The Salvation Army cons-tantly asks what can it, as a religious and social welfare organization, do for the country's underprivileged. It has contin-ued to ask this question for over 83 years, when The Salvation Army was first established in the United States.

On this list are names like, Joe and Alice B., members of Salvation Army Boys' and Girls' Clubs, Mrs. S, an active member of The Salvation Army Club for senior citizens, (she spent two weeks this past summer at a Salvation Army camp for Golden Agers), and Betty M., who received guidance, love and understanding at one of The Salvation Army's 36 Maternity Homes and Hospitals for unmarried mothers.

Such birds as quail, doves, ducks, geese and wild turkeys often have a difficult time finding food during winter and early spring, points out Wallace Klussmann, Extension wildlife conservation specialist.

Crop residues plus the seed of native weeds that are available in harvested fields make one of the best food sources for wild game. But, says Klussmann, some birds, particularly quail, will not utilize food in a field unless there is some cover to protect them from natural enemies. Plant stubble left in the field will give this needed protection.

Rice, corn, grain sorghum and other field crops porvide especially good feeding areas following harvest if left undisturbed as long as possible, Nat-ive weeks and woody vegetation along field borders serve as natural travel lanes for birds attempting to feed in a field, Leaving stubble on the field, adds the specialist, is also recognized in many areas as a good soil conservation practice. The stubble aids in controlling both wind and water erosion and in holding snow in northern areas.

What kind of a tiger do you want under your hood? (Have you priced a tiger lately?)

If you're handy with a whip and chair, go for the 360-hp GTO. It bites. But then, even the 335-hp GTO bites. If you want a slightly more civilized package (but with lots of the GTO muscle), try the Le Mans. You can get it with a six or either of two V-8s. They all have bucket seats. Carpeting.
