METHODIST CHURCH
We returned last Friday from Mississippi and was glad to get back to Littlefield. We found it dry over most of the states east of us. We hope that you can be with us in the service next Sunday at 11:00 a.m. We are hoping to began the work on the Church building soon and get it ready where we can be using it again. We need all the help that you can give us in any way. We must have some more money before we can go farther. We understand when you hear people talking about how proud they are of their town and community and yet when there is a worthy work on as the building of a church, they will be a credit to the town and community that they are not interested in it and will not help in any way. These are the people that want the town to have good churches that will not help make a church possible in any way. We plead with the people of the community and town as well as the membership of the Methodist Church give our church such support as you can. Support in attendance as well as support in other ways. Attend Sunday School and Church Services somewhere next Sunday. Jim H. Sharp, Pastor

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Sunday is Father's Day. What better example could a Father set than by taking the lead in seeing that the entire family attend religious services somewhere Sunday? We want every father and man who is a member of this church to be present Sunday. There are many other fathers and men who live in Littlefield but not in attendance anywhere in Church services. We give you an invitation to visit with us and become a regular attendant each Sunday. We need more Fathers who will be like Joshua in conviction and example. He said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." What do you say? What is your example?

Much Activity In Whiteface

The Slaughter-Wright well on the Waterdog ranch 2 miles south of the J. E. Alexander addition to Whiteface, showing for a major pool extension of nearly four miles to the north and west, is expected to include all of the townsite of Whiteface and adjacent territory for miles around. A recent report is to the effect that the well is making from three to five barrels of high gravity crude an hour, or about 100 barrels a day natural flow with gas increasing. No water shows.

That the wildcat appears sure to be a producer and a pool opener, is conceded by all experienced operators in Whiteface who have watched this well, especially in the last few days. The one great fear of sulphur water being in the formation, seems to have been proven a false alarm entirely. In the present preliminaries, the workers have been especially cautious about testing the showings for water. Not a drop of sulphur water has developed so far, the preliminary tests indicate.

If the well were to be tubed and produced in its present shape, it would make more than 125 barrels a day natural, it was stated by the most conservative ones here today. This well, observers say, is similar to some of the biggest producers in the field which start off with from 3 to 5 barrels of crude a day following the first acid treatment.

She said that they would visit in the evenings and afternoons if necessary and would cover the list in a week. The pastor gave these names and in one week's time this woman and her husband secured fifty four decisions. When she went into the home the little children knew her and immediately went to her. This secured the good will of the parents. It was very easy for her to visit with them and speak about accepting Christ and becoming members of the church." NATIONAL EMERGENCY

The proclamation of an unlimited National Emergency, although momentous in its import, doesn't mean a quick change is going to take place in the life that we lead or in the freedom of action to which we are entitled in this country.

As a matter of fact, most legal students will agree that the President has added no new powers to those he assumed under the limited emergency which he proclaimed in 1939. Thus the proclamation of an unlimited emergency is believed to have been made primarily to make us more aware of the dangers that we face rather than add to the Presidential authority.

Under either the unlimited emergency, the President has dictatorial powers over practically everything but the declaration of war. The power to declare war rests solely in the hands of congress. But he cannot exercise any of the emergency powers without making a separate proclamation for each new power.

It is expected that one of the first powers he will take over will be the right to act against aliens in this country who are taking instructions from the Axis nations. Ever since the fall of France and Norway we have been warned time and time again about the dangers of a fifth column within our ranks, and many of us have favored rounding up all suspects.

It is probable, however, that even though few arrests have been made, all suspects are under constant watching by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. And it is comforting to know that when the time is ripe to round up these subversive elements, the President is in a position to do it without red tape—he will be able to make a proclamation and follow it through immediately with pre-planned action.

LONG MAY IT WAVE

The 48 stars and 13 stripes in our American flag today stand as indisputable evidence that a united continent is possible—that groups of people with different philosophies, of different races and with varying interests can become one peaceful, united nation.

On flag day, June 14, we Americans will display our flag in public places and on homes throughout the nation to reaffirm our faith in all it stands for.

Flag day was first proclaimed by President Woodrow Wilson, in May 1916, when we were on the brink of war, as we may be today. In proclaiming Flag Day President Wilson said that it would be observed as a day on which we Americans might "rededicate ourselves to the nation, "one and inseparable."

With the same feeling in our hearts, President Roosevelt has this year asked us to observe this June 14, with suitable ceremonies in classrooms, public gatherings, places of worship and in homes to "reaffirm our faith in the nation over which it has waved for more than a century.

Brother To Mrs. Ira E. Woods Is Married Sunday

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Gilliland of Paradise and Erwin Thomas of Lubbock, was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother at Paradise Sunday morning at nine o'clock. Dr. Ward, president of the Decatur Baptist college, officiated with a double ring ceremony.

Vows were exchanged before an altar of tall baskets of gladiolas and fern and eonies, and candles were lighted on each side of the altar.

The bride wore a white tailored suit with a corsage of pink rosebuds. She carried a white prayer book covered with gardenias. She was attended by Miss Anderson, who taught school with her last year at the South Plains school, in Floyd county.

Wayne Madden of Littlefield, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception was held after the wedding.

Only members of the family and close friends attended.

The bride is a graduate of the North Texas State Teachers College at Denton, and the past year she taught at South Plains.

The bridegroom, who is a brother to Mrs. Ira E. Woods of Littlefield, is a graduate of the Texas University, Austin, and the past several years has been employed by an architect firm in Lubbock. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas of Chico.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock.

Those attending the wedding from Littlefield were: Dr. and Mrs. Ira E. Woods, Mrs. Kate Gimmel, aunt of the bridegroom, and Wayne Madden.

High Water Wash Out Santa Fe Tracks Near Muleshoe Thurs.

Santa Fe Trains were able to get through from Lubbock to Clovis Monday afternoon, for the first time since last Thursday, when high water washed the bridge and tracks out two miles east of Muleshoe, late Thursday night.

Passenger service was continued everyday, Santa Fe officials reported, as the passenger trains went to the flood and passengers and express were taken from the train on the opposite side, in trucks and cars. The train then backed into Lubbock, to await the trip the next day.

A passenger train headed west from Chicago to California and detoured late Thursday through Lubbock from Amarillo, spent the night at Sudan, and returned to Amarillo. A huge Diesel freight engine, which had been detoured through Lubbock Thursday afternoon, spent the night in Littlefield, and also was returned to Amarillo, as was another passenger train.

The bridge over Frio draw near Friona, Parmer county, was repaired Friday, and traffic was routed direct from Amarillo to Clovis.

At Muleshoe, where three highways meet, U. S. 84 from Lubbock to Farwell, U. S. 70 from Plainview to Muleshoe, and 214 from Muleshoe to Morton were all blocked from Thursday night through Sunday, and buses would meet

MELTING THE ICEBERG

Do you want to know how to make friends with the man on the other side of the desk? You know how cold he appears. Why! he could snap a ten-penny nail in two. But there's a way to get on his good side. He's probably as eager to be friendly as you are, but it's probably up to you to make the first advance. And it can be done!

Here are nine specific ways to get on the lee side of icebergs. I took them from a number of "Your Life" magazine. They may be helpful to you:

- 1. Regard the person you are talking to as more important than your business with him.
2. Take a real interest in the other fellow, his views, his needs, his pleasures, his problems; remain just as interested even though he turns you down.
3. Don't resent snobs, pity them; that makes you bigger than they are, big enough to see behind their masks.
4. Be direct and simple in your approach; don't be clever or meaninglessly polite.
5. Don't waste the time of busy people trying to establish intimacy; express your friendliness without intruding.
6. Never push your own grandiose qualities in the other fellow's face—he will don a mask instantly to hide his unpleasant feelings.
7. Remember there's one human quality shared equally by great and small—a love of sincere appreciation.
8. Rich and exalted people, like less fortunate humans, are more interested in little items of personal pleasure or pain than in vast, remote enterprises.
9. Don't dig or slam the other fellow needlessly; every time you do, you add another layer to his protective mask.

Who do you suppose is the easiest person for you to deceive? Some stupid person? Somebody a thousand miles away? No, the easiest person for you to deceive is reading this sentence right now. You! Does this sound like a radical idea? Well, Demosthenes, the great Attic orator and statesman of Greece said, three hundred and fifty years before Christ was born: "The easiest thing of all is to deceive one's self; for what a man wishes, he generally believes to be true."

Why not examine your beliefs? Why not ask, "What facts, what reasons, do I have for believing this? Do I believe it merely because I want to or is my belief founded on scientific evidence?" My guess would be that nine-tenths of our beliefs are founded on "wish thinking." For example, I believe that I am an unusually broad-minded and tolerant individual. How do I know that I am more broad-minded than the average citizen? The truth is, I don't know. I go on believing it because I wish to believe it. "Wish thinking" is often dangerous. It may be tragic. It fosters ignorance. It breeds narrow-mindedness. Don't deceive yourself. Go to your public library and read a good book on logical thinking. Your thoughts are the most important force in your life. Guard them. Protect them. See that they are founded on reason, not emotion.

there, where passengers would be transferred. Since Sunday the buses have been routed by way of Circle Back, and those arriving from the west in Littlefield, have been 30 or 40 minutes late.

Old timers report that this is the first time in 35 years these draws in Bailly county had overflowed, and all traffic was stopped.

forms may be obtained from the County Agricultural Agent, and the rules and regulations governing the Plan's operation will be fully explained at the meeting. "I feel sure", said Mrs. Salton, "that every retailer of American grown and manufactured cotton products in Lamb county will want to cooperate wholeheartedly with the Government's effort to aid our cotton farmers and the cotton industry as a whole. It's certainly to their advantage to do so, and any who didn't would be placed at a distinct competitive disadvantage."

ANSWERS TO NEWS QUIZ 1. (b) is correct. The quotation is from his first inaugural address, March 4, 1933. 2. Parity would be reached when the farmer's current purchasing power equaled his purchasing power in the five years just before World War II. 3. Haiphong is in French Indo-China and it is one of the best trading "acquired" by Japan in this French possession.

Your SUNDAY DINNER

In honor of the graduate in your family, why don't you have a special dinner party? Invite his friends and serve something festive for the occasion. Individual ham loaves decorated with tiny sliced mushrooms are delectable. On each side of the platter is a fan of asparagus tips with cream sauce poured over. A dish of crispy radishes, tender green onions and tiny burr pickles make up the "something crispy." Young folks particularly enjoy baked potatoes, served with plenty of butter and grated cheese. Golden crumbs top a delicious custard filled pie to make the dessert "yummy."

Lucy Monroe is directly descended from James Monroe. The name "bloodhound" does not imply that these dogs have an extraordinary amount of blood or that they relish blood, but rather that they are "blooded" or pure-bred hounds. The hardly-audible ticking in a Bulova Watch is caused by the pallet action in the escapement (when the pallet is struck by the teeth of the escape wheel). These impulses cause the pallet to transfer intermittent controlled motivating power to the balance wheel. The "Leaning Tower of Pisa" was erected as the bell tower for the Cathedral of Pisa.

Ritz To Feature "In The Navy" Sat. Midnight, Sun. Mon.

Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday the Ritz offers the gag fest musical "In the Navy" with Abbott and Costello, Dick Powell, the Andrews Sisters, Claire Dodd and Dick Foran. The play is of two gobs who take command during a maneuver and get everything so balled up the ships start firing on each other. "In the Navy" is swell laugh film fare.

The exciting "I Wanted Wings" Palace attraction opens Saturday Midnight at the Palace with this cast: Ray Milland, William Holden, and Wayne Morris as three flying cadets, Brian Donlevy, their instructor, Constance Moore, the romantic lead, and Veronica Lake, who supplies the vampire motivation for the tense dramatic complications.

"I Wanted Wings" opens Saturday midnight and continues thru Monday. Highlights of the film consist of the air rattach on Los Angeles, the training and instruction of the cadets at Randolph and Kelley Fields, the hedge hopping stunts of the three fliers, the landing of a plane with a dead motor and for the first time shown a breath taking air rescue by parachute of an aviator dangling from a plane. Also this film introduces the newest screen find, Veronica Lake.

Thrills and Spills at Slaton June 13-14

Thrills and spills like the ground diver is taking in this picture will probably be seen at the South Plains Rodeo and Round-Up to be held in Slaton, Texas, June 13 and 14. The cowboy falling from the horse was taken at the South Plains Rodeo held last June in Slaton and as the Rodeo planned for this June will have more steers, calves and rough riding horses than last year's entertainment and there will probably be more spills and chills than last year's thrilling exhibition.

TWO PERSONS—

the exception of Wilburn Baxter and Mrs. Prather, whose conditions were reported fair.

The remaining six members of the family received only minor cuts and bruises, as the house blew over several times, before it stopped, 50 feet from the foundation. All of the family's clothing and household effects were blown away.

A. N. Baxter 36, brother of A. W. Baxter, who was sleeping in a small structure adjoining his brother's house, was awakened by the storm, and lay down beside a log in the yard. He was not injured, but he watched the family residence blowing over and over. The family were asleep when the tornado struck.

The three-year old colored boy, who survives his parents, was brought to the Payne-Shotwell Hospital, where his grandfather, Richard Wilson, is porter. When asked how he was by the nurses, he replied, "Pumfine," and "... it rained in my face all night."

Funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Green were held Monday afternoon at three o'clock at the St. John's Baptist Church, Littlefield. Hammonds Funeral Home was in charge of interment in the local cemetery.

The modern five-room teacherage on the campus of the school at Spade, was wrecked by the tornado, and two large trees were uprooted. Another tree, across the street from the teacherage, measuring approximately a foot in diameter, and 20 feet tall, was broken off at the ground.

J. A. Greer, whose home is on the same side of the street as the teacherage, and only about 100 feet away, was awakened by the storm, and from the roar, he believed it to be hail.

"The lightning was excessive, and the wind blew a gale. It did not take minutes but seconds, before the storm passed on with a shrill sound," Mr. Greer said. "When I saw it coming from the south window of my home, during the lightning, I could see that it was in the shape of a funnel."

This is the third tornado Mr. Greer said he had experienced, and he was in the very edge of each of them. His home was not damaged.

The teacherage was recently vacated, due to the closing of the Spade school. There is only one other vacant house in the town of Spade.

The tornado traveled north, destroying the bur-burning contraption at the Dean-Roberts Gin at Spade. A few miles away it struck at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Stokes, where a large corrugated-iron chicken house was completely blown away. Mr. Stokes reported that approximately 300 chickens were killed, and the iron was scattered for at least two miles north of their home.

Several other farms in the path of the tornado suffered severe damage, as barns and chicken houses were blown away, and roofs were damaged. One windmill was blown down. The tenant house on the W. E. Weber farm was completely destroyed. The house was vacated two days previous, by Mrs. Dunn.

The large barn on the Purvis Farm, one mile west of Luma Chapel, was completely destroyed, and the homes of Preacher Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, five miles south of Littlefield on the Leveland highway were greatly damaged.

The five-room house on the farm of Olan Powell, about six miles west of the Weeks-Bagwell Gin, was damaged, and considerable hail was reported at Bula.

Then the tornado swept into Kress, 40 miles northeast of Spade, and crushed E. P. Singleton, 70, to death in the wreckage of his home.

Next the tornado crashed into Clarendon, 50 miles northeast of Kress, where Mrs. R. E. Drennan, 46, wife of the dean of Clarendon junior college, was so badly injured that she died four hours later in an Amarillo hospital.

Clarendon had the heaviest loss, the damage to buildings in the residential area aggregating $500,000. Included were the brick junior college main building and girls dormitory.

At Kress the tornado leveled three homes, killing Singleton and injuring a dozen other persons, included was Mrs. Singleton and her invalid son, Christie. Mrs. Singleton was hurt seriously, and was rushed to a Plainview hospital.

At Clarendon, Drennan and Mrs. T. W. Welsh also were injured, Drennan seriously.

Five and one-half inches of rain in the Lockney area washed out the Fort Worth and Denver tracks.

Two miles south of Plainview between John Farris and Quitaque, water rose 200 feet and railroad services could not be resumed until afternoon.

Two inches of rain, accompanied by a severe electrical disturbance fell at Plainview, Peterburg and Silverton.

Eight-year-old Bobby King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis King suffered serious head injuries at Kress. He was taken to a Tulsa hospital. Mr. and Mrs. King and three of their other children, Dovie Ann, 6, Genelle, 4, and Willie Dean, 1, were hurt slightly when their home was blown away.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bookout and their children, Iris Carlene, 9, and Norma Gail, 11, suffered bruises and shock when their home was demolished.

The storm struck about 4 a. m., wiping out communications with Plainview, the nearest city, and it was not until an hour later that a bus driver on the Amarillo-Lubbock line notified Plainview police.

Ambulances, doctors, nurses and rescue workers were rushed from Plainview to the stricken community.

Mrs. Bookout, a daughter of Singleton, said she heard the storm approaching and went to the door. When she saw the twister dipping down she rushed to the bed where her children were sleeping and tried to protect them by shielding them with her body as the storm swept the house away. Mrs. M. H. Brooks, wife of a Methodist minister, said the storm took away some mattresses off her back porch from which she had just carried some neighbor children who had come over to spend the night.

Damage at Clarendon was detailed as follows:

The home of Mrs. J. P. McMurty was demolished. It was a brick structure built at a cost of $40,000.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Drennan was destroyed.

The home of Mrs. Welch was demolished. She received a broken leg and was taken to a local hospital.

A vacant house was carried away. A garage was destroyed at the home of Mrs. Antrodus, with three automobiles being twisted into a mass of wreckage. The top of the residence was blown away.

At the college, one wing and part of one story of the main building were crushed and across the street one wing of the girls' dormitory was demolished. A seven foot wall, just completed by WPA labor at the college stadium was smashed.

At the Frank Bourland home the entire roof was taken off. The roof also was smashed off at the city light plant.

The home of Joe Holland was demolished.

June 14 Deadline Under Supplementary Cotton Program

Farmers Can Earn $85,000 In Lamb By Cooperating

Growers Urged To Give Matter Their Due Consideration

Have you made any plans to take full advantage of the new Supplementary Cotton Program? Under this Program, designed to reduce cotton production and produce more food and clothing for farm families, you can qualify for stamps which can be used to buy cotton goods. You can also earn an additional payment of $3.00 for carrying out a food production practice.

To earn the cotton stamps, you reduce your cotton acreage below your 1941 allotment or your 1940 measured acreage, whichever is the smaller. The government allows you one pound up to $25.00 in cotton stamps. At the same time this will not affect your future allotments.

All producers who have not signed up to comply with this program should do so not later than June 14, 1941, which is the closing date. The A.A.A. Office has mailed to all producers who had not signed up to comply all the necessary forms to sign. To date many of these forms have not been returned to the A.A.A. Office.

Farmers, give this question your immediate consideration especially since we are experiencing some difficulty in seeding our full cotton allotment.

Farmers could earn approximately $85,000.00 in Lamb County by cooperating with the Supplementary Cotton Program.

Defense Savings Committees On South Plains Are Named

The list of defense savings committees in counties has been received by President Clifford B. Jones of Texas Tech College, member of the state defense savings committee.

The functions of city and county committees are similar to those of the state committee, within their respective territories. Functions of the state committee are to devise ways and means to further dissemination of information concerning the defense savings program; to interest state and local officials and public agencies in the program for sale of treasury securities to the people and to enlist their cooperation, and to establish contact with state and local organizations with a view to securing their support.

County chairmen have been asked to seek cooperation of employers in a plan for systematic purchase of defense savings bonds through voluntary payroll allotments. Under the plan an amount specified by the employer each pay day and used to purchase defense savings bonds, Frank Scofield, State administrator, has written county chairmen.

Among the towns on the South Plains for which committees have been appointed include;

Just give it Air - and it'll give you Action

MAYBE you didn't know that an efficient gas mixture for your car has about 9,000 parts of air by volume for every one part of gasoline.

That being so, you can see how important air-handling capacity is to your power plant.

Take this stunning Buick FIREBALL straight-eight, with Compound Carburetion† stepping up its horsepower.

Ordinarily, this engine purrs along sweetly with only one of its two carburetors functioning.

But step down on the gas treadle and what happens?

A second carburetor opens up. Doubles the air-handling capacity. Steps up power, lift, life, action. You go swooshing off like a scared boy with a bee behind him.

Would feeding more gas accomplish the same result?

After a fashion, yes—but why be spendthrift? Why feed your engine gasoline when what it wants is air?

Why not enjoy power as you want it and when you want it—plus gas economy that runs as high as 10% to 15% over last year's Buicks?

For that matter—why get less room, less style, less comfort, less value than Buick offers at such little prices?

See your nearest Buick dealer now—and at least get the delivered figures.

for the Business Coupe (illustrated above) including Compound Carburetion, delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices and specifications subject to change without notice.

Boys Safe After Adventure in 'Wilds'

Lost five days in the stony and heavily wooded wilderness near Kokadjo, Maine, these two boys Melvin Davis, 15, (left) and Paul Atkinson, 14, (right) are shown safe in bed following their rescue. When the pair, with their dog, became separated from their fishing party, the boys without matches or food, used the dog to keep them warm at night and during the day left birch bark markings to aid searchers following their trail.

True Significance of Flag Day

True significance of the American flag and the importance of paying respect to it on Flag day, June 14, is often lost upon native Americans. It takes a picture like this one to bring home the message of faith and trust in "Old Glory" and in "the Republic for which it stands." For these persons are foreign born. Yet their hearts are in their faces and in their words as they gaze in respect and sing the words of the "Star Spangled Banner." Many of them have felt the iron heel of oppression and they know that the flag to which they now pay homage symbolizes freedom in every sense of the word. This photo was taken at a New York evening school for persons of foreign birth.

Cotton Research Congress June 26

WACO, TEXAS, June 9, (Special to Leader)—Second annual Cotton Research Congress, to be held in Waco, June 26-27-28, at the Roosevelt Hotel, will not be just another cotton gathering, leaders of the congress emphasized today, but will be a cotton clinic, where real leaders are coming together for sober deliberation and consideration of problems vital to the future welfare and prosperity of our country.

In these times when the fate of nations is at stake, we are prone to overlook some problems that are all-important to the welfare of millions of our people, congress officials said. Cotton is a major problem of the United States, and to the people of the South, it is the most important problem confronting them today, except national defense itself, officials added.

The best informed authorities in their respective fields will be present in Waco to participate in the discussions. The first day's program will revolve around the importance of cotton in the national economy. The second day will be a complete discussion of world problems and foreign trade. Also on this day will be a full discussion of cottonseed products. The third day will be devoted to the many angles of consumption, including the expansion of present uses and the development of new uses.

The Congress is being sponsored by a number of business, agricultural and civic organizations headed by Burris C. Jackson of Hillsboro. Dr. A. B. Conner of College Station, director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, is chairman of the program committee.

The most complete exhibits on cotton ever put on display are being arranged for the Congress, officials pointed out, adding that the educational value of those exhibits is well worth a visit to the Congress.

War On Cotton Insects To Be Waged In Texas

The threat of the Flea Hopper and the boll weevil to destroy as high as 20 percent of the current Texas cotton crop is so serious as to arouse farm leaders, oil millers and ginners alike to action this year.

Bailey B. Ragsdale, President of the Dirt Farmers Congress, today announced that plans have been perfected to launch an effective insect control campaign throughout Texas within the next week with the cooperation of the South Texas Cotton Oil Co., who also view the threatened curtailment of production with grave apprehension.

The ROAD to BAGDAD

CHAPTER III

SYNOPSIS

On board the Orizaba, Camilla Dean, beautiful American girl, has many admirers, but she is most interested in Ronald Barker, because the night before he comes on board at Marseilles, she overhears three men whispering outside her window that he must be put out of the way before the boat reaches Alexandria. Barker shows no fear when she tells him, and learns from the radio operator that a message has come to Mohammed Ali, though no one so named is on board. The first letters of the message spell "Kerak." Camilla shows Barker a magazine article about El Kerak, a sort of oriental Robin Hood—and seeing the photographs again, recognizes Barker as El Kerak, and promises to keep his secret and seals her promise with a kiss.

"You received a wireless message yesterday, didn't you, a code message which contained the words 'dog' and 'saguache'?"

There was singing in the bar, Slim's voice trying to do a sentimental ballad. Then a kind of half-silence, the swish of water alongside, the sounds of the ship as she plodded steadily into the East, the East that Ronald Barker had made so peculiarly his own.

Then the sound of whispering voices, men's voices, beyond the shuffleboard where she could just see their shadows against one of the lifeboats.

Without planning, but moving instinctively, she got into her evening wrap again and went out into the corridor. Rallying her courage she ran along the gangway past Ronald Barker's cabin and peered out on deck. The shadows on the lifeboat were still there, but the voices were more muffled than before. She stepped out on deck and approached the group. They turned their backs to her, huddled together and looked out to sea. But their conversation stopped when she passed them, going on to the forward end of the promenade. When she returned they had disappeared.

It was not until she went into the corridor again that she realized the risk she had taken on the deserted deck. And now her footsteps turned instinctively aft to the bar where Slim's singing of "Mandalay," though hideous, was masculine, friendly and comforting.

Camilla stood for a long moment framed in the doorway before Slim and Michael saw her. Then they rose apologetically and asked her to join them. But social conversation was not in her mind. "Slim, I want you to go up to the captain with me," she said in a rush of words without preamble. "You, too, Michael."

Explaining as they went, Camilla led the way up the after companion ladder to the upper deck and so forward to the captain's quarters. Captain Simpson was just taking a nightcap with his first officer whose watch it was.

The two men bowed her in with her companions and offered a drink. But Camilla was already telling her story in brief broken sentences—of the conversation she had overheard a few nights before, and of the belief that Ronald Barker was not safe aboard the Orizaba without a guard over his stateroom at night. From smiling incredulity at her fears, they found her sincerity at last compelling.

"You'd better not let Mr. Barker know. I don't want him to think I'm meddling in his affairs."

"Well, it's my affair more than yours now, Miss Dean," Simpson said. "I've got orders from the company to put Mr. Barker safely ashore at Alexandria and I'm going to do it."

Michael and Slim stood rather sheepishly while Simpson gave the orders. He had hardly completed them when a muffled sound of shots and a clatter of broken glass came from somewhere below.

With the excitement of the group rushing out of the captain's suite, there were other sounds, calls from men of the watch on deck, as Camilla, between Slim and Michael, ran down into the A deck saloon where a few of the passengers in various degrees of negligence assembled, asking questions.

"Just some drunken idiot having target practice at one of our electric bulbs," Simpson said.

The excitement among the passengers diminished as Camilla went with Janet Priestly to talk things over. Slim and Michael followed the captain down the corridor toward Ronald Barker's stateroom. He met them at the open door where some of his neighbors stood inquiring. "No damage, Mr. Barker?" the captain asked.

"None at all. Some silly ass out on deck having target practice. Wake me up, just the way it did the rest of you."

"But it's your window that's broken, Mr. Barker."

Slim glanced out of the window and examined a piece of window glass on the carpet. It was a corrugated glass that would let in light but not vision.

"Funny thing, Mr. Barker," he said. "How do you account for the fact that splinters of the glass have fallen outboard on the deck, instead of inside the cabin?"

"So they have! Quite remarkable! You mean that someone must have fired from the inside of the stateroom?"

"Sure thing," Slim said. "The impact of a heavy bullet—it would take some of the glass with it."

Captain Simpson sat on the bed, listening and watching. "You'd better tell the whole story, Mr. Barker," he said quietly.

So, omitting Camilla's share in the adventure, Mr. Barker told what had happened. He had been warned of a possible attempt on his life aboard the Orizaba. He had not believed in his danger at first, but after he had turned in he found himself thinking how easy it would be for someone on the outside to take a pot shot at him through the half open French window and get away before the alarm.

Barker had switched off the ceiling light, made as good an imitation as he could of a sleeping figure in his bed by stuffing coverlid and underclothing under the blankets, then turned the bed light in its box so that it was dim and lay on the lounge hidden from the deck outside. Perhaps his informant had been mistaken. He was just getting drowsy when the silhouette of a head darkened the window. Then everything happened very rapidly.

He wasn't sure that the silhouette meant mischief until he saw the glint of light on a gun barrel. He fired quickly, while the silhouette fired also, aiming at the huddle under the bedclothes.

Barker went over to the bed and showed where two bullets had gone through the pillow and the neckband of one of his best shirts. "Pretty close that," he said.

"Sure thing," Slim gasped. "And here's where the bullets went through the head of the bed. That guy must have been practicing in a shooting gallery."

"It's all my fault, Mr. Barker," Simpson went on apologetically. "Knowing about you I might have suspected something in a ship's company made up like this one is. But I'm going through it with a fine-tooth comb before we reach Naples."

It seemed necessary in the morning for Camilla to get a new slant on the events of the previous day so that her thoughts would make sense. An important fact seemed to emerge. She had been most earnestly embraced by a man she had met only two days before. Another important fact was that she seemed to have liked it.

She took her coffee in her room and after her bath found herself with a new point of view which refused to accept Mr. Barker at his face value. She was glad when there was a clatter at the door and Josephine Holloway and Kitty Trimble rushed in. All night they had been ready to explode with curiosity, they said, for the story of Camilla's part in the affair was all over the ship, much distorted, making her a heroine of sorts.

"Well, Toots, you certainly put one over on Asad," Josephine gurgled. "and Slim and Michael, to say nothing of all the eligible females on this ark."

"What I came in to find out," Kitty Trimble said, "is what you've got that I haven't got. You haven't even got the experience of a handsome grass widow twice removed. And yet you walk off with the mystery man under my very eyes, which makes every woman beautiful, so he can make love to you; and then, just to show him how indispensable you are to him, you save his life from a bunch of assassins."

"There's nothing to tell except that he's half American, working for the British government—very interesting and what you'd call a good egg."

"But who was it wanted to kill him and why?"

"You'll have to ask him."

Josie gave a sniff of impatience. "Seems to me you're awfully snooty about him. You warn the man and keep him from being shot and he doesn't even tell you."

"It was none of my business."

"Or ours, I guess you mean. Oh, well—"

A knock on the door and a steward entered. "Captain's compliments, Miss Dean, and if it's convenient for you he would like to see you in his office at once."

The other girls rose as the steward went out. Camilla slipped into her coat and with a wave of her hand hurried out toward the gangway to the upper deck.

She was surprised to find a number of people, who almost filled the captain's cabin. Her glance passed over them quickly; passengers with those faces she was familiar. There were Slim, Michael, Ronald Barker, the Russian—Stephanov, Asad, Torelli and several other men. A steward, a member of the crew apparently just off duty, came in and stood near the desk were Simpson sat with the purser, Mr. Disston.

"Captain Simpson asked you up here," Barker whispered, "on the chance that you might recognize some of these men or their voices. It's pretty hopeless, but he wants you just to sit in and listen while they talk." She nodded and took the chair he offered her.

The captain addressed them all. "I invited you here because the room stewards have reported that none of you had dined in the half-past one o'clock last night. It was after that hour that a murder was attempted on this ship. Someone sneaked along A deck, in the darkness, and fired through the port of Mr. Barker's stateroom. Mr. Barker fired at the intruder from the sofa where he was lying, but in the dim light his shot went wild."

Simpson went on, looking sternly at the faces of his visitors. "Now, the captain of a ship," he continued, "is also chief of police, judge, jury and public prosecutor. I've asked you here to testify as to what you were doing at that hour. Mr. Asad, you were on the promenade deck just before the occurrence. Will you stand up and tell me if you heard the shots, where you were, and what you did?"

Joseph Asad smiled cheerfully. "Gladly. I had come in from a walk on deck where I passed Miss Dean and Mr. Barker. I stopped for a while in the saloon to find a book and then went down the main gangway of B deck and stood aft talking to the chief engineer who had just come out of his office to go below to the engine room. It was while I was talking to the chief that the shots were fired. Chief Zimmerman will, of course, verify this statement if you wish it. We could not tell where the shots came from, but we went at once to the saloon on A deck where a number of other passengers were gathered. It was there that I heard who had been shot at. Aside from this I know nothing about the affair."

"You have no idea as to who might have attempted to murder Mr. Barker?"

"Not the least idea," Asad finished.

Captain Simpson made a signal for Mr. Asad to be seated and called on Mr. Jose Serrano to testify.

Mr. Serrano was a small man with a scrubby brown pointed beard, streaked with gray, which he stroked affectionately.

"Mr. Serrano, you are an Assyriologist?" asked Captain Simpson.

"Yes, sir," he said, in excellent English. "I am on my way east to investigate some new discoveries in the Tigris-Euphrates valley."

"Did you ever hear of Mr. Barker?"

"In a general way, yes. Mr. Ronald Barker is very well known in Egypt and Palestine. I read his monograph on some of the Cairene diggings. I am very glad to meet him in the flesh."

"Can you imagine any reason why anybody on this ship should want to kill him?"

"I cannot."

MAY TAKE OVER FOREIGN SHIPS

President Roosevelt ordered Friday the Maritime Commission to carry out legislation authorizing the government to take over foreign ships laid up in American waters. Immediately after signing the so-called "ship seizure bill," he directed the commission to "purchase, requisition, or take over" foreign ships laying idle in the United States, the Philippines and Canal Zone.

Responding to the president's order, the commission said it was "prepared to take over the vessels and to allocate them to services that will be the most useful in the interest of national defense."

Eighty-four vessels of 459,140 gross tons, the commission said, may be subject to the order.

There is no official comment, but much speculation, as to what uses the vessels might be put.

There was talk, for example, that six tankers—two Danish, one German, one Italian and two French—might be used to carry oil to the Eastern seaboard, which is threatened with a shortage because of the diversion of American tankers to the service of the British. During the day Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who is petroleum administrator, asked the Maritime Commission whether the vessels might be so used.

Whether farm women realize it or not, their pressure cookers are their most important tools for national defense.

Texas farm women this spring can put their pressure cookers to work in their drive for better health and better fed families.

Poultry, beef, pork and fish, as well as vegetables can be canned in a pressure cooker. If directions are followed carefully homemakers can have a safe food supply with a minimum amount of spoilage, for the temperature under steam pressure canning is higher than in an open kettle, and it kills bacteria which can not otherwise be killed.

What most families like best about the pressure cooker is that they add jars of peas, beans, corn and other things to their storage shelves—th e kind of non acid vegetables they couldn't safely can before, and the kind that changes tiresome and deficient diets to balanced diets.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp
Return After Two Weeks Trip To Miss.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sharp and their daughter, Grace Marie, and son, John, returned home Friday afternoon after a two weeks trip to Mississippi. Rev. Sharp assisted his daughter in a revival meeting at Littlefield, Miss., a week before going to Jackson, Forrest and New Orleans, Miss.

They report a very enjoyable trip. Rev. Sharp stated that most of the southern states needed rain, there was no water in the delta, like there is at this time of the year.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Coen, accompanied them from New Orleans, to Vernon, where they are visiting another son, G. C. Sharp. Mr. and Mrs. Sharp plan to come home in a few weeks to stay for a while.

PLAINVIEW MAN
LOSES LIFE IN FLOODS FRIDAY

Running Water draw left its banks in Hale County Friday claiming the life of Bill Al Bond, 30, by drowning at Plainview.

Heavy rain at Springlake, Dimmitt, and Hart helped to cause the flood situation in Plainview.

Bond was assisting other men in releasing livestock from danger and, with Leon Woodall, had just turned a cow loose in the deepest part of the temporary lake. Woodall swam to safety but Bond sank within the sight of 20 or 25 persons.

The body disappeared in the swirling water and was not found until four hours later. Motorboats were enlisted and gigs were attached to drag the water.

Bond's body was found 1,500 yards from the point where it sank. Bond was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ransom Bond, residents of the low area. He was married and had two children, Dorothy Mae, 5, and Billie 3.

Other survivors are three brothers, Charlie and John of Plainview and George of Fort Worth, and three sisters, Mrs. W. T. Reynolds of Deming, N. M., Mrs. R. L. McLaugh and Mrs. Johnny Bond of Plainview.

Coen, Bobbie and Mary Jane Coen visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pharris.

The Texas Almanac Just Off Press

A book of 576 pages, The Texas Almanac for 1941-42, just off the press, is the largest volume in the long history of this biennial publication of The Dallas Morning News. A number of new features are included in addition to the usual chapters and statistical tables on such topics as agriculture, industry, population, history, soil and water resources, weather, minerals, manufacturing, transportation, retailing and wholesaling, government, education and civic affairs.

Has Texas really had more than six flags? How has the relationship of rural and urban population changed since 1930? Where were the tapir, sabre-toothed tiger and camel found in Texas? Who was Governor in 1893? What facilities has MacKensie State Park at Lubbock? Who won the Dixie Series in 1931? What are the total retail sales of Brady, Texas? These are typical of the wide variety of questions that can be answered from the pages of the new book.

New census figures on population, manufacturing, agriculture, wholesale and retail trade and service businesses are included. The historical chapter has been supplemented by a number of supplementary topics including a long list of Texas historical landmarks. These are especially complete chapters on highways and parks in anticipation of increased tourist trade in Texas during the next two years. The usual large folded maps, showing railroads and highways respectively, have been brought up to date, and there is an individual map of each of the 254 counties of Texas accompanying the county articles. New developments in Texas, including the defense industries, chemistry, conservation programs, changes in farm and farm tenantry, aviation, new army and navy posts, and political activities are covered. There are more than 50,000 separate and distinct facts about Texas in this "Encyclopedia of Texas".

Auto Vacuum Aids Anglers

To many the call of the open road also means the call of the open water. The automobile and good roads have brought thousands of beautiful lakes and streams within reach of the vacationist or the week-ender. Fishing seasons throughout the country are opening, and these young people were among the first to seek their favorite stream. They carry their own boat, lashed to the top of their Chevrolet, and held securely with a new vacuum-grip holding device actuated by vacuum power from the motor. Note the tube connecting boat rack with motor vacuum.

Wheat Marketing Quotas Approved; Big Crop Expected

B. F. Vance, administrative officer of the AAA in Texas, states that a bumper wheat crop estimated at 45 million bushels combined with marketing quotas approved last Saturday will bring 59,000 Texas farmers approximately 13 million more dollars this year than last.

Last year's crop was only 29 million bushels. Vance estimated the increased 1941 income using 1940 prices and an average loan value of 92 cents per bushel. Without the loans' price supporting value, Texas wheat prices would be considerably lower, he explained.

"The basic loan value of number two hard winter wheat stored at Galveston has been approved at $1.17 per bushel," he said. "However, this price will vary in different countries since the average freight rates applicable to various countries differ because of distance from terminals."

Vance called attention to the two types of approved storage and three kinds of loans to be made on wheat this year.

Farmers may store wheat either in approved storage structures within farm storage areas or approved public warehouses. Loans involve "regular" "excess", or federal crop insurance loans.

"Regular loans indicate the producer is within his wheat acreage allotment and may obtain a loan on all wheat produced.

"Excess loans are available only to non-cooperators on the amount of wheat subject to penalty. The loan value would be 60 per cent of the loan rate applicable to cooperators.

Producers receiving certificates of indemnity from federal crop insurance are eligible to obtain at values approved for his county on the number of bushels covered by FCI certificates.

Advocate Daylight Saving Time To Conserve Power

Americans face a prospect of going short on both oil and electricity because of the war abroad and this country's vigorous preparations for defense.

Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum administrator, warned that the great population of the eastern seaboard may be called upon, within a month, to forgo the use of automobiles for pleasure, both on week days and Sundays.

The office production management announced simultaneously yesterday that civilian curtailments in the consumption of power "in important areas" would be necessary if sufficient energy was to be made available "in time to produce the supplies of aluminum and magnesium demanded by the growing aircraft and lend-lease program."

Ickes accordingly renewed his advocacy of daylight saving time for the whole country, as an emergency measure to conserve electric power.

Underway To U. S. Navy To 1,000 Strength

A nationwide drive to bring United States Navy to the 400,000 strength authorized by Congress stepped up this week through the farming, urban and coastal areas of the Eighth Naval District in extended efforts to obtain reserve officers, enlisted specialists, small boat owners, merchant marine sailors by 30. The Eighth District has responsibility for procuring officers and men, or fifteen percent of a nation wide quota of 6,000 men.

isiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and the northwestern part of Florida—650 men have been recruited in the various classes, Captain T. A. Thomson, Jr., Acting Commandant of the District with headquarters in New Orleans, announced.

Of the remaining 4,550 men to be recruited, a total of 2,950 will be assigned to classifications in the U. S. Naval Reserve while the remaining 1,600 will be enlisted as apprentice seamen for careers in the Regular Navy. Approximately 1,000 men enrolled from the Eighth Naval District will be appointed as Reserve Midshipmen in Class V-7 and at the end of their training period they will be commissioned as Ensigns in the United States Naval Reserve and assigned to duty either at sea or at shore bases. Another 370 in Class V-5 will be commissioned Ensigns in the Naval Reserve aviation after completion of courses at Naval aviation training stations.

With the lake now running over and being the largest lake in West Texas, visitors to Buffalo are going to witness a "young ocean" where once was a mediocre stream of the Tierra Blanca Creek. Backed up 9 or 10 miles, Buffalo Lake today affords the best boat racing and nautical sports of any resort in the area and racing it will be when every type race from "Old Tack's Fishing Fleet Regatta to fast in-board cruisers will compete for high points, medals, trophies and other honors. Old Tack's Regatta is for fishermen. No motor of more than 10 horse power will be eligible and nothing but fishing boats allowed. The winner receives the Old Tack Plaque suitable for mounting in a den or on the bow of the boat. The Amarillo Times will award a trophy to the winner of the Sail Boat Classic, an event to be run each year on official opening days. There will also be Class A, B, and C hydroplane races as well as inboards and stock motors.

Wheat Crop Loans To average 98c Bu.

The agricultural department announced Thursday a schedule of rates—said to average about 98 cents a bushel—at which it would make loans to farmers on this year's wheat crop.

The loan program was established under recently approved legislation designed to support market prices of the basic crop — cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco—at 85 per cent of parity.

A similar program last year provided wheat loans at 56 per cent of parity.

(Parity is a term used to describe prices which would give farm products as much purchasing power as they had in the pre-World war period 1909-14).

The schedule set up base loan rates for the principal bread-grain markets and provided a formula for determining rates on grain which might be stored under loan elsewhere, either on the farm or in smaller markets or country elevators.
