The board reviewed policies and regulations relating to students' appearance Monday night, at Harris' request.

Harris told the board his policy always had been to talk with students individually when he thought their appearance was not up to par.

"If this doesn't improve the student's appearance, I talk to him a second time, more seriously," Harris said.

Harris said his own rule about short skirts is "when they get much shorter than the average." But he said he didn't want to set any rules like "so many inches above the knee" because the appearance might differ from one girl to the next.

On hair, Harris said he drew the line on boys' sideburns when they reached 'past halfway down the ear," or when 'the hair is in the face."

Board Holds Tax Line

Relax, folks.

Littlefield school taxes aren't going up. Not this year, any-

The school board held the line on the tax rate and the school budget at its regular meeting Monday night.

Adoption of a $1,098,433 budget came after Business Manager Sid Hopping explained that the school district's overall tax evaluations had held their own, in fact had gained $5,000. Hopping, in a meeting not long ago, had forecast a drop in the district's overall tax roll, citing many vacant houses as the reason for the expected loss. The district's revenue would have dropped and a tax rate increase might have been necessary for the school to hold income in line.

But Hopping's report showed the total tax roll to be $24,-61,869, up about $5,000. The business manager explained that there were, indeed, losses in valuation from the vacant houses, but they were made up mostly by increases in oil and new construction.

Gains in oil evaluation came from the fact there are 60 wells now on water injection instead 20, as shown on the previous tax roll. That, plus some new construction, held the roll at the current level. Anticipated expenditures this year (ending Aug. 3h $1,119,-099, so the 1968-69 budget is set out for about $21,000 less. Next year's budget (effective ept. 1, 1968) is figured on a $1.80 tax rate per $100 assessed valuation, same as this year, with local revenues expected to reach $435,901. Revenues from state sources are expected to be $622,-

Those totals, plus a $40,-000 short term loan for use early in the year until state money is received, add together cipated income. Anticipated expenses are just $7.00 less than that amount and will be spent in the following categories:

BY LIBBY MULKIPITE

BEFORE THE FINAL wrap - up writes finis to the Republican Convention of 1968 and one and all turn their attention to the Democrats, I think that we should all pause a few minutes in memory of Dr. Hunt.

You remember Dr. Hunt, He was the delegate from Carolina that tried to rock the boat the night that the platform was being Sam Rayburned into acceptance by the convention.

Jerry and Ev pulled his drain plug and sunk his little wave-maker, though, with only a slight trace of a ripple left on the surface and the good doctor was never heard from

SENATOR EVERETT DIRKSEN had read the high points of the over 1,000 pages of platform that he and his committee had slaved over for days. All of the candidates had more or less approved of it and it was the best that could be whipped up to go down the majority's

Ev gave it his gravel-voiced best in presenting it to the delegates and everything was going along smooth as silk.

Or so it seemed until Delegate Hunt grabbed a rwelve foot tall sign and smrted desperately demanding recognition from the

HE GOT RECOGNIZED all right, but not by the chair. Fast as a wink, he was surrounded by reporters and newsman 1,000 strong. It was impossible to overlook him, but somehow Chairman Gerald Ford did. He must have, because he announced loud and strong that he heard no objections to the platform and therefore the "ayes" had it and the platform was accepted.

This didn't go over so well with Delegate Hunt and he started towards the platform with the air of determination that a mother bear robbed of her whelps has. To the reporters that kept asking what did he want to be heard about, he merely said to listen to him after he got to the platform.

HE WAS GRANTED permission by someone to mount the platform, but the poor man was so confused by this time that he inadvertantly went through the press section trying to get there. Chairman Jerry Ford, who still had this blind spot, was busy hastily dismissing the convention until the next day.

No sooner had Dr. Hunt reached the platform than he was grabbed on either side by two giants and strong armed (gently, oh ever so gently) into the VIP room behind the blue curtains that were behind the platform, inside were Ev, Jerry, Secret Servicemen and your guess is as good as mine about who else.

The little drain plug pulling conference lasted less than three minutes with all of the reporters, still 1,000 strong, pressed against the blue curtains listening or at least trying

WHEN DELEGATE HUNT emerged, he was a little pale, but still angry looking. All he would tell reporters was that he had no comments "at this time". He didn't have any statements later, either, because by the next day he was nowhere to be found.

And when that many pressmen can't find somebody, it is safe to assume that that body was nowhere in Miami or surrounding.

And so the world was robbed of what Dr. Hunt had to say. Who knows but what it was some beautiful, uplifting thoughts full of wis-

HOWEVER, the whole episode has brought out the amsteur story enders. I went about the countryside collecting different endings from people who were speculating on what really happended. Here are a few;

"Jerry Ford hit him over the head with the gavel". Now this is an actionpacked ending. but I doubt if it's true. While Hunt did look slightly dazed upon emerging from behind those blue curtains, his eyes weren't crossed.

'His wife saw it all on television and phoned him to come right on home if he couldn't behave himself better than that; he looked a little smashed to her". Could be, could be.

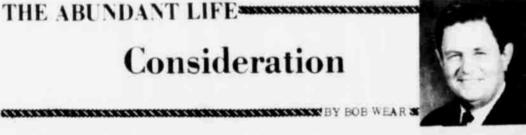

"TWO SECRET Servicemen held him while Everett Dirksen talked him to death". I don't go along with this. Whether you agree with him or not, Ev is a silver tongued orator and a joy to listen to. However, if his precious platform was being attacked, his oratory may not have been so silver.

"The rest of his delegation was embarrased and chipped in to pay his way home by jetliner". I would be more inclined to go along with this if it were Ev and Jerry coughing up the passage money.

"He got mad at the whole railroading and went home of his own accord". Mayhap. May-

THE ABUNDANT LIFE THE ABUNDANT

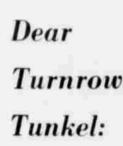

Consideration

THE NEED for our proper concern for each other never diminishes, but there has been a lessening of this concern which we choose to call "constructive consideration".

There was a time when it was easy for the people to understand the need for properly considering each other. Their very survival depended upon this mutual assistance. The general condition was such that this need was self-evident.

NOW, THE NEED is just as great or perhaps greater. Even so, there doesn't seem to be a strong realization that "constructive consideration" must be a vital part of the present social climate. We actually need the wholesome concern of each other.

Apparently the Mexicans agree with what our servicemen have been saying all alongif you're old enough to fight, you're old enough to vote.

IT WAS SURPRISING for me to learn from a recent magazine article that less than 5 per cent of wildcat oil wells drilled result in oil production.

I have made small investments in several wildcat prospects and have yet to hit a dry hole. Of course I have never struck any oil either, but I own enough salt water that if I had a place to put it I could start my own ocean.

ACCORDING to a social worker, young men becoming a father for the first time need almost as much care as their wives. I can understand that. After our first child was born I was a nervous wreck, and that was back in the days when a hos-

There must be a catch to it somewhere. They probably don't give trading stamps.

REGARDLESS of who is elected President, don't you think we will have a more conservative Congress next year? Probably, but if Lyndon gets a chance to name any more Supreme Court Justices, it won't make any difference. The three he has appointed so far, Thurgood Marshall, Abe Fortas, and Homer Throneberry, are liberal enough to offset 100 conservative Congress-

DID YOU KNOW that begonia seed sell for as much as $50,000 per pound? Can you think of anything else so expensive. Not offhand, unless it's those ten cent bags of potato chips.

There are cermin basic ways in which we must consider the welfare of others. The statement of Inspiration, "LET US CON-SIDER ONE ANOTHER" should have much practical meaning to us.

ALL OF US will profit to the extent that we are thoughtful and sympathetic in our regard for each other. The sophistry, distrust, narrow selfishness, and shortage of love are creating a social climate in which there is a great reluctance to show a feeling of "constructive consideration".

This "constructive consideration" will include kindness, wholesome tolerance, intelligent understanding, the extension of a helping hand, the softening of criticism and the genuine expression of appreciation. We are losing much of the strength and encouragement that all of us need; to whatever extent we are not involved in "constructive consideration".

THIS SOCIAL INGREDIENT, as a working principle, would help mend many of the cleavages in the human social order, it is so much better than indifference, and the cold unconcern that are so much in vogue today, it is certainly better than the cruel disregard of the people with whom we may be associated.

The truly generous person has many avenues of expression, but one of the most de-sirable is considerateness for others and their feelings.

This gracious manifestation is one indication of nobility, and is adequate proof that man is worthy of the high level of dignity God has given to him.

WHEN WE understand and accept our rightful place in the pattern of life, WE WILL APPRECIATE THE VALUE OF OUR FEL-

Then, it will be comparatively easy to be considerate in all associations with them. In this, there is GAIN FOR ALL.

OUR CONSIDERATENESS for others will be expressed in gracious speech to and about them. We will be careful to make no osten-tatious display of any superiority of excellence.

It will never be our intention to say or do anything that will cause others to be unhappy, or make them feel more strongly the burden of their failures or misfortunes. Our guideline will be the Golden Rule, "DO UNTO OTHERS, AS YOU WOULDHAVE THEM DO UNTO YOU."

T. T. MUNGER describes the considerate person, "He will not talk to the beggar of his rags, nor boast of his health to the sick, nor speak of his wealth to the poor; he will not seem to be fortunate among the hapless, nor make any show of his virtue be-fore the vicious."

Considerateness is most essential to happy and strong human relationships, and is an integral part of desirable personality. We must not hold back, waiting on others; but be busy lighting the way with "con-structive consideration".

This Is Littlefield

Littlefield has a major in lustry that does a million dollars-plus business annually and has in its employment 150 persons. That's big business in any community of any size. The firm's name, in case you've not heard, is the Littlefield Independent School Operated under the experienced eye of its board of trustees and school superintendent, the schools are about to open with a proposed budget of $1,098,433.

The board, headed bypresidentCarl Nowlin, is comprised of Jack Barton, Calvin Price, Pat Downs, F. L. Newton, Buddy Bingham and Werner Birkelbach.

Superintendent of the schools is Paul Jones, and school business manager is Sid Hopping.

The proposed expenditures in the budget are just $7 less than the anticipated receipts, $1,098,440. Local taxes will bring in an estimated $428,471, State and federal funds furnish $622,539, and the balance is from tuition, rental, misc.

But where the school really becomes an economical factor in the business community is the local expenses column. There, a rounded figure of $824,137 is slated to be loosed on the town in the form of salaries, purchasing supplies and payment for services rendered.

To provide the training, administration and services for the estimated 1900 enrollment which is expected to swarm into the five major campus buildings this fall are 150 persons, of which 107 are profession-

One small boy told a friend that his mother made him go to bed at 9 o'clock, "Gee!" exclaimed the other boy. "She's a half-hour meaner than mine."

A mother recently summed up her parenthood problems. "One son is in college and the other son is in nursery school and on many days it's hard to tell the difference."

Total value, estimated by Supt. Jones, of the school is in excess of $3.6-million, and that does not include the appraisal on approximately 30 acres of real estate. Equipment and supplies are valued at around $1 million, while the school plant (buildings, athletic field, 12 buses, bus barn, etc.) are set at about $2.6 million.

As far as debt goes, on such a high val-ue, Littlefield is in extremely good condition. The figure currently stands at ou $1,268,000.

The cost of education on a per-year, popupil stands well above the national average of $468, at $524. But the average comper pupil in the nation's 20 best-rated school is considerably higher, $634.

A community that takes pride in providing excellent educational facilities, forwhich it derives well-trained students and futur citizens This is Littlefield.

Soak The Rich?

ABRAHAM LINCOLN said it; "You don't make the small man tall by cutting off the giant's legs."

Our present President, however, is going to try it.

The Treasury Department insists that too many wealthy persons are escaping paying income taxes. Chairman Russell Long of the Senate Finance Committee seconds the notion. He demands that everybody be required to pay taxes.

INTERNAL REVENUESERVICE reports 22 persons with an income of $1 million each in 1965 paid no taxes at all

Treasury Undersecretary Joseph Barr cites one individual who made $23 million in one year and paid no taxes. This, he called, "an evasion which I personally dislike more than any other."

That was a careless misuse of words. "Evasion" implies illegality. Hopefully, Mr. Barr meant to say "avoidance" which is entirely legal.

It is not easy to rouse compassion for the rich. Most assume that people of such means don't need sympathy, even if they deserve it.

AND SINCE the very rich represent so few votes, elected officials are unlikely to waste much oratory in their behalf.

But before we chop off their legs, let's be sure the weight they've been carrying is not going to fall on us.

Wealthy people are accused of avoiding taxes by giving to charity, by investing in tax-exempt municipal bonds and by drilling

> SORROWS AND JOYS TOGETHER

Edd declares - "I have seen many hardships, and witnessed many disasters in life. Lightning knocked my horse from under me three times one night, with the second largest open pit while I was delivering a death message, 1 finally completed my mission by walking and leading the horse.

I still carry a withered hand put out that was set by lightning, however, I have helped put out lots of hot flamed, stifling prairie fires. I have seen blue northers, hazardous blizzards, blinding snowstorms, suffocating sandstorms, and extreme hails, disasterous to property, livestock, and people. Wife and I have shared with our neighbors in sickness, death, and sorrows: The real meaning of friendship was manifested to my family at the loss of our loved ones. Despite all the hardships and sorrows, my "Little Cricket" -Mrs. Pioneer and I, enjoyed our life together. I use to like to break those rough, pitching broncs. The horses I broke, Sunday in August and the foundwere the ones she would ride beside me while I broke another

I can see her now, as she mounted a spirited-hoofed steed, and dashed away with her long, wavy tresses flowing in the breeze behind her. I guess that's why I lover her so good, we had lots of fun together!"

ABOUT YOUR VISION

stitute advises the following: "Don't be surprised if bifocals are prescribed for your youngsometimes used on very small children for certain types of visual problems.

Bifocal means "two-focus." The need for such glasses does not mean "old age" and is not necessarily related to it. Yet, misunderstanding, anything from surprised to objection arises when bifocals are recommended for children.

Some youngsters, as well as many older people, require two different lens prescriptions-one for seeing at a distance and one for seeing close-up. Young eyes, for example, may see the school blackboard with no difficulty; yet they may have trouble focusing for reading. Eyestrain and fatigue can be the restult.

The proper lenses for reading may not be the best for distance seeing -- in fact, they may interfere with it. There is nothing unusual about this. Many people use their glasses only for close work or have another pair for distance vision.

Suppose each pair of glasses were cut in half, one half from each pair put together; the re-sult would be two-focus lenses.

reason for the youngster's bifocals. There is constant practice in relaxing the focusing mechanism, as the child looks from the far to the near lens. This is the type of exercise his eye needs; this is why the bifocals were prescribed-because of difficulty in focusing easily and accurately. Bifocals may be a temporary correction. Once the focusing problem has been relieved, single focus lenses may be used, But there is no "age for bifocals" any more than there is an age for two different lens prescriptions. It is the particular focusing problem that creates the bifocal almost immediately. There are absolutely no deleterious effects upon the youngster either visually or
