LAMB COUNTY OFFERS TO LEASE 94,426 ACRES

Warning Issued Not to Plow Up Cotton Until Permit Is Received

County Agent D. A. Adam received a telegram from Washington Tuesday afternoon stating that the first contracts approved for plowing up cotton under the government cotton acreage reduction program, together with complete instructions, would arrive in Amherst Friday.

The telegram also stated that he would receive permits for the farmers to sign, allowing them, under certain conditions, to plow up a part of their cotton immediately.

Mr. Adam emphasized that no farmer should plow up any of his cotton until he has received instructions to do so. The permits may be received from the county agent at his office in Amherst after Friday at noon.

Two thousand Lamb county farmers have offered a total of 94,426 acres of cotton to the federal government in their effort to reduce cotton acreage in sixteen southern states. It is estimated that this county will receive approximately $945,000 in cash within the next few weeks for lease on the land.

It has been reported that Lamb county is second in the state with total acreage pledged and amount of money expected, signing up approximately three times the quota. The quota for Lamb county is 32,000 acres.

Lubbock county lead the state with 95,430 acres pledged.

Wallace to Accept Offers
Shortly after the dead line for the signing of cotton reduction contracts fell, Secretary Wallace announced his determination to accept such offers as meet the legal requirements and comply with the regulations and a proclamation to make such benefit payments was signed as required by the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

A procession tax on the first domestic processing of cotton will, un-

New Cotton Production Control Program Planned

Activity in drafting a new cotton production control program will be underway by farm administrators in Washington as soon as distribution of about $100,000,000 to more than 700,000 farmers in 16 states has been completed.

The proposed program will cover next year's crop and possibly that of 1935.

Producers and representatives of the cotton industry will be consulted in drafting the new plan but it was reported by authoritative sources that administrators already have come to an agreement on many fundamentals.

The chief of these is that they in-

Broom Corn Boosted As Plains Cash Crop

Broom corn seems to be the favorite among authorities as the salvation for a cash crop in parts of this section this year.

This is indicated in a letter received by J. C. Hilburn, president of the First National Bank of Littlefield, from the president of one of the leading broom corn companies in this section, and a well known authority on the crop.

In part the letter read that, "the broom corn planted to date over the United States with favorable weather conditions from now on could not produce over 20 to 30 per cent of a normal crop, which means high priced broom corn, around $200.00 per ton. So encourage your farmers to plant all they can plant as late as August 5 to 10. The Black Spanish Standard mature in 65 to 70 days under favorable conditions.

"In 1911 we saw broom corn planted at Texline and Clayton, Boise City, Oklahoma and Easter, Colorado, mature that was planted as late as August 3. You have better climatic conditions in Lamb county and it is almost a cinch it will mature. The buyers will take it even if it is a little frost bitten."

Mr. Hilburn said that on an average yield, broom corn would make around a ton to every two or three acres.

ALLEGED BANDIT KILLED IN FIGHT WITH OFFICERS

Companion Arrested After Chase; Officer Is Slain

Glenn Hunsucker, alleged to have been connected with the robbery of the Olton bank last summer, was killed in a gun fight with officers near Ramon, New Mexico, late Sunday afternoon.

Ed (Perchmouth) Stanton, also an alleged bank robber, who was with Hunsucker during the battle Sunday afternoon, was captured with his brother, Will, by New Mexico officers, late Monday afternoon between Corona and Ramon, New Mexico, after a 24-hour search. Neither resisted and officers lodged them in jail in Carrizozo, New Mexico, to be held pending the arrival of Tulsa, Texas, authorities.

Stanton escaped to the wilds of northeastern Lincoln county after officers had shot and killed Hunsucker when he and Stanton decided to

Amendment to Rural Aid Law Will Benefit Many Texas Schools

As a result of amendments to the new rural aid law, introduced by Senator Arthur P. Duggan in the latter part of the recent session of the State legislature, extensive benefits will accrue to a very large number of the schools of the State.

Under the provisions of the amended bill, school districts will benefit in the matter of transportation as follows:

School districts having less than 100 square miles of territory will receive $1 per month per pupil;

Mercury Reaches Highest Point In Recent Years

The smashing heat wave, which has been prevalent over the entire state, was broken in this territory Friday night, when following a sixty mile an hour wind and blinding sandstorm, showers fell in some sections of the Plains, including Lubbock, Slaton, Tahoka, Brownfield, Levelland, Plainview, Crosbyton and Floydada.

Friday was the hottest day experienced in this section for several years, according to pioneers in this section. One resident who had lived in Littlefield for thirteen years said it was the hottest he ever experienced here. The thermometer at the West Texas Gas Company's offices reported the temperature at 110 between three and four o'clock in the afternoon. Saturday the mercury tumbled to 94; Sunday it was reported at 92, Monday at 90 and Tuesday 94. Lubbock reported as high as 117 Friday at the flying field, while the mercury range in Central and West Texas was reported running from 113 to 115 degrees.

At San Angelo the mercury climbed to 111 degrees, lacking but one degree of equalling the all-time record of 112 set in August, 1910. Dallas had a maximum temperature of 100 degrees, causing four prostrations there Friday. Houston reported 96, while Wichita Falls 103, San Antonio 102, Austin 102 and Beaumont 94.

Rain again fell Saturday night in some sections, including half an inch at Dimmitt, and a quarter inch at Plainview. Sunday morning, Lamesa, O'Donnell, Tahoka, Brownfield, Meadow and Ropes had good rains.

Monday morning about 5:30 rain began falling in Littlefield, and continued until about 9:30 a slow steady rain, the total precipitation being one thirty-ninth of an inch. Levelland reported about an inch, Bledsoe about two inches, Bula, Enoch, Sudan and all towns west of Littlefield into New Mexico reported big rains. Levelland, Bledsoe, Morton and towns southwest of Littlefield reported showers again early Tuesday morning.

Following cloudy weather Monday and Tuesday, Littlefield and most of the trade territory were blessed with splendid rains Tuesday afternoon. Total precipitation here was 43/100 of an inch, according to L. C. Cawthon, official weather reporter.

Reports indicate that the rain extended three miles southwest; from Littlefield to Anton, northeast and southeast of Anton; Fieldton, Spade; from Littlefield to within three miles of Whitharral; six miles north and 2 1-2 miles due west. This would indicate that the greater part of the Littlefield trade territory, including some sections which had previously received very little moisture, got rain Tuesday.

The rains of the past week have been of much benefit to cotton, young feed and other crops.

Between six and seven hundred farm sales in one section of the country by one land company is a pretty good record, and when it is considered at least 85 per cent of these sales have been made to people who have already or shortly will become a bona fide settlers, the record is all the more plausible. Such is the record to date of the Yellow House Land company, which is selling out the Littlefield Estate and the lands formerly embodying the famous Yellow House Ranch.

LEVELLAND GIRL WINS ESSAY PRIZE

LEVELLAND.—Miss Merle Green, a high school girl of this city, is the champion in Texas in the tenth national meat story contest sponsored by the National Livestock and Meat Board. The subject of her winning essay was "Food Value of Meat."

The contest was participated in this year by more than 10,000 students from 565 high schools in 47 States.

Three nationally prominent home economists who had the difficult task of picking the winners were Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. P. Mabel Nelson, head of the foods and nutrition department, Iowa State College, and Miss Frances Swain, director of household arts in the Chicago public schools.

Essays submitted in this year's contest dealt with meat from the standpoints of food value, health, chemical composition, economy, place in the child's diet, etc.

Teachers have entered more than 100,000 high school girls in this educational contest since it was inaugurated.

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardui has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unnerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day." "My mother had taken Cardui, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time." Cardui is sold by local druggists.

tors society should offer no haven save prison bars.

The work of the peace officers whose function it is to apprehend criminals and of the courts whose duty it is to protect society by punishment of crime is undone by a stroke of the pen in the hand of the Governor. A criminal who has inadequately paid for his crime goes free, and other actual and potential criminals, who are restrained by nothing save a fear of condign punishment, are given more reason for believing in the underworld's tenet that it is easy to "beat the rap" of the law.

Roscoe Wilson's life was snuffed out by a criminal who wanted the money he carried. Roscoe Wilson's family is shattered by ruthless murder. And the murderer goes free by the grace of the Governor of Texas! —Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

A Murderer Goes Free

A MURDERER GOES FREE

The pardoning power placed by the State Constitution in the hands of the Governor is an instrument mighty enough to set aside the law. It is intended only as a last safeguard against mistakes of the law which might mete undeserved punishment to an innocent person or more punishment than deserved by a guilty one. Manifestly the occasions are rare upon which it may be properly used. The law does not err often on the side of undue rigor toward defendants. A governor who employs the pardoning power often attacks the validity of the law which that Governor is sworn to uphold.

These comments are brought forth by the pardoning by Governor Ferguson of W. A. Stone, the second Ferguson chapter in the progressive removal of punishment from the shoulders of the man who, convicted on his own confession of the murder of an unoffending citizen during an armed holdup in Fort Worth, now goes entirely free of the law's penalty prescribed for that crime. Two months ago the Governor, acting without the advice of the State Pardon Board, commuted Stone's sentence from 99 years to 15 years.

Was the 99 years meted out by a jury as punishment to Stone for the murder of Roscoe Wilson too heavy punishment? That is a question which the jury itself decided. The murder was in pursuance of a criminal enterprise itself punishable by death—that of armed robbery. But even if 99 years was too long a sentence, can it be reasonably said that six years—the length of time served by the convict—was long enough? The crime involved none of the romantic aspects which frequently lead juries and the public to adopt a lenient attitude toward those who take human life. It was a crime resulting from a sordid conspiracy to rob Roscoe Wilson of the money which he regularly carried from the theatre to the bank. The criminals went into the enterprise armed, evidencing their intention to take Wilson's life. It was a criminal foray for whose perpetra-

AWAKENED WOMAN

by Elinore Barry

Eighteenth Installment

Joyce Ashton, poor stenographer, suffered loss of memory in a taxi accident in Chicago. One morning two years later, after a fall from her horse, memory restored, to find herself, Mrs. Ashton, the wife of Neil Packard, California fruit packer. She decided to tell nobody of her present but set about learning what had happened to her in the interval. The conversation of her friends in her desk she gathered she had been a heartless, pleasure-loving young woman. One letter she had written from a woman named Sophie, blaming Frills for giving a home to a baby. So she was caring for. Could it be that baby, Frills wondered! She also remembered an affair with a man named Maitland. In San Antonio, where she went while her husband was away on business, she had always admired. When she returned home, she decided to tell Neil than Frills had. But this line was dangerous, for Neil was pathetically anxious to win back her love. At his request she called upon Neil's mother, Mrs. Joyce finds adorable. Later, she and the past, Robert Ainsworth, and she stopped for lunch at his home when she was horseback riding. One day he started to make love to her. Later, Joyce and Neil, out riding, are come upon by Ainsworth. Joyce makes full confession of her loss of memory and its restoration. When Neil accuses Joyce of being in love, Ainsworth makes a "graceless" exit, leaving Joyce to explain. Neil is hurt but arriving at home is called to his wife's home. Joyce decides she will go away.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Neil said slowly, "I guess that's all for me all right. . . . I was misled over by what you told me that day with that Ainsworth fellow. I didn't know what to believe. I can't think I just imagined I'd married at all!"

Then Joyce saw Roxie moving about the dining room, and she flung her arms impulsively about the older woman. "Roxie, you darling!" she cried, "Sam told me how wonderful you've been!"

Roxie beamed and flushed with pleasure. "I didn't do nothing!" she said confusedly. "But, my, it's good to have you back, Mrs. Packard, we've certainly missed you! And now do come in to dinner if you and Mr. Neil are ready."

"Where's Dickie?" she asked Neil, when they were seated. "I haven't seen him since I got back."

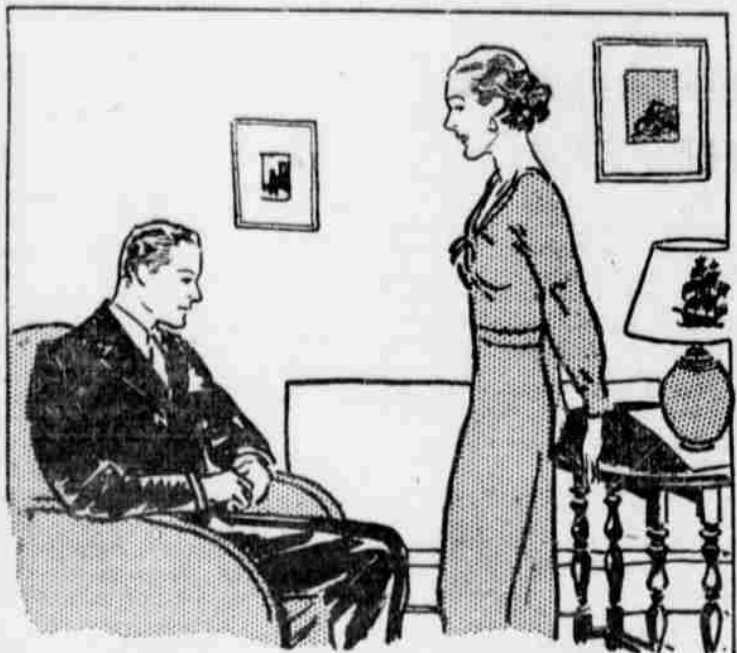

"Oh, that's right—I must send for him. He's been living with Sam since you left. Moped about the house so dismally that we thought he was going to cash in, poor chap. I couldn't do anything with him. He kept looking at me reproachfully, as if asking what I'd done with you. It gave me the creeps."

"Funny little Dickie!" said Joyce.

Conversation lagged. Joyce did not want to ask any questions covering the time of her absence, thinking she might turn Neil's thoughts toward his mother, and cause him pain. She likewise did not want to tell him anything about her life in San Francisco during

"Oh, that's right—I must send for him. He's been living with Sam since you left. Moped about the house so it with you—when you came home." He spoke so quietly that Joyce barely caught his words.

"Neil," she said impulsively, pausing before she opened the book, "I do feel at home here!"

He smiled, a sudden sweet flash that warmed Joyce to the heart, and gravely they opened the diary between them.

It was nearly midnight when they laid the book aside. Fascinated, they had read every word of the bold handwriting that danced over its pages, and, fascinated, they had suffered with the curious, lost spirit that had cried out her fears in her journal.

"Oh, Neil, it's so terrible!" cried Joyce, "I knew Frills had been a bad lot, but I never thought of her as suffering somehow—I never thought of her as doing all of these things deliberately, in a sort of crazy effort to get back her identity—to remember!"

"Yes," said Neil, "I don't know much about these things, but I should think the medicos might explain that second blow—the time you were thrown from Fire Queen—as a sort of mental snapping, due to the pitch you'd worked yourself up to."

Frills' diary filled in most of the gaps in the story that Neil had gradually pieced out that day for Joyce. From the scattered notes she learned that Frills had been conscious of her loss of memory, but filled with the conviction that all at once, some day, it would come to her whom she was, where she came from—her whole place of life.

"Some deep instinct," the diary said, "kept me from telling anyone. I felt that I must discover it, must work it out, for myself."

And then later, came an entry that made a very deep impression on Joyce. "I know I did wrong to marry Neil Packard without telling him. He's too good a man to be treated so meanly, but I just couldn't tell. I couldn't tell him. And I had to marry him—no again in a lifetime am I likely to meet a man so surely possessing that which can be depended on. In this crazy world it's something to know that loyalty of that sort can be secured."

As the diary went on, the entries became more and more excited. "I'm cheating Neil!" Frills cried, "He's got a right to a wife who's more than just a unit existing for the time being! I've got to get back my memory! Perhaps drink will do it. Bring on the wine cups—I'll try 'em!"

Why do I take so much perverse pleasure in shocking people around here? Maybe when I get back my memory I'll find I was a small-town school teacher, or somebody who never had a chance to express herself! Well, I'm expressing myself all right these days! All I've got to do is think of something reckless and wild, to be seized with an insane desire to do it! . . .

And then all at once, "Arthur Maitland—ugh, how I hate him! Why do I endure him around me? God knows! I flirt with him like a common street woman—yet I love Neil! Why do I do it? Sometimes I feel as if it's to try Neil's patience, to see how much he really will stand from me. There seems to be no limit to his affections!"

... I've gone almost the limit and it's done no good! What did I think it would do? God knows! Neil knows—I can see from his face that he knows there's been too much to that affair between Arthur Maitland and me. If he'd only knock me down—a blow, they say a blow will bring back one's memory. But Neil won't—he never will. I'll have to kill myself first. Perhaps that horse, that surly brute Fire Queen. But I have a charmed life—a charmed and a damned one! How is this thing going to end?"

And the last entry in the book, in sprawling, blotted characters: "I've been rotten over that baby of Sylvia's. Of course Neil wants it brought on here. But a child—why should I wreck the poor child's life as I'm wrecking Neil's? It's better off where it is—I'm a lost soul now."

"Neil," said Joyce at last, "Neil, doesn't it help to know that Frills did care about you? She did love you."

Neil did not reply to her question, and Joyce saw that he was trembling like a leaf. "Do you think—do you think, Joyce, that things might come out as mother hoped they would? Do you think you could feel that this was home? I shan't bother you much myself, but we might bring on Lawton's child, and do our best with it, between us."

"Oh, Neil, I feel as Frills said, that in this crazy world it's something to know that loyalty like yours exists! . . . Do you want me, now, knowing all this? It's been a sorry business, and it seems to me you've been the victim!"

"No victim about it," he said shortly. "I mean—I do want you—ff, well—what about this Ainsworth?"

"Ainsworth—Robert Ainsworth?" Joyce suddenly had an idea. "Neil," she said, "I think I see now what Robert Ainsworth felt that day! I think he must have felt ashamed of his part in the whole affair—I think he must have seen it all, have realized what a splendid person you were, and have felt that he simply couldn't run off with your wife!"

Neil looked at her sideways. "Sounds like the bunk to me. What on earth makes you think that?"

"Well, you see, Neil, I never saw him after that day in the woods, and you remember he behaved so queerly, rejecting me by his silence? Joyce had to swallow hard to keep back the emotion that surged over her at the memory, but she went quickly on.

"I'd always felt so sure that he was an exalted being, somebody finer than the rest of the world, and for him to turn into—into just a cad seemed all wrong. I'd rather be able to think of him without bitterness—and I do feel sure, I'm right, that he simply couldn't bring himself to take your wife away . . ."

Neil smiled. "All right with me, darling; think anything you please, as long as you don't think of him too much!"

Joyce regarded him tenderly. "Neil, may I make a confession to you?" she said softly. "I've fancied myself so superior to Frills, but I wasn't really nearly as—keen. It's taken me a terribly long time to find out what she knew all along. . . . Neil, dear, you're the finest person I've ever known in my life, and—I love you."

THE END

relieved by Black-Draught

"I decided to take Theodor's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Chan E. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I get bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. I get awfully dizzy. I know then that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. That, to me, is a very bad feeling. Now you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for CHILDREN."

LEVELLAND TO GET CHEESE FACTORY

LEVELLAND—On Wednesday of last week, C. M. Elder, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, received a telegram from W. G. Snyder, who in May sold a cheese plant in Wisconsin and who spent several days looking over the situation here last month, stating that he was buying equipment for a cheese factory and would leave for Levelland soon.

From the message and the recent correspondence between the two men, it would seem that the new enterprise is now a certainty.

Cotton—

der the provisions of the law, go into effect August 1.

Secretary Wallace in announcing that the cotton plan would be adopted and the producers' offers accepted issued the following statement:

"Incomplete reports from the 16 cotton producing states that have been received by Mr. Cully A. Cobb, chief of the cotton production section, indicated that the response of growers to the program has been sufficient for me to announce that offers will be accepted.

About 3,500,000 Bales Offered
"We estimate that, on the basis of the report from the extension directors, approximately 3,500,000 bales have been offered to us under the terms of the proposals submitted to the growers. This amount of cotton represents in excess of 9,000,000 acres.

"Our reports further indicate that the estimates placed on their yields by growers have been conservative and fair. Considering the elimination of land that produces under 100 lbs. of cotton to the acre, the estimates that have been made on production appear, on the whole, entirely consistent with previously recorded averages.

"A processing tax will, under the law, be in effect as of August 1. The rate of this tax is fixed by law and is being computed now."

Farmers Are Warned

In urging the farmer not to plow up the cotton contracted Mr. Wallace said, "I wish to emphasize that cotton producers should not construe this announcement as an acceptance of individual offers. Under the regulations, individual acceptances are required. These individual acceptances are being prepared just as rapidly as the individual contracts can be examined and reviewed. They will be sent to the county agents as quickly as possible. The first of such acceptances will be mailed out promptly. No producer should take steps to eliminate the acreage he has offered from cotton production until he has been instructed to do so and his individual acceptance received.

"It should be remembered that under the terms of the offer, we have the right to scale down the amount of acreage offered. Also it is probable that there will be offers which may be legally defective or for other reasons must be rejected or the defects remedied. Upon sufficient evidence of compliance with the terms of accepted offers, which do not become a contract until the individual acceptance have been received, the checks for the rental payments and the options on government-held will be immediately forthcoming."

Following is a table of South Plains counties giving the quotas, acres pledged, value of crop offered government, bales under option and number of contracts approved:

DUGGAN RETURNS TO LITTLEFIELD AFTER CONFERRING WITH HEADS OF COTTON ACREAGE REDUCTION PLAN

Senator A. P. Duggan returned to Littlefield Monday after he and three other prominent Texans spent five days in Washington with G. A. Cobb, administrator for the cotton acreage reduction program, in a fruitless attempt to secure cotton lease money for those farmers who were unable to grow cotton this year due to weather conditions.

Those accompanying Mr. Duggan were United States Congressman Jones and United States Senator Tom Connally. The three men were met in Washington by Amon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

In discussing the outcome of the hearing, Mr. Duggan stated that the farmers in areas in which weather conditions were unfavorable would not receive lease money as other farmers was "an outrage," and the final answer the committee received from Mr. Cobb was that he "simply could not do anything about it."

Mr. Cobb explained to the committee that should he make any change from the plan of the program for this section alone, he would be called upon from every section of the South for special consideration, and he refused to vary from the program of operation.

Three Plans Offered

Mr. Duggan stated that the committee presented three plans to Mr. Cobb and all were refused.

The first plan was that farmers whose cotton acreage was reduced due to weather conditions should be permitted to participate in the lease money just the same as wheat farmers. The wheat acreage reduction plan provides that the farmer be paid for a lease on the land under the condition that he agree not to plant wheat. The second plan presented to Mr. Cobb was that those farmers who have no cotton to plow up be permitted to take advantage of the option.

Ask Extension of Time

Mr. Duggan said that after those two proposals were refused that the committee asked for an extension of time until July 25 for farmers, in sections in which weather conditions had been unfavorable, to get a stand of cotton. However, this plan, too, was rejected.

Wheat Brings $1.25 Per Bushel In Chicago Monday

Wheat sold for more than $1.25 a bushel at Chicago Monday, while all grains, including wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley were wanted by speculators, who acted as if this were their last chance to buy.

The speculators were not selling for profits. Wheat, for example, opened slightly higher and then proceeded to march right on up the hill, almost without a pause, until a maximum advance of 5 1-8 cents a bushel had been recorded. Then the market reacted a cent or more. At the close the maximum gains were just under four cents a bushel with the May delivery at $1.26.

The advance in wheat was startling enough, but was overshadowed by the action of barley. Quietly and with no more fuss than wheat, barley prices advanced 12 cents a bushel in the short space of two hours and every step of the gain was made by 1-4 and 1-2 cent jumps.

The December delivery opened at 73 1-4 cents and never stopped rising until it hit a peak of 83 1-2 which was 11 3-4 cents higher than Saturday's close.

Not only wheat and barley, but rye, corn and oats enjoyed a taste of prosperity. There seemed little news to account for the advance, except reports from Canada that the weather was unfavorable for wheat.

Traders even fell back on weather beaten weather adages to account for the upturn in corn.

Flour rose to a 5-year record in Minneapolis. A 30 cent advance carried the price to $8.95 a barrel, including $1.38 process tax to pay farmers to curtail wheat.

Corn crossed 80 cents a bushel with the May delivery as high as 82 cents at one time but reacting a little to finish at 82 5-8.

Wheat, however, dropped to $1.15 Wednesday.

Alleged Bandit—

shoot it out with the sheriff's posse near Ramon late Sunday afternoon. During the exchange of shots, Tom Jones, deputy sheriff, was shot down and killed.

Gunman Identified

The alleged Texas bank robber and gunman was identified as Hunsucker when officers said his description tallied exactly with that given them by Tulsa authorities. The body was brought here and will be held pending the arrival of officers from Tulsa.

Meanwhile, Sheriff McCamant led his men over the rough country near Ramon in search of Stanton, who fled on foot after officers had killed Hunsucker. It was believed he could not be far away as traveling that desolate region would be slow without a mount of some sort.

One Man Arrested

McCamant and his force of deputies were led to the outlaw's camp after a gun fight staged with them near Corona, N. M. Saturday night had led to the arrest of Dobby Blankenship, believed to be a third member of the gang, at Tipton Well, seven miles from Ramon. Blankenship is being held for further questioning by the Texas officers.

On approaching the campsite of the two men, the officers found themselves in the direct line of fire from the outlaw's guns.

Jones fell on the first exchange of shots and Hunsucker's death came soon afterwards. Stanton, seeing himself outnumbered, evaded the officers and escaped on foot.

"Central Airport," Based Upon Today's Air Heroes, Coming To Palace Theatre

Heralded as the "Dawn Patrol" of 1933, Richard Barthelmess' newest picture "Central Airport" comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight and runs through Sunday and Monday. The super air-thriller glorifies the flying heroes of peace . . . not war . . . and is said to exceed anything that the talented star has ever done.

The powerful story deals with the hazardous lives and the exciting loves of these hardy navigators of the stormy air-lines. Richard Barthelmess plays the part of a returned war hero who pilots trans-continental passenger planes. He crashes his ship, with a heavy toll of lives, and is "grounded." Discredited in the game he loves and the only one he knows, he goes barn-storming with a traveling air-circus, and falls in love with Sally Eilers, a parachute jumper.

Their glamorous love affair and the many thrilling plane crashes build "Central Airport" into a mighty drama. The principals are as reckless with their loves as they are with their lives. But Barthelmess believes that a flyer, with his life always in the hands of fate, is a coward to marry.

Broken and filled with a savage recklessness when he learns that he has lost the girl he loves forever, Barthelmess turns to any flying job that offers enough danger, whether it's fighting in the Orient, or leading a South American resurrection. He becomes famous even to the far corners of the earth as a pilot who laughs at death, and even goes out of his way to tempt it.

The ending of this throbbing First National spectacle is one of the most spectacular and thrilling scenes ever filmed as it presents a phase of peace time aviators' work. Barthelmess as the pilot rescues the passengers from a sinking plane in the storm swept Caribbean sea.

Wellman, former war aviator who directed "Wings" and "Young Eagles," outdid himself in "Central Airport" with his unbelievable sky scenes.

Tells How She Took 4 Ins. off Hips 7 Ins. off Waist

In 40 days by taking Kruschen salts, Mrs. Helga Blaugh of New York City reduced 26 1/2 lbs.—took 4 inches off hips, 3 inches off bust and 7 inches off waist. She writes: "I haven't gone hungry a moment—I feel fine and look 10 yrs. younger." To get rid of double chins, bulging hips, ugly rolls of fat on waist and upper arms SAFELY and without discomfort—at the same time build up glorious health and acquire clear skin, bright eyes, energy and vivaciousness—to look younger and feel it—take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast. One jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle at any drug store the world over. Make sure you get Kruschen because it's SAFE. Money back not joyfully satisfied.

State Agent Advises Farmers to Grow All Feed Possible

"The answer to the question of what to do with retired cotton acres and with the time released from tending to them has been written in the fields, in the barn lots and in the homes of 100,000 farms these past few years," says O. B. Martin, director of Texas Extension Service. "Now is the time for Texas to cash in on the work of its demonstration army-men and women and boys and girls. Now is the time for decisive action to swing Texas to a better balanced farm system while a new land policy is in force."

"The great majority of estimated cotton yields put into offer contracts by Texas farmers in the acreage reduction campaign are conservative," announced H. H. Williamson, vice-director and state agent of the Extension Service after checking county returns at the end of the first campaign period. "Unusually high estimates of yields in some instances, suggesting that mistakes may have been made in preliminary estimates, are to be checked the week of July 10th in all parts of the State," he continued.

"The Government is offering the cotton farmer a square deal and is demanding a square deal in return," he added. "No farmer is asked to claim a lower yield for his retired cotton acres than present prospects justify. It is well known that yields of some farmers are higher than those of others, but where the difference is very great the Government feels that a careful check should be made to remove all doubt. The government has accurate production records in every county, and is well informed on present crop conditions," Mr. Williamson concluded.

There should be no let-up in living at home activities now that quick cotton money is in sight, points out Mildred Horton, state home demonstration agent and H. H. Williamson, vice-director and state agent of the Extension Service in a joint statement to farm families and to county farm and home demonstration agents.

"All that may be gained by cash cotton rentals this summer may be lost this fall and winter unless all the feed and food that can possibly be raised to advantage on the farm is put into storehouse and pantry," they say. "Texas farm families saved themselves the last three years by making their farms almost self-sustaining as far as feed and food are concerned. There is no reason now to stop feeding the hogs and bees for winter killing, or to sell off most of the poultry flock, or to give up plans for a fall garden, or to give away the steam pressure cooker and sealer. Texas cotton farmers have gotten a 'break.' If they hang on to their depression life saver—living—at home—they have a good chance to turn this 'break' into a permanently better future," the statement concludes.

Boiled to its essence, the cotton contract forces the signer to do something toward living at home, or toward enriching his land, or toward stopping soil erosion.

What can a farmer do with those extra acres? Well, he can sow cowpeas, season permitting, and have some good cow and hog feed, and perhaps some food for his family. If he gets a rain he might try a late sowing of sudan grass. It should give him grazing for work stock and cows until way up in the fall.

He may plant some late feed to get his stock through the winter. He may dig a trench silo and plan to fill it with late feed. If some of the acres are rather unproductive anyway, he might get ready to have a filing at a permanent pasture by sowing improved grasses and clovers this fall.

Speaking of pastures, a fine way to handle a few acres is by sowing to such small grains as oats or barley or rye this fall. A winter pasture is something much to be desired, thousands of farmers can tell you.

A good cover crop of sorghum or cowpeas for turning under late this fall might be a good move. Whatever the future holds in store it's a safe bet that low yielding acres won't pay tomorrow any more than they do today. A farmer for his own good ought to either tune his poor acres up with cover crops or manure, or turn 'em out to pasture.

Amendment—

Lamb county which will come within the $2 bracket. They are Olton, Littlefield, Sudan and Spring Lake.

Senator Duggan endeavored to have all school districts with 50 square miles of territory receive the $2 per month per pupil, but did not receive sufficient support of the other legislators.

A very important provision of the new rural aid law is the fact that high school students riding in any rural school district may be transported to a district having an affiliated high school, the state paying the transportation and the tuition. This makes it unnecessary to maintain a high school. The law provides that the state must pay $2 per pupil per month for transportation and $7.50 per month tuition, both items covering the cost of attending an affiliated high school.

The new law will bring state aid up to approximately $60,000 for the schools of Lamb county during the next school year, according to L. R. Rochelle, county superintendent of schools.

Mr. Rochelle stated that the amendment to the rural aid law was put through by the efforts of Mr. Duggan, and would benefit a large number of the schools in Mr. Duggan's district—the 30th Senatorial district—and great numbers of schools throughout the state.

Features of The Law

A number of the leading features of the law are given in this article.

Section 1 of the law reads as follows:

"For the purpose of promoting public school interest in rural schools and equalizing the educational opportunities afforded by the State to all children of scholastic age living in small and financially weak school districts, there is hereby appropriated out of the General Revenue, $3,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the school year ending August 31, 1934, and $3,000,000 or as much thereof as may be necessary for the school year ending August 31, 1935, to be allotted and expended in accordance with the provisions of this act; provided, that any unexpected balance occurring at the close of the year 1934, may be transferred and added to the appropriation for the year ending August 31, 1935.

Section 2 of the law says: "State aid under the provisions of this act may be distributed in such a way as to assist all schools of not fewer than 20 scholastics and not more than 400 scholastics located in districts of not more than 500 scholastics, and consolidated districts which have an average of not more than 200 scholastics of each original district composing the consolidated unit, and all districts composed of entire counties having a scholastic population of less than 5,000; providing the provisions of this section shall not apply to any school district containing 48 square miles of territory or more, and further provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to any school district where 60 per cent, or more, of its students are transported in public buses from the rural districts."

Section 5 of the law provides that "no school shall be granted aid under the provisions of this act whose average daily attendance is less than 70 per cent of the scholastic census enrollment for either white or colored school."

Section 7 of the law reads as follows: "No part of the aid herein provided for teachers' salaries shall be given to a school district with an assessed valuation in excess of $3,000 per scholastic, as shown by the scholastic census, said valuation being assessed as provided heretofore; provided, that this section does not apply to school districts that levy and assess a $1 tax on the $100 valuation of taxable property."

Section 8 of the act says: "No part of the aid herein provided shall be used for increasing the monthly salary of any teacher, but the funds provided for in this act shall be used for the exclusive purpose of extending the length of the school term of the schools situated in the district receiving such aid on the basis of a schedule of teachers' salaries to be determined by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction with the approval of the State Board of Education."

Section 9 of the act says: "All state aid schools of the unaffiliated class shall provide a term of approximately eight months. These schools shall be classified by the county school board as to provide as near as possible an eight month's term out of State, county and local funds. Should there not be sufficient funds to maintain the school as herein stated, then state aid may be granted, subject to other provisions of this act; provided, that road conditions would present the transportation to nearest accredited high school."

During the week beginning August 7, supervisors from the State Department of Education will visit Lamb, and other counties of this section, and will be available for meetings and conferences with trustees for the purpose of assisting in planning the work for the school year 1933-34.

Schedule of Salaries

A schedule of teachers' salaries in rural aid schools for 1933-34, has been adopted by the State Board of Education.

Trustees in making contracts with teachers in schools of the unaffiliated type shall follow the salary schedule as prepared by the State Board of Education. Any excess salaries cannot be made up out of rural aid funds.

The schedule approved by the State Board of Education is as follows:

One-teacher schools, $80 per month; two-teacher schools, principal, $85 per month, assistant, $75 per month; three-teacher schools, principal $95 per month, each assistant, $75 per month; four-teacher schools, principal, $100 per month, primary, $85 per month, other assistants, $75 per month; five-teacher schools, principal, $105 per month, primary teacher, $85 per month, other assistants, $75 per month; six-teacher schools, principal $110 per month, primary teacher, $85 per month, other assistants, $75 per month; seven-teacher schools, principal, $120 per month, primary teacher, $85 per month, high school assistants, $85 per month, other assistants, $75 per month; schools above seven teachers, principal, $125 per month, primary teacher $85 per month, high school assistants, $85 per month, other assistants, $75 per month.

age would be entitled to these payments.

A parity price is one designed to raise the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar to the same level it had during the pre-war period.

This plan would abandon both the option and the leasing elements that went into this year's program which administrators regarded of an emergency nature. Farmers who signed contracts in this year's acreage reduction campaign were given either cash payments for retiring from production a portion of their crops, or were given cash payments and an option to buy specified amounts of Government owned cotton at six cents a pound—five cents below the market price.

Resembles Wheat Plan

The new plan will bear many resemblances to the wheat program on which administrators will concentrate next what they called an "educational" campaign some of whose methods will be reminiscent of liberty loan drives.

Gaudy posters urging farmers to "stand by your own neighbor," and speakers with demonstrated persuasive abilities are to be sent into many of the 800 counties where wheat is the chief crop to lay the foundation for an effort to obtain agreements from growers starting August 1.

Farmers will be asked to sign agreements to reduce their acreage in 1934 and 1935 up to 20 per cent in return for cash payments provided from a fund now swelling with the proceeds of the 30-cent per bushel tax on grain milling which went into effect July 9.

Arkansas, Alabama Vote For Repeal

Arkansas and Alabama were the first states of the "solid south" to vote for the repeal of the prohibition amendment. Incomplete returns of Monday's voting showed that Alabama favored repeal by about two to one. The vote for repeal in Arkansas was three to two.

Yesterday's vote brought the number of states on record for repeal to 18, with prohibitionists yet to score their first victory.

Tennessee will vote today, with Oregon following Friday. Thirty-six states must vote for repeal if the prohibition amendment is to be nullified.
