

TRIC CO-OP.
MEET FEB. 6
HIGH SCHOOL

Signers Of Contracts
To Attend With Their Wives

Signers of contracts for the electric line are urged by the executive of the Lamb County Electric Co-operative, Inc., to attend a meeting of importance in the high school auditorium in Littlefield Thursday night, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p. m. All those who have signed contracts for the use of electric power will be eventually accepted in the local co-operatives. The work will be done in a short time, but it is ready to connect with the electric line that is being built.

Progress is Made
Rural electrification line is under construction and rapid progress is being made. The poles have been distributed and set up about 90 miles of the route. The line will be about 175 miles long. Approximately 519 farmsteads on the route have signed contracts for membership and for the use of electricity. It is thought that the line will be completed by the middle of March; a portion of the line will be ready for use in a very short time when the line is completed. Completed in units, the electric power will be turned on. It is urged that farmers have their houses inspected as soon as possible in order to be ready to connect with the line when same is completed.

Acquaint Users With Methods
The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint prospective users of electricity with the methods of wiring their homes and also with the proper use of electric appliances. A representative of the Rural Electrification Administration of Washington, D. C., will be present and will address the meeting. A program of varied entertainment will also be rendered. In charge of the meeting are several musical numbers and it is the desire to obtain the membership as well as to have something instructive for the users.

It is especially urged that the prospective users attend this meeting as they are the ones who will have the responsibility of properly using electricity in the homes. All signers of contracts for the use of electricity should bring their wives with them. The general public is also invited so that they may know something about the working of rural electrification and the purposes of the co-operatives carrying out the local program.

G. F. Hodges, Both Legs Fractured, Taken to Veterans Hospital

G. F. Hodges, farmer, suffered fractures of both legs Thursday night about 7 o'clock, when he was struck by a car reported to have been driven by Bill Turner, on highway 7, near the Hodges home, five and a half miles southeast of Littlefield.

Both Legs Fractured
Mr. Hodges was brought to the Payne-Shotwell hospital by Mr. Turner, where on examination it was determined that both legs were broken, the left leg having incurred a double fracture, while only the tibia bone in the right leg was broken. Both leg injuries were between the knee and ankle. The bones were set and his legs placed in casts.

Mr. Turner reported that he was driving toward Littlefield Thursday evening, when he noticed a car on the highway in front of him. According to Mr. Turner, Mr. Hodges and family were pushing their car in an effort to get it started, and several of the Hodges children were also on the highway. It is reported that Mr. Hodges either became blinded by the lights of the car or in an effort to prevent the Turner car from hitting one of the children, stepped out on the highway to take the child to the side of the road, and was struck by the Turner car.

Hammons ambulance carried Mr. Hodges to the Veterans hospital at Albuquerque, N. M., Friday afternoon. Mrs. Henry Banks, registered nurse, accompanied Mr. Hodges on the trip.

LITTLEFIELD IS REPRESENTED AT VEGA MEETING

Discuss Location of Bridge Across Canadian River

The Texas Division of the International Parks Highway association met at Vega Saturday, with 50 members of the association present.

J. T. Long of Odessa, president of the Texas Division, presided, assisted by John Honts, of Dalhart, president of the national organization.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways and means of financing the bridge across the Canadian river, and assisting the commissioners of Hartley and Oldham counties in locating the most suitable place for the bridge. Each county has the money appropriated for the paving of highway 51 through that area, and the state is ready to make the survey, pending the location of the bridge.

All of the towns on the route, from Dalhart to the Big Bend National park and the Rio Grande river, were represented at the meeting Saturday. B. L. Cogdill and J. S. Hilliard attended from Littlefield, accompanied by T. A. Singer of Dimmitt.

Experimental Plant For Littlefield To Be Main Topic

C. G. Rook of Gladewater, the chemist and engineer, who instigated the Chemurgic Congress recently staged at Gladewater by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, will arrive in Littlefield Friday morning to be the guest of David Schein and the Lamb County Leader.

Mr. Schein has been in correspondence with Mr. Rook relative to the possibility of locating a plant in this city for the production of an insulation and fire proofing material which has recently been perfected by Mr. Rook, and which attracted a great deal of favorable attention at the recent meeting. This material is made of cotton burrs, cotton stalks and gypsum. All these raw products can be obtained in abundance in the Littlefield section.

Mr. Schein has called a meeting for Friday morning at which Mr. Rook will outline his plans for the proposed regional plants which are being contemplated. A number of the leading business men of this section have signified their readiness to participate in this important conference. While in the city Mr. Rook will visit the George L. White ranch and view the gypsum deposits there. In 1922 an exhaustive geological survey of the lakes on the White ranch, were made by a crew from the University of Texas. A full report of this survey has been secured by Mr. White and will be submitted to Mr. Rook.

In last Sunday's issue of the Dallas Morning News, a half page feature story about Mr. Rook appeared. He is recognized throughout the United States, as one of the outstanding men in chemical research work pertaining to bi-products of agriculture.

While it is true that The Leader through Mr. Schein, was largely responsible for these important de-

MARCH OF DIMES IS OUTSTANDING SUCCESS HERE

Estimated Quota Of $100 For Lamb County Is Raised

In a most successful drive, the estimated quota of $100 for Lamb county was raised in the "March of Dimes," better known as the infantile paralysis fund, Saturday.

Committees worked in Littlefield, Amherst, Sudan, Earth, Olton and the CCC camp, selling birthday cards with receptacles that hold 10 dimes. This drive was made instead of sponsoring the usual birthday ball, honoring President Roosevelt's birthday.

Fifty per cent of this money will be returned to the county, Postmaster W. D. T. Storey, chairman of the committee, reported, for the establishment of a permanent chapter embracing Lamb county. The

MRS. ROY GATTIS MADE CHAIRMAN LAMB CO. GROUP

Should Bill Pass, County Qualifies for Sum of $3,843

If the state legislature passes an impending bill sponsored by the Texas Library association, Lamb county will qualify for the sum of $3,843, to be matched by local funds, for public library facilities.

Mrs. Roy Gattis has been appointed Lamb county chairman for the "Peoples Library Movement," which seeks an appropriation of $375,000 to bring Texas library facilities up to standards.

Lacks Library Facilities

The South Plains area is notably deficient in public library facilities, and it is felt, would be allotted a larger sum than other sections of the state. The statewide committee of the library movement includes Mrs. H. P. Godeke, of Lubbock.

Entitled to $3,843

Should a bill sponsored by the state association be passed and the state aid appropriation be authorized, Lamb county would be in line for approximately $3,843. The county, or the county and the city jointly, would have to match that sum in the proportion of $3 for each $1.

Mrs. Gattis reported that if such a bill is passed in the legislature, then the commissions court can be authorized to set aside the amount, or call an election and have the citizens vote on the project, or can use direct taxation as a means of raising money to match that available from the state.

TAX COLLECTOR REPORTS 3260 POLL TAXES PAID

I. B. "Doc" Holt, county tax assessor-collector, announced Wednesday that 3,260 poll taxes had been paid.

"Although, this isn't official," said Mr. Holt, "it is fairly accurate."

The tax collector also stated that this was about 1,000 less than last year.

L. R. Crockett Appointed To Serve On The Citizens Legislative Committee

L. R. Crockett was appointed Friday to the Citizens' Legislative committee for this district in this conference region, according to Mrs. Viola Perkins, administrator for the relief commission in district 17.

Mrs. Perkins wrote that the duties of this appointment would probably be acquiring information regarding the proposed legislation at this meeting of the state legislature.

The state committee is composed of Miss Sarah Daniels, Mrs. George Abbott, Dr. Jack Johnson, Judge Robert Ogden, Miss Gaynell Hawkins, and Mrs. Arthur Morehead.

In the letter sent to Mr. Crockett, Mrs. Perkins stated "We feel that your interest in the welfare of the people has been so demonstrated that your services would be a valuable addition to such great work for the community welfare of the underprivileged."

Why We Shall Grow

As we go along—preaching optimism, and predicting fine progress and developments, for Littlefield and Lamb county—we are constantly assailed with the question—"But Why Littlefield more so than other towns of similar size and with like resources?"

Littlefield is primarily blessed with an alert, progressive citizenship. We have the type of Man Power which—when properly directed and used, will disregard barriers, obstacles and perform Trojan tasks, in their forward march towards a Greater and Better Littlefield.

In a young and rapidly growing town like ours, the people come to the fork of the road. One prong of that fork leads straight ahead and the other road doubles back to where we started from.

Quite recently, we have had opportunities to discuss with a number of our people, various plans to promote the economic development of our city, and of our social conditions.

With this spirit prevalent—there is no limit to our potential expectancies. The vast majority of Littlefield people are determined to follow the road straight ahead.

So—we repeat, Littlefield has exceptional natural resources and extraordinary MAN POWER. With this setup nothing is impossible unless—we make up our minds that it is impossible, then—it will be absolutely hopeless.

For the few remaining years of our allotment—we shall spend most of our time on the sunny side of the street, and march with those who go forward.

Eating is Exciting

Eating should be an exciting adventure, not a tedious chore, asserts William Allen White, distinguished editor of the Emporia Gazette and author of "A Puritan in Babylon," in the current Rotarian magazine.

"The average man off the street sits down before his food and eats it like a dog, generally not knowing what he is eating, which is my idea of a culinary mistake. For food always should be an adventure, and a wide dietary range is a sign of wide culture," declares America's No. 1 country editor.

Yet the average American business or professional man kicks like a bay steer the minute he is exposed to new food—even before he tastes it, laments the sage of Emporia.

"I never knew a woman-chasing man whose wife was a good and adventurous cook," says White, remarking that there is something in the proverb that says that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach.

Commenting on his duties as a menu committee chairman in his own service club, White concludes, "It's a great life if you don't weaken, and I have not weakened so far. I'm gradually edging up to onion soup for some cold winter day!"

What Does the Future Hold for The Smaller Towns in Texas

What must inevitably be the fate of the small towns and communities in Texas?

This question is being asked in literally hundreds of interior places over the state where today "For Rent" signs clutter the windows of numbers of empty business buildings! It is a question of increasingly serious importance, not only to these small towns and communities, but to the state as a whole.

These once busy places of community life, ground which has largely grown the progressive development of Texas, are being delted " by the operation of heavy trucks over our highways. Their local business firms and enterprises, the dry goods, hardware, drug and fruit and vegetable stores, retail lumber yards, wholesale grocery houses, bottling plants, food mills, oil mills, grain elevators and cotton compresses are unable to meet the competition of the larger business centers because of the almost unrestricted and prodigious use of Texas highways in the delivery of goods by trucks from the larger cities holding the quantity-purchase advantage.

The absorption and manipulation, in varying degrees, of the cost of transportation by highway for competitive purposes, if not restricted, will inevitably drive dealers and wholesalers in the smaller towns and communities out of business. They stand helpless to the inequality of opportunity with which they are burdened and thus contribute further to our growing economic chaos.

The plan now being made by certain interests to increase the load limit on trucks operating over Texas highways will hasten the end of local enterprise in smaller Texas communities. If under present statutes harm already has been done, small towns merchant and property owners, who then must be the effect of any increase in the allowable truck load limit? Certainly the latter the load limit the greater will be the damage to the existing centers, and the greater will be the harmful effects on dealers and enterprises in smaller towns!

The burden of taxation borne by the business interests of the smaller towns and communities throughout Texas will, as a natural result, shift more and more to the shoulders of the remaining property owners. Those who have stayed in homes and business buildings must sacrifice their investments to what some might mistakenly call "the march of progress."

The thousands of families, for so many years dependent upon employment by these business enterprises as a means of livelihood, must be forced to the cities in quest of work, and falling in the add further to our burden of relief and unemployment!

Inroads by long distance truck operations on the traffic of the railroads must necessarily result in the abandonment of more and more railroads, with consequent loss of payroll and taxes to these communities and an increase of tax burdens to their citizens.

Texas Railroads, who seek no favors and advantages, but who willingly pay their own way to the ill effects of unfair and subsidized competition in the same way and measure as the small town business men and, in the interest of our mutual preservation, join with them in urging that existing local truck load limits be not increased!

WHAT—No Gasoline?

"When you are out of gasoline, you are just out of gasoline," that's the cry made by two dealers for major oil companies in Littlefield Tuesday afternoon.

When the wind and sand blew the Leader reporter into the office of one of these companies Tuesday afternoon, the agent was "going in circles," for he had ordered a car of gasoline Friday, expecting it Monday, and when it didn't come by Tuesday, one of the truck drivers had to call on their customers and admit that according to the law of supply and demand, the demand was too much for them.—Not a drop of gasoline in the tanks! !

This agent had borrowed more than 2,000 gallons of gas from another company here, and yet learn Tuesday afternoon that their supply was exhausted on that day.

Railroad officials were called to help locate this car of gasoline; the company was wired as to the critical condition. Then the reporter called dother oil companies in Littlefield:—"Mr. ———, this is Margie at the Lamb County Leader. Are you out of gasoline?" "What did you say—No, we've plenty of gas, why? Oh, I see, then just tell them all the wholesale agents are out in town but the . . . ! No, that won't do, because then people will think our gasoline wasn't good, or we would have sold out too."

Wednesday morning—After a close check up, Margie finds that there is plenty of gasoline in town. The farmers won't have to stop their tractors, and you won't need to cut your gasoline order short, for your trip in the family car.

Post Script—The two oil companies received their cars of gasoline in time to supply G. M. Vann with the usual weekly amount for that road grader used in precinct 3.

There also will be prizes given to the best sport boy, the best sport girl, the best built boy and the most attractive girl. In addition to those awards first all-tourney teams, six for girls and five for boys, will be given prizes.

LITTLEFIELD KITTIES TAKE SECOND DEFEAT IN RALLS TOURNAMENT

After the Littlefield Kitties had played superior basketball beneath the baskets in the Ralls tournament last week-end, noosing out a 90 to 2 score in their first game with Ralls, they bowed to the Idalou quintet in a 25-25 thriller, for their second game in the tourney, and their second defeat of the season.

Miss Lillian Baker, Littlefield coach, stated that she was not disappointed that the Kitties did not win the Ralls tournament, although they have carried away most of the honors from all of the tourneys in this vicinity during the season. She is putting the girls through skillful practice this week, getting them in shape to win the Anton tournament this week-end.

Flashing a fast offense and a steady defense the Meadow high school girls team emerged victor at Ralls, defeating Abernathy in the finals 38 to 28.

Consolation honors went to Crosbyton, winner over Ralls first team in the deciding round, 43 to 18.

Individual awards went to the winners in addition to a team trophy.

Other teams competing were Lorenzo, Robertson, Graham, Hale Center, Petersburg, Post, Lockney and Ralls second team.

LOCAL BOYS WILL COMPETE IN GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT AT LUBBOCK MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Eight boys from the Littlefield CCC camp and several other locals will make exchanges of left jabs and right crosses, in the District Golden Gloves tournament at Lubbock Monday and Tuesday nights of next week. Half a hundred box fighters will crash away at each other for the eight championships and the right to compete in the big State Golden Gloves tournament at Fort Worth starting Feb. 16.

Indications continued Wednesday to be strong that the 1939 Golden Gloves event would supercede all previous programs of its kind in Lubbock, both in number and calibre of boxers involved and in attendance.

The "Cream" of a large starting field will appear in this tournament. Boxers, most of them title holders, from Foyada, Littlefield and Plainview invitation tournaments are scheduled to meet in Lubbock on these nights. These young boxers are preparing to deal to each other and the public some of the best mitt slinging seen in this section.

The Littlefield boys will have their part. George Hull, who has been giving his boys a whale of a lot of training and conditioning from the CCC camp reported that the following boys would compete in Lubbock:

Cecil Murphy, 170 pounds, in the light heavy weight division; Dick Gramlin, 160 pounds, in the middleweight; Floy Luper, 147 pounds, welterweight; "Windy" Farris, Estelle Smith, and George Miller, all three 1335 pounders, in the lightweight; "Banty" Cawthron, 112 pounds, in the flyweight; Pee Wee Bennett, 118 pounds, in the bantamweight; and Horace Woods, in the featherweight.

Farris was a runner-up in the lightweight division in the Five State Golden Gloves Tournament at Hobbs last September, and Bennett was a runner-up in the bantam weight division.

Woods made a good showing at making excellent players of them, surmises that they have a mighty fine chance to win in this tournament.

Sixteen teams have registered for this event, and among the favorites and "dark horse" contenders for the Southland championship may come from Anton, Ropesville, and Lamesa, basketball vets declare. Finals are scheduled for Saturday night.

Over all, it promises to be a well balanced tournament, and expected to remain as the leading independent basketball tournament of the South Plains.

Those boys going from the camp with Mr. Hull are Sanders, Dick, Woods, Greer, Duncan, Ramsey, Flemens, Vermillion and Schroeder.

'Scarlett' Is Picked

the Abilene tourney last year also, Mr. Hull reported.

The athletic association of Littlefield sponsored a preview and warm-up tournament here last week to determine the best man in the ring in this section.

Assurance that a large delegation of local fans would follow the boxers of this section to Lubbock was given when an entire section in the City Auditorium was asked for by officials here. Ed Seely, president of the athletic council, is in charge of ticket sales here, and they are priced at $1.10 each for ringside chairs.

All amateurs over 16 years of age who can qualify for AAU membership are eligible to apply for entry in the Golden Gloves tournament, regardless of whether or not they have competed or are competing in previous tournaments or regardless of their results in the tournaments. Winners and runners up are especially urged to enroll, but all others have been invited to attend.

J. C. Barron of the Peyton Packing company was out of town on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wells returned Monday night from over a week's vacation at Hot Springs, N. M.

FROM COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

By DONALD TURNER, COUNTY AGENT

The change in the 1939 A. A. A. program which causes gardens, orchards, and truck patches to be classified as neutral crops rather than soil-depleting when such crops are used at home, should be an inducement to plan to plant an abundant supply of these crops for home consumption. Such crops as peas, bean, sweet corn, fruit, and vegetable are classified as neutral crops when used at home.

Johnny Swanson, 4-H club boy in the Spade community, made a total net profit of $27.59 from his acre of irrigated cotton in 1938. He made 396 pounds of lint and sold it at $7.65 per pound making a total $30.31. The seed brought $6.60. Total receipts were $36.91 and total expenses $9.32.

The shot hole borer, an insect that bores tiny holes in the trunks and limbs of fruit and shade trees, can be controlled by painting with a mixture of 1-4 pound of parathion-chlorobenzene and one gallon of cottonseed oil. This mixture should be applied in the winter time only, as it has an injurious effect if applied during warm weather.

William Neimast, 15-year-old 4-H club boy of the Hart Camp community, made a total net profit of $184.80 on his dry land cotton demonstration in 1938. William planted the D. & P. L. variety and it brought him an average of 8 1-2 cents per pound. The total receipts for cotton and seed amounted to $257.63 and the expenditures were $72.83. He has invested part of his money in three registered hampshire pigs and will feed them on the grain sorghum that he grew in 1938 as another demonstration.

County Agent Turner and Assistant McKinney attended the meeting of Lubbock business men and county agents to draw up plans for the Junior Livestock show which will be held in Lubbock in the spring.

WITH INSTALLMENT SYNOPSIS

Harlowe, raised in a street, at the age of 18 met her, Marcella, in New Orleans. Marcella, who had heard about her safety, was unfamiliar with the world and had developed a beautiful woman, her mother is to get her safely to her first ball, and 19 years older than he. He is quickly become an enemy in her apartment one day, Nick Sandal, enters and escapes, confides in her father and that her Lynda Sandal. Visiting her in her apartment, Jocelyn Ayleward, a gambler, mentions the name Felix and his story of how he was an engineer, worked un- and was sent to jail for what was adjudged a false Jocelyn refuses to believe after seeing more of Jock, she has kissed her passion-ly moment they had says that she will search for papers on the case. One night, Jocelyn's father and says that her been stolen and Jocke Jock or her father. She her father who seems to say about the jewels. She there, who kisses her will. But she tells him arch the safe, which she finds papers showing to be true, tosses them ndow to Jock and is then Felix who takes her home as revenge.

catch the whole crowd." Into Lynda's ear he whispered fiercely, even with a grim sort of amusement, "Now you can get the drift, can't you? Now you can see where you've landed? How I've got the three of you? You've lost your name, your identity. Your own mother won't acknowledge you."

"Mrs. Harlowe, there's a man—" "It's Catring. Bring him in," and, as Mary began to speak again, Marcella stopped her with a frenzied backward gesture of dismissal. "Can't you see I'm busy? Don't stand there. Send him in."

She bent down again to the phone and set her long index finger into the dial. The man who was supposed to be Catring came into the room.

He came slowly, painfully, progressing from door to sofa and along it, using its back for his support. So bent and twisted was he that he looked like a hump-backed dwarf. He came up to Marcella and touched her on the elbow. And, as she looked up, he laid a leather box upon her knees.

"I have brought a wedding present for my daughter," announced Nick Sandal putting.

Marcella had bent down close over the open box and was looking at her jewels.

"They're all here," she touched them with her fingers, "but they're wet." She trembled and her teeth chattered. "That's Julian's blood."

Jocelyn knelt before that terrible figure. "Mother, don't. There's no blood. Mother, please look up."

"Touch them yourself, dear. Put your hand on them. You feel that? It's Julian's blood. My husband killed him. The police will be coming. We must hide these. Julian gave them to me. They were a gift. We were going away. They are my trust. I'll put them behind an altar. They will be an offering." She got up, holding the box against her breast, and went over to her cabinet.

It was Felix Kent who took control. "She's out of her wits," he said, "and must have a doctor." He turned to Nick whose hollow eyes had lost their malice and were distracted with terror and remorse.

"I don't know who you are, sir, but since you brought about this condition by a rather ill-advised return of missing property, you'd better bring him back here as quickly as you can. This young lady has an important engagement and must go out with me at once."

"No, Felix."

"Yes. I'm afraid that it's necessary. And in good time, probably thanks to Catring. I see that I'll have some help if I should be driven to needing it."

He directed his gaze toward the square hall. It seemed, to her scared eyes, to be filled with men. At sight of them Nick went back a little toward the shining window.

But Felix boldly advanced and flung open the glass doors.

"I am Felix Kent, gentlemen. I am in charge here. Mr. Catring has sent you? For an arrest? Come right in, please. I may need your help."

One of them did come in obediently and very close and spoke low, interrupting him, displaying a paper and a badge.

"You are Felix Kent? You're the man we're looking for then. A summons from Chicago. Judge Merwyn. They want to see you out there about some—evidence. An old case. Will you come with us now, sir, and quietly, please."

In that square entrance hall, after they had closed the tall glass doors, Jocelyn saw him, standing among them, turn back, as though against his will, to look at her. She remembered another outline—noble, patient, proud. This outline of her bridegroom had no such quality. Its narrow knave face was shrunken with pale hatred, with frustrated passion, with lost vengeance.

To escape that last terrible look, the girl fell down before Nick Sandal and hid her face.

He put his arms about her eagerly. And Felix, with the men, went out.

A strange day. A strange and evening, Marcella had gone into the sanctuary distracted by her memories; she came out quite serene, a child whose memory is only of today and yesterday. She thought that Nick Sandal was her indulgent uncle and Jocelyn, a friend to love.

Jocelyn, who had wished to understand and to love the gray mysterious mother, now loved aching a gray-haired, faded, happy girl.

Mary had given them the name of a doctor who had attended her mistress in occasional small illnesses. The doctor examined Marcella gently and proficiently.

"She should be taken," he said, "to a quiet place; a sanitarium where she will have no painful reminders of loss or shock. I'm not a neurologist, myself. She ought to be under the observation of some trained psychiatrist."

"Do you know of such a man and of such a place, Dr. Bond?"

"Dr. Steever is your man and, for the place, I can give you an address. In fact, if you like, I can get Steever and we can take Mrs. Harlowe to this hospital—a sort of nursing home it is—tomorrow. She will be quiet tonight. I've seen to that. This matter of the jewels now? The circumstances of their return having brought on the—er—crisis. . . will she be missing them, do you think?"

"It was because of her fright and worry over their loss and yes, I suppose, the sudden joy of getting them back—" Jocelyn paused, pitiful of the wretched look about Nick's mouth.

"Then she can take them with her?"

"Nick, can she?"

"It's for you to decide, Lynda. Tonight I'll tell you the story of the jewels."

Jocelyn, hardly knowing the Dr. Bond had left, until Nick spoke to her: "Come over here, Lynda. Are you too tired?"

"I'm not tired. I'm afraid."

"You'd rather I'd be quiet. Let it go? You'd rather know the truth?"

"I'd rather. . . but of course I must listen."

"I met your mother in a California cafe, San Francisco. In those days, I was a mining engineer. I gambled a little on the side when I felt the luck in my fingers. I followed Miss Harlowe east; had some money at the moment that made me feel rich enough to gamble for a girl like that. She was beautiful, high-headed, romantic, crazy for color, for fish and gorgeous things. I went to New York. I looked up a swell cousin and got myself introduced to the Harlowe crowd. Big affairs, they were. Suspicious of me from the start. To them I smelled like a rank outsider. Well, I was one. But, somehow, I got the girl. She quarreled with old Josiah. Looking back, I could see that she handed him out a raw deal. He'd done everything for her, loved her in his way as deeply as I did in mine. But at the time, of course, I liked stealing her from him. We ran away together."

it hadn't been for that man's glorious possession—" "Was that his fortune, Nick?" "All of it. Yes; and it wasn't rightly his. His capital, you see, his aunt's advance-legacy he boasted of—well, it was really all her own fortune, all she had in the world and she had entrusted it to him. He was supposed to bring her treasure to America and to dispose of it, for her, to the best possible advantage. He was, I imagine, to get his commission on the sale. But of course we did not know that the Marquise de Montree—" "Wait, Nick, don't you know—stop a minute. Yes, that was the family name of Mother Gabrielle, my Mother Superior at the convent."

Nick's attention was arrested. "So! Then those jewels belong to her. And that explains why my poor distracted wife sent you to the convent. You were a sort of hostage, a substitute for stolen jewels, the jewels she couldn't bear to give up."

"So I had to have more money. I got to gambling in earnest. I made enough at the tables sometimes almost to satisfy even Cella. But of course it was uncertain."

"Julian Montree was a gambler too, but not in the sense that I was. He seemed to be a gentleman dabbling in risk for his amusement."

"He had an English mother, a French father. Both, it would appear, very well connected and both dead. A French aunt of high nobility, devoted, had, it would also appear, adored him from his infancy and had recently furnished him with an enormous sum to invest in American enterprise. All this we got from him gradually and naturally as our intimacy grew. He saw Cella while I was at the mines of course. And I knew it. There was no secrecy about their friendship I trusted her. Do you know, even now I find it difficult to believe that she stopped loving me."

His tone, his look, brought tears to Lynda's throat.

"This enormous capital that had been given" to Montree by his aunt, Lynda—" "Nick, was I born then?" Nick laughed a little. "Yes. I forgot to mention that. You were born. Neither of your parents deserved your arrival. I wanted you for Cella's sake, another treasure; and I believe she really didn't want you at all."

"Go on, Nick."

"So—" he drew on his familiar aid, ironed. His eyes and mouth began to mock now at the insufferable memories. "So my wife and my friend in immemorial fashion became lovers and, like all the Pantaloon's whose antics have furnished the world with loud guffawings, I did not suspect them. Lynda, you've seen those jewels?"

"Yes."

"Your mother loved that man. But sometimes I've thought that if

People in the east are learning where Lamb county is located! Two buyers, H. G. Allen and his cousin of Butler, Alabama, attended the weekly auction sale at the C. M. Edwards farm, four miles northwest of Littlefield, Monday, and they bought several head of stock, to be shipped back to the cotton state. This was the first sale they had visited on the South Plains, and they enjoyed talking to the typical West Texans, and learning that this section is one of the most progressive areas of the state.

"TRIP TO THE ORIENT" GIVEN AT PROGRAM OF FEDERATED CLUBS

One of the highlights of the season was the "Trip to the Orient," Monday afternoon, at the regular meeting of the Federation of Churches, at the Methodist church, when J. O. Von Lankin discussed the social conditions in China. Members of the Methodist Missionary society were hostesses to the Federation.

The opening song was "Jesus Calls Us," following which Mrs. Viggo Peterson, vice president of the Federation, presided at a business session, and reports were given by the various committees.

The program included a duet, "Have Thy Way, Lord," by Miss Maxine Cash and Mrs. Lynn Dobbs; talks by Mr. Von Lankin and a piano solo by Mrs. Orien Dennis. Mrs. W. H. Gardner was program chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. F. A. Hemphill and Mrs. J. T. Elms.

"The Chinese accept life as it is, and are perfectly satisfied with what comes and goes," Mr. Von Lankin told the group. The comparison he made of the people of the western hemisphere and those of the orient, was related to a stormy sea and a mill pond. People in America are always in a hurry to get nowhere, toasting too and fro on the sea of life, while the oriental people are contented to be still, in their own mill pond of life.

"You can always be sure when you are approaching Shanghai," Mr. Von Lankin stated, "as you will have been sailing on bluish green water, until you are two days from that city. Then the water becomes yellow; caused from the soil brought down to the ocean by the Yangtze river. You will be attracted by the vast expanse of mud flats on the shore, but you will have traveled miles up the Yang proper. The mounds seen before reaching the city, covered with grass, are graves, and the Chinese people tell that these are graves of important people who were buried 2,000 years ago. No—not relatives of theirs, and they do not know who they were, only they were important."

"Funerals are important to the Chinese, they are happy that their loved ones have gone beyond the 'mess' they are living in. They bury their dead above the ground in brick mounds, and relatives wear white as signs of mourning."

"The river through Shanghai is very important to the natives. It is a Water God, and special services are dedicated to this God. They send offerings, which are small boats, covered with flowers, in the daytime, containing rice, shark pins and other useful articles. At night the small boats contain jars with inflammable materials that are lighted, which make beautiful sights as they float down the river and out into the sea."

"Probably the most interesting temple in China is the Temple of a Thousand Gods—(from the western viewpoint, the temple of 1,000 demons). The Chinese do not worship the good Gods. The effigy of all demons are in this temple. After I came back to the States, I dreamed about the snakes and dragons in the temple."

"All trades are represented, and those merchants and followers of trades place offerings before the one particular demon. The hall is one block long, with alcoves on each side. The noise in the temple accentuates the offerings given the priest, who places firecrackers in bowls to scare the demons away. It is not unusual to hear 200 cimbals and firecrackers at the same time."

"On the Chong Tong peninsula is the Temple on the Hill, perhaps the most beautiful in all the Orient, considering the colors and engraving in the temple. You go half way to the Temple on the Hill in a ricksha, then a distance on a donkey, then a half hour's climb on foot before reaching the building. In the center of the temple is the largest brass urn in China, filled with ashes that are said to be 2,000 years old. (Everything in China is at least 2,000 years old.) A fire burns in the urn all of the time, and the penitent Chinese climb to this temple on their knees, often torturing themselves, cutting their fingers and legs with razor blades. If these people believe so firmly in the powers of this temple, surely we cannot ignore the significance of the shrine in their lives."

"One visiting the Orient soon learns to carry a cane to keep off the numerous beggars who molest the streets, and who believe they have a right to a donation from a foreigner. All beggars are diseased, and if you do not heed their begging, they will claw and bite your ankles. If a beggar is found with silver, he would be executed for having stole the money. China is probably the only place in the world where a little money will go a long way."

"There are no moral standards among the people of China. They are not immoral—just unmoral. They will not cheat you in business dealings; they just love to bargain, but they cannot resist the money leaving their shops."

"It is easier to buy a young woman slave than a man slave. Fathers, in order to rid his house of his daughters, pays a man to marry her, and when speaking of their children, they only say the number of sons they have—they do not regard daughters as children."

"Banquets in China last from 9 in the morning to midnight, and guests are entertained at all hours by jugglers, songs and plays. There are not women actors, so the lines in the plays sometimes get rather screechy."

"Food served at these banquets tastes fairly good, if you have not seen it prepared. Dried pumpkin seed salted and rolled in fat, soup made of birds nests; salad of roots and young shoots—beans and bamboo leaves—do not cook the beans, just put them in a pot, leave them there until they sprout, then serve the shoots; and a vegetable egg, comprises the meal. The egg that I ate at one of these banquets was 1,000 years old, the host told me after the meal. It was jet black and looked like jelly that had been well preserved—didn't taste bad."

"Tea drinking is a ceremony in China; it is man's escape from home, as women are not allowed in tea houses. A Chinaman would not drink your tea, as it must be steeped three times and be very weak."

"The river people are all poverty stricken, and they live on the crumbs of food found in the waters after a ship has docked. Millions of people are happiest in their misery, accepting it as their life."

"The Japanese people are constantly in a turmoil of eastern and western ideas.—The Chinese are untouched by the western methods."

Palace Announces "Stand Up and Fight" For Saturday, Sunday

The outdoor action melodrama, dear to the hearts of film fans ever since the days of such early western stars as William S. Hart, William Farnum and Tom Mix, comes into its own again with Wallace Beery and Robert Taylor as its protagonists, in "Stand Up and Fight," at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday.

Teamed for the first time, Beery and Taylor co-star in a story of Western Maryland in the 1850's, when the railroads and stagecoach lines were engaged in a bitter struggle for right-of-way as the population of the United States surged westward. Semi-historic in theme, "Stand Up and Fight" presents a period and locale new to motion pictures, but presenting all the elements of the best of the action Westerns including two bare-knuckle fights between its stars, a saloon brawl, jail dynamiting, a race between train and stage coach, a covered wagon wreck and a series of gunfights.

Florence Rice wins her most important assignment to date as Taylor's leading lady in the adaptation of the Forbes Parkhill novel, while a notable supporting cast includes such names as Helen Broderick, Charles Bickford, Charley Grapewin, John Quaker, Barton MacLane, Robert Gleckler and Clinton Rosemond.

W. S. Van Dyke II, who first made a name for himself as writer, director and cutter of Westerns in the days of Lesany directed "Stand Up and Fight" with Mervyn LeRoy producing.

"The Philippines adopt the American ideal, attend our colleges here, go back to the islands, kick off the western shoes, discard most of their clothing, but will always keep their straw hats acquired in America."

"In Japan the people have made the western ideas fit into the eastern ideas. China may eventually be absorbed by Japan, but Japan will never conquer China. What has been will be forever in China, even 1,000 years from now."

About 50 women attended this lecture, and after the benediction by Mrs. M. E. Norwood, the hostesses served a dainty refreshment plate, carrying out the valentine color scheme.

STUDENTS ARE PREPARING FOR INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE MEET AT SPADE MARCH 24TH AND 25TH

The Lamb County Interscholastic League meet will probably be March 24 and 25. Spade, Texas, is the host. The meet this year will be held at Spade, although the Chisum singing contests will be conducted in the same manner as that of last year, at the First Baptist church in Littlefield, on March 14. The tennis contest will be held at the various schools in the county, and the county volleyball games will be as scheduled: Swain, Amherst and Spring Lake, at Spade; and Littlefield, Cotton and Spade, at Otton, on March 15 and 16, Mr. Hemphill stated.

Students in the county schools are busy preparing for this annual event, and the contests are slated to be among the best that have ever been staged in Lamb county.

LAMB COUNTY RANKS THIRD OF 19 COUNTIES IN COTTON PRODUCTION

Nineteen counties of the South Plains Jan. 16 had ginned 443,988 bales of cotton, as compared with 1,000,513 bales at the same date the year before. The report, made Monday, was the semi-final accounting of the U. S. bureau of the census for the 1938 crop. Ranking of the counties is fairly well decided for the year. One more report, as of March 1, is to be taken. Little change is expected in county totals since practically all ginnings were out before the last census. Lubbock ranks first; Lynn, second; Lamb, third; Dawson, fourth; Crosby, fifth; Hockley, sixth; Scurry, seventh; Dickens, eighth; Hale, ninth. The previous year's crop showed rankings: Lubbock, Lynn, Dawson, Lamb, Crosby, Hockley, Terry, Hale, Scurry, Dickens.

England's Leader Warns Foes Country Not Afraid to Fight

Prime Minister Baldwin of England, speaking Monday night at the same time as Adolph Hitler, warned it would be "dangerous illusion" to imagine England was afraid to fight.

"If war should come," he declared, "we will fight with a unanimity never seen before."

Delivering a speech in which he admitted the parts deploring the world armament race had been discussed with Prime Minister Chamberlain, Baldwin told a Worcester women's national service meeting: "It is sad to see Hitler and Mussolini compromising the opportunity of their own class (working class) to improve a low standard of living by keeping them at work making ammunition for a bloody war."

Baldwin made no mention of Hitler's speech. Of that speech was reserved for Chamberlain in a full dress foreign affairs debate in the house of commons tomorrow.

British concern over European tension was clearly indicated, however, by an admiralty announcement that plans had been changed by which the 32,000-ton battle cruiser, Repulse, would retain her full armaments during the royal visit to Canada and the United States next May and June.

The original intention had been to remove the four eight-inch anti-aircraft guns of the Repulse to give King George and Queen Elizabeth greater accommodations.

Earl Baldwin said war in Europe would leave a legacy of the hate and anarchy in Europe, yet "unless the will to peace exists in the hearts and souls of all leaders in Europe there may come a time when war will be inevitable."

Hitler Warns United States; Will Support Italy in Case War

In pledging German support for Italy in any war against her, Adolph Hitler Monday night demanded the return of Germany's pre-war colonies, and warned the United States to keep her hands off German trade with South America. Hitler announced that Germany and Italy were "determined to give common support to common interests."

In an outline of nazi policies, the fuhrer also:

1. Warned the western powers against interfering "in matters concerning us alone with the purpose of preventing natural and sensible solutions."

2. Declared either "force" or "common sense" were methods by which re-distribution of the "riches of the world" could be accomplished, but said the colonial question was "in no sense a problem which could cause wars."

3. Repudiated "any American intervention in German affairs" and said German relations with the United States suffered from "a campaign of defamation carried on to serve obvious political and financial interests";

4. Launched a bitter attack against bolshevism;

5. Hailed insurgent success in Spain as another "valiant defeat of the newest universal attempt to destroy the European culture world";

6. Assailed United States Secretary of Interior Ickes and three British statesmen who frequently attack nazi policies as "apostles of war";

7. Proclaimed that Europe could not "come to rest" until the Jewish question was settled;

8. Disavowed any German territorial demands upon England and France "except that of the restoration of our colonies"; and

9. Envisaged the possibility of a trade war by which Germans "either live—meaning exports—or die" but warned that German leaders were "ready for everything."

LAMB COUNTY SCHOOL BUILDINGS INCLUDED IN PWA PROGRAM FOR 1939

The Amherst gymnasium and the Spring Lake school building are included in the 15 school building projects in 14 towns on the South Plains, financed by Public Works administration funds, George Bull, regional director at Fort Worth, reported last week.

Total cost of construction of these 15 projects is given as $1,300,377, with PWA grants of $585,120 included.

Besides these two projects in Lamb county, application has been made for a grant on the new building proposed at Sudan.

The Amherst gymnasium is estimated to cost $36,000, with a PWA grant of $16,200.

The new Spring Lake school building will cost approximately $56,800, with a grant of $25,560.

Both of these buildings are well-under construction, and will be completed for another school term.

Similar projects are under-way at Colorado, Farwell, Hermligh, Lamesa, Levelland, Lubbock, Nazareth, Pyron, Seagraves, Seminole, Sligo, and Snyder.

May Continue to Use Operators License After April 1

Texas drivers may continue to use their operators' licenses after April 1, the statutory expiration date for all such permits, the public safety commission announced today.

The commission said an indefinite period of extension was advisable pending legislative action on two proposals for reissuing driving permits. The two bills referred to in the legislative hopper are senate bill No. 3 and house bill No. 50.
