ROAD MATTERS ARE DISCUSSED TUESDAY NOON

Delegation From Hale Co. Meet At C. of C. Luncheon

A large attendance was present at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Tuesday noon, which was presided over by W. D. T. Storey, vice-president.

Fourteen citizens of Hale County were present, in connection with the proposed East and West Highway, on which they have been cooperating with the local Chamber. Guests from this county were: Neil Brock, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Shadden and sons, Odell and Oliver, P. I. McCune and Mr. and Mrs. William Albers of Hale Center; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Patterson, Carl Rhodes, and F. R. Whitney, of Abernathy. Other out of town attendants were: D. A. Adam, Lamb County Agent; Roy Gattis, Lamb County Commissioner; J. R. Kuykendall, President, Lamb County Farm Association, of Spade; C. G. Barnett of Fieldton, and J. P. Smith, Vocational Agricultural Instructor of Anton High School.

Mr. Adam reported that within a short time the farmers of this county will receive $107,551.46 as a final distribution from the 1934 Surplus Cotton Tax Exemption pool, at which time the farmers will have the privilege of stating whether or not they want their certificates that have not been sold returned for use in 1935 or whether they want to

Cotton Land And Rented Acreage To Be Measured

County Supervisors for the purpose of measuring land and rented acres under cotton Contract are now being organized, and measurement of the land will probably begin by July 20.

Rented acres will be measured as well as cotton acres this year and it is very important that all farmers stake their rented acres as required by the Administrative rulings. Stakes put in at the end of the rows at least six inches in the ground will be sufficient.

Farmers are urged that when their local supervisor comes to measure their land to help him and by helping be sure that the supervisor measures the land correctly.

The supervisor will announce immediately after measuring the land in regard to the number of acres of cotton as well as the rented acres on the farm.

NEW YORK . . . The development of an "artificial heart" and a man-made "blood stream" which enables science to keep vital organs of man alive and functioning "outside the body, is hailed as the most sensational in the annals of medicine. SUDAN'S HOME TALENT PLEASURES OLTON PLAYGOERS AS "DUST OF THE EARTH" IS STAGED FRIDAY

Sudan's local talent brought a touch of sprightly comedy and a throb of pathos to a goodly crowd of Olton people gathered in their own high school auditorium Friday evening to witness "Dust of the Earth." Katherine Kavanaugh's powerful four-act tale of human weakness and strength.

Unmindful of time, a deeply impressed audience sat through two and a half hours of heavy drama interspersed with clever laugh relief. Splendid characterizations by the entire cast of 11 versatile Sudan townfolk brought watchers to their feet applauding, and sent them away deeply impressed and misty-eyed.

As Nell, a lass of questionable parentage who was paying society's cruel price in the midst of a hostile family, Wyvone Mason took apt advantage of a "role which would ordinarily overtax the most talented ingenue. The former Littlefield miss, now of Sudan, put a world of sympathy into the part.

Don Boyles, playing red-headed Jerry, was a comic marvel of cross-roads idiocy. Miss Arrabella, traveling scandal-dispenser of the village, (Mrs. Don Boyles) was properly pert and saucy. John Anna Boyd's interpretation of narrow-minded Susan Moore brought to lifelike reality the weak-willed character.

David Moore, stolid kind-hearted uncle of Nell, was handled with re-

18 Relief Men Under Army Officer Are Busy At Camp Site

Actual construction of Littlefield's proposed Civilian Conservation Corp Camp was begun here Tuesday.

Eighteen men, chosen from city Relief rolls and working under supervision of H. P. Denton, of the firm of Teeters & Denton, Littlefield, were busy Tuesday unloading seven freight cars of house sections for the 12 structures, and a car of tractors. The sections were carried by six Army service trucks from the Santa Fe yards to the camp site a half mile east of the depot.

"If our plans materialize, the camp will be completed and ready for operation within 30 days," declared Lieut. Wm. S. Britton, quartermaster picked from the Reserve, Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, and placed in charge of construction.

Excavation of footings to form foundations for the buildings, shipped here by the Houston Ready Cut House company, were begun Tuesday, with 10 additional Relief clients to be added when needed.

To Have Privilege Of Putting Unsold Tags In Special Pool

Lamb County farmers within the near future will receive $107,551.46 as a final distribution from the 1934 Surplus Cotton Tax-Exemption Pool, states D. A. Adam, County Agent. The statements of account representing 4,579 receipts; and that many checks have been received at the County Agent's office in Lamb County. Farmers pooled 15,000,000 pounds of lint and have already received 2c per pound initial distribution bringing the total received from the pooled certificates to something around $400,000.00.

The checks have not been received but as soon as they are, cards will be mailed out to the producers, and it will be necessary that the producers report in person to receive their checks and the remainder of tags that have not been sold. At the time the checks are received, farmers will have the privilege of stating whether or not they want their certificates returned for use in 1935 or want to put them into the 1935 Special Pool which is being opened up at present. It is important that farmers report for their checks and Trust Agreement

Construction Is Finished on Littlefield Waterworks Job

With all construction completed, only delivery and installation of two diesel engines stands in the way of putting the city's PWA-financed $48,000 improved waterworks system into operation, according to Superintendent W. S. Charles representing Forney Engineering company, Dallas contractors.

Construction of a 30x36-foot generating station was wound up Tuesday. The two Cooper-Bessemer natural gas-burning engines, 110 and 55 horse power respectively, were shipped Saturday and should arrive here Friday.

"We expect to have the plant ready to operate and to turn over to the city by July 15," Charles said Tuesday.

The new pump, put into operation with a test Monday, brought water to the surface at the rate of 550 gallons a minute. It is powered with a 30-horse power electric motor and will be operated about six hours a day in order to supply 180,000 gallons of water a day, if needed. Normal city consumption is about 150,000 gallons every 24 hours.

The new generating plant will be hooked up on two circuits, one feeding the new well and the other feeding the booster pump station.

All work on the new distribution system, including laying of two, six and eight-inch mains, was completed June 8.

About 75 men a day were worked

INDEPENDANCE DAY

It is just 160 years since that little group of men gathered in Independence Hall in Philadelphia and affixed their names to the document which launched the United States of America upon its venturesome course. To any student of history it must be clear that these signers of The Declaration of Independence were those in whom two qualities of character predominated—determination and courage. As Benjamin Franklin remarked, when he called upon all of those present to affix their signatures to the Declaration:

"If we don't hang together we will surely hang separately."

They literally took their lives in their hands, these rebellious subjects of the King of England who, as Woodrow Wilson phrased it, "felt themselves to be free men of England, and as free Englishmen could not tolerate the tyranny and oppression of the English King."

They had no distinct idea of founding a new nation, these signers of The Declaration of Independence. They were the representatives of thirteen colonies, each of which had suffered grievances which its people could no longer bear, and each of which asserted its rights as a free and independent nation. They could not win that independence except by acting in common; but on that Fourth of July, 1776, it is doubtful whether any of them looked forward to anything more than a temporary alliance for war. The idea of a united group of nations as a permanent institution had hardly been born at that time.

From that little gathering in Philadelphia, however, has arisen the richest and most powerful nation the world has ever seen. The basic principle of human liberty, embodied in The Declaration of Independence, is the foundation upon which our whole national existence and progress have been based.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK GOOD

While another Fourth of July is resounding with a loud bang all over the nation, Dunn & Bradstreet's weekly trade review is resounding a new and almost as cheering note of better times for the United States with the announcement that most of the year's industrial lows have been touched and that things are making the upgrade turn.

There will be little regret at the passing of the second quarter, the report indicates . . . and adds evidence that supports the belief that national bartering has touched a majority of low margins "in many divisions of trade and industry."

True, some of the ground gained during first-quarter trading was lost, as the review unhesitatingly points out. "With less hesitancy now encountered in the placing of future commitments, however, there are indications that most divisions have felt the brunt of the year's lows in trading," says the report. "The feeling of greater security which the general public has in the future is evidenced by the steady increase in charge accounts opened and the extension of deferred-payment buying . . ."

And about retail sales, the report said: "With seasonal weather emphasizing the necessity of covering requirements long postponed, retail sales for the week, (June 21-28) averaged 5 to 10 percent ahead of the comparable 1934 totals."

While this has not a large bit to do with West Texas business, it yet is indicative of the more cheerful turn the nation's prosperity is taking. And, as goes the nation's prosperity, so goes better times in West Texas.

We are blessed in the Littlefield trade territory with good rains, fair weather, and an indication of more moisture to come. A large part of our fall season is in the ground and indications point to a good fall.

Another Fourth of July is here and, as compared to the same period of 1934, we have a good reason to celebrate.

The Fullest Benefits From Electric Service Depend on You

Did you ever stop to realize how important you are? Have you ever considered the fact that the largest benefit from the use of electric service is the increased use of it? Convince yourself that the mere flick of a switch puts at your immediate disposal a supply of dependable energy that means more convenience, more comfort, and more happiness. This depends on you.

This company has the responsibility for furnishing electric service at rates which are reasonable. As consumer needs for added service justified, rate reductions have always been made. One of the most advantageous steps in this direction was made very recently by this company. The introduction of an "ultimate" rate for residential service is of very direct benefit to you in that at no increase in cost a much larger use of electric service is possible. This depends on you.

During this week we commemorate the 159th year of independence in this country. We find ourselves thinking and saying how hard life must have been in 1776. But some day your grandchild will say: "How hard life must have been in 1935 without the full use of electric service then available!" Pass on to heritage that you were independent of so many tasks by the ease with which electric service could be applied.

LUMBERING GOLD

by Aubrey Boyd

AUTOCASTER SERV.

WITH INSTALLMENT
SIS: Young Ed Maitland, hardened gambler Speed became partners on the trip to the Yukon gold fields in the word of the rich area came down the Pacific Maitland, son of a New England seafaring family, was determined to win back his lost family fortunes. Frenchy, the fisherman who took him and Speed north; Lucky Rose, beautiful young woman who had given Maitland a ring for a keepsake; Fallon, trail boss of the miners, who resented Rose's attention to Maitland; Steiner, the money lender; young Pete and his drunken partner Bill Owens; Brent, old time prospector; and Garnet, a well-to-do modern one who hired Maitland and Speed to haul his stuff from the beach over the mountains to the Yukon—these were among the crowd that made up the gold seekers. At Liarsville, a camp in the hills, Speed was made trail boss in Fallon's place, because Speed insisted on closing the trail till it could be repaired. When a detachment of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police came riding down the pass and mended the bridge for Speed, there was a truce between him and Fallon and the trail was reopened. Garnet went back to civilization for the winter leaving his ponies and equipment with Speed and Maitland. But the horses disappeared just after the transfer. After Speed had killed a man in self-defense—a man who had run a crooked shell game at Liarsville—he and Maitland got away on the trail—Rose helped find their horses—and decided to build a cabin for the winter near Bennet, a camp joliced by the Mounties. Drew, head of the Mounties, said there was a strange legend about a ghostly Siwash that left tracks in the snow—his new man Cathcart was specially interested in it. One night the two partners thought they saw these tracks. Speed wandered off alone and killed a buck. His shots bring Maitland to the scene.—Now go on with the story:

"Throw up your hands, Bud, quick, was Speed's startling order.

Maitland, already slanting with the wind toward the canyon, was almost swept off his feet.

Maitland obeyed and both stood with hands in the air. The woods gave back no comment.

"Are you bein' hostile or just cautious?" Speed asked.

"If I were a little more cautious," a gruff voice spoke with freezing incisiveness out of the dark, "you wouldn't be talkin'. Stand over on the far side of the fire and keep your eyes this way. Both of ye. Were those shots a while back?"

With his arms still raised, Speed nodded toward the caribou hide that hung in the fire smoke. "I reckon your dog was trackin' the same deer?"

"Hell," the man growled, in a weird tone that seemed to expect no answer. "Is that dog still alive? See any other travelers along this route?"

"Not around here . . . Could tell you better if I knowed who you was watchin' for."

Another pause followed. Before the speaker said, with an effect of challenge, "An oldish, square-built, whisky-faced man."

"With a boy?"

"Yes . . . with a boy. The man's name is Owens."

"He's drowned," Speed said, with a sidelong flicker at his partner.

That left the voice mute for a full minute. "How drowned?" The question had a cold directness.

THAT GOOD GULF GASOLINE

"All we heard was, he lost his outfit in a game in Skagway."

"Who was he gamblin' with?" Speed described Fallon.

"What happened to the kid?"

"He trailed over the pass ahead of us. We don't know where he went."

"There wouldn't be a woman with Owens?"

"Not with him. There was a pretty, dark-haired girl in Skagway who looked sort of interested."

This was ignored. "I mean an older woman."

"No."

During a suspended interval Speed stood motionless as stone. The voice spoke at last with a queer note of deliberation. "I needed that deer meat bad . . . It may be lucky you seen me, and it may be a long ways from it, for you and me both—How good is your memory?"

"Feeble," said Speed.

"How do I know it?"

"All I can say is, we can imagine a man's maybe havin' a good reason for leaving a sketchy trail. If I didn't figure you for a friend of Pete's, I'd take the chance of reachin' for a gun even now. But if you are, you can bank we've never seen or heard you."

"Stand where you are," the voice said roughly, "for five minutes. I don't need to tell ye what'll happen if you make a move to trace me."

The quiet seemed to be absolute. Not a twig snapped; Maitland could not even detect the stirring of a spurc needle. But Speed's eyes almost imperceptibly traced a course through the shadows to the tree where they had cached the meat.

He allowed a tactful space to elapse before he lowered his arms. Then he went over to the tree where he had hung the meat.

Their ominous visitor had gone, taking with him an even half of the deer.

"I'm a siwash," Speed muttered finally, "if that ain't the imaginary native Drew's patrolman's been puzzlin' over."

"Did you see him?"

"Just a glimmer when I got up from the fire. He stole in to unhook a piece of deer meat from the tree."

Maitland had a vague sense that he was withholding something.

"And tht's the prospector Pete was looking for?"

"If you can figure it."

"Why does he wear native furs?"

CONOCO TRAVEL BUREAU PREDICTS GREATEST TOURIST TRAVEL IN YEARS

"Littlefield merchants who are 'on their toes' and looking for their share of this summer's tourist dollar should reap a rich harvest, REASON: There will be twice as many tourists on the road as there were last summer."

Such is the surprising prediction just released by the Conoco Travel Bureau, America's largest free travel service, maintained by Continental Oil Company, Denver, Colorado.

In a bulletin addressed to the merchants of "Main Street" in all parts of the United States, the Bureau advises them to prepare for the greatest tourist trade in years.

"Dust storms have spent their fury, leaving a new top soil, and flood waters have receded," says Joe H. Thompson, director of the Bureau.

"As a result of heavy rainfall, America's highways, and particularly the mountain areas, are green in vegetation, and wild flowers are more beautiful than ever."

"During the first five and a half months of this year the Conoco Travel Bureau received 115 per cent more trip service applications than during the same period in 1934."

"At present, more than 250 carefully trained employees are working day and night shifts in the Bureau's Denver offices. During the early part of June last year the Denver personnel numbered only 126."

"The Conoco Travel Bureau was founded five and one-half years ago in response to the demands of motor vacationists and everyday travelers anxious to secure accurate, up-to-the-minute information regarding North American highways, scenic regions and travel costs."

Each motorist applying for Travel Bureau assistance receives a generous assortment of maps, booklets, cottage camp and hotel guides, and special instructions covering every phase of his journey. Even temporary highway detours and choice fishing and hunting areas are indicated.

More than 22,000 Conoco dealer stations in 42 states act as branches of the Bureau and are equipped to render additional tourist assistance of a more localized nature."

Readers of this newspaper may secure individualized trip services without spending a cent—even for postage—merely by writing the Conoco Travel Bureau, Continental Oil Building, Denver, Colorado, stating where and when they wish to go.

put them into the 1935 special pool, which is being opened. Mr. Adam urged all farmers to follow the latter course.

Mr. Adam also announced that County Supervisors for the purpose of measuring land and rented acreage under cotton contracts are being organized, and measurement of the land will probably begin by the middle of July. He urges that all farmers cooperate by assisting the supervisors in their work.

W. D. T. Storey spoke on the prospects of the County Fair being held this year in Littlefield.

Mr. Kuykendall also addressed the gathering on the County Fair, stating that it would not be held in Amherst as formerly, that Olton and Littlefield were bidding for it, and that in order to have a successful fair "we must have the cooperation of all the cities in the county," and suggested the appointment of committees in Olton and Littlefield to work on the project.

R. L. Burgett, in his talk stressed the necessity of a good fair to further the agricultural work in the county, stating his group of boys would have 30 registered gilts to show, besides turkeys, etc., and that at least 25 to 35 farmers would put in booths at a fair.

J. W. Hale, Secretary-Manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors.

Senator A. P. Duggan, after extending a hearty welcome to the visitors, spoke on highway matters, relating his efforts in Washington, as a member of the road committee, to secure relief money for the building of highways in Texas. He stated "we started a movement that secured six million dollars for relief, but the money was not spent in this section—somehow it got away from us."

He stated that H. P. Drought of San Antonio, Works progress administrator for Texas, had announced that 20 officers over the state would be opened to receive formal applications from cities and counties for a share in the federal funds, to place heads of families on relief work. He stated the amount allotted to Texas had been mentioned at $40,000,000; and that each district would participate in the Federal funds, according to the number of local people on relief. He stated that no part of these funds can be used for designated highways, but may be used on lateral or secondary roads, or in other words—feeder roads.

Mr. Duggan suggested that the counties of Lamb and Hale map out the location for the east and west road, and make applications to H. P. Drought of San Antonio, works progress administrator, with reasonable requests for funds for which to improve the east and west road.

Citizens of Hale County who made talks Tuesday were: Carl Rhodes, E. Risser and Neil Brock, who were all enthusiastic and optimistic that they "could put over" their share of the project in getting a through east and west road.

C. G. Barnett of Fieldton stated his community was behind the road program in the County.

G. M. Shaw reported progress in the preparations underway for the Oldtimers Reunion to be held here July 15.

We Think—

ly to produce the best in the way of a living and a profit from virtually all labor.

Every form of development on the well planned, properly managed farm serves a purpose. Trees are ornamental and serve as a wind break; a windmill and a tank provide an abundance of water for stock, irrigate the garden and provide water for flowers and shrubs; paint preserves buildings and adds to the attractiveness of the entire property; an orchard provides fruit in season and for canning; cross fencing provides for the orderly handling and feeding of livestock; poultry fencing keeps fowls out of the flower beds and, if so desired, can be run in a manner which permits poultry access to the fields; a small, protected bed permits the farmer to start from seed trees for the improvement and protection of his property; sheds save money and make money in that they provide protection for stock and storage for machinery; well worked land is beautiful to look upon and is most generally productive of better crops. All such improvements cost money, but they are generally productive of higher returns from farm operation and transform farm acres into a farm home.

We cannot all have what we desire in a city home or a farm home, but what is true of the "oaks from acorns grow," is also true of homes. Improvements from time to time are as seed—they produce in the manner planned.

The inspiration for this expression of thought relative to farm improvement was obtained as a result of a visit to the farm of R. L. May, located eight miles north and east of Littlefield.

We did not make notes on what we witnessed at the May farm and on what Mr. May said in showing us over his property, but if our memory is right Mr. May said that he broke out his farm about 11 years ago. Since that time he has been making improvements.

WE THINK— That the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce should arrange for a large party of business men and farmers to visit the May farm. Mr. May didn't make this suggestion, but we know that he would be pleased to have the folks come out and visit with him. What would be wrong with a sort of basket picnic at the May farm?

WHAT DO YOU THINK? HELP THE BOY SCOUTS EARN THEIR UNIFORMS— There are two Boy Scout troops in Littlefield, one sponsored by the Rotary Club with W. T. Hanes as scoutmaster; the other sponsored by the American Legion with Eugene Latimer as scoutmaster.

A number of the boys in these troops wish to obtain employment in order to earn the money with which to buy uniforms. The character of the work is not important—any kind of work around a home or a business, or on a farm.

Those having work for these boys are asked to notify Mr. Latimer or Mr. Hanes.

A Boy Scout is supposed to do a good deed every day; you will be doing a good deed by giving employment to one or more of these boys.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—As if Congress did not have enough to worry about already, President Roosevelt has given the boys on Capitol Hill something real to think about in his proposal that they ought to draw up and enact some new tax bills before they go home. Specifically, he proposes that, in addition to the present estate taxes, Congress should put a tax upon inheritances as well. The estate tax is taken out before anything goes to the heirs. It is the President's idea, in the case of large estate, to further redistribute wealth by taxing the heirs on whatever they get. And, for good measure, he suggested that it would be desirable to stick on some higher taxes on the incomes of big corporations. The Federal Corporation Tax now is 13 1-2 percent; the President's idea is that this might run up to 16 1-2 percent on corporate earnings above some unspecified but large annual figure.

Many people are professing to be surprised at what they regard as a swing toward the left on the part of Mr. Roosevelt. Anybody who has studied his political past and read his speeches during the Presidential campaign, including his inaugural address, has no real ground for surprise; for the idea that wealth is concentrated in a few hands and that the great pools of wealth ought to be broken up for the benefit of everybody, is one that he has frequently and emphatically expressed.

Capitol Hill Questions Up on Capitol Hill the Senators and members of Congress are asking three questions. Can we or should we try to pass it at this session? What would be the practical effect upon the national income if we did enact such laws? And, third, but paramount in the minds of the members of both Houses, what will be the political effect?

The strong inclination of all but a few extremists in Congress is to let the matter lie until the next session, which will begin in January, 1936. The boys want to go home. The children are out of school now, and their wives want to get back to their home towns; besides, the Washington weather is getting hotter and hotter. They still have an awful lot of business to clean up before adjournment. To work out anything that will meet the President's idea of taxes seemingly will lead to endless debate and discussion and maybe keep them here until Fall. So, for that and other reasons, it does not seem likely that they will do much on tax plans except to talk about them.

The answer to the second question, as to what the practical effect of the new taxes will be, is generally that they will not go very far in making up the budget deficit. At all times the great bulk of taxation is carried by the middle class, and this middle class, the practical economists in Congress and Administration circles say, would still continue to carry that load. Very wealthy men who have accumulated large fortunes can afford to hire very expert lawyers to show them how to distribute their wealth where they want it to go, it is pointed out.

Good Political Move The paramount question in the minds of everybody in Washington is, really, as to the political effect of the President's proposal. That, in the view of the smartest political observers, should be very good for Mr. Roosevelt and his chances for re-election. In effect, it cuts a good deal of the ground out from under the feet of Huey Long, the LaFollette Progressives, and other radical elements whose slogan is "soak the rich." These radical Democrats and Progressives seized upon the new proposal, and their threats, to "show up" the President as insincere unless he demanded immediate action, are believed to have influenced him in his insistence upon tacking the new taxes to the bill extending the "nuisance taxes."

As a bit of political strategy, it does not make much difference whether laws to carry out the President's plan are adopted at this session or not.

G. O. P. Going Conservative It is becoming more clear from day to day that the cleavage between the two parties in 1936 will be sharply defined, with the Republican Party distinctly on the conservative side. Following the action of the "Grass Roots" convention in Springfield, Illinois, the recent meeting of the "Young Republicans" of New York went on record for a distinctively conservative platform.

In the meantime, Congress has passed the biggest tax bill ever enacted in the United States, the Social Security Act, which taxes the payroll of every employer and the pay envelope of every wage earner, to provide a fund for unemployment insurance, and for old age pensions. Instead of the Townsend Plan of $200 a month for everybody

Ring Lost 35 Years Ago Found In Field

Bastrop, Tex., July 3, (UP)—C. J. Hubbard's mother lost a ring 35 years ago, made by his father from a $10 gold piece. Hubbard found the ring a few days ago while working in his cotton field.

over 65, the Government has embarked upon an old age pension plan for persons over 65 who have no resources of their own, beginning at $30 a month, half to be paid by the Government and half by the respective states. States can contribute more if they want to.

Under pressure of the Labor Lobby the Wagner Labor Disputes Bill slips through in spite of the fact that nearly everyone in Washington believes it is unconstitutional. There is a suggestion that here again is good political strategy, as it may line up organized labor behind a movement to amend the Constitution, a movement which looms up stronger from week to week as a probable issue in the 1936 campaign.

The outlook for the Public Utilities Holding Companies Bill now is that while it will be generally drastic it will not contain the "death sentence" which President Roosevelt has asked for. This is one of the few instances in which the lower House has taken a definite and apparently firm stand against the President's desires. Likewise, material modifications are expected to be made in the Administration's Banking Bill before it is finally enacted, although its general purpose and effect will not be materially impaired.

AUSTIN, TEX., July 3.—(UP)—Texas' much-amended constitution goes up for another face-lifting at the polls August 24 with the old age pensions threatening to displace prohibition repeal as the most controversial issue.

Since its adoption in 1876 Texans have amended their constitution 74 times. Latest changes were in 1933. Last year eight amendments were defeated.

No. 1 on the list of seven proposed changes which Texans will decide is the old age benefit amendment, empowering the state legislature to provide $15 monthly pensions to citizens in good standing who have reached 65 years of age.

Pensions promise to lure most voters to the polls, although early indications point to a small vote. Texans have voted upon the issue numerous times since statehood, but the amendment adopted in 1919 making the state "dry" was the only prohibition proposal ever to carry a statewide election. Two years ago, voters liberalized the legalizing sale of 3.2 per cent wines and beers. They also ratified the 21st amendment to the national constitution.

Adoption of the amendment would return Texas to a local option status, with the "open saloon" forever barred. Legislators would define "open saloon."

Texans also will decide August 24 if seemingly insane persons may be committed to state hospitals for 90 days observation without jury trial.

An amendment to allow submission of emergency constitutional amendments at special sessions of the legislature also will be considered.

Another proposal is to allow judges to suspend sentences. Sentences now may be suspended only by the jury.

Another much-discussed subject to be voted upon is abandonment of a fee system of paying public officers.

Free textbooks in private and parochial schools as well as public schools would be provided under another amendment.

Six other amendments will be up for a vote Nov. 3, 1936. Included are proposals to allow a state monopoly on hard liquor sales and to raise salaries of major state administrative officers. Under the present schedule, part of the constitution, the governor receives only $4,000 a year.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

BY GORDON K. SHEARER
Lead Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, TEX., July 3.—(UP)—Railroad Commissioners vigorously and almost indignantly opposed federal usurpation of the state's right to regulate oil production in Texas. Now they are on the other side of an oil control problem in a new South Houston field.

South Houston already has set the pace for well drilling spaces by ordinance. The state commissioners are being asked to adopt a different rule.

Whether the state would be any justified in disregarding a local regulation than the federal regulation would be in disregard of Texas state order is a question that is giving the oil officials in the capitol considerable worry.

Oil companies envy Gov. V. Allred his handsome new saddle. It was presented to him by Jay Taylor, Administrator of the cattle raisers' association.

Clark, the governor's personal secretary, who rides frequently with Allred and "Jim Boy" Allred, Governor's son, was promised a saddle "if the governor doesn't get it."

At trial, however, and the saddle became a part of the chief's regular riding gear. His mount is a Texas National cavalry horse.

Pat Dwyer, San Antonio, to get a second when he proposes to throw open the public and a session of the House of Representatives committee to investigate charges against the operation of the State Department of Agriculture.

Delegates gathered in expectancy for the meeting which was after Agricultural Commissioner J. F. McDonald and Commissioner E. E. Hunter had left over who was to have the floor of the department.

The motion was followed by the newswriters filed out. As their second unsuccessful attempt to attend a meeting of the committee and see how it ticks.

Delegations appearing before the annual Advisory Board of History frequently find the board members know more about matters present than the delegations. Chairman L. W. Kemp has made a hobby of locating his spots in Texas and marking graves of Texas heroes. J. Frank is an authority on Texas folk and the incidents from which legends grew. The Rev. Paul J. St. Edwards University, is an authority on the early missionary expeditions in Texas that resulted in the settlements.

Obstacles will confront those who may seek to counterfeit the spurious Texas cigarette tax stamps. The contract for stamps, this week, calls for a special stamp furnished only to the state. An additional check, the stamps to be issued in serial numbers. A record will be kept at the showing where stamps in number brackets have been cigarette tax stamps were outside the state. Having made in the state where the manufacture of spurious ones is another step to guard counterfeiting.

Muleshoe's Small Grain Harvest Is Now Underway

The small grain harvest opened in the Muleshoe vicinity two weeks ago when Harry Engleking brought the first load of 1985 wheat to the Muleshoe elevator, according to Tom Davis, manager.

Slumbering Gold—

and moccasins?"
"Because no one in the North, I reckon, pays much notice to a Siwash's trail.

"To cover a gold secret, you mean?" The idea Rose had suggested loomed in Maitland's mind.

"I dunno," Speed pondered. "They's somethin' more behind this prospector than it's likely either of us can figure."

"His waiting for Owens here would fit with your conclusion about Pete's not having gone down the river. But how would Pete miss him?"

The mysterious man with the mukluks had evidently gone in search of Pete. That seemed the last they were likely to hear of him.

But the next day brought an odd reminder. The lamed and starving malamute they had seen in the timber trailed the scent of the caribou in the sled. Its following them instead of the man it knew gave a grim color to Speed's idea about its owner, and the cruel necessity to which he had been driven.

On the trail the dog kept a cautious distance, but it drew closer under cover of the darkness when they camped. Maitland cut off a strip of frozen meat and threw it out in the snow, at the rim of the firelight. The strip vanished in a flash of wet fangs. So did several more, without visible effect of its aloofness, except that it no longer snarled when it evaded Maitland's approach. He called it "Rusty," because of its miscalored fur.

After a day's log cutting at the place they had chosen for a winter camp, Speed left Maitland to trim timbers for the cabin, while he took the team up to Tagish and hauled down the more necessary part of their outfit.

They set up the cabin walls, and whipsawed the softer spruce into lumber for the floor and fittings, laying aside the best wood to season for the boat.

In the midst of this work they were interrupted by a surprise visit from a mounted patrolman.

"My name's Cathcart," said the corporal, stiffly. It was their first glimpse of Drew's "new man." He was a tall, raw-boned, fresh-colored rookie with frosty eyes, rather narrowly set. "This is an out-of-way place for a camp."

"We chose it so we could launch a boat below the rapids," Maitland explained politely.

"You men have just made a haul for Inspector Drew that took you by way of Lake Lebarge," said Cathcart. "Did you see anything between here and Thirty Mile of a lone Siwash on the trail?"

Speed's eyes narrowed a little in their turn. "No", he said.

The patrolman looked quickly around their camps. "Let me see your guns."

He examined Speed's and handed them back; then picked up the carbine.

"This gun's been used recently," he said.

"We shot a caribou down on Lake Lebarge," said Speed. "Maybe you saw the blood dust."

The patrolman seemed disconcerted for a moment. "All right," he said abruptly, and took his departure.

The two partners stared after him, and then exchanged a long unsmiling look.

"Where's the dog?" asked Speed. But Rusty seemed to have vanished at the first scent of the patrolman.

land stowed his tools. He thought it strange that the dog should show so much uneasiness about a still distant storm, and wondered if there might be something else in the seemingly lifeless air.

Taking length of rawhide, Maitland leaped the dog in a squaw hitch, and gave it its head, curious to earn what was troubling it. The dog halted at last on the crest of a long ravine. A lifting shiver ran through the malamute's fur. He gave a trailing desolate howl.

Out of the canyon rose a vaguely prolonged moan like the tremor of a deep organ stop. With that breath, incredibly cold, the air came to life.

It was like a gasping exhalation from the indraught that had made the void. And now the pall from the West came screaming, in needle points, a flick ahead of the blast.

Instantly the moan in the canyon leaped to snarling bellow, and to a whine and a whistle and a scream from the bending timber on the cliffs.

Maitland, already slanting with the wind toward the canyon, was almost swept off his feet. The malamute kited before him at the end of the lease.

In a seething draw at the foot of the slope, he caught a momentary glimpse of the tracks of some animal—erased before his eyes by powdered drift. Shortly afterwards, as he came out of the wallow he saw below him, dimly through the blinded air, the effigy of a riderless white horse standing with its tail to the wind and its head low.

The malamute's pull on the line carried him on till he staggered against the flank of the white horse itself. When he groped to its head he had a vague glimpse of Rusty, a yard away, standing over a mound in the dancing snow.

A cod foreboding of the truth already foreshadowed his heart. He stooped down, brushing the snow from the head of the fallen rider with one hand, while he dropped Rusty's tether from the other to try and unblind his eyes with stiffened fingers. A murmur of protest checked him at sight of a golden glimmer in the snow. It was Pete!

He raised the boy's slight form. Clumsily he lifted the light burden to his shoulder, and felt for Rusty's line.

The dog was gone. The malamute, he thought, had answered a simple savage law, and was finding his own shelter.

From one ravine to another he battled through the tearing maze for what seemed a mile. Swaying in the storm, with its ghastly chaos screaming in his ears, he stopped to marshal his senses. He was lost, he changed his direction on a mere gamble. Fortunately he was prevented from testing it.

He had hardly started when something dark whirled by him, like a fragment of tumbling storm wrack; the sight of it stung his blood into sharper life and halted him. It appeared again, and his heart leaped with a great thankfulness as Rusty's wolfish head pushed through the welter within reach of his hand. The malamute was peering up at him through rimed slits of eyelids, its guard hair plastered and parted by the driving scud.

Unable to trust his fingers, he wound the line around his arm. The rest lay with the dog; and Rusty's first move turned him—from the course he had almost taken. Within a few minutes they were in the river canyon. After a timeless struggle up that roaring gut, they brought up against the cabin roof.

Careful still of his burden, he slid down through the drift that smoked around the door, and stumbled inside.

He slid to the floor, beside the low bunk and placed Pete into it. He slipped a tarpaulin under the lifeless figure and scooped a bucketful of snow from the drift. Without knowing whether raw whisky was the right medicine, he forced a spoonful between the white teeth, praying that it was. To remove the riding boots, he slit the leather down the seams. He cut through every tight garment in order to save time.

At sight of the form he revealed, a murmur of complete astonishment fell from him. The adolescence of the slim, virginal figure had concealed the strange fact that Pete was a girl!

Amazed as he was, his hands did not pause. Covering her with snow, he rubbed the snow crystals against her flesh, with a cold fear in his heart that he was too late.

War Boys, Sunnydale Jump Into League Lead

BOTH CLUBS HAVE PERFECT FIGURES

Merchants Add Merchant Scalp; Hanksmen In 2 Wins

Legionnaires bid fair this week to go on another winning spree by winning a 6-1 merchant scalp to their credit for a 1,000 percentage. Sunnydale's 7-6 noseout of Producers and a 9-5 victory over Cox' smokies put them on a par with the warboys. Here are the week's summaries, including Monday's game:

SUNNYDALE 7, PRODUCERS 6 Friday

Breaking a 6-5 disadvantage in the last of the 7th, Jack Fisher hit 4 sacks and brought in Jordan L. Fisher, Jack's terrific clout, which traveled far out into the night, unhit only as a hit, since the score isn't needed. Pierce, Produce first-echer, circled in the third.

FACULTY 8, FLYERS 3 Thursday Last Week

Five scores in the fifth won for the teachers when Etter and Jones doubled, scoring Eagan and Pass, Brown hit and stole and Hobbs hit. For the Flyboys, Dunn and M. Swanner circled in the third, and Kimmel followed a double by riding a behind his mates' willing. Rowe's 3-sacker in the 6th should have been a homer for the instructors. Jones' two singles and a double out of thrice up added a touch

SUNNYDALE 9, FIREMEN 5 Monday

Warm willow contention on both sides made this match closer than the score indicates. Howton circled. Swanner and Dobbins tripled and Lowe and Wood doubled for the losers. Pepper hit for four bases while Jack and Joe Fisher and Brandon doubled for the victors. Hits were, for the Hanksmen 11, for the Smokies 9.

SUNNYDALE, L. ## SPORT WORLD

By BILL NORRIS

A STUDY IN BLACK

Last week, a dinge With ivory grin Known as the "Chocolate Killer"— Climbed in a ring With Italy's best, And put on quite A thriller.

Come autumn, this Big black will meet Another dark-skinned Fighter; And flatten him, Just like the Prim— With left-a and With right-a While not a loose spender, we'll bet you a piece of string and a chunk of fresh air that we're right... And the boys in the back room will tell you the same thing.

Since softball has come into its own in Littlefield, a review of the game's ancient history seems to be in order.

In 1909, 26 years ago by good old Norris calculations, a National Amateur Playground Ball association of the United States was organized. At the time, playground ball was panicking the good citizens of Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Brooklyn, as well as such little outlying Western towns as Los Angeles and Kansas City.

Says the 1909 Official Handbook, in part, "Playground Ball has more than a bright future. Its prospects really appear so good that within a few years it probably will have gained more than a marked position in the athletic world."

Little did the good fathers of Playground Ball in 1909 realize that in 1934, a new word, "Softball" would be coined into the vocabulary of screwy sports vernacular... Today, there are more than 500,000 players in more than 367 cities, towns, villages and general stores playing Softball (Census of 1933). This, say the records, indicates that there are as many players of Softball as there are participants in any other team-played game in the world. Can you tie it?

The rules of organized Softball of today differ very little from those of Playground ball of 1909. Distance between bases, officially, is still 35 feet. The game is still played with a ball measuring from 12 to 14 inches around.

But can you imagine a batter who, after a hit, runs to third or first, either way he chooses?... That was the batter's option in 1909. If he ran from home to third, he then advanced to second, to first, then home again. But if he chose to run to first, he circled the sacks in the regular order... This put right-handed sluggers on an even keel with southpaw hitters, and gave both more chance for a safe hit.

What a wad of color this would add to the game today! Hey, Hey!

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH

J. W. Hendrix, Pastor

Last Sunday was a rather great day with us. The morning congregation was of an interesting size and the service at the First Baptist church in the evening was about all one could expect. It is summer time and a host of us are busy; nevertheless a period of worship will strengthen for life and its work. Our trouble is within us largely, not outside of us; that is, when we really trace it down.

At the Sunday school hour we will open with a song program and the new superintendent, W. R. Cavette, will give a short address, pertinent and to the point. You'll doubtless like it. The class for each one will assemble. They send out an invitation for you to come.

At the morning hour of public worship the choir will render songs which you will greatly enjoy. The pastor will speak on the subject, "That Faultless Man." You might enjoy the sermon—some say they do. In the evening the Leagues will meet at 7:45 p. m. We have the Senior and Intermediate. You might fit in one or the other of them.

At the hour of evening worship—

8:30, please—The Choral Club will have charge of the music. The pastor will deliver a sermon, using as his subject, "ON GOIN' PLAIN NUTS." A good size audience enjoys the evening services. Neither of these services will be over an hour long.

TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. R. Denning, Pastor

We cordially invite our last Sunday visitors back again, many of whom expressed their interest in the messages, and acknowledged having received blessing in the services.

We especially urge all the membership to be present at the Sunday morning preaching hour, when we shall present "A CHALLENGE FROM GOD TO HIS PEOPLE."

And please come early Sunday night, for our service shall start at 8:30 sharp, so that we may dismiss at a reasonable time. The sermon subject for the evening will be "Jesus Christ, Our Brother."

The Sunday School meets at 9:45 a. m., and the Lesson Study is James Second Chapter.

No matter what your creed or position, this pastor wishes to be of help to everyone in distress, sorrow or need. This Church is pre-millennial, missionary and evangelical, and simple old-fashioned principles of true worship are maintained.

Free Gulf Booklet Is Now Available

When the man bites the dog, it is news. And when a gasoline company advises motorists how to save gasoline, that is news, too.

Hence it is news to announce that the Gulf Refining Company has just issued a booklet entitled, "15 Ways To Save Gasoline Money." Although the information contained in the eight-page booklet is simple, it consists of driving hints which should benefit millions of motorists.

Do you know what parking secret saves gasoline? The booklet tells you. Have you discovered what driving speeds assure the greatest economy in gasoline consumption? The booklet tells you. And what fact concerning the inflation of your tires boosts your gasoline mileage? The booklet tells you this, too.

The offer of the free booklet to any motorists who will drive into Gulf's 40,000 dealers is allied with an interesting "sporting offer" to car owners.

When the man bites the dog, it is news. And when a gasoline company advises motorists how to save gasoline, that is news, too.

arrangements were among initial arrangements to be made, with all possible materials being bought locally, according to Lieut. Britton. Two-inch mains, for fire hydrant hookups as well as for water for consumption, will be installed.

Sectionized buildings, the present prevailing method of construction on CCC camp sites, calls for bolting together ready-built walls, sides, roofs and inside partitions.

Unskilled labor will be paid at the rate of 45 cents per hour and workmen in skilled trades will be paid at the prevailing rate, the lieutenant said.

About 200 young men to be pressed into soil erosion service within a 25-mile radius of Littlefield in all directions, will be housed at the camp. Work includes land terracing, removal of sand drifts, work along highways and possibly tree planting at a later date, if the federal shelterbelt project is undertaken in this area.

Twelve structures, including five barracks to house 40 men each, will be constructed. Other buildings will be a mess hall with kitchen attached, an infirmary, headquarters with supply attached, welfare building, bath house and a structure to house officers and a technical advisory staff. Costs of construction will total about $14,000.

Capt. Tom B. Martin, chief construction officer on CCC Camps, stationed at Dallas, has charge of building about 18 camps in the West Texas district. Lieut. Britton will be in active charge here, with Capt. Martin due here soon for an inspection. The Littlefield camp will be under direct supervision of officers of District CCC Camp headquarters, Lubbock.

remarkable understanding by R. P. Mackinnon. W. A. Fincher worked wonders with a role which ran almost the entire gamut of human emotions. He was Wandering Tom, a mystery man, and handled with skill a hard act fraught with drama.

Part of Elizabeth, played by Mrs. Joe T. Salem, called for scheming matrimonial machinations of the deepest dye. Mrs. Salem supplied the ingredients and added a dash of colorful reality not called for in the script. Old Moss, colored counterpart of Wandering Tom, tickled capably with his laughable misuse of five-dollar words.

Mrs. Boyles and Bill Norris Littlefield, were pianists for the show.

The play drew and satisfied a packed Sudan high school auditorium when staged on the home grounds some time ago.

special invitations. An invitation has been extended to all the Lamb County officials through the courtesy of Judge Simon D. Hay, County Judge; the City officials through Mayor L. R. Crockett; and to the fireboys through the courtesy of the local fire chief, E. C. Sellers.

The Leader has been asked to state that if any oldtimers will prepare and send a list of oldtimers who are now living away from Littlefield, to Mrs. Wright, this will be appreciated and assist the Committee in sending out invitations.

The Grounds Committee, composed of T. Wade Potter, Chairman, Joe Hale, John Porcher, Dr. J. R. Coen and Carl Smith, met with the Executive Committee last week and are busy making plans for the park.

Through the efforts of the Publicity Committee, of which Mrs. Wesley B. Drake is Chairman, Miss Myrtle Marion Shaw, and John Price, and through the courtesy of the press, announcement of the Reunion has appeared in a number of the leading newspapers in Texas, and plans are being made to announce the reunion in newspapers in Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas, as a number of the old settlers are believed living in these states.

The program Committee, with Mrs. Pat Boone, Chairman, Senator A. P. Duggan, Mrs. E. S. Rowe and Mrs. Arbie Joplin, are putting forth their best efforts to furnish a program that will be outstanding for an occasion of this kind. This committee has announced that there will be amusements for the young as well as the old.

It is expected that an attendance of at least 1500 will be in Littlefield on July 15 to celebrate the occasion.
