FARMERS OF COUNTY AGREE TO DESTROY 37,000 ACRES OF GROWING COTTON

FARMERS TO BE PAID 9½ CENTS FOR COLLATERALIZED COTTON

WILL BENEFIT MANY FARMERS IN LAMB COUNTY

Price Advances On Cotton Held For 1931-32 Crop Loans

The Farm Credit administration, in accordance with the Agricultural Adjustment act has been directed by Congress to sell to the Secretary of Agriculture all cotton taken from growers on seed and crop production loans.

The Farm Credit Administration has made arrangements whereby final settlement for this cotton with the growers will be made on the basis of 9½c per pound, based on July New York, for middling 7-8 cotton, with current adjustments for variations in grade, staple and location.

The various agencies handling this cotton are rapidly developing final settlement reports for the farmers on this price basis. These reports will be mailed in the near future. In case where the sales proceeds exceed the loans and cost, the difference will be paid to the growers. In cases where the proceeds are less than the loan and where the collateralized value placed on the cotton is greater than the sale proceeds, the grower's note will be credited with the amount of the collateralized value in an amount not in excess of the note.

Hilliard Smith, district field superintendent, stated that this cotton was held as collateral at 8c and 9c per pound on the 1931 and 1932 crop loans, and would not only take care of the loans but would pay an additional $4,000 or $5,000 to Lamb county farmers. Several farmers in the county have approximately 100 bales of collateralized cotton from which they will receive an additional $2.50 per bale cash after the debt is paid.

Littlefield And Vicinity Visited By Showers

Showers fell in Littlefield and vicinity Thursday afternoon, but did not cover much territory, the showers being scattered. Littlefield received thirty-three one-hundredths of an inch moisture.

Monday night and early Tuesday light rains were reported in the vicinity of Anton and Meadow, but only a light sprinkle was felt here.

Littlefield was again visited by rain Tuesday afternoon, when thirty-five one hundredths inch fell. The rain was purely local, however, as it only extended about 3½ miles east with a short distance north, west and south.

Heavy clouds overhung the Littlefield section Wednesday afternoon and evening, but no rain fell. Lubbock reported a nice shower, while the section from Anton to Yellow House Switch had a good rain. A good shower was reported northeast of town for about five miles, while a good rain is reported beginning about four miles west of Littlefield and extending to Sudan.

The rain today covered a portion of territory which has not heretofore had much moisture.

COTTON CROP IN THIS TERRITORY IS LOOKING GOOD

Best Sub-Soil in Five Years, R. T. Badger Says

Notwithstanding the small amount of moisture received in this section of the South Plains during the spring and summer, the cotton crop in most sections of the Littlefield trade territory is looking good.

According to R. T. Badger of the Yellow House Land Company here, who is well versed in matters pertaining to the South Plains land, this is attributed "to the good underground season we have, caused by the splendid rains received last fall. We have the best sub-soil moisture in five years, and that accounts for the crops looking so good. This is an indication of the splendid land in this section. If we get a little rain from now on, there is no reason why we should not have pretty good crops. From now until the 15th of July is a good time to plant feed."

In addition to directing the fire department, Mr. Arnold took a very active interest in all matters relative to reducing fire losses. LARGE PER CENT FAVORS COTTON CONTROL PLAN

1000 Contracts Signed In County; Bailey County Endorses Measure

County Agent D. A. Adam announced Wednesday night that up to that time approximately 1000 Lamb county farmers had signed cotton acreage control contracts.

These contracts represent about 37,000 acres which the farmers of this county have agreed to plow under, if the government's acreage control program is put into operation.

95 Per Cent To Sign
Mr. Adam said that he believed that Lamb county farmers would sign up about 95 per cent strong for cotton acreage control.

The county agent for Lamb county also is in charge of the cotton acreage control program in Bailey county, that county not having a county agent. Mr. Adam said that Bailey county farmers also would sign up 95 per cent strong.

S. C. Evans, district agent, conferred with Mr. Adam at Amherst Wednesday night. He has charge of 24 counties in this section as district agent, and reported that farmers in all those counties were enthusiastically signing up for cotton acreage control.

A definite announcement as to the last date on which farmers may execute contracts has not been received. Farmers are urged to sign contracts without delay.

Three others also charged in the same burglary were arrested by Sheriff Irvin. One of the four cases has been disposed of in the courts, giving the man his liberty.

The three remaining parties are scheduled for trial at the August term of district court.

4-H Club Work Is A History of Outstanding Accomplishments

Have you ever taken time to review the splendid accomplishments of 4-H club work in Lamb county and throughout the nation?

In 4-H club work the boys and girls get a "break"; they really do things; they receive a training which fits them to be more useful men and women.

Miss Ruby Mashburn, home demonstration agent, and D. A. Adam, county agent, are in charge of 4-H work in Lamb county, and are doing a wonderful work.

The boys and girls participating in 4-H work are intensely interested in their projects and enjoy discussing them. Read what Opal Turner, a member of the Amherst 4-H club, has written concerning her club and her personal accomplishments. Here's what she says:

"I joined the Amherst 4-H club the first meeting in December, 1932. This was the beginning of my second year as a club girl. We elected new officers for the coming year. The officers elected were as follows: President, Mildred Garton; vice-president, Opal Turner; secretary, Virginia Belle Logan; reporter, Jessie Marie Seagler. The officers selected demonstrators. They were as follows: Opal Turner, bedroom; Virginia Belle Logan, wardrobe; Jessie Marie Seagler, poultry.

Our first project of the year was making doll dresses. This was very interesting for the girls, because they learned many useful things in making children's and infants' clothing. Prizes were awarded for the best dresses. There were two classes of the dresses, the sheer and print. Mildred Garton won first on the sheer and Virginia Belle Logan won first on the print. I won second on the sheer. I will keep the little prize in memory of Amherst 4-H club.

Meat Canning Contests

The next contest we held was meat canning. There were two teams entered in our club, so we had a tryout. Mildred Garton and I won that. Our demonstration was on roast. At the county we had three competitors. There we won first and received a cash award of $2.50. We demonstrated on the preparation of cans. Next we went to the district. There we had 13 competitors and we were lucky enough to come out third, and received a cash reward of $6.00. We demonstrated on the making and canning of chili. I enjoyed the banquet that was held at the Hilton Hotel in honor of the 4-H boys and girls that participated in the annual meat show at Lubbock.

On February 14, we had a valentine party and invited a guest each. Many games were played and the refreshments were very unique; heart shaped teacakes and cocoa, in keeping with the valentine scheme.

Banquet is Held

Our next project was making pajamas and getting so much work done in order to get an invitation to the Mother-Daughter April fool banquet. At the banquet everything was done backwards. In keeping with the April fool spirit. The mothers came dressed as little girls and the girls came dressed as old women. Prizes were awarded to each. Mrs. Logan won the prize as being the best little girl, and I won the prize on being the best old woman. It was the cutest little micky mouse and a bottle of perfume, of which I am very proud. After the party our pajamas were judged. Virginia Belle Logan had the best pair of pajamas with a score of 97.

At our second meeting in April we made plans for our next contest, which was to be a sack and cake contest. The cakes were made with Rufford's baking powder. I won the prize on cake with a score of 89. Mildred Garton won first prize on the sack contest. We also handed in some racks which will be judged soon. At the first meeting in May we made plans for making our mothers something for Mother's Day and writing our club history. We also made plans for our dress contest, which will come off some time in June.

Improves Bedroom

I have enjoyed fixing my room very much and I have learned many useful things. I have learned how to make an attractive room for $5.00. I made a little dresser for fifty cents, and a clothes closet for $3.50 and a shoe rack and a hat rack out of the scraps that were left. These two things are very useful for a clothes closet and save so much mess in the bottom of the closet.

I repainted a bedstead which made it look almost new. I had enough left to paint another. I put a bottom in a chair for nothing and it is very attractive, for it was fixed with a calf hide. Now it is a comfortable chair and before we couldn't use it at all. I have done my best to help my club win the bedroom contest this year. I enjoyed making the things and I have learned many things in cooking and sewing this year in the club.

4-H club work is a useful work. It shows farm girls how to be economical and make their homes more attractive for a small cost. If every girl and boy in Texas, between the ages of 12 and 18 belonged to a 4-H club now, in four years time there wouldn't be any ramble down yards or dawdy bedrooms and there would be better stock, poultry and cultivated lands. Texas would soon be called the state of beautiful farm homes and the home of the best breed of stock and poultry.

AWAKENED WOMAN

by ELINORE BARRY

seventeenth installment

Joeye Ashton, poor stenographer, suffered loss of memory in a taxicab accident in Chicago. One morning two years later, after a fall from her horse, memory restored, to find herself, the wife of Neil Packard, California fruit packer. She decided to tell nobody of her present but set about learning what she had been in the interval. The conversation of her friends led her to a heartless, pleasure-loving young woman. One letter she received was from a woman named Sophie, blaming Frills for giving a home to a baby. She was curious. Could it be her? Frills wondered! She also herself involved in an affair with a man named Maitland. In San Diego, where she went while her husband was away on business, she met Robert Ainsworth, a poet whose name she had always admired. When he returned home, she decided to tell him of her life. But this was dangerous, for Neil was pathetically anxious to win back her love. At his request, she called upon Neil's mother, who found her adorable. Later, she met the poet, Robert Ainsworth, and the poet stopped for lunch at his home when she was horseback riding. Later, Joeye and Neil, out riding, came upon Ainsworth, who confessed her loss of memory and its restoration. When Neil accuses Joeye and Ainsworth of being in love, Ainsworth makes a "graceless" exit, leaving Joeye to explain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"That's all true, all right, and you had me guessing too. But of course Frills wasn't wild and reckless when I married her—you—say, I don't know who I did marry!"

"That's what I've got to find out, Neil! It's been driving me nearly crazy, and now at last I've had the courage to tell the truth, as far as I know it. Will you tell me, Neil, how you met Frills and all that?"

"Why, at Joe and Maise Turner's of course! Don't you really remember, Frills—or I mean Joeye? Gosh, this gets my goat, I feel as tho' we'd all gone absolutely nutty—"

"I felt that way when I first woke up and found myself Mrs. Packard," she said gently, "but I've lived with the idea so long that I've gotten a bit used to it. Tell me about the Turners."

"Why, it was their car that ran into your taxi in Chicago. Joe was running for some political office at the time, and he was very anxious to keep out of the papers in any way that might bring him any unpleasant publicity, so he gave the police a tip, I suppose, and got them to allow you to be taken to his house instead of to a hospital. You were unconscious a couple of days, and when you woke up you were in a dazed condition. I remember Maise saying they thought you never would say a word, and how queer it made them feel, having someone lying there conscious, but just looking at the walls without saying anything."

"Fancy! That was me, and I don't remember any more about it than if it had never happened!"

"Joe and Maise had a time finding out who you were. The doctor said just to leave you alone and you'd come around all right. And, sure enough, that was what happened, or what everybody thought had happened."

"The Turners were lively, entertained a lot, plenty of money and all that, and as soon as you were well they introduced you around to their friends. You made a hit with ever one, and that tickled them. My cousin Lawton Packard's wife was a great friend of Maise's, and I'd met her and Joe a number of times in Manzanita, and they'd always told me to look them up if I ever was in Chicago. It struck me to do it one time; I called them up and Joe invited me out to dinner that night, throwing a lot of dark hints about a swell girl who was staying with them. I went, and it was you I met—Florence Hilton was the name. I took a terrible tumble, and in a couple of weeks we were engaged."

"I kept stringing out the business in Chicago, and finally—I remember now that it was your own suggestion—we were married right away, before we left town, and you came back to Manzanita as Mrs. Neil Packard!"

"She knew she must go away—"

Joeye had been held spellbound by Neil's recital. It was all so queer and unreal, and she felt her head swimming by the strangeness of it.

"Didn't you ask me anything about who I was, and all that, when you wanted to marry me? How did I act? Was I like the Frills I've heard about, or more like Joeye?"

"Well, you see, every one treated you with kid gloves, so to speak, on account of this accident," said Neil. "It was understood that you'd had a great shock, and that you mustn't be pressed. The doctor kept saying, just leave her alone and she'll come around all right. All this mystery was very exciting, you understand—we all got a great kick out of it . . . I remember I wanted to ask you a lot of things when we were first engaged, but you said to me, 'Neil, you've got to trust me. There are some things I can't tell you, and you mustn't ask me about who I am and all that. There's nothing I'm ashamed of, and some day I expect I'll tell all there is to tell.' A shade passed over Neil's face. 'I always thought you would tell me, but you never did . . .'"

Joeye watched him excitedly. The strange story gripped them, so that realities were seen through a haze.

"Oh, Neil, I think I see it all now, don't you? Frills just couldn't remember back! She was trying to remember all the time, and she couldn't! It must have been awful for her, mustn't it? When did she change, when did she get reckless and wild?"

"I guess that came gradually," Neil answered with puckered brow. "I can't remember any special time when it began. First she took to drinking more than I liked; that really worried me a lot. Then it seemed as if she couldn't do stunts reckless enough, as if she were almost trying to kill herself! She drove her car at a breakneck speed, and got the wildest horse she could find to ride! And then there was Maitland. Joeye made a quick movement. 'Yes,' she said softly, 'don't go into that, Neil I know; and I'll never forget it—'"

"But—But—Joeye, you are Frills!" It was Robert Ainsworth speaking, and Joeye and Neil turned to him with a start. In their absorbing interest in piecing together the mystery of Frills, they had almost forgotten that he was there.

"Would you mind telling me," Neil asked Joeye politely, "just where he comes into this?"

Joeye looked at Robert thoughtfully. The air of rather superior insolence with which he had approached them was gone now, and she saw again the Robert Ainsworth she knew. He met her gaze frankly, with disarming friendliness.

"I'm sorry, Joeye," he said, "I didn't understand. Will you forgive me?" He came over and held out his hand, smiling charmingly. He was like a little boy who, having shown his temper unreasonably, makes arrogant claim of a loving parent for pardon.

"Who the devil are you, anyway?"

asked Neil petulantly. "I don't want to crab, Joeye, but wasn't it a bit thick, letting him hear all this?"

"Robert Ainsworth is the great novelist, Neil. Haven't you ever heard of him?"

Neil shook his head. "Never," he said. "What does he do besides write? And, once more, how does he come into all this?"

"He comes into this, Neil because I happened to have met him since—the accident on Fire Queen, and because I happened to like him rather more than ordinarily."

Neil fixed his gaze on a distant pine tree. "Do you mean that you're in love with him, Frills?"

Instead of answering his question, Joeye said sharply, "I wish you'd make up your mind whether you want to call me 'Joeye' or 'Frills'! Neil!" She regretted her ill temper at once, however, and went on more agreeably, "Oh, Neil, I don't know anything anymore."

"You are free, if you want to be, Joeye," said Neil, drawing his lips together in the attitude of severe restraint that he assumed when Frills had especially hurt him. "What about Ainsworth?" He turned to the other man. "Did you and Frills fix this all up between you?"

Before Robert could answer, Joeye broke in. "Oh, no, no, Neil, please—I wasn't quite as beastly as all that. Nothing had been fixed up—we had simply, well, fallen in love, and there the matter stood." She looked at Robert and was hurt to find an amused smile lingering about his eyes.

Joeye felt a profound shame creep over her. Neil had just told her she was free, and yet Robert sat quietly, saying nothing, tensely digging holes in the soft ground with his riding crop. Her husband was, in a sense, offering her to her lover—who was making no move to claim her. Was she being rejected by both men? Her nerves, strung tautly under the strain of the entire morning, collapsed utterly, and she felt that she would grow hysterical if she sat there another moment.

She sprang to her feet. "Well, now I've unmasked before both of you!" she cried, her voice trembling close to tears. "Goodbye!"

Neil was after her in a moment. "Here, dear, I'll go back with you . . ."

"No, no, please don't. Please leave me alone. For Heaven's sake, Neil. Let me be for just a little while—"

He fell back, struck by the vehemence of her tone, and she sprang lightly in the saddle and galloped off.

Once in her room, Joeye locked the door and flung herself down on a couch. She felt crushed and hurt as she had at no time since she had found herself Frills Packard. Her disillusionment about Robert Ainsworth was so profound that she felt she had lost all faith in humanity. Every one seemed less noble, all life took on a menacing and ruthless form. Where could she go to find beauty, to find truth, to find fineness, if not in this man whom she had so ardently worshipped?

That he should have regarded the situation at first as one to be treated with cynical levity was a fault that seemed to her graver than the grave.

She did not . . . want . . . Robert Ainsworth.

When she awoke it was a cool evening, and she was shivering. As she collected her thoughts she noticed an envelope lying on the floor under her door. It contained a note from Neil, and she read:

"Dear Joeye:—
"When I got back I found a message to go and see Mother. She's not seriously ill, but feeling badly and wanted to see me. I shan't tell her anything about us, of course. We must talk everything over. I thought it might be better if I'd camp somewhere else tonight. Please go to bed and get a good rest. I'll see you tomorrow."

"Neil."

Joeye read this over several times, almost uncomprehending. At last, however, she knew what she must do. She knew she must go away—that it was the only thing for her to do.

"I've been wrong to stick it out this long," she thought, "no wonder I've gotten things into such a mess!"

It did her good to have some definite work to do. In less than an hour she had bathed, dressed, and packed two bags with Frills' simplest clothes and belongings.

"It seems like stealing to be taking them," she thought worriedly, "yet what can I do? Neil doesn't want Frills' clothes—they won't do him any good if I leave them. I'll have to find some sort of work right away, and I can't apply for it unless I'm decently dressed. Of course I won't take any of Frills' jewelry or anything of real value . . ."

Roxie met her at the foot of the stairs. "Excuse me, ma'am, but Mr. Neil he said you'd be waking up after a time and we should have your dinner ready."

"Very well, Roxie, just serve it quickly in the dining-room, please. And tell Sam I want to speak to him."

Once Joeye had decided to leave, she felt she could not go quickly enough. She could not endure looking about Neil Packard's house, and reflecting that she would probably never see it again. Her only salvation was in acting at once. She was grateful for the nonchalance with which Sam received her orders, and for the lack of demonstration on the part of Roxie.

DELEGATION IN WASHINGTON URGES INCREASED BENEFITS FOR WEST TEXAS UNDER ACREAGE CONTROL PROGRAM

Washington.—A delegation headed by Representative Jones Monday asked farm administrators to make it possible for farmers of West Texas whose cotton crops have been seriously damaged by the dry spell to take part in the cotton reduction program.

The delegation stated that in some areas cotton has had little growth, while in others it still is unplanted. Farmers in that region want definite assurance of cash benefits and are willing to take 50 per cent of their crop out of production.

The delegation conferred with C. A. Cobb, cotton production chief, who suggested that they draft a regulation covering their problem and submit it for the consideration of Secretary Wallace and the administration.

The delegation agreed and said it would have the proposed regulation in the hands of agriculture department officials Wednesday.

Under the acreage reduction program cash benefits are offered on the basis of potential production of the growing crop and it did not contemplate payments where planting had not been complete or where production apparently would be less than 100 pounds to an acre.

Senator Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield was a member of the delegation.

4-H CLUB NEWS

When Health Seeking Is Fun

Health seeking at some time or another is the main pursuit of nearly every person. Some wait until they are old and broken. Then it is a sore trial and costs a lot of money if done well. How much better for them and their kinsfolk if they had started seeking health in their youth as 4-H club members are doing all over the country. Then it costs little or nothing, the results are many times more beneficial and it really is fun.

Imagine the fun a Rhode Island boy is having in his health program. "My score was 70 when first examined," he is quoted in a report from the state leader's office. "I am now going on 11 years and it is 90. I'm going after a 100 score."

Another boy says, "I like to look clean and fresh. It makes me feel so much better."

After carrying on a health project another boy remarks "My work has helped me to correct my posture. I like to keep a good strong body for I know when I get old I will not have a crippled back. I will save myself from painful gums and teeth. Since I have joined the health group I have felt much healthier and friskier."

Another one reports that "I never thought I could make such a high score. If I hadn't joined a 4-H club I wouldn't have known there was anything wrong with me. When one feels good he can do nearly anything."

A girl writes this: "When our teacher tested me I found I had round shoulders. My exercises have corrected the fault and I am very thankful."

Another girl said that sitting and standing correct were hardest to do. "My trunk had taken the wrong road and I hadn't noticed it. I was just in time to get it back on the right road, or else it would have stayed crooked." Bad health is largely a matter of bad habits. Bad habits usually are the result of ignorance or improvidence. 4-H club work effaces the last two, to clear the way for robust living. For example, a club member found that working a garden helped her to better health, and the garden products helped do away with improvidence, by furnishing food and income.

County Clothing Contest June 29 and 30 at Amherst

The first county wide clothing contest and encampment for 4-H club girls was held June 29 and 30, at the County Fair Grounds at Amherst. The event was sponsored by the home demonstration clubs of the county, who furnished awards for the clothing contest. The awards consisted of: wall vases, clothing, pictures, waste paper baskets, hat stands, and laundry bags, most of them being made by the club women.

More than 100 girls attended the first day and 70 of them modeled dresses that they had made themselves. The girls made print or sheer dresses and some made one each. The judging was done by Mesdames R. T. Badger and J. D. Dodgen of Littlefield, who explained the good and bad features of the color, line and design for the girls. Awards were made as follows: First year under 13, print dresses, 1st Zelma Priddy, Amherst; 2nd, Mary Helen Seigler, Amherst; 3rd, Happy Dow, Littlefield; First year print over 13, Ruby Ray Bills, Friendship; 2nd, Nannie Fay Moncrief, Friendship; 3rd, Lois Roberts, Friendship; First year stout sizes, 1st, Evelyn Stanfield, Spade; 2nd, Ethel Skinner, Amherst; 3rd, Dorothy Mae Singer, Fieldton. First year sheer, 1st, Auda Faye Thompson, Friendship; 2nd, Margaret Fay Walker, Littlefield; 3rd, Dorothy Atkinson, Amherst. Second year print, 1st, Opal Heckey, Amherst; 2nd, Beula B. Thompson, Amherst; 3rd, Agnes Mitchell, Hart's Camp. Second year sheer, 1st, Shelia Hartley, Amherst; 2nd, Mary Esther Heckey, Amherst; 3rd, Dorothy Marx, Amherst. Third year print, 1st, Jessie Marie Seigler, Amherst. Third year sheer, 1st, Virginia Bell Logan, Amherst.

Lunch brought by the girls was then spread and served to the group, the Amherst 4-H club girls, supervised by their sponsor, Miss Virginia Pointer acted as hostess. After a short recreational program Mrs. Harold Welch of Amherst talked to the girls on personal habits and hygiene. Each club was given an opportunity to tell of the interesting work that they had done this year, the discussion was led by the demonstrators of the clubs.

At each meal some club presided as hostess while others acted as K. P. Sponsors bringing gifts and assisting were: Mrs. H. M. Packard of Spring Lake, Mrs. W. J. Capers of Spade, Mrs. H. C. Denningworth of Friendship, Mrs. W. C. Squires of Hart's Camp and Miss Virginia Pointer of Amherst. 4-H club girls brought by their mothers or others were from: Fieldton, Littlefield and Sudan.

A county council of 4-H clubs was organized at the business meeting and the following officers elected: President, Dorothy Jean Squires, Hart's Camp; Vice-president, Nannie Fay Moncrief, Friendship, secretary and Treasurer, Virginia Bell Logan, Amherst; Reporter Zetha Bussey, Friendship, parliamentarian, Littlefield. The Council will meet the first Saturday in each month at the Amherst Home Demonstration club house from 2 until 4. At the first meeting the three best doll dresses from each club will be judged to see which are the three best in the county.

Mrs. R. T. Badger of Littlefield will give a prize to the 4-H club girl of Lamb county having the best darned hose at the clothing contest. In the 4-H bedroom contest, Opal Turner of Amherst club won first place, Opal Brown of the Littlefield won second place.

The marriage of Miss Eunice Wright and C. M. Gay, both of this city, was solemnized Friday evening, July 5, at nine o'clock at the First Baptist Church parsonage, Rev. Joe Grizzle, pastor, officiating with the ceremony, in the presence of the Stella Lloyd.

The bride was charmingly attired in an eggshell crepe frock with accessories to match.

Mrs. Gay is a young lady of exceptionally pleasing manner, and the popular and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wright of Lamesa. She has been a member of the faculty of Littlefield high school for the past several years, teaching English and Dramatic Art. She is a graduate of C. I. A. at Denton.

Mr. Gay has been connected with the Peyton Packing Company for a number of years, and has been in Littlefield several years as buyer for the branch house. He is a graduate of the Texas A. & M. College, and is highly regarded by all who know him.

The happy couple left immediately following the service for Lubbock, leaving there Saturday morning for Chicago, where they will attend the World Fair, and visit other points before returning in about two weeks.

Miss Lucille Hall Describes Rainbow Girls' Vacation Trip

We left Littlefield in Mr. Jim Etter's truck, about five o'clock Monday morning, June 19. Arrived in Lubbock, N. M. about three o'clock at afternoon, and went motor boat fishing and swimming. Spent the night at "Livingston Camp" in Carlsbad. Tuesday we made the trip through Carlsbad Cavern. Mr. Thomas Boles, superintendent of the cavern, took the Rainbow Girls on a special trip, through what is called the Rat hole. For about half a mile we had to crawl, slide, roll or do anyway to get through, but we enjoyed it very much.

After leaving the cavern, we went to Roswell, N. M. where we spent the night and until noon the next day. About noon Wednesday, we started to Ruidoso, and arrived there in time to rent a cabin and unpack our things.

We stayed in Ruidoso exactly one week, and not a single day passed at we didn't see something new or something different.

We climbed mountains, rode horse back, went on picnics, saw pine trees, got soaking wet in the rain, and through the Indian Reservation did many other things.

We left Ruidoso on Wednesday, June 28, and went to El Paso. Spent Wednesday night there.

Thursday we went to Juarez. We visited the Old Mission, the old jail, Market Square, and we saw open houses.

We had planned to stay in El Paso Friday and start home late that afternoon, but Thursday, when we returned from Juarez, we decided that we would just start home then.

We packed our truck and left El Paso about one o'clock Friday morning, and arrived home Friday afternoon.

Those who went on the trip are: Mrs. and Mr. Jim Etter, Fleeta Eason, Olga Henson, Irene Hobbs, Maryne Kincaid, Mary Nell Keithley, Dorothy Newgent, Mary Ruth Newgent, Helen Rumback, Dora Bell Smith, Virgie Mae Smith, Linnie Beaumont, Eloryne Vause, Ruby Vause, and I.

We all enjoyed every day of our trip very, very much, but we regret that our Mother Advisor, Mrs. Jimmie Vause, could not be with us.

LUCILLE HALL,
Worthy Advisor of the Order of Rainbow for Girls of Littlefield, Texas

MRS. CHESHER AT BEDSIDE OF HER FATHER

W. J. Chesher returned Wednesday morning from Oklahoma City, where he and Mrs. Chesher were called on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Chesher's father, W. O. Stogner. Mrs. Chesher and daughter, Billy Jean, remained in Oklahoma City.

Mr. Stogner suffered a heart attack about ten days ago, and apparently was getting along nicely until he took the second attack Tuesday night of last week, and was taken to the St. Anthony Hospital, Oklahoma City, where he has remained.

Mr. Stogner has visited in Littlefield on a good many occasions and is well known here.

A homecoming was held at the First Baptist church Sunday to celebrate the closing of the Rev. J. F. Grizzle's fourth year with the church. Mr. Grizzle occupied the pulpit at the morning service, and spoke on the "Coming of Jesus."

At the close of the service the ladies of the Women's Missionary Society served lunch in the basement of the church to about one hundred members of the congregation and visitors. This was followed by a very interesting talk by Prof. F. O. Boles on the work of the pastor for the past four years.

At the close of this talk a table piled high with all kinds of groceries was carried into the basement and presented to Rev. J. F. Grizzle. Mrs. R. T. Badger made the presentation address, which was responded to by Mr. Grizzle.

Following this Judge G. G. Hazel of Sudan made an address in the main auditorium on "What a Church Should Expect of its Pastor," after which Rev. C. A. Joiner of Muleshoe spoke on "What a Pastor Has a Right to Expect of the Church," the meeting adjourning about 3:30 p. m.

11:00 Morning song worship.
11:30 Sermon. Subject, "Enemies of Jesus."
7:30 B. T. S. Mrs. Johnson general director.

8:30 Union Prohibition rally, arranged by the county chairman.

After a two weeks vacation we are glad to be home again, not only glad to be home, but perfectly satisfied with Littlefield. There is no place like the Plains of Texas for the summer months.

Last Sunday was a happy day for us. The all day service arranged during our absence will always be remembered by us as one of the high days of our lives. The many good things given us as well as the many good things said by Prof. Boles, Mrs. Badger and others were appreciated far more than is possible for us to state. We will not be able to send cards of appreciation to all those sending packages as some of the cards were lost in transferring the goods from the church to the parsonage, but will impose on the Leader again and say, thanks to all.

JOE F. GRIZZLE, Pastor

THE METHODIST CHURCH Sunday, July 9th

Sunday school 9:45 a. m. Our lesson for this Sunday will be the study of "Caleb—Confidence In God." This is a great lesson, and we want all to have a part in this fine lesson, so come and be on time, 9:45.

There will be services at 11:00 a. m. The pastor will not be with you, as he will be at Buffalo Gap in a meeting for ten days, but the laymen will have charge of the services, and Bro. D. W. Cobb will fill in while the pastor is out of town.

There will be no services at the church Sunday night, but will join with the First Baptist church in a union service as a Prohibition meeting, and there will likely be a speaker out of town in this service.

At the monthly Stewards' meeting Monday night the Stewards granted the pastor several weeks leave-of-absence for the purpose of holding meetings and rest. We wish here to thank them for their consideration, and hope that the old saying will hold good, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder."

P. H. GATES, Pastor.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH Sunday, July 9

Rev. Beesil of Conyon, Sunday School Field man for that district, will occupy the pulpit at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning. All members are urged to be present and extend the hand of welcome to Mr. Beesil.

"Heroes For Sale" Coming to Palace Saturday Midnight

The picture that is rated as the finest Richard Barthelmess characterization of the past few years is due to open next Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday at the Palace Theatre. It is the first National production, "Heroes for Sale," a story of war, romance and depression.
While telling an entertaining story, the picture also graphically details a man's struggle through the post-war period and the present era. The story opens with the World War in which Barthelmess is severely wounded, carrying his afflictions with him into the life he resumes at home. The veteran's ups and downs in his attempts at rehabilitation, the callous indifference of employers and civic officials to his plight, and the problems that have faced the unemployed man during the present time all form an integral part of this vivid, realistic story which paints things as they are.

RUBY H. D. CLUB

The Ruby H. D. Club had a called meeting Monday in the home of Misses Maude and Foy Pepper with thirteen members, one new member and six visitors present.

Miss Mashburn met with us and gave a lesson on "The Uses of Tomatoes and Asparagus." Since tomatoes are so rich in vitamin C and since they must take the place of fruits to a certain extent, in our part of the state, we need to know various ways in which to serve them. For our health's sake tomatoes should be served at least four times per week. Tomatoes canned under pressure contain as many vitamin as fresh ones and may be served in a number of attractive ways.

We had this called meeting in order to get this lesson because our regular meeting date comes during the week of Short Course and Miss Mashburn could not be with us.

Our next meeting will be Thursday July 13, at the home of Mrs. J. F. Gibson when we will have a lesson on "Relief Canning in Rural Communities."

SUCCESSFUL IN TURKEY RAISING

Gonzales.—A remarkable record of raising 97 per cent of a flock of 900 baby turkeys to the age of 8 weeks has been made by Oscar DuBose of Gonzales in a demonstration with J. M. Saunders, county agent. The semi-confinement method of sanitation was followed. Hens were confined in movable coops and the coops moved to new ground at least twice weekly. This kept down disease and prevented hens from dragging the poulters over a large area before strong enough to travel. Good feed was kept near the poulters at all times. At eight weeks of age the turkeys were put on range, and a man kept with them to prevent thefts and to herd them home at night.

We Think—

newspapers was part of a report on the general situation in this country.

Well, folks, we didn't know that we took in that much territory.

DRAGS—

Every cowpuncher knows that the "drags" in a moving herd of cattle mean. The "drags" are the dogies, cripples and the weak that make up the tail-end of the herd. These "drags" give more concern to the drivers of the string than all the rest of the cattle.

The "drags" are always behind. They get more of the cussin' coaxing, nagging, prodding and scaring than all the rest of the marchers.

They are the last to reach grass and water, and eat only grass that has been trodden in the dirt, and drink the muddy water after the others have waded through it. They are hooked and pushed about by their fellows and held in contempt by both man and beast of the gathering.

There are some humans who are natural born "drags." They are always at the tail-end of every drive of progress in the community. They get more cussin' prodding, nagging and other misery than all the rest of the human herd. If there is a drive on foot for the betterment of the town and countr, these "drags" can always be found at the tail-end; unless they were prodded, they would never take a step forward. In crossing the bog-holes on the trail of progress, they always get stuck in the mud and have to be pulled out with the rope of tolerance.

If breath didn't come and go of its own volition, they would die before they got anywhere. The human "drag" is a lazy, selfish weakling. He can never be found even at the flanks, much less at the lead. He wholly depends on others to lead the way. His selfish laziness slows up the whole herd, but the drivers make him move on whether he is willing to follow or not.

We have "drags" in every community. They are the tail-end of the body corporate. We will always have "drags." They seem to be as much a part of the community as a tail is to a cow. Are you a drag?—Sterling City News-Record.

HEAD LIGHTS ON SHEEP PROTECTION FROM COYOTES—

Butte, Mont.—J. N. Gossett, Madison county sheepman, proposes putting headlights on sheep. A few animals wearing collars fitted with a flashlight battery and a red reflector on the lamp, he said, will protect a band of several thousand sheep from coyotes and cougars. He finds the light doesn't bother the sheep and scares off the intruders.

NOW THAT'S A "BRIGHT" IDEA! THE AUTHOR OF THIS "COLYUM" IS CONSIDERING EQUIPPING HIS DOG WITH HEADLIGHTS IN ORDER TO KEEP HIM OUT OF FIGHTS.

A GOOD CHANCE FOR A CIRCUS—

The Tahoka Produce Company has in its display window a rooster that is somewhat handicapped when it comes to rustling for a living. This rooster has no bill. His mouth looks more like the mouth of a horse than that of a fowl; and Mr. Jones says that he drinks like a horse. Not only does he have a hard time picking up grain, seeds, and other food but it is also a little difficult for him to pick at his own skin as all normal roosters do occasionally. Still, this bird is reasonably fat and looks healthy.

This rooster is also somewhat handicapped in his personal appearance. He has no comb and no gills. He must be an object of contempt among his barnyard companions, for every normal rooster is proud of his comb. Having no mirror in his apartments, however, this rooster is perfectly unconscious of his pitiable aspect. But a lot of men are very much like that rooster; we are not able to see ourselves as others see us.—Lynn County News.

U. S. Open Golf Champ

Johnny Goodman of Omaha, a youth admired by the golfing world during recent years, blazed through with a score of 287 for 72 holes to win the 37th playing of the National Open Championship, the fifth amateur ever to win the title. Goodman shot a brilliant 66 on the third round but took a 76 on the final round to fall one stroke behind the record 286 for the event, made by Chick Evans in 1916 and tied by Gene Sarazen last year.

Famed Flyer Joins Gulf Refining Co.

Noted aviator, winner of many world's speed records, and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Al J. Williams has accepted the position of Manager of Aviation Sales with the Gulf Refining Company. He takes over this responsibility to devote his wide flying experience to industrial progress. He will assume his post immediately.

This announcement has particular importance not only because Captain Williams is one of America's foremost exponents of aviation but also because his experience as businessman, writer, lecturer, and lawyer fits him for his duties.

His career has been featured by many outstanding acknowledgments of his prowess as an ace flyer. In addition to winning the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Williams was one of the 12 men selected in the United States "in recognition of services rendered to aeronautics" by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. For eight consecutive years he held the American speed record for airplanes.

Captain Williams enlisted in the Navy for the duration of the war as a naval aviator. He specialized in testing airplanes for the Navy Department and developing aerial aeronautics for purposes of fighting in the air. From 1926 until 1930, when he resigned from the Navy, he specialized in high speed research.

At the time that he received the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Williams also received a citation from the secretary of the Navy. This stated, in part: that he had many times undergone risk of his life for the benefit of the service—that, up to 1925, he had performed this duty with aid of parachute where a serious crash was expected—that he flew one plane to complete destruction to elicit information on the vital subject of flat spinning of service aircraft—that his constant association with test and development work had been occasioned by the desire of the chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics to continue him in a position where the Navy could get the most benefit of his experience and ability—that the standard combat type of plane reflects many of the improvements pioneered in racing by him—that from 1922 on he played a major part in keeping the Navy to the fore in heavier-than-air development—that in articles written to the public he had shown himself to be a scholar as well as a master pilot.

Today Captain Williams' busy life supplies him with a diversity of interests and makes him doubly valuable as Manager of Aviation Sales for the Gulf Refining Company. He is one of the officers of the Delaware Chemical Engineering Company, a steady contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Liberty, and aeronautical journals on aviation subjects, a lecturer of note, a lawyer in the State of New York, and a Captain in the U. S. Marine Corps, Reserve. It is also interesting to note that he graduated from Fordham University, received a Bachelor of Laws degree from Georgetown University Evening Law School, and pitched for the New York Giants for two years under John J. McGraw.

Dempsey's Champion

Above is Max Baer, California heavyweight, who upset affairs in fist circles by knocking out the former World Champion, Max Schmeling of Germany, in the tenth round, thus putting himself directly in line for a battle for the world title with the winner of the Sharkey-Carnera bout, June 29. Former champion Jack Dempsey, who promoted the Baer-Schmeling contest, has Baer under contract for future battles and is now hailed as the successor to Tex Ricard in big-time promoting.

HIGHWAY CONTRACT Canyon.—McKnight Company, Inc. of Amarillo has been awarded the contract to complete No. 9 from Canyon to Happy.

This contract completes the highway building program of the county under the $250,000 bond issue which was voted several years ago to provide a highway across the county from north to south, and from Canyon west to the county line. The county's share of construction has been met as a result of this bond issue.

Home Demonstration Notes

By MISS RUBY MASHBURN Home Demonstration Agent

Eleven bedroom demonstrations from as many clubs have just completed their demonstration. The rooms contain the following essentials of bedroom, if it is to fulfill its functions satisfactorily. First of all should be spotlessly clean, for cleanliness is a safeguard to health as well as the first principle of beauty. Plenty of fresh air is the second important consideration. Third the light should shine into every room during some part of the day. The fourth essential is a restful atmosphere. Every woman has interrupted these essentials in such a way that the room reflects a great deal of the personality of the owner. The winners in the county contest as judged by Mrs. McGee and Mrs. Debs Knox are as follows: First, Mrs. G. W. Jackson Spade club; Second, Miss Lee Edmond Reddell of Rocky Ford club; third, Mrs. Forest Lumpkin of the Spade club and Mrs. M. M. White of the Sod House tied for honors.

Fifteen wardrobe demonstrators of the first year completed their demonstration. These women have made foundation pattern for their dresses, provided adequate storage space for their clothing and assisted many others in clothing. First year winners (women who plan a wardrobe for themselves) are: Mrs. C. M. Crawford of the Blue Bonnet Club, Mrs. W. T. Whittaker of the Olton club second, and a tie for third place with Mrs. L. G. Fox of the Fuby Club and Mrs. Walter H. Spires of the Littlefield club.
