given character by edged trimming of the trouser material. The illustration shows the daintiness that can be incorporated into the new pajamas.

FALL WEATHER Demands Good Shoes

FARM NOTES

By D. A. ADAM
County Agent

Winter time and hog killing time, as well as beef demonstrations, time will soon be on hand, and every person desiring demonstrations should get in touch with the county agent immediately. There are already about 15 demonstrations signed up for, and there will be room for several more during the winter.

Those desiring terracing demonstrations are reminded to get their names in now. As soon as the crops are off of the land is the time to get ready to do this work before listing time.

Lamb county was ably represented in the Master Dairy Farmers contest and the first annual Pork Production contest by John Horton of Amherst, and Homer Hall. R. L. May placed third in both contests, and was the only person to place in both contests.

J. D. Humphries, Littlefield 4-H Club, won sweepstakes at the county fair on his ten heads of milo.

Lamb county is leading at the present time in the number of cattle on feed.

L. L. George, Olton, has built a trench silo, and is filling it with hegari for silage.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL ECHOES

Rev. Joe Boyd made an inspiring address to the assembly of the children of the second story of the grammar school recently. A ten-minute sing-song was conducted by Mrs. G. M. Shaw.

The initial Friday afternoon program was held recently in the study hall. Mrs. R. E. Riley was in charge and a very entertaining program was rendered as follows: Song by the sixth grade boys; saxophone solo by Josephine Wells; piano music by Earnestine Cundiff and Ann Marie Harless; reading by Maurine Igou; reading by Mary Heatly; pointers in politeness by Miss Collins' room; civics play by high seventh civics class; music by Katherine Jones. broken arm.

By Mary Heatly and Kathryn Jones Last Friday evening, September 23, several pupils of the Littlefield grammar school furnished a nice program to the sixth and seventh grades. The first thing on the program was "Table Manners", given by Mary Heatly, C. G. Clark, Dorothy Dalton and Weldon Kincaid. "Imitations of Teachers" was given by Josephine Wells imitating Mrs. Riley, Wilda Courtney imitating Miss Jones, Hall Rowe imitating Mr. Hopping, John D. Smith imitating Mr. Heatly, a girl from Mrs. Collins' room imitating Mrs. Collins. The next on the program was the "Kitchen Band". It was led by Ruth Pumphrey. Those who played in it were: Joyce Winters, Lemuel Barber, Bill Carter, Camille Arnold, Charles Anderson, and Lucille Page. Ruth Griffin, Ruby Nell Cobb, Ada Belle Mason, Frances Barton, Maurine Igou and Kathryn Jones sang "Reuben and Rachel." "An Awful Threat" was given by Mrs. Collins' room. Calva Faye Shelton gave a reading. Blanche Crockett tapped, the music being played by Ernestine Cundiff. "Are You Sleeping" was sung by the audience, led by W. E. Heatly. Miss Jones was in charge of the program. Mrs. Collins will be in charge of the next program.

A. L. Porter Will Enlarge Strawberry Patch Next Spring

A. L. Porter has the distinction of being among the growers of the finest strawberries in Littlefield.

Mr. Porter, who resides in the Cole addition, has two-fifths of an acre in berries, of the ever-bearing kind. He reports a heavy yield of berries this fall. It is his heaviest crop of the season, as the berries did not do so well in the spring and summer as they did last year.

He is planning to enlarge his acreage by thinning out the old plants in the spring and setting out the new growth.

MANY LOCAL FOOTBALL FANS WILL GO TO LUBBOCK FOR CATS-BROWNFIELD CLASH AT FAIR THIS SATURDAY

The initial game of the season for the fighting Wildcats will be played Saturday, October 1, at the South Plains Fair at Lubbock, when the local aggregation will meet the Brownfield Cubs.

Interest in the game is high among Littlefield fans and a large delegation is expected to accompany the Wildcats to Lubbock.

Coaches Tucker and Hopping will have had the Wildcats in training for a period of six weeks and they should be playing in mid-season form. The coaches have material that will compare favorably with that on the teams we have had during the past two years.

In the backfield, "Butter" Carter is still "strutting his stuff" and looks even better than he did last year. Marshall McCurry is as dependable as ever on defense and can still block to perfection. Maurice Brantley and Royce Beebe have been shifted to the backfield and will make nice running mates for Carter and McCurry. Red Norman will probably see some service in the backfield as will Marvin Swanner and Gayle Hemphill. Among the linemen who are showing up well are Preston Brazzal, Lee Beckner, Russell Cooke, Jesse Denton, Lwood Dow, Leo Duffey, Cotton Eagan, Cecil Hall, Allan Kendrick, George Lightsey, Charlie Miller, Sherman McCurry, Robert McNight, Lenton Smith, Olan Wharton, and Sam Williams.

Atta Bov, "Cotton"
 That Gilmer (Cotton) Eagan, local distributor of the Lubbock Avalanche and Journal, is on the job, was substantiated Sunday morning. Littlefield patrons of the Lubbock daily were agreeably surprised Sunday morning when the paper was delivered to their homes ahead of the usual schedule. Upon inquiry, it was found that credit was due to the alertness of "Cotton" Eagan.

"Cotton", accompanied by Linton Smith, left Littlefield Saturday afternoon, returning Sunday morning at nine o'clock. They were accompanied upon their return by Bill Street, who assisted them in making the prompt delivery.

Due to the fact that buses were unable to make the trip, Littlefield patrons of the Avalanche would not have received their paper until after six o'clock Sunday evening, had it not been for "Cotton".

Roosevelt League Is Being Organized

The campaign to elect Roosevelt and Garner has now received added momentum by the nationwide activity of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League, which is in rapid fire succession sweeping into every state, county and city with its perfection type or organization enlisting, training and marshalling the full and active participation of each individual voter who desires the election of the Democratic president and vice-president.

Headed at national headquarters by Jesse Isidor Straus, this League has already organized in thirty-six states and simultaneously over the entire nation its cause and work is being quickly sponsored by outstanding Democrats who are captains of industry, leaders in business, and outstanding in professional fields.

This week the opening gun was fired in Texas with the appointment of Henry Lee Taylor, prominent attorney of San Antonio, as chairman of the Texas division.

Taylor announced from state headquarters, which are in the Gunter Hotel at San Antonio, that within ten days he will have a League unit functioning with an active committee of the business and professional leaders directing organization in every county and town of the State.

Explaining the functioning of the Roosevelt League, State Chairman Taylor said, "One of our chief activities will be to get all units assembled in each town at noon on Wednesday to hear the personally delivered radio address of Franklin D. Roosevelt, which will specifically be delivered for these prearranged meetings to reach all voters in America simultaneously through these League unit meetings in each town of the entire Nation."

Membership in the Roosevelt Business and Professional League is open to all men and women who desire to support the Democratic ticket and upon payment of the membership contribution of $2.00, or more, the etching of Roosevelt suitable for framing, a window transparent sun shade, a bronze lapel button and a subscription to the "Roosevelt Business Advocate", a magazine informing all members of details as propounded by national headquarters.

"We will organize the Women's Division, Medical Division, Business Men's Division, Attorneys' Division, Farmers' Division, Ranchers' Division, Teachers' Division, and others, each with State Chairmen, District Chairmen, County and City Chairmen, to function as adjuncts to the general committees of the Leagues in each city," Taylor said, "and when we are through there'll be no stone unturned to get Texans informed and active to see that we elect a Texan vice-president."

Jeffries Mercantile Company

Littlefield's Oldest Store

Both in the Same Boat

Swift & Company has more than one hundred produce plants, where poultry, eggs and dairy products are bought; prepared and shipped to far-off markets. In each plant is an ambitious, hard-working local resident—the manager. In his community that man is "Swift & Company".

He has the producer viewpoint. He rejoices when prices are satisfactory to his patrons. In this his interest is selfish. He is in the same boat with the farm producer. His advancement in business, in his own organization, depends on how much produce he purchases and how well he handles it.

Your Swift produce plant manager strives for steady operation at full capacity; only under such conditions is his plant most efficient. He wants volume and full payrolls. Nothing pleases him better than to pay the cash price for more and more produce.

That price is governed by demand, by what consumers can and will pay. But when the local manager is ready to ship his prepared products, demand is not awaited; is not left to chance. Swift & Company enhances demand for produce by advertising brands of high quality: Swift's Premium Milk-Fed Chickens, Golden West Fowl, Swift's Brookfield Butter, Eggs, Cheese and many other products.

An army of Swift & Company salesmen, working from 400 branch houses and along hundreds of car routes, searches daily for bigger and hungrier markets. The local manager buys to supply those markets. Thus continually expanding outlets are opened up for the producer. The same army of salesmen sells both meat and produce. The same railroad cars transport both. Thus, costs of marketing are reduced for both livestock men and produce men.

Swift & Company has developed a national sales force and a national buying organization—striving to lower costs between the farm and the retail store. The personal welfare of each man depends on how well he does that job. That's why the charges for the service are low. Profits have averaged, over a period of years, less than a half cent a pound for all products sold.

Mr. Coursey, who owns a 265-acre farm 18 miles northeast of Littlefield, has 75 acres in watermelons. Three men with wagons and teams are kept busy hauling the melons out of the field to the road, where they are loaded on trucks. Five to 10 trucks have been loaded daily throughout the season, according to Mr. Coursey, who states that an average of $40 per acre is realized.

A surprise party was given Monday afternoon complimenting Mrs. R. E. Foust on her 63rd birthday. It was a complete surprise to the honoree, the ladies having met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Hollowell.

Those present were: Mesdames H. Bell, Carl Smith, Carl Lambert, C. R. Heard, Press Rains, C. A. Baird, Ollie Scott, J. T. Bellomy, Max Touchon, S. J. Boykin, J. B. Coursey, L. B. Eudy, Carl C. Lichte, Hubert Jackson, S. B. Jackson, A. P. Bell, Misses Alma Busher, Viola Hollowell, and Ida Collins.

All Dolled Up

Last week we told you that J. T. Bellomy was building an addition to his feed grinding mill, and that the said addition included covering the scales and the building of an office. We dropped in the other day and found that Bill Briggs was painting the interior of the office white. We also discovered that a shower bath is being built at the rear of the office. The whole place looked so clean that we about decided that we couldn't wait 'til Saturday night for a bath.

You should go in and see all that fussing up that J. T. is doing. (adv.)

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Wilson, Mrs. Wilson's sister, Mrs. Robert Taylor, of Seymour, and Mrs. Wilson's mother, Mrs. M. E. Simmons, of Lubbock, returned last Thursday from a 1500-mile automobile tour of New Mexico and Colorado.

Considerable improvement is being made at the local post office this week.

New office equipment, consisting of an additional window, boxes, C. O. D. rack, parcel post rack, desks and tables, has been received.

Three times as much working space as was previously had is being arranged, as well as twice as much lobby space, according to J. E. Brannen, postmaster.

A mailing cage has also been provided in order that in case of late arrival of mail it can be securely locked in the cage until the usual time for the clerks to go on duty.

Receipts at the Littlefield postoffice are on the increase, with a heavy fall business predicted, Mrs. Roy Wade, in charge of money orders, reports.

With a heavy out of town movement of cotton pickers into Littlefield, the money order business increases. This year, Postmaster J. E. Brannen says, there will be more than ever, based on the early indications.

Postal receipts for August showed a slight gain over the previous month in addition to the gain made by increased postage rates.

Places Third In Dairy, Swine Contests

R. L. May, Lamb county dairy demonstrator, and swine demonstrator, placed third in each of two contests conducted by the News-Globe of Amarillo, winning two silver medals and $175 in cash as reward for his efforts.

Last year Mr. May produced 12,010 pounds of pork at a feed cost of two and one-third cents per pound, while his feed cost per pound for producing butter fat was a fraction over seven cents per pound.

This is the third year that Mr. May has placed in the dairy contest, having obtained sixth place both years before. He is now entered in the new contest which is being held next year, and which is termed "The Balanced Farm and Livestock Contest", which is a combination of both field crops and livestock projects.

R. E. McCASKILL CARRIES OUT IMPROVEMENTS IN VALLEY GIN

R. E. McCaskill, owner and operator of the Valley gin, 12 miles southwest of Littlefield, has expanded his interests in that community by building a cafe, a store and filling station.

Mrs. Roy T. Shotwell went to Tulsa, Okla., Sunday, September 19, and entered St. John's hospital of that city and was operated on the following Wednesday morning. Her condition is reported as good. The operation was performed by Mrs. Shotwell's brother-in-law, Dr. R. V. Smith. Mrs. Shotwell was accompanied to Tulsa by Mr. Shotwell.

We Think—

ic forces are operating to increase its importance in American life and to validate Harper Leech's dictum that the big city has become an economic absurdity. The net of high tension transmission lines which have covered the country during the past two decades, together with modern traffic and hard surface highways, are operating to unscramble industry, and to create what Mr. Leech calls a new 'economic localism'. In consequence the small communities are coming to possess all the advantages of the great congested centers without their disadvantages. It is more than probable that the period ahead of us will be marked by a redistribution of the population of the United States, and that historians of the future will refer to it as 'the period of dispersion'.

"Be all this as it may, it is certain that even during this period of economic adversity the small communities are offered many opportunities to create a firmer economic base for a healthy community life. And those with leaders possessed of insight and initiative are making the most of such opportunities."

LITTLEFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL FUTURE—

Littlefield has a wonderful opportunity to share in the new growth which is available to the small cities.

But we can never make the progress that is our right until we give more concentrated thought and engage more actively in the industrial development of our city.

Ask yourself this question: "Why has Littlefield not

World Series Baseball Again

The world series is underway, with one game played at Yankee Stadium, New York, yesterday, and another scheduled for today. grown more industrially? You will find this will be the answer: We have not thought hard enough about industrial growth and we have not worked hard enough to bring in new industries.

What Littlefield needs right now is an industrial survey; find out what could be manufactured here profitably, keeping always in mind the using of the products of our farm lands in our industrial growth.

ASK FOR WORK FOR AN INDUSTRIAL SURVEY IN ORDER THAT WE MAY ADVANCE THE GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT OF OUR CITY AND COUNTY.

Most surely you want to see the strength of your favorite candidate reflected in this vote. So clip the straw-vote ballot, vote for your candidate by marking "X" opposite his name, then send it to the Lamb County Leader at once.

Local Vote Each Week

The local vote, as sent in to the Leader will be published each week. The vote in the national balloting, as compiled from returns sent in by other weekly newspapers, will also be published just as soon as it is available. These returns will be sent to the Leader every week from the Publishers Autocaster Service's offices in New York.

The two major parties' candidates, Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, are given preferred positions on this straw-vote ballot, inasmuch as it is an accepted conclusion that the presidency will go to one of these two candidates at the November election. The names of the other officially nominated candidates for the presidency are listed in alphabetical order.

Remember your favorite candidate is depending upon you to help show his strength in Littlefield and Lamb county. Clip the ballot, vote it as you choose, and send it to the Leader today.

Texas and Eastern New Mexico. Gentlemen:

It will be perfectly obvious to the members of your committee, I think that the present is an inopportune time for the writer to discuss the question of the proper type of reorganization of either the American Commonwealths Power Corporation or the American Community Company, primarily because the question of the treatment of the Six Dollar preferred stock represented by your committee, together with all other classes of stocks, bonds and debentures of said companies, is now the subject of serious consideration on the part of protective committees organized shortly after the appointment of receivers for said companies.

The writer has at all times taken the position with the receivers of said companies and also with the protective committee representing the American Community Company debenture, five and one-half percent bonds, that any reorganization plan that does not adequately provide for the security holders, represented by your committee, in a perfectly fair manner cannot be consummated. Any constructive plan for protecting the interests of the Six Dollar preferred stock represented by you will have my sincere and active support.

I realize the difficulties which will be encountered by your committee in its efforts to find a plan that will prove to be workable and acceptable to interested parties represented by your committee, nevertheless, I believe a plan should be devised which will, in your judgment, be for the best interests of the parties represented by you and the people residing in Eastern New Mexico and the Panhandle of Texas; and to that end I am pleased to assure you that I stand ready to render any assistance within my power to put into effect any measures or plans decided upon by you for the purpose of protecting the common interest of all parties concerned.

Very truly yours, I. R. KELSO
