LITTLEFIELD, LAMB COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1967

MENT DUE -- Bill Burks, left, and his brother Howard Burks, read a letter they received from a woman in Killeen, Tex., concerning some cotton seed she bought in 1910.

Old Debt Of 1910 Not Forgotten

Seven years ago Mrs. C. Hold bought some cotton seed from the Burks in Killeen, Tex., to feed her cow. But the seed was not paid for. She was back in 1910, and the Burks have changed since then. The Burks in Killeen, Tex., from Killeen in 1948, still bill for the cotton seed. Mrs. Hold, who is 70 years old, has not forgotten the bill, and she wants to pay it. She recently wrote a letter asking Howard Burks to settle the account. Howard Burks, who has been in the ginning business all his life, said no one has ever offered to pay a bill that far back. "I guess Mrs. Hold remembered about not paying for the seed back in 1910 and it bothered her. So she wanted to settle the account," he said. Well, as far as the Burks Bros. Gin Co. is concerned, Mrs. Hold's account is paid in full just with her friendship and honesty.

Hoot 'Nanny Set Friday

A list of top local talent, plus a singing group from Girlstown, will headline the annual Lions Club Hoot-Nanny slated at 7:30 p.m., Friday, in the Littlefield Junior High School Auditorium. Some 39 acts, ranging from pantomime to singing to comedy, have been secured for the program. The group of five girls from Girlstown, USA, at Whiteface will be singing folk songs. They are called by Marshall Cooper, managing director at Girlstown, "Cooper's Angels." "That's because they have voices from Heaven, they're always in the air about something, always harping and don't have an earthly thing to wear," Cooper has said. Master of ceremonies for the program will be C.W. (Chic) Conway, and Roland Bell is project chairman. Tickets may be purchased from any Lions Club member at 50 cents for students and children and $1 for adults. Gene Pratt, Doyle Patton and Jimmy Jones are in charge of ticket sales. John Driskill and Tom Hilburn will be stage managers and Oris Bennett will handle the lighting. Also slated to appear will be the Lubbock Lions Club Klowns.

'Hot Check' Seminar Set March 17

County Judge O. J. Mangum and County Attorney Curtis Wilkerson will be main speakers at a "Hot Check Seminar," slated for 7:30 p.m., March 17, in the District Court Room at the court house. The annual seminar is sponsored by the Retail Council and Better Business Committee of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce. All chamber members and businessmen in Littlefield and Lamb County are being urged to attend the meeting. "A great problem of businessmen is the hot regard people have in giving checks and using checks to defraud," Mangum said. "I feel that the merchants can help themselves if they understand what the limits of the law are and what the function of the county attorney and the courts are in connection with the hot check law." Mangum and Wilkerson will review the check laws and the functions of their office in connection with the laws at the meeting.

Checks With Magnetic Ink Will Be Big Attraction After Sept. 1, 1967

Federal Reserve officials in Dallas recently announced that effective Sept. 1, 1967, the Reserve Banks will no longer process checks which do not carry the magnetic ink symbols of the writer's bank. The symbols are the figures printed in ink on the lower left hand corner of checks. The officials pointed out the 86 per cent increase in check volume since the start of the Magnetic Ink Character Recognition Program eight years ago and to the fact that more than 1.1 million checks are being handled daily at the four offices of the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas. High-speed computers are used to sort checks at a rate of more than 60,000 per hour, but these computers require the magnetic ink symbols in order to function. Federal officials point out that checks without the symbols must be handled on low-speed machines and that only 1,500 per hour can be accommodated on those machines. Of prime importance to the general public is the proposed withdrawal of counterchecks and changed checks. Banks are cooperating fully in reprinting their transit symbols on checks they provide for their customers. However, some supermarkets, drug, department stores and other businesses, as well as churches, often provide counter drafts which bear no magnetic ink symbols. The new restriction on handling non-pre-printed checks will mean slower collection for this type of check and a much more costly collection process. In effect, the non-preprinted check will be handled as a noncash collection, meaning that credit cannot be given the receiver of the check until it has been completely processed through the drawer's bank. Federal Reserve officials, with the cooperation of commercial banks, are mounting a special campaign to educate the general public on the need to carry their personalized or pre-printed checks. The program is also aimed at requesting stores to withdraw all counter drafts and to encourage stores to refuse to cash checks which do not have the magnetic ink symbols. Both banks in Littlefield are beginning an educational campaign for their own customers. Security State Bank and First National Bank both are supplying posters telling of the new ruling to all their business customers. First National Bank has met (See CHECKS, Page 6)

Snow Brings Some Moisture To Area

Some moisture is better than none in these parts, and some is about all the Littlefield area got from a Canadian front that swept across Texas Monday. With the front came snow and sleet, but only .03 inch of moisture was recorded by the U. S. Weather Bureau from the snow in Littlefield. That bit of wetness, along with .07 inch which fell on two occasions in February, brought the 1967 total for moisture to .10 inch. No moisture was recorded in January. Another cold front started a drive through the state Tuesday, dropping temperatures down to the teens and below in Littlefield. But no precipitation was predicted to accompany the front. In the meantime, agriculture activity continues to be slowed down in Texas by the general lack of moisture.

4 Counties, Conservation Districts Join In Project

Lamb County Commissioners Court Tuesday signed an agreement in co-sponsorship with the Lamb County Soil Conservation District for the Lower Running Water Draw Watershed Project. Signing for Lamb County in the project were County Judge O. J. Mangum and County Clerk Charles Jones. The commissioners voted on a resolution Feb. 28 to participate in the project. Other counties and soil conservation district participating in the project are Hale, Swisher and Castro. Joe Blevins, Lamb County SCS work unit conservationist, said Tuesday that Hale, Lamb, Tullia Creek and Running Water soil conservation districts also have agreed to join the courts. Only Castro County remains to be signed, Blevins said. The Lower Running Water Draw Watershed project has been in the planning stages about six years. It is a project to control flooding along the draw. The basic plan calls for four floodwater retarding structures to be constructed with SCS funds and local sponsors providing money for easements, land treatment and maintenance after construction. Lower Running Water Draw touches only a small portion of Lamb County, Blevins said. It enters the county on its northern boundary at the Hayden Ranch and runs southeast about eight miles to the Owen Jones farm and then goes into Hale County. Blevins said no floodwater structures will be built in Lamb County, and land treatment will be the only expense in the county. Sponsors' cost, or that of the counties and soil and water conservation districts will be an estimated $534,065, Blevins said, while the SCS will pay an estimated $853,059 for its part. "Land treatment in Lamb County will be at the land owner's expense," Blevins said. "But the owners can get assistance through the Agriculture Conservation Program of the ASCS or through the Great Plains Conservation Program of the SCS." Also, many banks, and other financial institutions should offer help in securing funds to individuals, he said.

Woman Is Injured Sunday After 2-Car Collision

A Littlefield woman was injured Sunday in a two-car collision which occurred about 12:22 p.m. at the intersection of West 9th and Farwell Ave. Taken to Littlefield Hospital by Hammons ambulance was Lona Williams Wren. She was released Monday morning. Police said Mrs. Wren was driving a 1961 Ford west on 9th Street and collided with a 1960 Ford, driven by David Franklin Tower of Altus, Okla. Police said the Tower vehicle was going south on Farwell and failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection. The Tower auto pulled onto 9th Street and into the path of the Wren Car. Another two-car smash-up occurred about 6:14 p.m., Sunday, at U.S. 385 and Cole Street. Police said a 1959 Ford, driven by Ruben Sirra of Littlefield, was going north on 385. A 1958 Chevrolet, driven by James Ward, also of Littlefield, was travelling on Cole and made a right turn onto 385 and hit the Sirra car.

FOR STATE CAGE TITLE

Wolverettes Are Big Favorites

Wolverettes of Springlake-Earth High School will tear into the State Class A Basketball Tournament Friday in Austin. They are expected to carry the role as a favorite in Class A competition. Their first round opponent is Brownsboro in a contest slated at 11:35 a.m., Friday. Should they get by their first opposition, they will meet either George West or Cross Plains Saturday. Coach Dean Foshee and his girls left Wednesday for Austin, and are expecting to stay until the final game, because that's how long they want to be playing. The 13-man, ah girl, squad is comprised of 10 seniors, two juniors and one sophomore. Those seniors had only one losing season, and that was in their freshman year in 1963 when Foshee took over as their coach. That year they were 8-12, but the 1964-65 campaign produced a 26-8 record. Then last year they were 33-3 and runner-up for the state championship. They will be taking a 37-2 mark to Austin, but their only two losses were at the hands of college teams. Their high school opponents all have failed to defeat them. The Wolverettes earned their trip to Austin this year after knocking off Stratford 74-62 for the regional title in Lubbock last Saturday.

Actually, since the Wolverette defeats were to the Queen Bees of Wayland College, they don't have to be counted. But for the record, the girls are keeping them in the books. The Wolverettes' secret to success this season has been the deadly combination of an over-powering offense and determined defense which Foshee masterminded with three types of presses. One defense is called the "gambling press," where the guards run all the time and anywhere, playing the ball. Then there's the "aggressive press," when the players play in tight when the game isn't called too closely. When the officials are calling the contest on the straight and narrow, Foshee call for the "safety press."

The three top Springlake-Earth forwards provide the gears for an almost unstoppable machine, and any one of them can hit from most any place on the floor. Leading the triumphant trio with 780 points during the season is Susan Britton, while Anita O'Hair has 643 markers. Between these two in scoring is Marsha Dawson, a 6-1 sophomore who has marked 686. Miss Dawson, a coach's dream, has steadily gained confidence through the season and is now averaging 19 to 20 points per game. Facing the Wolverette defense is 5-8 guard Judy Gover, who has pulled down 130 rebounds. Next in line is Pansy Bean with 68 rebounds.

Public Schools open house at the elementary school here. Parents visited classrooms at Littlefield schools throughout the day.

Who says all milk is the same?

Not The Borden Company!

We know that some brands of milk just barely come up to government standards for quality.

At Borden's these standards are only a starting place.

The milk we pick up cold, fresh and pure at the dairy farm reaches your family, cold, fresh, pure and better than it has to be.

First, we take the finest raw milk available, then put it through the most modern processing techniques known to dairy science. Then we make sure that every half-gallon contains almost two full cups of cream for extra food value and nourishment children need so much.

It takes 23 separate quality tests to make sure we've bottled the purest, freshest, best-tasting milk you can buy. But over 100 years in the business have taught us it's worth the extra trouble.

After all, it's mostly children who drink Borden's Milk. And we want them to have the best. Don't you?

AMY'S ADLIBS

Rose Soup

By Amy Turner

We don't have any rose soup at our house. The above statement, given to me once by a 3-year-old girl, is what I consider to be the all-time champion of question-stoppers and conversation-enders.

This art, which comes so naturally to children, seems to be almost lost to the adult world.

Or course, their real secret is that they say these things with such absolute certainty that it confuses you just long enough for them to get away with it.

For example, only the other day a little boy informed me he lived on 20th Street, just one block over from us.

Since we happen to live on 18th, my adult mind quickly saw the error in this and I pointed out to him that it was actually two blocks.

"Look," he patiently explained, "you live on 18th and I live on 20th and there's just 19th in between and that's just one, Right?" I opened my mouth, looked him right in the eye, decided against it and said:

"Right."

Or take the time, just a few years ago, when we came into the house from the yard and I was complaining bitterly about the mosquito problem and why didn't the city do something about it, like more spraying and etc.

My son interrupted the tirade to say: "They don't have time, Mom."

My curiosity, which is frequently my downfall, got the better of me and I had to know the why of this, which, as he explained, was really quite simple.

"They're too busy scratching," he said.

IT'S A PITY that we adults can't develop some of this marvelous illogical logic that serves children so well.

Just think of all the uses we could put it to and all the situations we could get ourselves out of!

Suppose someone comes to the door and wants to sell you, say, a vacuum cleaner. A quick way to save all that time and discussion (you know you're not going to buy one) is to exclaim indignantly:

"Sir, I'll have you know all my vacuums are already clean!" Then, just quickly shut the door before he can close his mouth.

PAUL HARVEY SAYS

Eyes Of News Astigmatic

Chicago is not all gangsters, Alaska is not all ice and snow, Reno is not a divorce mill, Alabama Negroes are not all black and blue and Texans are not all that bad. And yet these are the impressions you might well get from seeing these places through the eyes of the news.

News gathering has become so complex, news media now have so many thousands of eyes searching out the sensational and the exceptional that you are likely to see places, people, things and issues through the wrong end of the telescope. Thus molehills appear as mountains and mountains are undiscernible.

During the blizzard of '67, Chicagoans tended to dramatize themselves, and the press, however inadvertently, cooperated.

You heard that before the snow stopped the looters moved in. You heard that they smashed open and pillaged marooned automobiles, that they smashed windows of empty stores and helped themselves; that an 11-year-old girl was shot doing it.

You heard of downtown hotels wall-to-wall with stranded people, downtown streets deserted, unnecessary suffering in understaffed hospitals . . .

All this that you heard was entirely true . . . Yet false!

For news media were spotlighting the extremes and the extremists.

You heard all roads were impassible, yet I drove back and forth each day to a suburb 11 miles away.

For every car buried in the roadside drift, 100,000 others were safe in garages or safely on their way.

The front page focused the eyes of the world on the stalled bus and the pillaged property . . .

We're Supermen!

An Alabama newspaper recently published a list of 11 suggestions for people who would like to become an accident statistic.

Said The Tuscaloosa News, "If you have any inclination whatever to be reckless at the wheel, and most drivers do at one time or another, check these suggestions on how you can cause yourself -- and probably innocent people, a great deal of trouble and misery:

1. Follow the car in front of you very closely. Show him you are riding his tail. You might even blow your horn to let him know you are there.

2. Don't signal you are going to turn until you are ready to turn. No use telling the man behind you your business.

3. Weave in and out of traffic lanes. All who see you will admire you and say "Boy, what a good driver he is."

4. Try to pass everything on the road. After all, you have 350 horses under the hood that need exercise.

5. Don't have those faulty, grabby brakes fixed. Like a cold, they might just get well by themselves.

But we who saw Chicago through a wide-angle lens could see that for every one who might have got to his job and did not, another stayed on his job through endless hours of black coffee.

Airport personnel, hospital personnel, telephone operators and police -- I saw so much goodness, it grieved me that you overheard only the badness in Kokomo and Waxahatchie and Kalamazoo.

The ratio of quiet heroism to spectacular suffering was 100,000 to one.

For every rogue and rascal who ransacked a vacant store on Roosevelt Road, hundreds of service station attendants went sleepless for three days and nights clearing streets, rescuing the stranded, towing the stalled.

You heard of a baby delivered in an ice-cold car but nothing of 1,500 babies delivered in hospitals, so your perspective was distorted because our eyes need correction!

Who knew about the householders throwing open their doors to stranded strangers?

As news is weighed, all those quiet words of welcome and comfort can be drowned out by one gunshot.

The Chicago I witnessed in this crisis was the London we saw during the blitz, when they headlined only the bomb damage and the looting -- and overlooked the splendid 99 per cent who quietly picked themselves up, dusted themselves off and then reached out a helping hand to a total stranger.

I worry about this. For internationally, as well, news media is presently preoccupied with trouble spots and trouble makers.

Either the eyes of the news must improve their field of vision or eventually you will learn to mistrust them.

6. If you have a flat tire or engine trouble, don't pull off on the shoulder. Stay in the main line of traffic, leave your family in the car and you be sure to stand in front of the car, preferably with your baby in your arms, so that if a car hits you from the back, all will be surely killed.

7. Signal left if you are going to turn right. That way you will fool everybody.

8. Don't have that leaky muffler fixed. The gases from the engine offer an easy, pleasant death. Before you know it, you will be asleep forever.

9. Reckless driving increases car insurance rates -- but you don't need to worry about that. You are not long for this world, anyway.

10. Be good and drunk when you drive. You always drive better with a few drinks under your belt.

11. Be sure never to use any common sense. You are not a common man. When you get in a car you become Superman.

OWNER'S REPORT

Coming Up The Road

By Bill Turner

AT THE TURN of the century people used to be amazed when they'd see, coming up the road, a snorting, popping horseless carriage. They'd gawk and sometimes they'd snicker or yell "Get a horse!"

Nowadays, with more than 80,000,000 of the contraptions crowding us humans off the streets and great open spaces of the United States, the gas buggy is no longer a curiosity.

But some of its by-products, such as air pollution, are decidedly unpleasant, so humans are starting to take another look at the Frankenstein monster they've created.

NOW, COMING UP the road, there is a new kind of horseless carriage -- the electric car. However, it isn't exactly new. A half-century ago rich people rode around in glass enclosed living rooms that were propelled by storage batteries, and while these electrics are now rare there are a lot of trucks in our big cities that never have to stop at a gas station, unless they need free air.

But something new is being added to electrics and that is a lot of concentrated research. It's an old saw that "necessity is the mother of invention," and there's increasing pressure for a practical electric automobile.

AND WHEN big outfits such as the automobile manufacturers push on a project you're likely to see results. The big push is on. General Motors has developed an electric called the "Electrovair" which does a pretty good job. The drawback is, the batteries for it cost $15,000, which some of us might find too expensive, even with a small down payment and easy terms over a three-year period.

Another manufacturer is tackling the problem differently. It has developed a new kind of battery that's a lot cheaper, and now is working on improving the battery and hooking it up to the best possible motor.

WE'RE GOING to have to leave it in the hands of the research people, but we don't think we're going too far out on a limb when we predict that not many years from now you're likely to be driving an electric.

But don't throw away your gasoline credit cards. You're likely to need them to plug into "pumps" at service stations that will dispense kilowatts instead of the hi-octane stuff.

One additional caution: in the quiet of an electric the voice of the back-seat driver will come through loud and clear.

THROUGH THE YEARS

15 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Lamb County Leader, Sunday, March 9, 1952)

With a pronounced moisture deficiency continuing in practically all of Texas, including our own section here on the South Plains, hundreds of farmers of irrigated lands in this and adjoining areas, the past ten days have started up their pumping irrigation plants, and are giving their water-starved acres a thorough pre-planting irrigation.

The Littlefield Wildcats placed third in a triangle track meet Friday behind Muleshoe and the Brownfield Cubs. This was the first meet of the year for the Cats while Muleshoe and Brownfield have both already seen action this year.

In observance of the 40th anniversary of the girl scouts, leaders from throughout the area including the South Plains, will meet at the Scout House here Tuesday, March 11 for an all-day meeting, which is one of the four being held in Texas.

Saturday, March 15, has been set by the Olton City Council as the date of the election on two proposed bond issues, one for $45,000 and the other for $25,000 fire department improvements, including a fire station.

25 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Lamb County Leader, Thursday, March 12, 1942.)

Lamb County has been asked to plant 50 acres of the 3,000 acres of castor beans allotted to Texas this year, W. E. Bentley, chairman, county USDA War Board, said this week.

The regular America Program was enjoyed Thursday evening at the Littlefield High School auditorium, with a large attendance present.

The Victory Book Campaign, sponsored by the Red Cross, the American Library Association, and U.S.O., is getting underway in Lamb County. Mrs. E. A. Bills has been appointed Director of this work for Lamb County. This movement is to secure between 17 and 18 hundred books in Lamb County for the Armed Forces.

According to Pat Boone, chairman of the Stamps and Bonds Campaign for Lamb County, the salary allotment plan is going over big in Lamb County.

The Countrywoman

By LIBBY MUGGETT

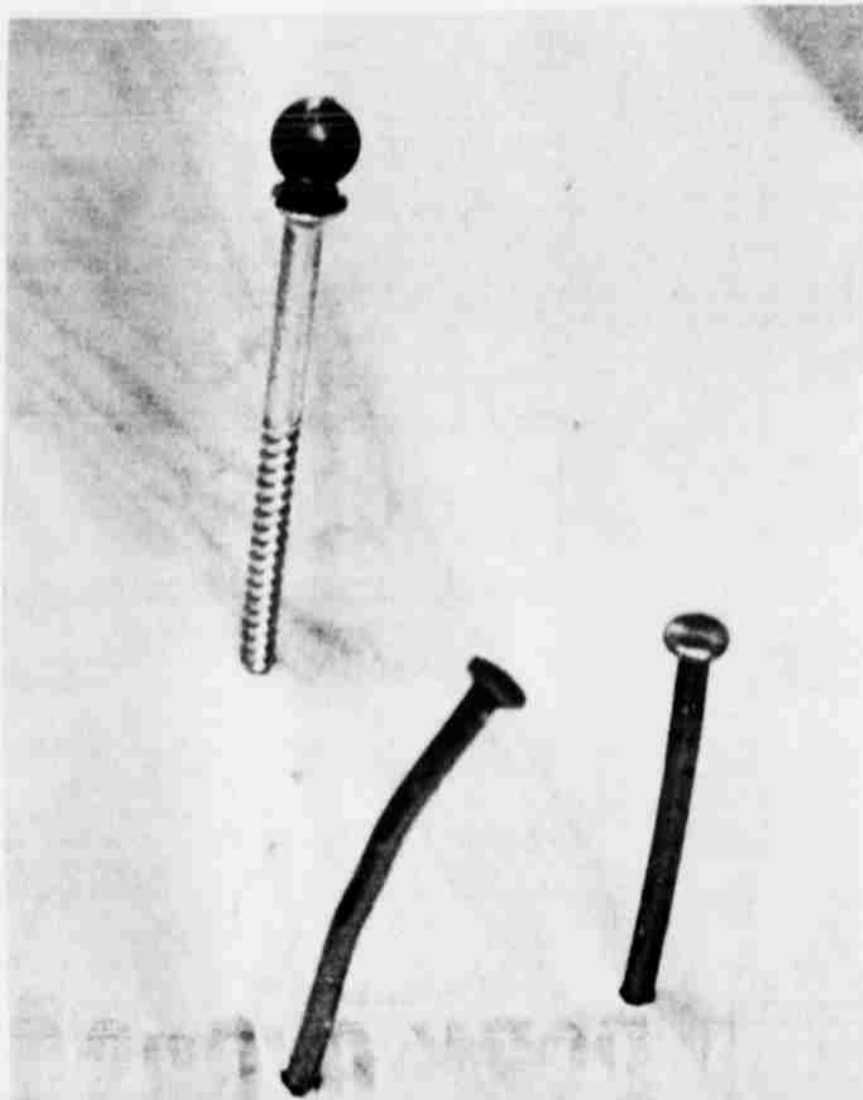

She ambles across the dormant fields of winter. The wind, the sand, and the cold have called a rare and sudden truce. She revels in the temporary warmth and stillness, but can feel the land begging for moisture.

The blizzard that was forecast has not yet come; the weather is heartbreakingly beautiful. She searches the northern sky for frontal clouds while the land waits patiently for the snow . . . the snow that may never come.

She is repulsed by the sight of two prairie wolves cornering a rabbit; killing it; tearing it apart; devouring the spoil; smacking their lips in satisfaction over the tasty morsel. She is reminded of two women that recently tore into shreds another's reputation in a similar manner and with equal satisfaction.

There really was not too much difference between the wolves' fangs and the women's tongues. But what were the women hungry for?

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Don't Be Ashamed

BY BOB WEAR

We see many people who fail to take the joy and happiness to which they are entitled, and which are justified by their general life-situation. These folk are ashamed and downcast, without justification.

Living as we do in an atmosphere that is essentially materialistic and secularistic, we have become overly concerned with status symbols and the accumulation of things. One very poisonous and bitter fruit growing out of this condition is the feeling of shortcoming where there is actually no shortcoming. Many people are ashamed of things and situations when they should be pleased. If not pleased, they should at least be grateful. This unjustified feeling of being ashamed contributes to the unhappiness, personal inadequacy and personal ineffectiveness of many splendid people.

Some people are ashamed of their jobs; some are ashamed of the house where they live; some are ashamed of the quality of clothing they wear; and some are ashamed of the car they drive. Many of these, the majority, have everything they need. They are just not as high-ranking as some others. Even so, they could be happy, productive of good and altogether desirable people.

This sad human status is a manifestation of how we have distorted our sense of values. It comes from the basic view that "a man's life consists in the abundance of the things which he possesses." This is very strange, too, because all of us know better. Mackintosh has given us a good statement in this context - "It is right to be contented with what we have, never with what we are." The contented people are not going to be ashamed just because somebody is richer or better known or considered more important. They will have a happy family life, give their children a good, solid background for life and be a source of joy and strength to all with whom they are associated, instead of being ashamed, because they don't rate higher they will be continually grateful for their blessings and find joy in them.

Many good men and true are ashamed of their jobs, but their work is honorable and necessary to the common good and they are honestly doing their best. Why spoil all of this by being ashamed of their jobs? Too many are ashamed of the house in which they live. This is an unjustified and harmful feeling if the house is orderly, clean and as attractive as it can be made. What difference does it make that it is not as large or as elegant as some others? We must exchange the feeling of being ashamed for the wholesome feeling of contentment, including essential elements of wholesome pride.

Johnson said, "The fountain of content must spring up in the mind; and he who has so little knowledge of human nature as to see happiness by changing anything but his own disposition, will waste his life in fruitless efforts, and multiply the griefs which he proposes to remove." We must never be ashamed of our situation or our accomplishments when we are doing our best, and trying to make normal, needful and possible improvements.

Being ashamed without just cause, is one of the biggest hindrances to satisfactory living.

The Upper Room

"Let your minds be remade and your whole nature thus transformed." (Romans 12:2, NEB)

In a certain cathedral there was a beautiful stained glass window admired by countless hundreds of people. However, one day a terrible storm shattered the window. The broken glass was gathered up and taken to the basement.

A stranger came by shortly afterward and asked to see the famous window. Instead, he was given the boxes of shattered glass. Months later, it was revealed that he was a very famous artist. He had taken what was thought to be worthless fragments and had made a new window for the cathedral, far exceeding the original in beauty and grandeur.

How much like the process God uses in transforming human life! Often what appears to us to be of so little worth becomes, by the touch of God, a thing of beauty having eternal value. Who can measure the significance of one life transformed by the power and spirit of God?

PRAYER: How grateful we are to Thee, our heavenly Father, that Thou dost love all humanity, regardless of race, creed, color or station in life. We are thankful for the power of the gospel and its redeeming effect in our hearts and on our behavior. Unworthy though we are, we pray for Thy mercy, through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Savior, Amen.

PREPARE FOR STUDY COURSE — Mrs. Ray Lynn Britt (right) is shown talking to Don Kirby (left) about the second of a series of three in the PTA sponsored study courses. Study Course Slated Tonight

The second in a three series study course will be presented tonight at 7:30 in the senior high school study hall. The topic for discussion tonight is "What Every Husband and Wife Should Know" (about family finances, that is). Don Kirby will present the program this evening.

Cost of the study course is $1 per person for each series. This money will go toward the annual PTA scholarship to be given at the end of this year to some deserving senior student.

The final series is scheduled for March 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the study hall with Byron Douglas giving a talk on "Traps for Homemakers" (responsibilities and liabilities connected with home ownership).

Each of these sessions is very worthwhile to the participants and helps serve the PTA scholarship also.

Can You Guess Where These Are? Win $500

The photos above were taken of windows in stores on Phelps Avenue Tuesday. We've made them small so that it won't be easy. And there's some window glare, too. But the first person to correctly identify all three of the store windows can win $500. Send your guesses into the News-Leader office Thursday and collect a $500 award. Anyone is eligible except employees of the three stores.

5 Run For 2 Slots On Olton City Council

Two candidates filed on the Olton City ballot just before the deadline Saturday to bring the total to five bidding for two seats on the City Council.

Tossing their hats into the ring Saturday were H. L. Dennis and C. C. Curry. Bids were recorded earlier by Bobby Dougherty, Jimmy Jenkins and incumbent Lester Thompson.

Farley Myers, current holder of one position on the council, earlier announced his candidacy for mayor to fill the expiring term of W. E. Thomas. Election date is April 4.

Spencer Called To Houston

F. J. Spencer of Houston, Littlefield's industry hunter, was called back to his hometown Monday to appear as a witness in a court hearing and was unable to attend the Chamber of Commerce meeting slated here for him Tuesday.

Jim Kelly, chamber executive vice president, said Wednesday that another meeting will be slated when Spencer returns.

with its customers and have explained the procedure. Security State Bank is mailing out material about the ruling in statements to its customers.

The Dallas bank officials indicate the Eleventh Federal Reserve District has the lowest pre-printing ratio of the 12 Federal Reserve Districts and the problems this creates are especially acute in the Southwest.

They are appealing to the public and businessmen throughout the area to support this campaign to eliminate counter checks, changed checks and non-pre-printed items of all types.

They pointed out that the general public will benefit by more efficient collection of checks, not only by fewer charges for processing, but also by more rapid and effective payments.

Federal reserve men are asking that people carry their own checks, do not ask for counter checks, do not borrow a friend's personalized check, and refuse to cash checks which do not have the "funny numbers" on the bottom.

Here is why: —Somewhere in the check collection process, you check will probably be handled by a machine that can only read the special characters in the lower left-hand corner that are printed in magnetic ink. A "changed" check will have the wrong number and a customer's draft will have no number.

—The machine will probably route the "changed" check to the wrong bank (if the number is not punched out) and the customer's draft will be rejected by the machine for special handling because it has no number. The special handling required of these checks results in additional expense which may ultimately be passed on to you.

—Beginning September 1, 1967, the Federal Reserve Banks will require these special magnetically encoded characters on all checks if they are to be handled through the usual check collection channels.

Koontz Paces Wildcats In Brownfield Track Meet

The young, Littlefield Wildcat thinclads are now tried after their 1967 debut Saturday at the annual Brownfield Invitational Track meet, and their first test proved somewhat satisfactory. Despite finishing fifth place in total points, scoring 42, compared to 162 by champion Dunbar of Lubbock, coach Andy Springer said the Wildcat cinderment did "better than expected."

Littlefield's delegation was paced in the meet with a first-place effort in the pole vault by Fred Koontz, who leaped 13-1, an outstanding performance this early in the season. Henry Thompson also provided high points with a second in the mile run in 4:50.1.

The mile relay and mile medley squads each finished third in times of 3:35.7 and 3:42.5, respectively. Running on the relay were Richard Wright, Mike Grissom, Howard Wright and Bernie Wall. Richard Wright, Grissom and Wall joined Donnie Heard on the mile medley.

The quartet of Richard Wright, Grissom, Kenneth Horn and Koontz combined times for a 45.0 to finish fifth in the 440-yard relay.

Also cited for their efforts in the 440-yard dash, but not placing, were Howard Wright with a 55.0 and Joe Ross with a 54.9. Both are sophomores.

Thinclads Trek To Denver City

Looking for improvement and more experience, the Littlefield Wildcats will compete in their second meet of the season this Saturday at Denver City.

Probable contestants and their events are:

440-yard relay -- Richard Wright, Mike Grissom, Kenneth Horn, Fred Koontz; 880-yard run -- Bernie Wall, David Perkins; 120-yard high hurdles -- Grissom, Joe Ross; 330-yard intermediate hurdles -- Horn; 440-yard dash -- Howard Wright, Joe Ross, Harold Lowery; Shot put -- Larry Durham; discus -- Koontz, Roy Burk; broad jump -- Richard Wright, Grissom, Ross; pole vault -- Koontz, Perkins, Robert Hodges; mile relay -- Richard Wright, Grissom, Howard Wright, Wall.

Lamesa Heads All-District Team

Class AAA state champions, Lamesa, paced the field in 3-AAA All-District selections by placing four men on the elite team of 12 players.

The Golden Tornadoes, who wrapped up the championship last weekend in Austin, are represented on the squad by Pat Fees, Arthur Calloway, Jerry Mason and Gene Everhart.

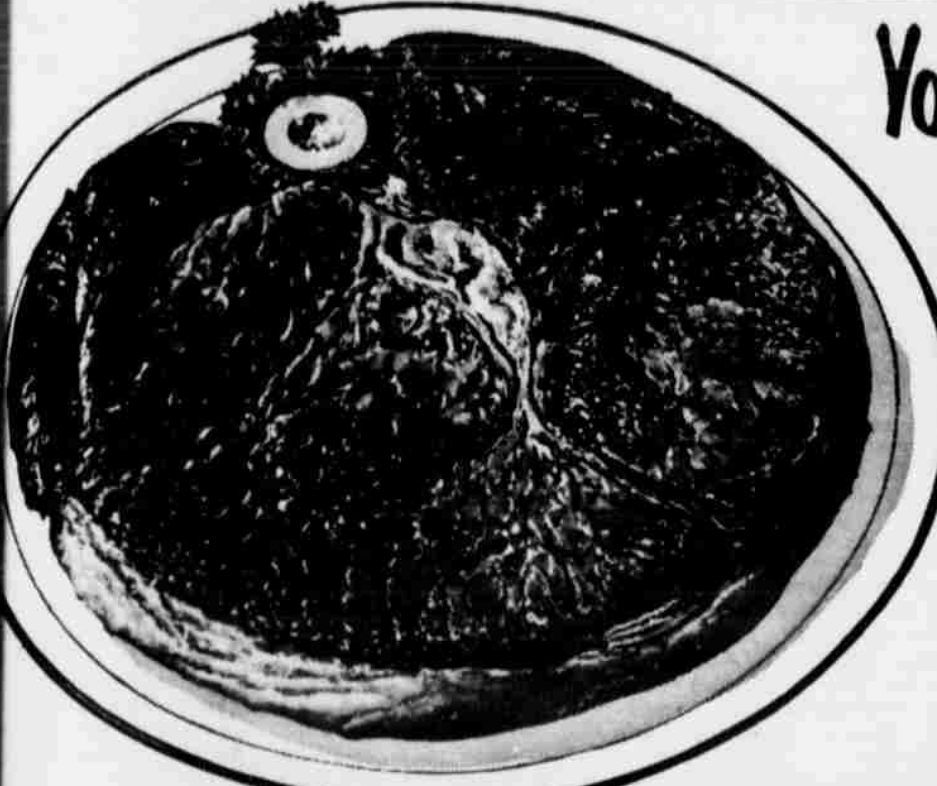

Levelland, who finished second in the league, had three players named. They were Mike Dukes, a unanimous choice, Obbie Garrett and Lynn Wright. Selected from Snyder were Mickey Almond and Tommy Bullard.

Others on the team were Rocky Woods of Lakeview, another unanimous pick, Sidney Green from Sweetwater and Eddie Roberson from Brownfield.

Honorable mention went to Phillip Pace and Kevin Hutson from Littlefield, Randy Feagan of Sweetwater and Jerry Timmons and Larry Serlson, both of Brownfield.

FARM NEWS

Waggin' Tongue

By TEX ROGERS

Almost every day the big daily newspapers are filled with stories about the Federal Government and mistakes on budget estimates, credibility gaps and raising taxes. Makes a man wonder if those people up there in Washington know their business.

Suppose the farmers down here on the South Plains had the same mess to put up with? Suppose they made errors in estimating their budgets in the war on drought, nematodes, boll weevils and flea hoppers? They'd be in a mighty big jam, because they can't raise their debt ceiling like Congress can. If this happened about all they could do is take out another mortgage.

Suppose there was a credibility gap between the farmer and man he bought his seed and fertilizer from. If the farmer said one thing and did another, the seed man wouldn't have to take it lying down like the American public does when an Administration official says and then doesn't do. The seed man would simply cut off the farmer's credit so he couldn't make a crop.

Suppose the farmers here had control of prices on the crops they produce, so whenever they needed some extra money, all they had to do was raise prices, like the government raises taxes?

Seems the Federal Government could take some lessons from these South Plains farmers on how to run a business so that there'll be no misjudgment in money, and better understanding between the government and the public.

Why, the government might even come up with a balanced budget once.

A series of educational and directional meetings are slated for several counties in the Texas South Plains between March 15-28 by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

Elbert Harp, and farmer from Abernathy and GSPA president, said that farmers have done the best job ever in supporting the organization and this is a series of meetings to inform them of the programs and projects currently being worked on by GSPA and to seek added direction on new activities for grain sorghum betterment.

The meeting for Lamb County will be held March 16 at the PCA Building in Olton, beginning at 8 p.m. The Hockley County gathering will be at 8 p.m., March 28, at the Kar-Lo Inn in Levelland.

V. F. Snodgrass of the GSPA staff will be discussing the possibility of changing county loan rates on sorghum as well as the new labor laws affecting producers.

Rudie Tate of GSPA North Plains staff will talk on current developments in livestock feeding and processing in the sorghum area as well as possibilities for food and industrial use of grain sorghum.

During the "new business" session, county GSPA directors and officers will be elected.

Tide Sets Grower Information Day

Lamb County farmers are invited to attend a Grower Information Day, Monday, from 9 a.m. to noon at Tide Products plant on the Clovis Highway.

Jim Hoodinpyle, technical representative of DuPont Chemicals, will be on hand to answer questions on sorghum, soybean and cotton weed control, cotton seedling disease control and soil sterilants.

Refreshments will be served.

$5 Million Given For Conservation In Texas

"State and local interests contributed $5 million in funds and services to soil and water conservation districts in Texas last year," according to a report released recently by H. N. Smith, Soil Conservation Service State Conservationist, Temple.

"Cities, counties, state government, special purpose districts, individuals, and private groups are supporting conservation districts more than ever before," Smith noted.

"This indicates public approval of the way conservation districts are fulfilling their vital and changing responsibilities. These include protecting water supplies; reducing pollution to streams, rivers and lakes by sediment; helping solve land use problems in rural and rural-urban fringe areas; reducing erosion of farmlands, non-farmlands, and roadsides; and improving recreational and wildlife opportunities."

Non-federal contributions last year included $2.6 million to speed up watershed work, $5 million to help layout and install conservation measures, $1 million for informational, educational, and other local activities, and $53,000 for making soil surveys for urban uses.

"SCS resources are much more effective when financial and other help are given conservation districts by State and local sources," Smith said. "We, therefore, encourage conservation districts to use all resources available to help conserve and develop natural resources."

Smith said the fact that every state in the nation appropriated money last year for soil and water conservation districts reflects the widespread support they are getting from the public.

Sen. Hightower Introduces Livestock Processing Bill

Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon Wednesday introduced a proposal outlining stiff health and sanitation requirements for the disposing or processing of dead livestock.

Under the proposal, all persons involved in rendering operations would be required to obtain licenses from the state health department.

The bill also lays down broad health and safety requirements for rendering establishments. These include building permits and annual inspections by the health department.

Licensing and health and sanitation requirements would also extend to independent haulers who sell dead animals directly to rendering plants.

Violators could be fined up to $500 or jailed.

The health department would be responsible for enforcing the regulations, Senator Hightower said.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Livestock.

Bills Sent To Medicare Must Be Itemized, Paid

When the beneficiary is going to send the claim to the medicare carrier himself, he fills out the first part of the request for payment form and when a bill is enclosed it is very important that it show, not only the charges, but what specific services were given to the patient on what date. The bill must also be marked paid.

Hutton emphasized that a beneficiary who sends in an itemized receipted bill should also be very careful to complete all blanks on the top part of the request for payment form including the "description of illness." Here, he said, the beneficiary should simply put down why he went to the doctor or in his own words what was wrong with him.

Producers, of course, will want to grow the longest staple that can be grown in their areas of the Plains consistent with economic reality. All other things being equal -- such as yields and micronaire readings -- the longer the staple the greater the farmer's income.

However, producers in those areas which, because of geographic location or elevation, do not have a growing season and climatic conditions that lend themselves to the production of the longer staple varieties now available should not despair of improving their market position.

Graves Jones, Vice President

COTTON TALKS

From Plains Cotton Growers Inc.

Cotton in at least 500-bale lots, with the maximum attainable uniformity of quality fibers within each bale and from bale to bale -- that's what textile mill buyers look for when they set out to fill their requirements for raw cotton fiber.

It follows naturally that this is the crying need of cotton producers who would attract those mill buyers to a given area.

This was the stand-out message delivered to High Plains cotton producers by members of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute Cotton Committee meeting in Lubbock Feb. 27 and 28.

Top attraction of the two-day period was a grower-spinner cotton quality forum attended by some 600 area producers and other cotton industry people. Nine members of the ATMI Cotton Committee were present, representing textile mills which account for about 40 percent of annual raw cotton consumption in the United States.

The primary concern of many in the textile industry currently is the pending shortage of cotton stapling 1 1/16 and 1 1/32 inches and having the desired strength, micronaire and other quality characteristics. And this came in for a goodly share of all discussion, especially in prepared speeches.

But in a question and answer session after the formal part of the meeting, it was apparent that all cotton production from the High Plains is not expected to staple above an inch. And it was just as obvious that there are markets, and good markets, for cotton in the shorter staples, assuming it is grown and handled in the proper manner.

Producers, of course, will want to grow the longest staple that can be grown in their areas of the Plains consistent with economic reality. All other things being equal -- such as yields and micronaire readings -- the longer the staple the greater the farmer's income.

However, producers in those areas which, because of geographic location or elevation, do not have a growing season and climatic conditions that lend themselves to the production of the longer staple varieties now available should not despair of improving their market position.

of Pacolet Industries, Inc., Spartanburg, South Carolina, said in his address "I'm not saying that there will be no demand for the shorter staples because there are products which are made from this type cotton. However, the other fiber properties of these shorter staples need to be improved -- higher micronaire and better tensile strength, for example -- and of course they need to be harvested and ginned in a manner which will not adversely affect the fiber properties bred into the seed variety."

It was in later conversations with Jones and other members of the Cotton Committee that the 500-bale lot and uniformity factors were brought out, along with the fact that the annual off-take of cotton stapling one inch and under averages in the neighborhood of 4 million bales.

Whatever the staple objective of producers, if they are to enjoy favorable markets and build a reputation for the cotton they produce, it is necessary that they provide mills with sizable lots of uniform, high quality fiber.

To reach this goal most in the cotton and textile industries agree that it will be necessary for producers to enter into lint block programs from which cotton will be block ginned to retain varietal purity.

There are four basic principles which such programs must follow if they are to be successful. They have been repeated many times, but cannot be overemphasized. They are:

(1) Planting seed which is varietally pure and reasonably well adapted to the area, planted to sufficient acreage to produce at least 500-bale lots;

(2) Cultural practices -- including fertilization, irrigation and the use of harvest-aid chemicals -- which will help, not hinder the production of the maximum length, strength and fineness potential of the variety;

(3) Harvesting with quality, not speed, in mind, and

(4) Ginning in such a manner as to preserve quality characteristics, which again, means speed and high grades will have to be upstaged by the desire for overall quality.

Producers of course know if such a program guarantee a market for cotton at premium prices.

First, it is next to impossible to guarantee markets at less market premiums, as Commodity Credit Corporation is holding a cotton

But it can be said that will ordinarily be no or premiums for cotton grown with quality and purity in mind, and that the potential is greatly increased by the adoption of lint block programs.

Further, it has been proved that cotton from pure seed under mended cultural practices kept varietally pure will yield greater returns for the farmer, even when the government loan.

The key to success in programs is selection of variety. And here producers have access to seed breeders, Agricultural Agents, the Plains Research and Extension Center, the High Plains Search Foundation, and others. All of these sources to information from extensive variety and demonstration plots, can all be helpful in selection.

Dr. Lavon Ray, SPREC's cotton breeding man, has said "Optimum are offered NOW to produce varieties which will be more acceptable mills."

He added that "in doing so we must consider the adaptability of these and changes that need made in our management practices to assure production of good quality fiber. Some emphasis is needed to shift our normal goal in cotton production -- maximum to fiber quality."

PCG President J. D. Littlefield, says "The producer's business is to respect not unlike the professional gambler, when the proper variety is selected, lint block program an 'all to gain, nothing to lose' situation -- a gambler's dream."

Once nematodes get at your cotton, yields go down and so do profits. But with FUMAZONE® 86 soil fumigant applied at only 1 to 2 gallons overall an acre, you can take care of root-knot, sting, meadow and other nematodes--those microscopic, worm-like soil pests that attack plant roots, suck away profits. FUMAZONE 86 soil fumigant increases yields up to 1/2 bale an acre. Many High Plains farmers just like yourself tell us that's exactly what happened to their yields after their soils were treated with FUMAZONE 86. It can be applied right from the drum. No mixing, no diluting, no nozzles clogged with foreign material. You can use the chisel method, the plowsole method or inject FUMAZONE 86 into your irrigation water. Could you ask for greater flexibility? Sure you could. So here it is. Apply FUMAZONE 86 before planting, at planting or after planting. It's the only type of soil fumigant that can be used on living plants. Ask your Dow farm chemicals supplier about it.

Journey To The Past

BY EVALYN PARROTT SCOTT

JOHN K. MILAM FORMER XIT COWBOY

John K. Milam, stockman and farmer, bought land west of Sudan in 1920 but due to family illness, he and wife and infant daughter, did not move here until Feb. 21, 1923.

An adobe house with walls fourteen inches thick was their first dwelling in this new frontier. The house was built by Milam, who used wheat straw and red clay with water to make adobe bricks in molds. The structure had dirt plastered walls and was much warmer than some of the earlier domiciles built of green lumber. They lived in the adobe house thirteen years before plastering the walls; then later added to and modernized it; and it still stands on the Milam farm.

Unlike most land prospectors coming to this new country being broken out for farm land, Milam, who spent his youth working on his father's ranch, the U. Bar in Hall County, Texas and other ranches including the famous XIT outfit in Texas, and the Diamond A in New Mexico, came to this new area looking for grass-land for his cattle.

With the land he bought and some he later leased of the Hadaway land, he then shipped his eighty head of Whiteface cattle here in April, 1922. His brand was the JK with a bar added later for cattle owned by his daughter, Evelyn, then an infant, but who had been given several head by her dad and kinsmen.

TRAIL WAGON

After the cattle were settled Milam returned to Hall County to farm the remainder of the year and in December of 1922, Milam loaded two wagons, (using one as a trail wagon) with farm implements, and eight head of work stock, plus his saddle horse, and drove through, taking 10 days to make the trip from Memphis, Texas to Sudan.

ed to Sudan, Sept. 16, 1959. By coincidence on Feb. 21, 1957 they were staking out their town lot for their home; the date of their arrival 34 years earlier to the Sudan area as pioneers. John was the son of the late W.M. Milam, native of Georgia who came to Parker County, Texas in 1878 and bought out the U Bar Ranch horses, "range delivery to all us tenderfeet". This means W.M. bought all horses with the U Bar brand, but he had to round them up off the range. W.M. later settled in Hall County in 1889 and helped settle Memphis.

In the possession of John Milam are such mementoes as range-worn chaps over fifty years old; a branding iron "U" used in the 1870's; and a bridle-bit dating back to 1901.

Mrs. Milam also has a family keepsake, her mother's steel skillet over seventy years old, which is still in use.

Both the Milam children, Evelyn and J.K., are graduates of Sudan High School and attended college. Evelyn is Director of Admissions and Financial Aid at Austin College in Sherman, Texas.

J.K. married Mary Foster of Happy, Texas in June, 1949. He served in World War II and entered the service in July of 1943, was discharged Dec. of 45. He helped make the D-Day invasion in France, June 6, 1944.

J.K. and wife have three children, J.K. Milam, III, Michael and Marsha Lynn.

States Mrs. Milam, "We have been in good health, had no family deaths for which we are thankful; and have no regrets since making our move to Sudan, forty-four years ago, Feb. 21."

CHARLES BARRETT, MANAGER OF ANTHONY'S
LITTLEFIELD STORE, RAN A LITTLE SURVEY OF HIS OWN ON DOLLAR DAY

AS HE WAITED ON CUSTOMERS, HE ASKED THEM:

" WHERE DID YOU HEAR ABOUT THIS ITEM ?"

EVERYONE He Asked Replied - - - -

" I SAW IT IN THE PAPER "

Of course, that's what we wanted to hear . . . we've been saying it all along . . . but it's nice to hear it from someone else.

It's the pitch we make when we sell advertising . . . WE KNOW people are reading the News-Leader because they tell us they are.

Littlefield Merchants are learning how a progressive, go-getting, well-read newspaper can help them.

So, our thanks to Charles Barrett for giving us a plug. We're more than happy to give him one in return.

We're continuing to make improvements in the News-Leader, just as fast as we can. New features will be added as we go along, all with our readers in mind. We want them to have a newspaper they'll want to read, down to the last detail.

When that task is done, our readers are happy. That makes our advertisers satisfied. And when our advertisers are satisfied, we're the happiest people in the world.

Be-Little TOPS Club Meets

The Be-Little TOPS Club held their regular meeting Tuesday night in the Medical Arts Hospital.

Hazel Davis, president, presided. The trip to Austin was discussed and the souvenirs for Austin were decided upon.

Monthly queen runner-up was Berta Pugh and monthly queen was Joyce Caldwell.

The weekly queen was Lucille Robinson and runner up was Joyce Streety.

Charms were presented several members for eight weeks perfect attendance. Joyce Streety was presented with a bracelet because of 25 pounds loss.

People were very nice and accommodating to feed the stock and let him stay overnight. After arriving here he went to work building the adobe house. In February he returned to Memphis to ship the household goods, and bring his wife and baby daughter.

Making the trip with them was another early Sudan family, the Sebrings. Mr. Sebring rode in the immigrant car with the household goods and farm animals, and Mrs. Sebring and daughter came through in the car with Mr. Milam and family. (An immigrant car was a box car used for shipping household goods, farm implements and animals to the new settlement).

MRS. MILAM SCHOOL TEACHER

At the time of their marriage Mrs. Milam, the former Bessie Lee Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Harper, was a school teacher and drawing the tidy sum of $85.00 a month. While a single lass she taught school on one of the large ranches, the J.A. in Donley County and also in Hall County, and was favored with the local ranch boys attention. Their mode of transportation was by horseback.

The courtship of John Milam and Bessie Lee Harper would read like a story book romance if elaborated upon, but, suffice it to say, young John came calling in the family 1912 Cadillac; rode his favorite horse when he called for the solemn occasion of asking for her hand in marriage; then came for his bride-to-be in a 1918 Model T Ford on their wedding day, Dec. 2, 1917.

John Milam was born in Hall County where he grew up. Mrs. Milam was born at Corsicana and moved with her family to Claud, Texas in 1898, later moving to Memphis in Hall County.

Early area ranches remembered by the Milams were the Ralls Ranch, Paul Brothers and Johnny McMurtry. Early neighbors were the Porter Ernest family, the Walter Damrons, Ves Garners, and Doc Elmore.

The Milams retired and moved

Peace Corps Slated March In Lubbock

Littlefield area residents interested in putting their names in to use in developing areas around the world are to take the Peace Corps placement test at 1:30 p.m. on March 18, at the Public Building in Lubbock.

The Peace Corps placement test to determine an applicant can best be placed overseas. The test measures general aptitude and ability to learn a language, and scores indicate a language-learning ability. The Peace Corps places the applicant in a language-speaking country. Placement test requires preparation and is non-compulsory - an applicant can withdraw at any time.

The application form, placement test, is the most important factor in the selection process. Persons interested in serving in the Peace Corps must fill out an application form and present it to the nearest office or from the Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

The placement test is about an hour and a half.

Hulse Given Banking Award

Max Hulse, manager of the Odessa office of Eppler, Guerin & Turner, Inc., Dallas-based investment banking firm, has been named Manager of the Year for 1966, having been chosen from among 14 branch managers in EGT offices throughout Texas.

Such honors are not new to Hulse, who was also cited in 1963 for outstanding sales achievement. In making the award, John W. Turner, chairman of EGT, stated that the same enthusiasm, ability, and dedication which earned him the first award were displayed again in 1966. "In addition to serving the interests of his many individual investor accounts, Max administered to the details of the Odessa office and opened and staffed EGT's new Midland office," Turner said.

Hulse still finds time to devote to his community. He is currently serving as a director of the Odessa Heart Council, is treasurer of the First Baptist Church, and is president of the Nimitz Junior High School PTA. In addition, he has taught adult education classes in investments and securities at Odessa Junior College four consecutive years.

A member of the Odessa EGT staff since 1962, Hulse has been manager of the office since 1963. Prior to that, he was a sales representative for International Business Machines Corporation. He is a native of Littlefield, where he attended public schools. He holds the B.S. degree in business administration from North Texas State University (1952).

He and his wife, Mary Ann, have three daughters: Cheryl, 14, Kim 10, and Kristi, 8. They live at 1600 Wedgewood in Odessa.
