Let Us All Discourage the Fall Business Opportunist

Littlefield is friendly to progress and new development, but this city does not regard with favor a fall influx of mercantile activities which continue for a few weeks, then fade out of the picture as soon as the bloom of extra good business passes and the time rolls around to render merchandise and property for taxation.

In past years Littlefield has had a very large influx of individuals who operated for a short time in the fall, then moved on.

Littlefield was behind the efforts of Senator Arthur P. Duggan to have an itinerant merchants bill passed by the state legislature, and this city is launching a program to discourage the activities of opportunists this fall.

We are firmly of the opinion that too much effort

Anton Voters Favor Bond Issuance For A Community House

Anton electors voted 31 to 13 a week ago Tuesday, favoring issuance of $12,000 in bonds for construction of a community house and equipment.

Total cost of the project is estimated at $21,000, and the remaining 45 per cent of cost will be sought in a PWA grant application.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Fraley left Wednesday on a two weeks' visit in Slaton, Fort Worth, Dallas, and other points. At Slaton they are visiting Mrs. Fraley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lancaster.

A. A. A. PROGRAM BENEFITS FARMERS TO EXTENT OF 45 PER CENT STATES D. A. ADAM, AGENT

While the cotton income of Lamb county farmers was much less in 1934 than in 1933, and even less than in the disastrous year of 1932, it was almost forty-five per cent more than it would have been had there been no adjustment program, it is announced by D. A. Adam county agent. The statement is based on official three-year county cotton figures just received from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Lamb county farmers last year received a total of $1,493,056.26 for their cotton of which only $1,032,427.18 came from market value. Benefit payments, which are designed to help bridge the gap between market price and parity price in normal years, served as crop insurance to Lamb county farmers in 1934. They received in this way a total of $460,629.08 through April 30, last.

These cotton income figures do not include the value of unsold Bankhead certificates of which about nine million dollars' worth are held by Texas farmers.

Lamb county cotton was valued on the farm at $2,345,973.17 in 1932. It increased sharply in 1933, the plow-year, to $4,614,367.64, including benefit payments. These values are based upon yields and prices as furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture. The benefit payments include all those to April 30, 1935.

Commenting on Lamb county cotton income for the last three years as revealed in these official figures, Mr. Adam points out that crop insurance benefit payments for 1934-35 enabled farmers to survive a bad crop year. Nearly half a million dollars more was put into local circulation than would have been possible without a program. It is difficult to see how farmers could have maintained their farms and homes and remained customers of merchants last year without the program, he concludes.

Member NRA We Do Our Part

THE WAR SITUATION

We are informed by the National Geographic Society that the proper name of that African kingdom against which Italy is making threatening gestures is "Ethiopia." We are glad to get that information. It is much easier to write "Ethiopia" or pronounce it than to say "Abyssinia."

Ethiopia is an insignificant little country, inhabited exclusively by dark-skinned people of several different racial origins. Officially it is a Christian nation, the religion of the ruling classes being Coptic, which is the oldest surviving Christian sect.

Why Mussolini seems bent on marking war on Ethiopia is not quite clear to anybody. The best guess seems to be that he is facing a popular uprising at home, which threatens his dictatorship, and embarked on his Ethiopian venture to divert the Italian people's minds from their domestic troubles.

It is still less clear, from this distance, why England does not put a stop to Mussolini's warlike gestures by the simple process of preventing the shipment of Italian soldiers, munitions and war supplies through the Suez Canal.

The timidity with which European statesmen seem to be tackling the problem of preserving the world's peace suggests that the danger of another general war is more imminent than we have been led to believe.

Everybody seems to be afraid of everybody else. We are lucky to be on this side of the Atlantic, and will be luckier still if we do not get dragged into the coming war.

Man Covers 81,000 Miles With Ford V-8 In 9 Months

Donald Lovell delivers newspapers and mail out of Siloam Springs, which is in the northwest corner of Arkansas, pretty near where Oklahoma begins. He's a hard, fast driver and he gives his car plenty of punishment in the 300 miles he travels every day in the week, including Sunday.

Many of the people he serves do not live on pavements.

Mileage mounts up with Lovell. In the nine months he has driven his car—a 1934 standard Ford V-8 Tudor sedan—he has covered 81,000 miles, traveling an average of 9,000 miles a month. He gets from 17 to 20 miles per gallon of gasoline, depending on the roads, the loads, the weather, and the speed.

Lovell reports economy in oil consumption. "Even with 81,000 miles on the meter," he says, "this motor will operate from 1,200 to 1,500 miles between oil changes without the need of adding more than two quarts of oil. At the speeds I drive, this is real oil economy."

Aside from getting a new set of piston rings and relining the brakes at 68,000 miles, this Arkansas traveler has had no maintenance costs. The motor has never been overhauled or replaced. All bearings, pistons, pins, the camshaft, crankshaft, valves and valve mechanism are original. The valves never have been ground, nor even inspected or adjusted.

The clutch, transmission, and differential are just the way they were when Lovell took delivery of the car last September from the Miller Motor Company, Siloam Springs Ford dealers. No adjustments or repairs have been necessary. The manifold has never been off and the car certainly would have had a mighty clean record if oil hadn't leaked out of an over-filled differential upon the brake

DALLAS INVENTOR COMPLETES CAMERA WHICH WILL TAKE PICTURES IN THIRD DIMENSION

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 7, (UP)—Dr. Edgar Fuller, Dallas inventor, has completed a new kind of camera, which he claims takes pictures in "third dimension."

For the first time, according to Dr. Fuller, his invention makes possible the taking of pictures which have "depth" similar to pictures viewed through a stereoscope.

The invention will prove especially beneficial to the moving picture industry, he believes, as "flat" pictures create an imperfect image of the scene which is being portrayed.

The camera, without "trick mirrors" or special lenses, projects pictures of concave objects, such as caves, with both sides shown perfectly. Even cylindrical objects, shot "down the line" after the objects are placed parallel to the ground emerge in true depth, Dr. Fuller says.

(Washington, August 1)

The Washington picture is still one of a group of tired, steaming and disgruntled members of Congress toiling away at a task which they would prefer to postpone until Winter, but which they are tackling because the majority of them have become convinced that their own political fortunes and those of their party are in large measure dependent upon their doing what the smiling gentleman in the White House has told them has to be done.

Like good soldiers, the members of Congress are making a desperate effort to put through the President's "must" program, even though this involves starting with a blank sheet of paper to draft, what many consider, the most important and far-reaching tax bill since the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act of 1929, and to do that in the shortest time possible.

The Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, with whom all tax legislation must originate, is bending to its task with all the good will it can muster, under the chairmanship of that hard-working wheelhorse, Representative Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina. Collaborating as far as possible with the House committee is Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, through whose hands the bill must also pass. These two gentlemen are among the most experienced and best balanced political figures in the two Houses of Congress. Some few are of the opinion that had they been left to their own initiative, neither one would have dreamed of trying to draw up a measure of such vital importance in such a short time.

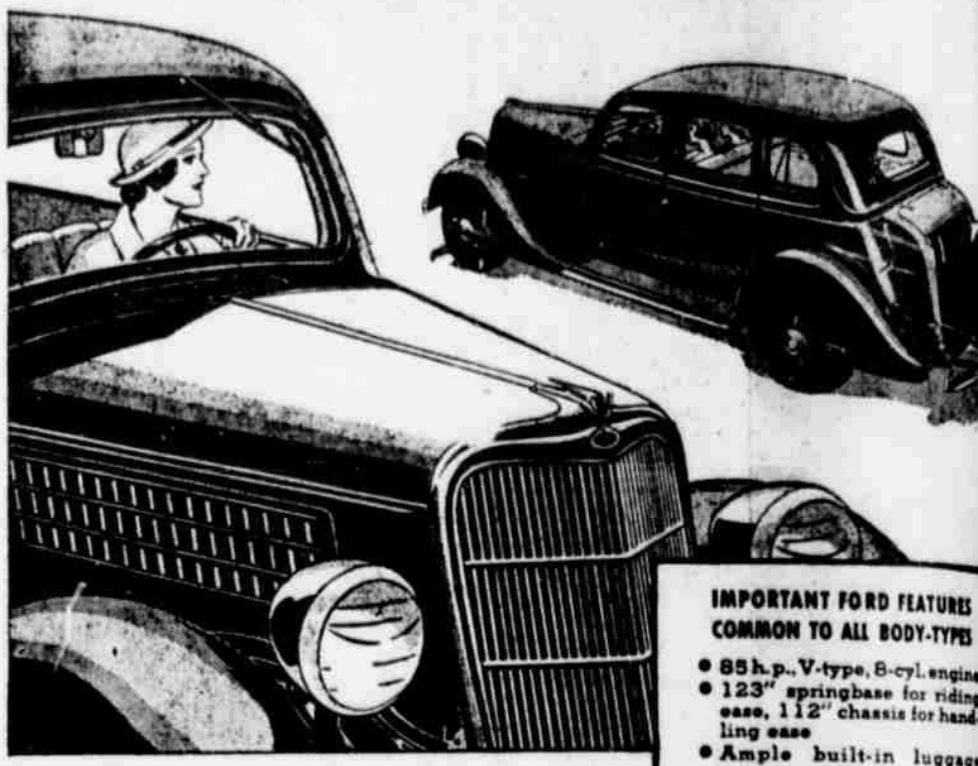

The bill that finally results from these committee deliberations will probably not conform, in many respects, to Mr. Roosevelt's skeleton outline. Both Senator Harrison and Chairman Doughton are shrewd enough politicians to know just how far it is safe to go, and that, in their judgment, is not as far as the President would like to go.

A regular school of instruction in the fundamental principles of taxation has been set up in the offices of the Ways and Means Committee. The professors are Lowell H. Parker, Chief of Staff of the Congressional Joint Committee on International Revenue Taxation, and Herman Oliphant, General Counsel to the Secretary of the Treasury. Neither of those gentlemen is a politician. Both of them are masters of facts and figures, and Mr. Parker in particular is a thorough student of the whole subject of taxation. If their advice is followed, the chances are that the tax bill, when it comes out, will be workable and practical.

Estate taxes, taken out of a dead man's property before it is distributed among his heirs, will unquestionably be increased. There is doubt, however, about the practicability of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for inheritance taxes, to be paid by the heirs, after already-taxed estates have been distributed. The technical advisers of Congress are of the opinion that any such plan would be extremely difficult to work out and to administer equitably.

It can be set down as certain that individual income taxes will be increased under the new bill. All incomes down to $100,000 a year and probably on very much lower incomes. The more the committee studies the proposal for increasing corporation taxes in proportion to capitalization, the more the feeling grows that it probably would not be good politics to impose a tax on mere bigness.

Adjournment "Ifs"

Whether this Congress will remain in session until it has enacted the proposed new tax law is still an open question. The prevailing desire is to get the bill out of committee and have it published, so that it can be widely discussed while Congress takes its much-needed vacation before finally acting upon it.

SLUMBERING GOLD

by Aubrey Boyd

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

Malone, hardened gambler, Maitland, son of a seafaring English family, were part of the Yukon gold of '97. They were on the trip north in a crowd that included Frenchy, the fisherman, Rose the beautiful girl who was a fancy to Maitland; Fallon, one of the miners, who resented Maitland's interest in Maitland; Brent, the prospector; Garnet, who gave Maitland and Speed his outfit when he left the trail, and Pete and his partner, Owens, who was Maitland's partner. Pete turned Maitland into a girl in disguise. Speed was a man at Skagway—a cheat and a gambler—and months later was arrested and put in jail for the murder. He got out, but he was waiting for Lefty, who offered to help him to get back the mail. Maitland had been carrying for the Mounted Police where Drew and Maitland were stationed—he was captured by his enemy Fallon. Maitland and Pete rescued him. Fallon was about to lynch him. Maitland made for their camp at Bennett and Maitland with the horse. One route, Speed by another. Led the lead dog, Rusty they found Maitland's deserted cabin. The second dog, Dalton, staggered in mortal agony—wounded—and died before he could tell Pete where the claim was. Two Mounties arrested Speed and Maitland for the murder (of which they were innocent) of a Siwash on Lake Lebarge. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

through an air hole in the ice, and had lain in this concealment through the winter. Its having floated finally to the surface was due to the rising warm currents from the lake bed.

Wade's first witness was a trader from the old post at Ogilvie on the Yukon. The trader told a very queer story, which went back into earlier Yukon days, and rehearsed the tale which the accused men had already heard from Drew.

While some of this testimony was open to objections, Garnet passed the witness without cross-examining, and Wade called a seasoned-looking officer of the Mounted Police.

Wade then produced the furs and mukluks Dalton had worn. He compared them with those taken from the body of the murdered Indian to prove, by an identical working of the bead ornaments, that they had been fashioned by the same native hand.

Garnet had passed this evidence without question. Wade called Corporal Cathcart to the stand.

Cathcart explained that the tracks tangled in an old way through the timber that sheltered the camp, and were difficult to read. He told of finding a pool of blackening snow crystals near the head of the lake, covered but showing through in a dark shadow. He had then sought out the defendants and questioned them.

"They said they had met no Siwash, and showed an unwillingness to say anything more. When I asked them about the blood dust, they explained it as the blood of a caribou they had shot, and produced a fresh hide to prove it. Their carbine, a .44 calibre gun, had not been cleaned, and still showed a powder mark."

The witness told of his visit to the cabin in the wane of the blizzard, while Speed was being sent to Skagway. Before he reached the door, a Siwash dog had slunk out of his way around the cabin wall, and he caught only a storm-whitened glimpse of it. The discovery that the defendants had a malmute dog was, of course, startling, and a fact of great importance. Maitland, when asked where it came from, claimed to have found it astray, not long after his partner shot the caribou on Lake Lebarge.

"In the meantime, the Siwash's body was found in the breaking ice of Lake Lebarge, establishing the fact of murder."

"To establish our case against the accused men, it remained to be proved that they actually used the dog to trace its camp or origin, and that that camp was the hide-out of an unknown white prospector with a gold secret. As was proved."

Garnet, after a brief address to the jury as to the circumstantial nature of the evidence, called the first, and so far as was known, the only witness for the defense.

Pete was unmistakably a very attractive girl; she was something more rare and gracious than the words convey, or than who have lived in frontier mining camps.

"Had you ever seen the defendants before they arrived in Skagway?" Garnet asked.

"No, sir."

"What was Owens' relation to you?"

"I suppose you would call him clear about. All the time I had a feeling of being followed or shadowed by someone or something.

"Then—I kind of lost count. I think I was in a river canyon when the storm broke. There were wild voices in it like wolves. I must have pulled the mare out of it and into the open when the storm struck. Then next thing I know I was in Mr. Maitland's cabin. The dog led him to where I'd fallen in the snow."

"Did you tell Maitland why you were making for Skagway in that weather?"

"No, sir."

"Why didn't you, Pete?"

"He and Speed had had a quarrel with Fallon before, and I didn't want to make it worse because of Pete. Or to mix them up in any trouble about Dalton either."

"During your stay at the cabin, did Maitland ask you any questions about Owen or Dalton, or his gold secret?"

"No, sir. Anything I told him was of my own accord."

"Did you feel safe there?"

"I felt as safe as if I was in God's pocket."

The courtroom smiled a little at this homely but expressive miners' phrase.

Pete then told what had happened up to the arrest of the accused men in Dalton's camp.

"I will ask you one more question," said Wade, in the deep silence that followed. "Do you love the defendant, Maitland?"

Pete's gray eyes were shadowed. She bit her lip as she had done that day when she recovered from the throes of cold. Two big tears rolled down her cheeks. "I have told the truth," she murmured.

"I think, Your Honor," said Wade, "that the question has been sufficiently answered."

Next morning, when the court reopened, Garnet produced an unexpected witness. He looked toward the rear of the courtroom and said,

"I divided what I got with the boy, and then he wanted us to throw in together and play the corner, but I said I was going to Nevada to sing in the gold camps."

"The boy got excited and wanted to go. While we were talking it over, a shadow fell between us from the street lamp, and I found that the man who'd given me the dollar was standing there listening."

"So you're headin' for Nevada," he asked.

"When I agreed we were, he said

"Rose Valery."

At the name, Fallon came upright in his chair, startled out of the detachment. He turned his head in frowning unbelief.

But he was unnoticed by the courtroom as Rose approached the stand. Though the river had carried many rumors of her beauty, this was her first appearance in Dawson.

Indifferent to the crowd's stare, she looked at the accused men and then at Pete, with some inward, unreadable thought. Her dark eyes showed a glitter of fire when they crossed with Fallon's, who slouched back now, carelessly, while she was being sworn.

"Miss Valery," said Garnet, "Where were you born?"

"I don't know," Rose answered. Her low voice had the quality of plucked harp strings.

"Where were you cared for as a child?"

"In the convent school at Notre Dame at the Mission Dolores in San Francisco. I was taught music and singing at the convent." Rose ventured, "until I was 15, but I was restless, and discipline only made me unhappy. I decided to run away, and did, and so became a professional singer."

"I had a plan of reaching the gold country. A little after dark I climbed over the convent wall at a place where a sloping barn roof touched it. I got on a street car at Guerrero Street. As I hadn't any carfare the conductor put me off at the second stop, two blocks below."

"A boy was singing in a high soprano voice in front of an open air bootblack stand next to the saloon, where the sports were getting shined up for the evening."

"It surprised me to see the men at the shoe-stand throw him money—even one half-dollar piece—for what wasn't really a good song, or very good singing, except for being strong and clear. While he gathered up the coins, I sang the refrain of the song. The boy was angry, but the men encouraged me, and we tried to sing each other down. As it was easier to chord with him, I sang alto, and our duet stopped the shoe-shining. When we finished, the men gave me a handful of silver; one of them handed me a dollar piece."

"I divided what I got with the boy, and then he wanted us to throw in together and play the corner, but I said I was going to Nevada to sing in the gold camps."

"The boy got excited and wanted to go. While we were talking it over, a shadow fell between us from the street lamp, and I found that the man who'd given me the dollar was standing there listening."

"So you're headin' for Nevada," he asked.

 "If Its Made of Wood . . . We Will Make It"

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC

Home-cooking has a varied appeal to the hundreds of patrons of this company. The preparation of food holds an important place in the routine of the home. The great fireplace in which our Colonial forefathers did their cooking was extremely wasteful both of food and of the fuel itself. Most of us remember the big black iron "wood stove" with its inevitable wood box or coal scuttle. This was a big step ahead of the open fire but still a long way from anything like efficiency.

In the beginning of the present century came the early gas range—a tremendous advance over the wood stove but still not the perfect cooking appliance. However, it started people thinking that perhaps the kitchen could be a really clean, pleasant room, after all. Then came the era of electricity—the greatest period of home-making development this country has ever known. And it brought the greatest advancements in cooking methods—cooking without fire!

The Waldorf electric range is now available to those who are interested in practical cooking. Whether you bake, roast, broil, or cook on the surface elements your experience will be one of lasting pleasure to you. The price of $74.50 to $99.50 installed without extra charge possesses a wonderful appeal to those who make home-cooking different to home-work. The purchase terms can be made to fit your specific needs. It will be a matter of genuine pleasure to us to show you the range and point out the clean, cool, economical advantages of electric cooking.

Cordially yours,
TEXAS UTILITIES CO.

my foster father, I was raised at his ranch."

"Did he ever speak to you of your real father?"

"Only once. He spoke then as if Dalton were my father. Or anyway some near kin of mine."

"What did you do after Owens died?"

"I went over the pass to find Dalton and warn him. I sold a gold-mounted gun and some things I had for grub, and rode down the lakes looking for him. I didn't find anyone waiting, and didn't have much to go on, not even knowing what Dalton looked like. When the cold came, I met a rafting outfit who camped to cut timber a little way up the Teslin, and they gave me a job cooking for them through the winter."

"Why did you leave them?" Garnet prompted.

"It was only a week or two before the break-up. I hadn't heard anything of Dalton, and was wondering what to do."

"That night I woke up hearin' a voice close to my bunk, on the other side of the tent wall. The voice was shouting to me above the noise of the storm, but it sounded dim. The words were something like, 'If you're Pete, get out of the North, and get quick. You're in danger. I'm in a tough fix. . . can't take you down river. For God's sake, keep clear of—'. The wind shrieked and the voice died away. I wasn't sure of what it said at the last."

"Soon after that, one of Fallon's men happened by the camp and saw me. I knowed Fallon was lookin' for me, and felt that this was what the warning meant. I saddled the mare and started for the coast."

"It was a heavy, cold trail. The going was easier on the level snow of Lake Lebarge, but Chiquita and I were both dead tired by then, and there's more than a day I'm not

And so, gentlemen of the Jury, Crown will prove that the defendants had a motive for the murder of this Siwash, and did in fact kill him."

The Crown Prosecutor, Wade, was a heavy-lidded, mordant stare at the jury and sat down. By contrast, Garnet, at an adjoining table near the prisoner's dock looked as an urbane courtier.

The arrival of one of the first upper steamers, some weeks before, had provided the accused men with distinguished counsel. Garnet's mission in the North had proved to be a political one. Learning when he landed, of the charge against the two partners, he had offered to undertake their defense.

Maitland looked older for the results of prison life that had elapsed since his arrest. The shadowed look in his eyes, however, was not wholly due to the ordeal of him; it came from one that was past.

A weather-beaten man he had never seen was being sworn in. Garnet resumed his seat. Fallon's bulky figure slouched at ease toward the center of the row witnesses. Nearer, Maitland's eyes rested on Pete, with the emotion which the sight of a loved and loyal friend brings to a man in trouble. A wave of tenderness shrouded his heart. Pete wore a summary frock of light blue; her hidden hair was longer than he remembered it, and arranged in a more feminine fashion. It was his first glimpse of her in girl's attire, and she was altogether lovely.

Police records of the finding of the native's body that Spring in the breaking ice of Lake Lebarge, had established the fact of murder. The Siwash had been killed by a .44 bullet which struck him in the back. His corpse had been disposed of Pounding in 8 runs in the initial period, the veterans managed to hold a major part of their margin through the final inning.

LEGION 11, PRODUCERS 5 Tuesday

The batter and egg men tightened after the first and outplayed Luecke's lads in later stanzas, but were beaten by the Legion's upsetting first-inning drive.

This win pulled the fast climbing legionnaires back up into second place, from where they had slipped early last week.

SUNNYDALE 3, BUSINESSMEN 2 Thursday Last Week

With no earned runs made by either team, J. Hank s, Sunnydale pitched, took the contest from Potter on errors rather than any letdown on the part of the Businessmen's hurler. While Hanks gave up only two hits to Potter's six, the merchant hurler made up the deficit by striking out one while Hanks allowed three bases on balls.

L. Fisher and Brandon doubled for Sunnydale, and accounted for runs when the opposish erred. Hits were well scattered, Sunnydale collecting a double and single in the first, the best batting performance by either team for one inning.

LEGION 12, FIREMEN 5 Thursday

War Boys continued swatting the ball to take quite a boost in percentage by winning their last two starts, in spite of the fact that Howton, Smoky pitcher, whiffed ten Legionnaires. The battle babies enged themselves by touching Howton for 12 hits, Firemen contenting themselves with 6 off Luecke.

Thornton, Fireman, led the hitting with a triple and double; War Boys Steffie and Porterfield made doubles and singles while teammate Townsend poled a home run.

Lubbock Girl Killed; Anton Men Injured In Car Mishap Sat.

When two cars collided on Highway No. 9, three miles north of Lubbock, about 4:50 Saturday afternoon, Miss Vivian Sanders, 18, of Lubbock, was fatally injured, and died in a Lubbock Sanitarium an hour later.

Wagner Tucker, 24, Anton farmer, and Miss Ola Hanna, 32, of Sand Hill, Floyd County, were seriously injured.

Miss Doyle Hamilton, teacher of Becton School, Lubbock County, suffered a broken nose and facial lacerations.

Miss Beulah Burnett, also teacher of Becton School, had a broken nose and facial lacerations.

Miss Billie Joel King, 18, of 6 1-2 miles south and 3 1-2 miles west of Lubbock also suffered lacerations.

J. T. Flowers, 23, laborer, a son of W. T. Flowers of Anton, suffered a forehead laceration.

Mr. Tucker had a 7 inch laceration to the skull, across his forehead, and had suffered concussion of the brain.

Miss Sanders, a daughter of Mrs. Janit Sanders, was unconscious when she was received at the sanitarium. Her skull was crushed.

A Ford model A truck, operated by a man whose name, city and county officers had not learned, was reported a factor in the mishap.

Miss Sanders, driving Tucker's 1930 model Chevrolet coupe northward, attempted to pass the truck. Miss Hanna, operating a 1934 Ford coupe, was driving southward, meeting the truck. The mishap occurred. Flowers said, as Miss Sanders sought to pull back to east side of the road.

The truck, which did not collide with the automobiles, was stopped and the driver, witnesses said, gave aid.

Miss Sanders and Tucker were thrown from the demolished Chevrolet coupe. The Ford automobile also was wrecked. Blood spewed on the concrete.

A Rix ambulance was called at 4:55 o'clock. The seven victims were carried to Lubbock sanitarium. Lawrence Rice, a passerby, living at Anton, accompanied the ambulance to town.

Bill Mabray and O. E. Rush, police, and Deputy Sheriff Bedford Carpenter began an investigation.

The women in the Ford were enroute from Canyon, where they attended West Texas State Teachers college, to Huckabay, Erath county, to spend the week-end with Miss Hamilton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hamilton.

The others were pleasure riding, Flowers said.

In addition to her mother, Miss Sanders is survived by five brothers and a sister, Alta. The brothers are Vernon, Roy, Homer, Walter and John Sanders.

Funeral services for Miss Sanders were conducted Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Rix Funeral Home, Lubbock, and interment in the Lubbock Cemetery.

inside your motor

That's why you need Germ Processed Oil for safe lubrication—it maintains high film strength under extreme heat

The heat of your cylinder walls ranges from 350° to 425° in Summer weather.

When you drive at 50 miles an hour, your wrist pin bearings heat up to 350°.

Your connecting rod bearings, at a speed of 50 miles an hour, reach a heat of 250°.

In hot weather, your crankcase "runs a temperature" over 225°.

WITH heats of 225° to 425° in your motor, you must have oil that maintains high film strength under extreme temperatures to get safe lubrication. Otherwise, the lubricating film ruptures and the bearings and cylinders suffer damaging wear.

Plain mineral oils have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing processes have even less. As motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength.

It's an absolute certainty that you'll get better motor protection with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. Timken machine tests prove that it has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil and that heat above 225° does not lessen the advantage.

More proof—supervised road tests were made in identical cars fitted with the new alloy metal bearings used in many 1935 cars. The bearings lubricated with a high-quality plain mineral oil showed 45% more wear than those lubricated with Conoco Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil.

You'll be certain your motor is safely lubricated even at high temperatures if you use "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Germ Processed, the oil with the "Hidden Quarter" that never drains away!

REV. E. F. COLE OF LAMESA TO CONDUCT REVIVAL MEETING AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH HERE

A revival meeting will open at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning, and continue for the next two weeks.
Rev. Joe F. Grizzle will preach Sunday morning and evening, but Rev. E. F. Cole of Lamesa will take charge Monday evening and continue throughout the meeting.
According to Rev. Grizzle, Rev. Cole is one of the best pastor evangelists on the South Plains, and has more calls for revival meetings each year than he can fill should he be giving all his time to holding revivals. Mr. Grizzle and Rev. Cole was cancelling a meeting at another place to come here this year.

Rev. John Evans of Amherst will be in charge of the singing. He was a gospel singer for many years before he entered the ministry, and will render valuable assistance in the meeting, which will be the third meeting in succession for him this summer.
Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor, and the First Baptist church invite the public to hear and help these two good men while they labor with the church here.
Never before has the subscription price of the Leader been reduced— subscribe now at the special low price.

Revival Underway At Lum's Chapel Baptist Church

Beginning Sunday last, a revival meeting is underway at Lum's Chapel Baptist church. Rev. John Strutton of Longview, Texas, is doing the preaching, and Rev. O. S. Sullivan of Littlefield is in charge of the singing.
Rev. Strutton was not present for the opening of the meeting, but arrived Monday.
According to Rev. A. B. Moseley, pastor, a good attendance has been present at all meetings, and considerable interest shown. Prayer meetings are being held just prior to the preaching service each evening.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

Premillennial, Missionary Evangelical
Jno. R. Denning, Pastor
There were many expressions of having received unusual blessings from the pleasing number which attended both preaching services Sunday. And the Sunday school is steadily growing, both in number and in interest, under the Superintendency of Bro. R. C. Evans. Make good that intention, and come and enjoy the worship with us.
Our outline of worship for next Sunday follows:
8:00 a. m.—"Gospel Half Hour" over Radio Station KFYO, Lubbock. Next Sunday's broadcast is sponsored by Renfro Brothers, to whom we are deeply grateful.
9:45 a. m.—Sunday school. Lesson Study, I Peter, Chapter 2.
11:00 a. m.—"The Sermon on the Mount." (First of a series.)
8:30 p. m.—"A Question God Himself Cannot Answer."
At three o'clock we hold a special service in the City Auditorium at Ralls, Texas. We would be happy to have any of our friends to accompany us.

TO KILL RED ANTS

Young people will meet at their regular hour, 7:45 p. m., with evening service at 8:30 p. m.
Large among our offerings will be the Sunday school which meets at 9:45 p. m. This is one of the greatest institutions in our U. S. A.
Dig a hole about two inches into the mouth of the bed and pour into it 1-2 pint of high life and set fire. Let burn for two minutes or until blazing well, then cover with dirt and pack closely, in rare instances a second application is necessary.
Good printing will aid your business. Let the Leader take care of printing needs.

Remember, tell your friends, invite your neighbors, to take part with us in the revival campaign. Ask yourself, does Littlefield need a revival? Who should bear the load of a revival? Would our town be a safe place to live if we did not have our churches and religious people, then when you have arrived at the conclusion that all sane people will arrive at when they think along these lines ask yourself one more question, what have I done to keep churches and religion going in my town? Then throw yourself into the harness and help pull remembering that a kicking mule can't pull and a pulling mule won't kick.

J. W. Hendrix, Pastor
It gives us great pleasure to announce that Rev. D. B. Cobb will have charge of the evening service and deliver the sermon of that hour. He is nearly one of our own boys; his people live here and he calls this home. He otherwise spends his time in Asbury College, Wilmore, Kentucky. He is a fine young man and the pastor urges the young people to come and hear his message.
The pastor will deliver the sermon at the morning hour and the subject will be, the second of its kind, "The Power of the Church." This is an effort to find out how the church does its work; and what it attempts to do. Our music remains of high order. The choir has its regular rehearsals every Wednesday evening.
In the evening the pastor will be guest speaker at the First Baptist church, Lubbock, which will mean later an exchange visit of the Lubbock pastor to our church, the man

INSTRUCTION IN SOIL EROSION CONTROL TO BE GIVEN AT CCC CAMP

Instruction in soil erosion control will be offered to enrollees in the local CCC camp as a part of the CCC program to reduce the hugh damages caused annually by soil wastage, Robert Fencher, director of Emergency Conservation Work, announced today.

Outlines of study, prepared by the Office of Education and the Soil Conservation Service, have been submitted to the War Department, which is responsible for the administration of the general educational program. Instruction will be supervised for the most part by the educational advisers in the camps. Wherever possible, classes will be conducted by erosion control specialists regularly attached to the demonstration projects of the Service.

"The prime purpose of the course is to give enrollees a rudimentary working knowledge of erosion control technique," H. H. Bennett, Chief of the Soil Conservation Service said today in commenting upon the program. "No attempt will be made to produce specialist within the few months the lessons will be offered. Many of these boys will return to farm homes after their enrollment expires. This training will give them a foundation for erosion control work to conserve the soil on their own land. Furthermore, many of them will be sufficiently interested to carry on their study of the technique of soil conservation which, unfortunately, is something all too few understand.

"The courses will be sent up in two units of twelve weekly lessons each, the first unit being chiefly orientation, the second specialization. If the demand warrants additional studies, the Service will be prepared to offer further specialized units in soils, agronomy, agricultural engineering and forestry."

College trainee courses, whereby college graduates or ex-students are given both classroom and practical instruction in erosion control, have been carried on by the Soil Conservation Service for more than a year in connection with its demonstration projects, Mr. Bennett added. Many graduates of these courses are now available for positions under the expanded program of the Service.

Enrollees working in erosion control areas have been given instructions by specialists of the Service during the past year. Complete courses in erosion control were offered at Bethany, Missouri and Urbana, Illinois, where regional directors of the Soil Conservation Service offered specialized instruction as a part of the educational program of the CCC camps in these regions.

along these lines cannot be exerted; business and individuals who are permanently located in field, in fact, in any city, are entitled to the business is available at all seasons of the year . . . and especially entitled to good business when business good.

The scope of activities of the fall opportunity tend all the way from dry goods to automobiles, always desire to rent a building or a vacant lot for a time . . . and at the lowest figure possible . . . then, business slows down they are fast on the get-away. . . to them . . . any city . . . is just a city of opportunity a very short time. They do not pay taxes . . . they do not take an interest in civic affairs . . . they do not take interest in our schools . . . they do not take an active part in our church life . . . our social life . . . they do not under the shining sun but reap as great a harvest as possible . . . then pass on.

The City Commissioners and City Secretary Street are being approached relative to the need special effort to curb the activities of the fall opportunity and these men will do all in their power to protect interests of Littlefield business concerns.

There are many ways in which property owners can co-operate with Littlefield business concerns those who are in charge of the operation of the city, chief way in which property owners can co-operate taking any action which will discourage the opportunity.

We should all work together in the interest of our city, our business concerns, and in the interest each other as individuals.
