WORTHY OF ADOPTION IN LAMB COUNTY—

Farmers of Tillman county, Oklahoma, have an organization known as county advisory board, the purpose of which is to improve farming and farm management methods through exchange of experiences. Co-operating with the farmers in connection with the work of the advisory board the county agent and county demonstration agent.

Think— That such an organization would be of much value in Lamb county. WHAT DO YOU THINK?

We have written the editor of the Frederick Press at Frederick, Oklahoma, to send us a letter or article telling about the advisory board of Tillman county. When this information is received it will be published in the Lamb County Leader.

But, in the meantime, we will appreciate it very much if the farmers of our county will write to the editor of the Leader and express their opinion as to the merits of a county advisory board for Lamb county. We will be looking for your letters.

DOES IT NECESSARILY FOLLOW THAT AN INDIVIDUAL'S CONSCIENCE IS HURTING WHEN A CONTRIBUTION TO A CHURCH IS MADE IN A QUIET MANNER AND WITHOUT THE IDENTITY OF THE GIVER BEING DISCLOSED?

Here is what the Spearman Reporter said:

WHOSE CONSCIENCE IS HURTING?

The above is a question that is being asked by several Baptist members and the pastor since yesterday.

Wednesday, Rev. J. H. Richards received a plain envelope through the mail without any return name or address on it and on the inside a ten dollar bill was neatly folded between two blank checks. There was no way to tell who sent the letter containing money. It was mailed in Spearman.

Someone's conscience must be hurting a bit and feel that the above would bring relief."

We know that there are great numbers of people in the world who make contributions to churches and organizations who do not wish their identity to become known. That is the way they feel about the matter, and should be able to exercise their own desires without comment being made.

DO WE NOT THINK IT IS RIGHT TO CATALOGUE SUCH GIVERS AS MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE A CONSCIENCE THAT IS GIVING THEM DISTRESSING PAINS. WHAT DO YOU THINK?

The L. H. S. Kitties went to a basketball tournament at Sudan Saturday. They won the first two games, lost the third, winning second place in the tournament.

LOCAL TALENT WILL PRESENT "THE GHOST BIRD" AT THE HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM FRIDAY EVENING NEXT

A mystery play of more than ordinary merit is to be presented Friday evening, January 20, at the High school auditorium under the auspices of the Epworth league of the Methodist church. The play, a four-act mystery comedy, has for its locale a lonely country home where a murder is committed and, since a notorious super-crook, "The Vulture," has been seen in the neighborhood, Brad Buckhart, the chief of detectives, arrives to catch the murderer. Buckhart's murder and the ultimate arrest of the killer furnish the background for this thrillingly hilarious comedy.

The play is being directed by F. Myrick Russell of St. Paul, Minn., a graduate of the Misner School of the Spoken Word, Omaha, Nebraska. Mr. Russell has coached plays in more than thirty states, and has had many years experience as teacher, coach, entertainer, humorist and Little Theatre director. SEVERAL LITTLEFIELD RESIDENTS AT CEREMONY

Mayor T. S. Sales and Commissioner Homer Hall returned Wednesday night from Austin, where they attended the inauguration of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as governor of Texas.

"The youngest man we saw there hurrahing for the Fergusons was a two-year-old from Nacogdoches county and the oldest a 93-year-old from Augustine county, said Mr. Hall.

"The boys from the forks of the creek came in . . . lots of them . . . and overall mingled with dress suits . . . everybody was welcome . . . and we all had a good time," the Littlefield city commissioner reported.

Mayor Sales and Commissioner Hall, through credentials they were carrying, were given special seats and were enabled to witness the inauguration under favorable conditions.

"The Capitol was full to overflowing and there were thousands on the outside who heard Mrs. Ferguson's inaugural address through the network of amplifiers," Mr. Hall said.

"The ceremony was appropriate, devoid of unnecessary show, and all in all was in keeping with the present economic conditions.

"The predominating atmosphere of the entire event was the presence at the ceremony of the men and women who served on the firing line in the interests of the return of the Ferguson administration.

"Cheers greeted Mrs. Ferguson as she made her appearance for the inauguration ceremony. Texas' new governor received a great reception and I don't mean maybe," the Littlefield resident declared.

Among the other residents of Littlefield and Lamb county who were in Austin for the inauguration were: Bart Denton, Charles Harless, Driscoll Irvin, and County Commissioner C. E. Strawn and party.

THE SERVICE OF RELIGION

One of the most interesting developments of the year just ended is the increase in the attendance on church services, and in church membership. The Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America points to this as evidence of a revival of the spirit of religion.

This seems to us a very hopeful sign of the times. We went through a period, after the War, when it looked as if religion had lost its hold upon the people of America. From the beginning of our Nation, we have always been a profoundly religious people. Religion was the basis of our earliest colonial settlements. Our greatest leaders in the early days did not hesitate to proclaim publicly and to practise their belief in the guiding power of a Divine Providence. The picture of Washington on his knees at Valley Forge, when the cause of the Revolutionists seemed hopeless, has always been one of the most inspiring incidents in American history.

The tenets of every religion make it a consolation ^{So} time of suffering and need. There should be no feeling of shame on the ^{of} the man of woman who, having neglected his religion and its call to ^{inspired} things were going well with him now feels the urge to ^{so} myste and join again the ranks of the believers, seeking spiritu ^{consol} of such pa bruised soul. That is what religion is for. That is where ^{its} greatest service to mankind is rendered.

We have heard men say that they were afraid of being sneered at if they turned back to the church now, after staying away from it through the fat years. We do not believe that anyone who has felt the spiritual illumination that comes from mere contact with the inspiring source of faith and hope that is in the Church ^{can} ever feel other than kindly toward others who, like himself, have felt the need to refresh their spirits and renew their faith.

"Here bring ^{our} wounded hearts; here tell your anguish. Earth ^{has} her sorrows that Heaven cannot heal."

We believe ^{firmly} as we believe anything, that the regeneration of our nation ^{is} impaired by the disappointments and disillusion of these last years. And ^{the} will come about the more surely and the more swiftly ^{as} our people are really turning back to the religion ^{of} the ^{more} beautiful lines ^{of} strength and help.

Letter Is Received From University Of Texas Student

An interesting letter has been received by the Leader from Carson Glass, who is a student at the University of Texas. The letter reads in part as follows:

"Almost everyone in Austin is planning to go to the Governor's Inauguration Ball Tuesday night. It will probably be the largest affair staged in Austin in a long time. Three university orchestras will handle the dance music at the three different divisions of the ball. The Stephen F. Austin hotel roof and the Driskill hotel roof will be used. I suspect the main part of the ball will be held in the Gregory Gymnasium auditorium. There will be old-time fiddle music by fiddles from Bandera and several other towns. I am going just to see what it will be like as I have never been to a large entertainment of this sort before. I imagine it will be very interesting."

SYNOPSIS: Pauline, sentimental, earnest, sincere and loving love, becomes engaged and marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that their blissful happiness will continue unchanged through all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a strange premonition that maybe love does change, a thought buried in her mind by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara, the night before. Pauline adored Barbara, who had been married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced and living a life which some of her friends could not understand. Between Dennis and Barbara is a seeming wall of personal dislike by both. Six months after Pauline's wedding, Barbara comes for a short stay. During this visit Barbara confesses to Pauline that there is a man she really loves, but she refuses to tell his name. Barbara decides suddenly to go home and Pauline insists Dennis drive her to the station. Irritated, Dennis, drives recklessly, and they are in a crash. Barbara escapes injury but Dennis' leg is broken. As he returns to consciousness he learns who the man is that Barbara loves. It's himself. Dennis spends several weeks in the hospital. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis with Pauline at the hospital. Pauline plans highly for Dennis' return home. Barbara stays only one day after Dennis' return from the hospital. Much against his will Dennis finds a new attraction in Barbara, who plays the same cool and detached role as formerly. A fortnight after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for a little vacation. Upon their arrival a

"Am I to be honoured?" he asked stiffly.
Pauline broke in. "Do dance with him Barbie—I should love you to, and it is a waltz they are playing now."
Barbara laughed. "Well, to please you . . ."
She moved away onto the crowded floor with Dennis.
They danced for some time in silence; then Dennis asked abruptly: "Do you really like this sort of thing?"
"What sort of thing?"
"This noise and glare—and artificiality."
"I adore it," Barbara said. It was not the truth, but tonight she was afraid of the truth.
"I loathe it."
"Why are you here, then?"

think. It was only when they stopped outside her flat that she roused suddenly with a start. She flung the rugs aside. "I'm tired. Why do we do these mad things, Jerry? It's a lonesome life."

"You seemed to be enjoying yourself," he paused. "At any rate, with O'Hara. I thought you didn't like him."

"I don't remember discussing the subject with you."
"You did. You said it was a bore when you heard they were coming to town."

The street looked dreary and deserted, there was not a light in any window of the tall block of flats. Barbara shivered. "Well—goodnight," she said.

Barnet tried to put his arms round her. "Are you going to have an affair with that fellow?" he demanded jealously. "I saw him take you into Ritzzen's room—or did you take him?"

He broke off sharply, for instead of the burst of anger he had expected, Barbara began to cry—softly, almost like a child.

She slipped away from him, and he let her go. Barbara in a rage he could understand and cope with, but Barbara in tears—sobbing like a girl—left him helpless and ashamed.

It was a strange thing that, once safely in her room, Barbara's chief feeling should be one of guilt. It was not that she had any great affection for Pauline. She felt that somehow she was wronging Dennis.

He was, as he had said, so unlike other men. Dennis was different and she knew that he despised himself for the thing he could not control. Yet the strange inexplicable attraction which she had felt for him for so long had now communicated itself to him and was proving stronger than his own inherent loyalty.

Barbara was essentially honest with herself. No matter how much she posed and dissembled before her world she never for one moment tried to pretend to herself that she was any better than she was. And now at four o'clock in the gray morning she sat down by the fire before she went to bed and looked into her heart with cool deliberation.

She loved Dennis O'Hara as she had never loved any man—that was a truth that she had never questioned. She was sufficiently a woman of the world to recognize that her attraction for him was probably largely physical. She knew that she angered and exasperated him even while she drew him, and that the obstinate, intensely masculine trait in his character longed to overcome her and prove himself master.

She had controlled her love for him bravely enough until tonight, until that moment in Ritzzen's little room when he had taken her in his arms and kissed her.

Dennis was married, but lots of other men with whom she had had affairs had also been married, and it had not seemed as insuperable a barrier, but here again Dennis was different.

Suppose he had been free. For a moment Barbara gave herself up to the wonderful happiness of that thought. Free! So that she could have married him!

She felt, for the first time, as if she had lost her way on the road of life; as if she had turned aside and so missed the greatest treasure of all. Without her Dennis would have been quite happy with Pauline, quite satisfied with her—but would he? Wasn't he already tired of Pauline's insistent affection, her childishness, and her demands upon him?

"If I hadn't come there would have been somebody else some day," Barbara told herself. That was life as she knew it.

She tried to feel brave and determined, but when at last she got into bed, sleep was impossible. She kept living over and over again those few moments with Dennis O'Hara. His kiss had been the real thing—a seal set upon her heart and soul forever.

The O'Haras had been in New York three days when a letter came from Pauline's mother. Pauline was breakfasting in bed. She had had three late nights and was tired. She also had a very new and becoming negligee and she wanted to see whether Dennis noticed it. Apparently he had not. He got up at the usual time, bathed and went downstairs to breakfast.

"You ought to rest," Pauline scolded. "I'm sure you must be dead tired."

But Dennis hated breakfast in bed and said so.

"I'll have mine downstairs and come up again," he said. So Pauline had hers alone. There was a long mirror in a wardrobe door opposite, and in it she could see her reflection—a very charming reflection. The new negligee suited her, she decided, and she wondered wistfully why Dennis had not told her so.

She sighed and took up the letter. My Darling Child (her mother wrote)

I am sitting up in bed writing this, as I have not been very well. It seems such a long time since I saw you, Pauline, and as Daddy has to go to Los Angeles on business for a few days I am wondering if Dennis will spare you to me? I have not been very well—it's my silly old heart again, so Dr. Panthan says, but I feel sure a rest and a sight of you will put me right. How are you, sweetheart? Your letters tell me so little, and I long to see you and know that you are happy. Of course, if Dennis will come too, we shall only be too pleased to have him, but I am sure he must be anxious not to leave business after such a long absence . . .

There was a good deal more, little details of the home life which seemed to Pauline so far away now and uninteresting. Then a last appeal:

Do come if you can; you don't know how much I want to see you.

Pauline laid the letter down with a feeling of guilt. She wished she had told her mother of this trip to New York, and yet in a way she was glad now she had not, because had she done so she knew this letter would never have been written.

She sighed and turned to pour some coffee, and then she saw another letter which had slipped out of sight behind the tonet rack. It was addressed in her father's handwriting, and Pauline's heart missed a beat as she tore the envelope open.

My Dear Pauline:

I have got to go to Los Angeles for a few days on urgent business. Could you manage to come to your mother? She is not at all well, and I do not like leaving her alone. I am sure Dennis will spare you if you will tell him the facts. I hope you are both well.

In haste, Your loving Daddy,
"I must go. Of course I must go," Pauline said aloud. She sat up in bed and was surprised to see how her hand trembled as she lifted the cup.

The door opened, and Dennis came in.

"Mother's ill," Pauline said in a quivering voice.

"Ill? Let me see." He took the two letters from her and read them. "It's not as bad as that, is it?" he asked chidingly.

Pauline's eyes filled with tears. "I shall have to go, Dennis."

Continued Next Week

"Dennis caught her in his arms."

round of gay entertainment gets underway—throwing Dennis and Pauline much into each other's company. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Pauline moved hurriedly, her pretty face flushing with pleasure at the casual word of endearment. Barbara noted it pityingly.

Later, when she was dancing with Jerry Barnett, she said suddenly: "Have you ever noticed, Jerry, that when a man begins to call his wife 'my dear' it's the end of romance."

Jerry guffawed. "Can't say I have, but I daresay you're right. Romance is the shortest lived thing I know of, anyway. Awful!"

Barbara glanced across the room to where Dennis and his wife sat together at the supper table. Pauline was watching the dancers eagerly, her face flushed and her eyes very bright. Dennis was watching them too—moodily, his hand idly playing with a wineglass.

When she and Barnett went back to the table, Dennis rose.

"Because you are."
Suddenly he swept her away from the crowded floor and through an arched alcove into a small unoccupied room.

"We're not allowed here," Barbara said calmly.

"In a moment. I want to speak to you."

"Pauline will miss us."
"She is dancing with Barnett—I saw her."

"Let me go."
"In a moment." He was between her and the hall door. "Look, Barbara—answer me one question and I swear I'll never mention it again. I don't know what you've done to me. It's—it's like being possessed. I've fought against it ever since you left us. It's no use. I've tried to despise you. I pretended I didn't like you—but that makes no difference. When I was smashed up—you kissed me, Barbara."

There was a tragic silence, and the scornful smile slowly died from Barbara's face, and she just looked at him, her lips quivering, her eyes suddenly very young. Then she moved her hand slowly and touched his.

"I know."

"Well, then—" she took her hand away—"let us go back, shall we?"

Dennis went on quickly: "I don't know what you've done to me. But if you'll just tell me—I'll never ask you again. If I'd been free—"

Her trembling lips smiled.

"Such a big 'if,' Dennis."

At that moment he seemed to her almost a boy—no longer the disapproving, almost brusque man she had known, and at that moment she felt also as if all her bitter experience had been swept away from her and she was a girl again, in love for the first time.

She closed her eyes, and as almost unconsciously she swayed toward him, Dennis caught her in his arms.

THE PUBLIC should be prudent in seeking relief from pain. Take nothing which does not have the approval of the medical profession.

BAYER ASPIRIN will never do you any harm, and almost always brings the desired relief. But remember that the high medical endorsement gives Bayer Aspirin does not apply to all tablets for relief of pain.

THE DOCTOR is careful to specify Bayer Aspirin for these important reasons:

It has no injurious ingredients. No coarse particles to irritate throat or stomach. Nothing to upset the system. Not even any disagreeable taste. The Bayer process insures a pure, uniform product.

INSIST on the tablet you know to be safe. And the one that has speed. Bayer tablets dissolve so quickly, you get immediate relief from your headache, neuralgia, or other pain.

Gain Physical Vigor—Youthfulness With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—in 4 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts—the cost is trifling and it lasts 4 weeks. If even this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, safest and surest way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—so gloriously energetic—vigorously alive—you money gladly returned.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world.

CHURCHES

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church has just returned from a great revival in New Mexico. There were a number of back sliders brought back into the service of the Lord and some souls saved, and some additions to the church. The church accepted the fundamentals of the faith, and aligned itself with the Fundamentalist Baptist.

The attendance of the church is increasing and the people are getting to work in a great way.

There was a large group of folk out to the Tuesday night Bible study.

The ladies of the church meet each Monday at 2:30 in Bible study. They are now studying the book of Genesis. All the ladies of the town are invited regardless of your creed or faith.

We are finishing the book of John in our Sunday school Sunday morning, and the pastor will take the entire book and give the high points at the 11:00 o'clock hour.

Sunday night we will have an ordination service to ordain Br. J. D. Evins. Everyone is welcome to be in the services. Br. Evins has been called to the Claud Fundamentalist Baptist church for half time.

We welcome all who are not in services elsewhere to come, join in with us in the study of the Bible. We use the Bible only in our Sunday school.

We are anxious to help the poor and needy and feel that it is a part of the commission of the church.

HIGH SCHOOL LATIN CLUB

The Latin club of the Littlefield High School met Monday, January 9, Virgie Denton, Kathleen Brewer, and Louise Baird, the program committee, put on a very interesting program. Louise Baird read several of Kipling's poems; Faye Foust played several numbers on the ukulele; and Virgie Denton sang in a mock orchestra. interesting things as there were only a small number present. We sang, "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder," in Spanish, and then Miss McKee read us a story about the Spanish women. We discussed their customs and then ended the meeting with a game concerned with "The Three Bears."

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLUB

Our last program was so interesting that we planned the next one in it's likeness.

We engaged eagerly in the discussion on "Capital Punishment," in the form of extemporaneous debate. Our next program will be a debate on prohibition. We were also given a good talk, as well as some valuable information, on the "Value of Advertising," by Erley Davis, and were given some slogans by June McCormick and the class guessed what they advertised.

Our club continues to gain more members and enthusiasm. We think we will have derived much benefit, as well as much pleasure, from our club work by the end of this school term.

FUTURE FARMERS MEET

The Littlefield chapter of the Future Farmers of America met in regular session January 10. After business was disposed of, a program was presented that had been prepared by the program committee under the leadership of R. H. Easley. The entire club sang several songs, and an article was read from the Farm and Ranch to the club about, "Texas Special," a prize winning steer. Bruce Melton prophesied concerning the life of each member.

The first year vocational agriculture class is studying the problem of farm terracing. The farmers of the community are taking a great interest and several have asked the class to run terrace lines on their farms. The second year class is studying the feeding of dairy cows.

"Prosperity" To Be Shown At Palace Saturday Midnight

That inimitable laugh duo, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran make their latest co-starring appearance Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday, at the Palace Theatre in "Prosperity," a story written especially for the two comedienne by Zelda Sears, and directed by Sam Wood, who has produced such successful comedies as "Huddle" and "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford."

The homely smalltown atmosphere of such earlier Dressler-Moran hits as "Caught Short" and "Politics" is again used in "Prosperity," but this time Marie and Polly are seen as mothers-in-law whose constant quarreling, bickering and interference with the domestic life of Norman Foster and Anita Page, their respective son and daughter, and the latter's children, provide the plot with a ceaseless round of merriment, punctuated here and there by such bits of heart-stirring character work as only the versatile Miss Dressler can give to her screen portrayals.

As is usual in the amusing Dressler-Moran family entanglements, one of the party has more money than the other and consequently makes herself obnoxious by her assumed 'airs' and ill-dispensed charity. Leave it to Polly Moran to make the most of this part of the role. As the one whose well-lined stocking has been unimpaired by the depression, she nobly welcomes her less fortunate 'in-laws' into her home, with the result that vehement insults as well as croakery soon fly between the two mothers-in-law and the disorder reaches such a point that the married couple find themselves on the verge of a divorce.

Meanwhile, with the best intentions in the world, Miss Dressler gets herself and the rest of the family into all sorts of trouble, the climax of which occurs when she attempts suicide in order to collect on her insurance and thus save her son's reputation and the family honor.

HIGH TEST? ME, TOO

at the price of ordinary gasoline

While the imitators' chorus sings, "We are high test, too"—Phillips continues its solo performance by plainly printing its gravity figures.

If every gasoline did likewise, you could see at a glance, the outstanding superiority of Phillips 66 . . . the greater gasoline. You could quickly compare the simple figures and immediately know how much higher test you get in every gallon of Phillips 66.

All experienced drivers know that high test determines the speed of starting on cold days. They know that high test vitally affects the operation of the engine every day in the year. And they know that Phillips high test DOES NOT cost 3¢ more per gallon.

This is the simple secret of Phillips sensational rise to high place among the leaders. All in the shortest time ever known in the entire history of the petroleum industry.

Phillips entered the business by giving greater value. Phillips is still doing it, still offering a gasoline that is short on claims but long on performance—a gasoline with CONTROLLED VOLATIL-

ITY, always perfectly matched to your weather.

Experts call it the most dramatic, self-demonstrating gasoline ever presented to American motorists. You step on the starter, and your engine couldn't get under way any faster if you had a handful of dynamite under the hood.

Man, you don't have to think and ponder whether this gasoline is better! You instantly feel the difference! And every mile, which you drive thereafter, adds convincing proof of greater power, extra pep, and longer mileage.

Certainly, when the world's largest producer of natural high gravity gasoline says that you can save 3¢ a gallon, that is exciting news. And the way to find out just what it means to your motor and your pocketbook is to try some.

Switch to high test Phillips 66 for just one week. Then see if you ever think of getting gas any place but the Orange and Black 66 shield—where extra high test costs not a penny extra.

The association authorized the chairman to appoint a committee to draw up a resolution to be sent to Senator A. P. Duggan and Representative A. B. Tarwater, strongly condemning the report of the Texas legislative committee on reorganization and economy which suggests the removal of technical courses from Texas Tech and the disposal of West Texas State Teachers college.
