Mayor Signs 2 Per Cent Beer Bill

Mayor Roosevelt Wednesday signed the bill legalizing the sale of beer and wines in states which do not prohibit the sale, as passed by both the house and senate.

In 15 days must now elapse before the bill can be sold in the fourteen states which have not yet permitted the sale. Beer will be legal in April seventh.

States in which beer can be sold immediately after United States ratification are: Arizona, California, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin.

In other states various situations exist. In North Dakota beer can be sold as of July 1, in West Virginia as of July 9, and in Wyoming after August 9.

Some states have repealed prohibition laws, but will not allow beer sales until control laws are passed. In others that have repealed, beer can be sold until control legislation.

In at least 10 other states, there is no repeal of prohibition. In some, it is official action pending immediate licensing beer.

Texas To Act

Plans are being made by the Littlefield Independent School District to rush a vote to legalize beer in this district. The Texas beer bill will contain alcoholic content provisions.

The bill has set Saturday for the referendum which would provide for repeal of the eighth amendment to strike out the prohibition section of the state constitution and replace it with a local option.

The bill has passed, virtually unanimously, a bill to provide for a referendum at the next election in 1934 on repeal of the eighth amendment. This effort is expected to be successful to move the date up to this year. A bill failed in the house.

Dead Line for Filing Names In City Election Falls Tonight; Candidates Give Platforms

With the deadline set for midnight tonight, the last hour in which names may be filed as candidates in the city election set for Tuesday, April 4, no new entries have been made in either the mayors or the commissioners race.

T. S. Sales, present mayor, and L. R. Crockett, former chief executive of the city, are the only candidates in the race for mayor.

There are three entries seeking the two city commissioners places to be filled during the election. Pat Boone is seeking re-election; Carl Arnold and L. E. Davanay are the other candidates.

Platforms In Mayoralty Race

Mr. Sales' Platform

To The Voters and Citizens of Littlefield: It has been a pleasure to have served the citizens of Littlefield during the past two years, and to have had a part in re-organizing the Water Department and in the carrying out of other work in the interests of the city and its citizens.

The Water Department is the city's only source of revenue in defraying the operating costs of the municipality. The re-organization which was carried out resulted in the bringing of the water department from a record of losses to a gain sufficient to pay all the city's current expenses, after lowering the water rate 30 per cent.

The present administration is also proud of the fact that it has been able to pay out of the water revenue about $4,500 of debts incurred before this commission went into office.

It was also a pleasure to lower the tax valuations on city property in keeping with the times, and to have done away entirely with the city automobile tax.

At the present time the city doesn't owe a penny other than the bonded indebtedness.

We have started plans to secure more revenue for the city by erecting a municipal light plant, and what

Mr. Crockett's Platform

To The Voters and Citizens of Littlefield and Surrounding Community:

Since I announced my candidacy for Mayor of Littlefield, I have been asked for a statement of my platform. I have no long platform to announce; however, having heretofore served the city as one of its commissioners and also as Mayor, I feel that I have a fair understanding of the fundamental principals and ideas that it takes to do the job and fill the place as is required of Mayor of our town. Following is a brief outline of my platform, which I shall attempt to put into effect, if elected your Mayor:

First: I shall deal absolute justice to all without favor to any clique or clan or set of people to the very best of my ability.

Second: I shall do everything possible to bring about and conserve the strictest economy in the administration of our City Government. Being one of the burdened tax payers, I fully realize the importance of reducing taxes whenever possible. In this case it shall be my purpose to assist the commission in working out a budget within our means and to stay within its bounds.

Third: Since it has been signified by a large number of consumers that

FARMERS MEET AT CITY HALL MONDAY NIGHT

Large Gathering Addressed By Representatives Of Farm Group

A large gathering of farmers was held at city hall Monday night, when matters relative to the marketing of farm products was discussed.

The meeting was addressed by representatives of the National Farm Holiday association, and by a number of residents of Littlefield and Lamb county.

The purpose of the National Farm Holiday association, as set out in the by-laws of the organization, are as follows:

"To bring about the withholding of all farm products from the market until the cost of production shall be secured and to bring about the stabilization of Agriculture through National and State Legislation that will save Agriculture, our basic industry and all industries dependent upon it from bankruptcy.

"To establish an orderly marketing program thereby preventing the surpluses of farm products from accumulating at market centers in the hands of individuals where they may be used as a depressing factor upon the market corporation."

Booster Group Will Meet Tuesday Night

A meeting of the Littlefield chamber of commerce will be held at city hall next Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Duke spent the week end in the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. E. Duke.

ALL REQUIREMENTS UNDER NEW LAWS ARE MET BY FIRST NATIONAL

The First National Bank of this city, is expected to reopen some time today or Friday morning.

A permit from Washington for the reopening of the local banking institution is expected at any minute.

All requirements under the new bank regulations have been met by the First National, and J. C. Hilbun, president, left last night for Dallas to meet with R. H. Collier, chief bank examiner, and officials of the Federal Reserve Bank.

Phoned For Permit

Prior to leaving for Dallas, Mr. Hilbun asked for the permit for the reopening of bank in a long distance telephone conversation.

The First National Bank of this city, was, previous to the moratorium, a 100 per cent satisfactory bank in every way, and the same is true at this time, but to a greater extent. The only reason for the delay in the reopening of the Littlefield bank, following the lifting of the general moratorium, was the time required to re-arrange certain matters pertaining to the local institution in order that all requirements of the new banking regulations might be met.

A New Regulation

Under the new regulations only a certain amount of a bank's capital may be carried in banking house and other real estate, and in furniture and fixtures. With the creating of the new regulations, the local bank found it necessary to take the required time to work out plans to reduce the investment in banking house and other real estate, and in furniture and fixtures. The requirements under the new regulation have been met by putting in $17,500 in new money into the Littlefield bank.

Some indication of the sound condition of the Littlefield bank is found in the statement of the local financial institution as of March 1. At that time deposits totalled $221,713.10; cash and equivalent, $114,454.05, and loans $98,604.79.

Last year this territory had 650,000 acres in wheat, and reports indicate that the acreage was cut about 175,000 acres.

Funeral Services Held for Mother of Mrs. Pryor Hammons

Mrs. I. N. (Emma) Gilliland, aged 52, mother of Mrs. Pryor Hammons, passed away at the Hammons residence on East Seventh Street, Thursday about 2:05 p. m., following a lengthy illness.

Although deceased had only been confined to her bed about six weeks, she had been in poor health for some time. Following examination at the Lubbock Sanitarium, she went to Carlsbad and then to San Angelo in an effort to regain her health, but of no avail. She was brought to Littlefield a week previous to her death.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church, Southland, Friday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor of the First Baptist church of Littlefield, officiating, assisted by Rev. Ray, pastor of Baptist church, Southland. Music was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Jordan, when special numbers were rendered.

Interment took place in the Southland cemetery. A very large crowd gathered at the church to pay their last respects to deceased, who had been a resident of that community for about 13 years, going to Southland from Olney, Texas, and living there until 1928, when she moved to eight miles south west of Lubbock, where she and her husband had lived for the past five years.

She married December 5, 1898, and ten children were born to this union, seven surviving, three having died in infancy. Deceased had been a member of the Baptist church since childhood, and was a member of the Order of Eastern Stars.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Hammons, she left surviving, her husband, three other daughters, Mrs. H. A. Lumpkin, Wolforth, Tex., and Misses Verda Gilliland and Mildred Gilliland.

ALWAYS A MONEY CROP

A North Carolina farmer has a bale of cotton that he has had for 70 years. The staple is said to be almost as good as when it was picked in 1862, but it has had to be rewrapped. This bale of cotton has been through times when cotton was worth 42c per pound, and when it would not have brought more than 3 1-2c. But it has always been worth something. Such is the staple farm crop of the Southland.

VALUE OF ADVERTISING

Henry C. Lytton, veteran Chicago merchant, remarks that 1933 is of all years a year in which business men should make full use of advertising.

Forty-six years ago Mr. Lytton launched his business. He had, as he points out, just $12,000 capital, but he did not hesitate to spend between $3500 and $4000 of it on newspaper advertising before he even opened his doors.

His business recently was valued at approximately $7,000,000.

As a testimonial to the work that a wise advertising program can do for a business, his experience speaks volumes. Skimping on the advertising can be false economy of the most expensive kind.

WARREN WILLIAM, LILI DAMITA FORM UNUSUAL TEAM IN "THE MATCH KING": WILL OPEN PALACE SATURDAY MIDNITE

Warren William and Lili Damita, two of the most popular players of the screen, have been paired for the first time in the leading roles in the First National picture, "The Match King," which will open at the Palace Theatre Saturday mid-night and runs through Sunday and Monday.

Not only had the two never played together in the same picture before, but they had never met personally, although both, of course, were cognizant of the other's personality, and moved more or less in the same Hollywood circles. They were introduced to each other on the stage of Warner Bros. First National studios by their director, Howard Bretherton.

Though of quite opposite temperaments, William being of a cool and determined turn of mind, and Damita hot tempered and temperamental, they played together in absolute harmony, each expressed a high admiration for the other's ability and personality.

The screen play is taken from the novel by Einar Thorvaldson suggested by screaming newspaper headlines that revealed the double life of a certain financial wizard. It is one of the most romantic stories of high financing, monumental swindles and political intrigues that was ever emblazoned on the screen. So colossal is the scheme for world control on the part of a financial genius, that even today, although the facts are known to be true, that it seems incredible. There is a strong supporting cast which includes Glenda Farrell, Harold Huber, Spencer Charters, John Wray and Murray Kinnell. The story was adapted by Houston Branch and Sidney Sutherland.

SYNOPSIS

When Joyce opened her eyes one morning to see a fruit-laden orange tree from the end of the luxurious spring porch where she lay in bed, she couldn't decide what had happened to her, for the last thing she remembered was a skidding taxicab in Chicago on a sleeting November night. And when she saw the circlet of pearls on her wedding finger and a man who called her Frills come to bid her an affectionate goodbye before leaving home for a hurried business trip, warning her to be careful her fall from her horse the day before, she was even more puzzled. The gorgeous house that was evidently her home, the faint brown lines on her fingers—she had never looked—and the initials on her toilet articles, F. L. P., added to her bewilderment. But—"It's heavenly," she said. "I'd be perfectly happy to spend the whole day right here."

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Joyce put the photograph back and left the room without further investigation. These people would find out she wasn't really Frills—and then what? It was absurd! It wasn't as if she were a real impostor pretending to be someone else! They would see the same face, the same bobbed hair, the same clothes she had been wearing. They might notice a difference in her manner, but they needn't guess at she was now an entirely different person! "I've got to get over the feeling that I'm breaking into this house and that the first person who sees me will throw me out," she decided. In the bedroom, Joyce found a dresser with drawers full of the best silk and batiste underwear. Getting dressed was a slow process, for she kept making new discoveries which she had to stop and admire. The clothes closet was as great a thrill as the bathroom. She stood, almost in awe, gazing into it, her thoughts again involuntarily returning to her room in West Philadelphia. "I think I've died and gone to a special heaven for working girls!" she gloated.

"I could play around her all day looking at clothes. They can't all be mine! But I really must get dressed and hurry up and find out what I can do about myself. That's more important than clothes."

Looking at the dresses over hastily, she found that the majority were not only very extreme in style, but also of vivid colors and patterns such as Joyce had never worn. She finally picked out a sport dress of white crepe de chine and put on white stockings and shoes. Pleasantly im-combination of curiosity and, to her surprise, a distinct sensation of hunger. She wanted some breakfast right away! A cup of coffee would help to steady her nerves.

At the foot of the stairs she found a long living-room with French windows. It was furnished with new and curious furniture of a type that Joyce had never before seen and that, unexpectedly confronting her, caused her to gasp. The tables, chairs, and lamps were fantastically colored and shaped, and there were here and there, ornaments so comic that she burst out laughing.

She picked her way gingerly amid furniture that was vaguely reminiscent of the New York skyscrapers, and crossed the living-room, thinking as she glanced through the glass doors, that she must get out into that heavenly garden immediately after breakfast and pick at least one rose pressed by the reflection in the long mirror, she was about to venture out of the room, when she caught sight again of the blue leather case on the dressing table.

Joyce strolled out toward the garden, planning to go around the house and find what kind of landscape would greet her.

"Wonder what's in it. . . I might just take a look," she decided, unable to resist the temptation to open the box. With wide eyes she gazed curiously on a jumbled mass of jewelry.

Joyce made a face at this miscellaneous collection. "What a mixture! Frills must simply have dripped with jewelry. All this is worth a nice little sum, though. It would make me nervous to have it around. How queer to think that I . . . that part of me . . . could choose things that are so absolutely different from what I really like. Oh, what a wonderful diamond! I never saw anything sparkle like that. It's fascinating!" She picked out a ring, a large square cut diamond in a delicate platinum setting, and slipped it on the finger which wore the wedding ring.

"That must be the engagement ring, I . . . I think I'll wear it, for fun." She held out her hand at arm's length and surveyed it with mingled feelings of admiration and uneasiness. The two rings gave her hand an unfamiliar look and she felt as if she were borrowing some one else's jewelry and masquerading as a married woman just for a joke.

"Now for downstairs. I think at last I'll really find out something . . . but I feel like Alice in Wonderland."

Joyce hesitated at the top of the steps, her heart beginning to beat violently again and her courage rapidly ebbing.

But in a few moments she gathered up her courage again, urged on by a before someone told her to keep off the grass.

The wonderful sunniness of all these rooms! The dining-room, though smaller than the living-room, was light and cheerful, with its long open windows framed in rose vines. What a pleasant place to eat breakfast!

She heard sounds from beyond the opposite door—low voices, the clink of china, a sudden rush of water, and the rustle of paper. Just as she was wondering whether to go into the kitchen and announce her presence or look around for a bell to ring, the door opened and a woman in a maid's uniform of blue chambray appeared. She was probably about forty years old, a plump comfortable-looking sort of person with a round, red face, smooth black hair and blue eyes.

Seeing Joyce, she started in surprise and exclaimed, speaking rapidly and sounding a note of apology. "We thought you must be still asleep, ma'am, and we didn't want to disturb you, not being sure how you'd be feeling this morning after your fall, and all. Ain't it fine that you're able to be up? Ma'am, would you have some breakfast this morning?"

During this speech Joyce had been getting hold of herself. By the end of it she had made several discoveries. One was that the maid was plainly nervous. Her manner indicated, it seemed to Joyce, that she was uncertain how her words would be received. Strangely like . . . like his manner before he left! Frills had evidently been of a temperamental disposition toward both master and maid.

Joyce could not help liking the maid's looks. She had an intuition that this woman would be a friend worth having even if she were a servant.

"Thank you," smiled Joyce, wishing she knew the maid's name, "I feel all right, except for a headache and a little stiffness. But I'm hungry. I would like some breakfast, please."

The look of relief in the woman's face was so strong as to amount almost to gratitude. There was something doglike about it that touched Joyce and made her uncomfortable at the same time.

"I'll have Marcia fix it right away, ma'am. What would you like?"

"Oh, well, let me see. Some coffee and toast and bacon and eggs. And . . . and orange juice, I think." As the maid turned away, she added, "By the way, was there any mail this morning?"

"Why no, ma'am, there wouldn't be any today. It's Sunday, you know."

"Of course, how stupid of me to forget," murmured Joyce blushing. Disappointed, she strolled back to the living-room to wait for breakfast. She had hoped there would be a letter; it was so peculiar not to know your own last name.

On a three-tire green table set close to the back of a strangely upholstered davenport lay a few magazines.

At the bottom of the pile she found a Saturday Evening Post, and on the tiny yellow address label were printed the words, "Neil Packard, Manzanita, Cal."

"Neil Packard, Manzanita, Cal.!" exclaimed Joyce under her breath, "California! Well, that's some jump from Philadelphia. About as far away as I could get. And so his name is Neil Packard. And me . . . I'm Mrs. Neil Packard. Frills Packard."

She looked out of the windows at the wealth of flowers blooming in the garden. "No wonder there are oranges and roses! No wonder the hills and mountains are so different from any I ever saw!"

The maid appeared to tell her that breakfast was ready.

The commonplaceness of the dining-room furniture proved a welcome relief to Joyce after the "modernistic" living-room.

Joyce took up the thin glass of orange juice which nestled in a bed of cracked ice. It was deliciously sweet and refreshing.

"When I consider how, in my old life, I could get a thrill out of finding one of Aldous Huxley's or Robert Ainsworth's books on the bargain counter at Leary's, I wonder I'm not dizzy with excitement at all these thrills piled on me all at once. There's too much of it . . . I can't make myself believe I won't wake up in a few minutes and find myself in some little stuffy hall bedroom in a noisy city . . ."

She drew in her breath sharply, wilted in spirit at the thought.

Just then the maid brought in the rest of her breakfast.

"Is there anything else you'd like, Mrs. Packard?" the woman lingered to ask.

"Oh no, thank you!" replied Joyce, restraining an impulse to show her enthusiasm. She resolved that she must be as noncommittal as possible for a while.

When she was alone again, Joyce ate with relish, finishing every scrap of the jam, every crumb of toast, and every drop of the coffee.

When the maid appeared again, she had made up her mind. "If anyone telephones or calls, will you please say that I have a headache and don't feel like talking or seeing anyone?" She strolled out toward the garden to examine the flowers, planning to walk around to the other side of the house to see what sort of landscape would greet her there.

It was so intensely thrilling to try to realize herself in California! But just as she stepped out into the warm sunshine, marveling at the amazing clearness of the atmosphere, she heard the telephone bell ring. The telephone was on a stand at the foot of the stairs, and the maid approached it with deliberate steps and lifted the receiver.

"Yes? Yes, this is Roxie . . . Good-morning, Mrs. Packard. Why yes, Mrs. Packard's had breakfast but she has a headache and said she couldn't see anyone . . . N-no, she just said 'anyone.' Well, I'll ask her. Just a minute . . ." The next moment the maid seeing Joyce, said apologetically "Mrs. Paul Packard, ma'am, on the phone and wants to know how you are. She said Mr. Neil has asked her to come over to see you and she's just ready to start now."

"Oh? But . . . but—please tell her my head—I just don't feel I can talk or—see anyone today," stammered Joyce, "I think I'd better keep pretty quiet for a little while. I . . . I'm sorry." She looked helplessly at the maid, who returned without comment to the telephone and delivered the message. Joyce listened, wondering worriedly whether she should have taken the plunge. Perhaps her refusal to see Mrs. Paul Packard would cause trouble.

She decided regretfully that she had best not go out into the garden where unexpected callers might find her. She would be safer up in her room for this day at least. What she must find now were letters and other evidence to enlighten her further.

In her bedroom again, she discovered that one of the mirrors beside the dressing table formed the panel of a door. "This," murmured Joyce, turning the glass handle and looking into the next room, "must be my boudoir!"

Ah, there's a desk at last. I was just beginning to wonder whether there was any place in this whole house where one could write a letter. Now I certainly ought to discover something more."

She sat down at the desk. "Now I feel like a real crook," she thought uncomfortably, "reading somebody else's letters!"

In spite of the handsome fittings, it was an untidy desk, carrying a scattered litter of accumulated odds and ends, with dust plainly visible all over it. Scraps of paper, several pencils, with broken points, a ragged, much-used piece of blotting paper, matches and loose cigarettes, a half-empty box of aspirin tablets . . . and, here and there, four calling cards with the name "Mr. Arthur Milford Maitland."

Constipated 30 Years Aided by Old Remedy

"For thirty years I had constipation. Souring food from stomach choked me. Since taking Adierika I am a new person. Constipation is a thing of the past."—Alice Burns, Stokes-Alexander Drug Company, Inc. —Adv.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

FOUND! the hidden quart CONOCO

...Mechanic Elder Schaffner Found the Hidden Quart... Also that Without it, Motors Show 50% to 60% Greater Wear ...So He Switched to Conoco

THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

* The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart never drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself, worth its weight in gold.

MECHANIC SCHAFFNER REPORTS ON DISCOVERY:

"I never did believe what Conoco Germ Processed oil would do; not until an Essex owner, with 25,000 miles on his speedometer, asked me to check his motor and put in new parts where necessary. It surely surprised me; clearance of pistons was only four 1-thousandths; of bearings only three 1-thousandths of an inch."

"This owner said he had used Conoco Germ Processed oil since the car was new. I have overhauled many another Essex at 25,000 miles, which has not used this oil, and found the wear 50% to 60% greater. Now I recommend Conoco Germ Processed Oil to my friends, and have changed to it in my own car."—Elder Schaffner, Highland, Ill.

Stop Cruel Motor Wear . . . Escape its Painful Cost

Don't Wait Another Day to Drain and Refill With Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil

To a motor, lack of lubrication is cruelty indeed. You are too "humane" to permit it, if only you knew the truth. But motors suffer in silence till costly damage is done. Then you pay . . . and pay . . . and pay.

This is proved. Even with the crankcase empty, due to accident, users of this oil have driven many miles, without damage, on the "hidden quart" alone.

50% of motor wear occurs in the moments following a cold start. Ordinary oil drains back into the crankcase and leaves the motor dry, till it is pumped back up again. Not so, with Conoco's hidden quart. It stays up in the motor and never drains away.

Isn't it smart and thrifty to have a "hidden quart" up in the parts of your motor, where you are sure it cannot fail? It is so simple to be safe! So foolhardy to be in doubt. Tend to it today. Go now, drain and refill with the "hidden-quart" oil. Do it for safety's sake.

Excellent Time to Prune Trees is Early in Spring

As spring draws near, thoughts of many plains residents turn to their orchards, shade trees and shrubbery, and plans are begun for home beautification. An important item in the appearance and care of trees is proper pruning. L. N. Dalmont of the Dalmont Nursery of Plainview contributes the following suggestions for the pruning of trees:
 "True pruning is usually advocated long before the sap rises, but a still better plan is to prune the trees just as the need arises. If you see a bud or twig where you don't want a limb, nip it in the bud or shave it close to the body of the tree. There isn't any excuse for allowing a limb to grow as large as a pencil or larger. Nip it in the bud, cause the growth to go where you want it and prevent a large scar on the tree.
 "But if your pruning has been neglected, early spring is a good time to do it. Anyone planting trees should begin early to shape them to suit the climate. That is, shape the tree up to keep it balanced against the hard southwest wind. It is best to grow a tree so the sun will never shine on the trunk, but the shade strikes the soil that covers the roots.
 "We have too much dry wind and hot sunshine in this country for high pruning. If trees are pruned high they will invariably grow top heavy and lean to the northeast and in hot weather the sun will blister the bark and the trees will never do any good.
 "On the other hand, if trees are branched low, especially on the south and west, this will protect not only from the hot sunshine and dry winds but also from hail. The lower limbs will naturally have more fruits than those in the top of the tree.
 "As our moisture is limited, it is important to give our trees first class cultivation."

Charles Touchon Writes His Wife Regarding Quake

Charles Touchon, who has been visiting his sons, Paul and Bob in California for the past several weeks, at the time of the earthquake was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bob Touchon at Arcadia, a suburb of Los Angeles, and wrote Mrs. Touchon, dated Saturday, March 11, regarding his experience as follows: "I was sitting in the kitchen, while Irene fixed supper about 6, reading the paper, I heard a roaring noise and thought a big truck was driving in. Bob had ordered some chickenfeed so I thought they were delivering it. Looked out but there was no truck, but the house kept shaking and hopping up and down. The lights went out, and then I realized what it was. Irene had run out to see what the commotion was. Just then it began to sway sidewise. I went out and all the trees were waving like in a strong wind. The water in the little fishpond was slashing about, and the light wires going back and forth. No damage done about here as far as we know, but Long Beach and the resorts along the coast are hard hit, Long Beach the worse. After a while reports came in, from 25 to 500 dead in Long Beach. We don't know yet. Then orders came, not to use the telephone, not to go on the street, but to stay at home, everybody, and above all not to try to drive to Long Beach. Never the less, Bob called up Paul at the office. He said he was all right and he had just called up Faith and she was O. K. too, so we stayed home and listened to the reports. After a while reports came direct from Long Beach, but they were so excited they could hardly talk. The fire department had caved in, 4 firemen killed, many fires started and nobody to fight them. They said the fires swept uncontrolled across the business district. The latest report just now says 59 killed in Long Beach and damage from 5 to 50 million dollars. It said nothing about the other towns. Immediately after the earthquake some battleships or ships sailed from San Pedro and anchored at Long Beach and landed marines and sailors, all armed, declared martial law and patrolled the town. They run a line clear around Long Beach about 8 miles from town, and let no cars go through. Long Beach must be pretty well wiped out, because they said people had not had anything warm to eat since yesterday, and called for blankets. The battleships gave them all the blankets they had and are making coffee and sending it ashore, but it is not sufficient. We stayed up till midnight. There were little shocks every little while, one at 5 this morning. It was about 8 o'clock last night when Bob talked to Paul and he said the building was swaying there and the plaster falling from the ceiling. Walls and chimneys fell down in Los Angeles, a big gas tank near Hammonds Lumber Co., sprang a leak."

Methodist Ladies Present Beautiful Pageant Sunday The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church has been unusually busy of late, but has failed to make any note of its activities. It met last week and quilted three quilts for Mrs. Beard, who had the misfortune of losing her household things in a recent fire. The W. M. S. met Monday at the Methodist church with a "World Outlook," program with Mrs. D. G. Hobbs as leader, with Mesdames Thaxton, Glenn, Gardner, Keithley, Courtney assisting with the program. Reports from the zone meeting were made by zone president, Mrs. W. W. Gillette, Mrs. M. B. Hood and Mrs. P. H. Gates.

Rev. Gates has been teaching the book, "Christ and the Coming Kingdom," in the Missionary Society for the past few Mondays, and the study was brought to a close Sunday evening at the Methodist church, when a pageant, "Christ and the Ministry of Missions," was presented by the young women of the church. This pageant, written and directed by Mrs. Gates was very effective. The stage was decorated with flags of every nation, and the orange colored lights, the women each dressed in costume of her country, made not only an oriental, but occidental atmosphere. Those taking part were:

Mrs. Southerland, as the Spirit of Christianity; Mrs. Floyd Hemphill, Home Missionary; Mrs. Hubert Smith, Foreign Missionary; Mrs. Orr, Mexico; Mrs. Lynn Dobbs, China; Mrs. Roy Blessing, Korea; Mrs. Barnett, Czechoslovakia; Miss Addie Mae Hemphill, Belgium; Mrs. Wilson, (colored) Africa; Miss Prudence Courtney, Japan; Mrs. Raymond Wright, Poland; Mrs. Carl Williams, Cuba.

Solos in keeping with the pageant were sung by Miss Lucille Aven and Mr. Vernon Eagen. A chorus of voices were used throughout the evening, making it more impressive.

Mrs. Gillette, and Mrs. Gates were elected as delegates to the Woman's Missionary conference which meets at Vernon, Texas, April 4 and 7, and the women are planning to get much inspiration and interest from this conference.

FIRST BAPTIST LADIES OBSERVE WEEK OF PRAYER

The women of the First Baptist church observed the regular week of prayer for Home Missions with a program at the church each afternoon last week.

These meetings were well attended. Thirty-three different women came with an average of twenty for each day.

The topic for the week was "Our Countrymen's Salvation." The program for Monday was given by Circle No. 1, Mrs. Acrey Barton leading. Tuesday Circle No. 2 had charge with Mrs. W. E. Heathman as leader.

On Wednesday, Circle No. 4, which is composed of the young matrons of the church, rendered a wonderful program, which was deeply appreciated by all present.

Thursday, Circle No. 3 had charge with Mrs. Lon Smith as leader.

The Sunbeams, under the leadership of Mrs. Raymond Renfro, assisted by Mrs. Bostick, gave a little play, impressing on our minds anew, our duty to the foreign children in our midst.

An offering of about five dollars was made to the Home Mission work.

MRS. C. O. STONE HOSTESS CHURCH OF CHRIST LADIES

Ladies' Bible class of the Church of Christ enjoyed the Monday study with Mrs. C. O. Stone. The 19th and 20th chapters of Revelation was interestingly led by Bro. Walker. Those present were: Mesdames A. L. Wood, Vinther, McDaniel, Vernon Shelton, A. B. Hayes, Bigham, Kimmel, E. J. Faust, Jackson, Hilburn, Bro. Walker and the hostess.

The class will meet with Mrs. Hilburn next week and she cordially invites all who can to come and study Rev. 21-22 with us.

VOCATIONAL BOYS RUN ABOUT TWENTY MILES OF CONTOUR AND TERRACE LINES DURING FIRST THREE MONTHS OF YEAR

Running a total of almost 20 miles of contour and terrace lines, and protecting almost 2,000 acres of land from surface washing and drainage was one of the chief activities of the Littlefield vocational agricultural class during January, February and March.

The boys doing this work were trained in the regular course in vocational agriculture and according to R. A. Box, instructor, many of them are well qualified to lay off a system of terraces or to contour a field.

Lines for terraces were run on the farms of Messrs. Montgomery, Emfinger, Beavers, Carter and Kirk; and the farms of Messrs. Cook, Locke, Alfred, McQuatters, Hyers, and Wedel were contoured during these months.

A conservative estimate of the value of this work places it at $5.00 per acre. This value comes about through the increased crop production due to holding moisture and soil fertility. Many farmers place a much higher estimate on the value per acre.

her I am elected in office again or not, I shall use everything in my power to bring this additional asset to the city, because after thorough investigation we find that the cities owning their own light plants have very little taxes to pay and are able to do much public improving and at the same time enjoy a much lower rate on the electricity they use.

I would appreciate it very much if all citizens will make a personal investigation of the affairs of the city as administered by the present administration, and if same meets with approval, I will tender the same service the next two years as in the past if elected mayor.

Respectfully submitted,
T. S. SALES
