For '41 - Finest We've Done!

WITH this advertisement, Buick ushers in a brand-new automobile model year.

1940 production is history—recording the greatest manufacturing and selling season our company has ever known.

You may be sure we grimly realized we had to accomplish things in our new cars for 1941 that we could count on to continue our advance.

So, on top of the $42,000,000 spent on our plants and machines these last four years we've added another $10,000,000 in new facilities.

We've taken our greatest all-time car and steadily and carefully brought it forward to a perfection of action, ease, goodness beyond anything ever offered under our name.

It's hard to picture the new 1941 Buicks fairly with old adjectives.

Every car in all five series of the whole new line deserves unused fresh-minted language.

Stylewise, their suave and dynamic beauty refreshes the jaded eye as would sight of a hydrant in the desert.

They move and function like young wild things. They're all grace and poise and eagerness. They bring to driving and handling a keener pleasure and a new thrill.

Go see these superb new cars at your dealer's—they make plain why Buick is rightly called "exemplar of General Motors value."

Ask especially about the new micro-poise-balanced FIREBALL® engines—the 1941 furtherance of Buick's Dynamic design and kingpin of all the features that make Buick the sensation of the new automobile year.

"Build-Up" Relief Explained to Women

A simple method has saved many women a lot of suffering!

It is based on the fact that headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain are often symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition.

Help for this condition so often follows the use of CARDUI, because it usually increases the appetite and the flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion and helps build physical resistance. Usual result is less periodic distress.

Many who take CARDUI a few days before and during "the time" have found this helps ease periodic discomfort. Women have used CARDUI for more than 50 years!

Army And Navy To Reconstruct U. S. Highway Program Next Year

The army and navy will direct all of next year's $275,000,000 federal aid highway work. M. Carmody, federal works administrator, said Friday that in the interest of national defense, he will concentrate the 1941-42 program on roads and bridges certified by the war and navy departments to be of strategic importance, he said, would be placed on reinforcing routes for operation of heavy new mechanized and armored military units. Carmody said the army and navy program probably would take up all the $137,500,000 federal appropriation by Congress plus an equal amount from states — a total of $275,000,000.

In a program, he continued, resulting from a survey of defense needs conducted by the War and Navy departments and

Canada Seeks War Supplies From USA

Canada, it was disclosed Friday, is negotiating for large quantities of military supplies from the United States and desires immediately several hundred obsolete war tanks.

This development was made known by Mayor Florello H. LaGuardia, chairman of the American section of the joint United States-Canadian board, and General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Neither discussed the question of what Canada was offering the United States. There was immediate speculation, however, linking the negotiations with possible United States acquisition of Pacific coast naval and air bases.

In connection with Pacific bases, the Galapagos and Cocos Islands, owned by Ecuador and Costa Rico, have been mentioned most frequently, but naval students pointed out that a base on the western Canadian coast might prove invaluable in defense of Alaska.

La Guardia told reporters of the Canadian negotiations for military supplies after a call at the White House.

He declined to discuss their status, but said such supplies would be in large enough amounts so "they wouldn't be for any Fourth of July celebration."

At the same time, General Marshall told a press conference that the war department was considering a proposal to release several hundred obsolete World war tanks to Canada for training purposes.

Marshall said he was favorably inclined toward the proposal.

The staff chief said the tanks both light and medium, cannot be used by the United States army. They can travel only 2 1-2 to 3 miles an hour, and have been abandoned by the army.

G. M. SHAW TAKES OVER MANAGEMENT OF JONES MERCANTILE STORE, SUDAN

G. M. (Gus) Shaw, who for the past six years has been advertising manager and publicity director for Ware's Department Store in Littlefield, recently accepted the management of Jones Mercantile Company in Sudan, and took over his new duties Monday.

Willis Jones, owner of the Sudan establishment, has a chain of stores on the South Plains, operating at Plainview, Dimmitt, Bovina and Sudan. Mr. Shaw will help direct publicity for each of these stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw came to Littlefield in 1919 from Houston, and for several years he was manager of the Lamb County Mercantile Co. In 1923 he opened the first furniture store here, and operated in it Littlefield.

Mr. Shaw traveled in West Texas, connection the first funeral home New Mexico and Arizona for a while for a general dry goods house, and was with a millinery house in Chicago until 1932.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have been active in civic, club and church affairs in Littlefield, and their many friends here regret their leaving, but wish them success in their new location.

Mrs. Shaw has been choir director at the First Presbyterian Church for the past 15 years, and for several years has been teaching private music and voice lessons. She will continue her music lessons through the school term, coming to Littlefield from Sudan twice each week to teach at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cogdill.

J. H. Ware, owner of Ware's Department Store, announced that he did not know at the present time who would take Mr. Shaw's place in the store here.

Parity Payments Totaling $18,000 Are Received

With 770 cotton parity payment applications approved by the county Agricultural Adjustment administration committee and sent to College Station for payment, checks amounting to approximately $18,000 have been received, according to A. W. Bingham, administrator.

Bingham estimates the farmers of the county on 2,828 work sheets should receive $453,000 in parity payments this year.

Checking of performance is 99 per cent complete for the first check. Approximately 1,200 farms had to be rechecked, because cotton was over planted.

Do you know why Gene's Food Store has that name? Owned by H. C. and R. E. Lair, formerly of Lubbock, the store was given that name in Littlefield because of a similar store owned by Mr. H. C. Lair's brother in Lubbock. "Gene" is for the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lair, and he is that cute little blue-eyed boy you see smiling in the store most of the time. He is the only grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lair.

Mr. and Mrs. Howell formerly lived at the Batton Hotel, while Mr. and Mrs. Thaxton lived in an apartment on Phelps avenue. Mrs. Howell and Mrs. Thaxton are both employed in the office of the Texas-New Mexico Utilities Company, and now they are enjoying being neighbors "off work hours."

Comes a copy through the mail of the Diamond Jubilee edition of the Jasper News-Boy, reputed to be the first weekly newspaper published in Texas. This edition has 40 pages of interesting stories of the history of the east Texas section, pictures, and advertising.

The Jasper News-Boy was established in 1865 by Capt. Edward I. Kellie, who was a soldier of the Confederacy, and founder of much of the civic life of the town.

As I looked through this paper, I thought of Major George W. Littlefield, that soldier, builder and philanthropist for whom this town is named. Do you remember the words written about Major Littlefield in the Anniversary Edition of the Leader published in 1938? . . . "There is a monument in the cemetery at Austin, Texas, which marks the resting place of Major George W. Littlefield. The real memorial is carved into the hearts of all Texans. The history of Texas progress and the annals of our contentment, are but the image and reflection of the Great Man whose name our city proudly bears . . ."

I don't know who sent me the copy of the Jasper News-Boy, but must have been someone who knows that I have a file of anniversary editions of papers from various parts.

American-British Friendship

In 1832 Thomas Jefferson wrote to President Monroe:

"Great Britain is the nation which can do us the most harm of any one, or all, on earth; and with her on our side we need not fear the whole world. With her, then, we should most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship."

Former President James Madison to whom President Monroe referred Mr. Jefferson's letter, wrote:

"With the British power and navy combined with our own, we have nothing to fear from the rest of the world."

Then, as today, Britain was standing alone against all Continental Europe, leagued in the so-called Holy Alliance. The threat of European domination of South America and ultimately of this nation was as imminent then as now. Therefore, with Britain's complete acceptance and assurance of cooperation, President Monroe promulgated the doctrine which still bears his name.

Today, as then the cooperation between the United States and Britain is close. Americans realize that if Britain's navy falls into enemy hands, nothing will stand between us and the dictatorships of the Continent.

So the President has made an agreement with Canada for mutual defense, Britain has agreed to lease to our nation air and naval bases on this side of the Atlantic, perhaps as repayment of our World War loans; the plan for selling Britain 50 of our destroyers as we have already sold Government airplanes, seems to be coming to a head.

History is being made before our eyes.

The Tools Of War

The modern Army is a motorized organization. Troops are transported by trucks instead of marching on foot; cavalry horses are carried in trucks; and the tanks, which were a novelty in the last big war, have become a vital part of the armament of any nation which expects to match the high-speed tactics which have proved successful in Europe.

More reliance is to be placed on motorized, mobile artillery of all calibers than the tacticians of the old school ever dreamed of. And as for the air force, which has become the most essential arm of the service, what does it consist of but a vast number of high-powered motors, attached to wings? Someone said that he could fly a tea-tray if he had a powerful enough engine.

All of which means that the new Army which we are about to build will have to know as much and probably more about motors, gasoline engines and Diesels, than its soldiers will have to learn about shooting rifles. The best soldier will be the man who is most at home with machines and their operation.

The little city of Haverstraw, New York, has started something which every other community might well imitate. Anticipating that many of its young men will either volunteer or be drafted for military service, business men, mechanics and others have picked up the idea put forward by Edward Sorace, a local mechanic, for a volunteer school of motor and military mechanics. Not a driver in a hundred knows what's under the hood of his car, or what to do when he hears funny noises in the engine. Only a small percentage of men of military age know much about the use of tools any more complicated than a monkey-wrench.

The school for mechanical instruction in Haverstraw started with thirty young men learning to take motors apart and put them together again. The Army has promised to lend a spare tank, to be handled the same way. Foremen of the city's factories serve as instructors. The prospective soldiers are enthusiastic. They will go into the service with an edge on the wholly untrained.

The Haverstraw idea can be adopted by any community. If we are going to get ready for war, why not learn something about the real tools of war, which are machines?

Special Attractions At South Plains Fair Sept. 30-Oct. 5

This afternoon performance will be absolutely free.

Fair officials announced late last month the possibility of a free afternoon grandstand attraction, but assurance was not given until the signing of a contract this week.

At the same time announcement was made by Fair directors of the continuance of two children's shows this year. The plan was adopted last year for the first time proved so successful that the management is following the same procedure for the 27th annual Exhibition. Wednesday and Thursday, October 2 and 3, are the two days which have been designated. School children will be given free tickets. The area has been divided into sections. CHAPTER XI

SYNOPSIS

Rollins, tennis ace, is playing the final game of the Davis Cup. He dreamed of helping win the cup for America, but when he fell for Grace Worthington she refused to marry him. But his love for her proved too strong for the game. He joined the Davis Cup squad. Before his final match he learned that Grace is seeking a divorce to remarry, and all through the match he has been thinking of her.

The ball streaked over the net. He returned it, not too hard. He knew, and he knew Len knew, his only chance now was to outplay the American. But Len had given a sensible opportunity he could gamble—afford it during. But until that opportunity came—

He returned the ball. He was a case now of which of the would weaken first. And Len was the greatest, the steadiest of the game had ever known. He outplayed the American? In the stands set forward in this suspense watching this of duels.

The volleying continued steadily. Len saw a small opening. He sent the ball flying to the Frenchman's backhand, driving him out of position. The Frenchman returned the ball and quickly reversed over the open court. Coolly, knowing the great Len was doomed if his own aim was off, if his hand did not waver, Rollins' racquet cut the air in a swift arc.

Even as the ball "pinged" the taut gut, he knew that it had been true and that his hand did not waver. The white flag came from the corner from which just come the great little champion.

The packed stands set for a split second in stunned silence while the ball bounded crazily away. Lefevre, with a twisted smile upon his face, turned and watched it. Then he strode quickly forward to the net, vanquished, hand outstretched in congratulation.

There was pandemonium. Len and Clark were beside each other as they walked slowly off the court, and Charlie Hughes and Frank Wheatley were openly crying. And from all sides came applause. The roaring was thunder.

As Len walked from the court toward the ramp which led to the dressing rooms, hot perspiration dripping from his forehead, suddenly very close to the spectators rising in various exclamations only one thought came to him clearly—he must not let a cable flower to Grace.

Joseph Boncour's annual party in honor of the Davis Cup participants was the social event of every Parisian year. The guests are top-notch-ers in the worlds of sport, art and business.

The members of the United States Davis Cup team, on the evening of Henri Lefevre's defeat were Joseph Boncour's guests of honor. And he whose praise was sung the loudest found it difficult to join in the carnival spirit. Though he had attained that for which all his life he had been striving—to stand supreme in the world of tennis—Len lacked the feeling of elation he once thought this achievement would give.

Had he won—or had he lost? In gaining that which he most wanted he had lost the one person in the world he most needed.

He had a $50,000 check he could cash. But he wouldn't. He didn't want that sort of money. Payment for a life of emptiness. Payment for a life without Grace.

He shook his head to clear the mist from his eyes. Two men were standing before him and one was

And it is no secret that Len Rollins will be the biggest drawing card on the courts. He paused dramatically, took from his inside coat pocket a folded paper. "The contract is yours, Rollins, if you want it. What do you say?"

Len could not answer at first. Fifty thousand dollars. If he took this offer he could return the check to Grace and still be worth a small fortune. Still feel secure and never have to be afraid of the future. But what would his friends say, what would his country think, if he quit the amateur ranks suddenly like this? They were banking on him now to help keep possession of the cup his sensational victory had reclaimed.

Joseph Boncour's voice came to him as if from a great distance: "Of course my young friend is naturally a little stunned at the suddenness—"

And John Shay's laughter, also

She nodded and crept into his arms talking. He recognized Joseph Boncour; the other man he had seen before, but he could not recall where.

For the past hour Monsieur Boncour had been aware of the strange quiet aloofness of his most glittering guest. And Joseph Boncour knew that there is no better way for a man to recover his vitality than to take a few strong drinks.

He had taken upon himself to bring this about and was crossing the wide, ancient room when John Shay joined him. Now the two men stood before Len—the host and the man whose face Len vaguely remembered—and Boncour was asking in meticulous if accented English:

"You two men know each other, yes? Mr. Rollins—Mr. Shay?"

"We're from the same country and practically in the same business," Shay laughed lightly. "Yet we've never been introduced."

"I'm the American promoter, you know, Rollins. Tennis. Professional tennis. I handle the Tilden group. But well talk more about that later. That was a honey of a match this afternoon. You were swell in those last three sets."

Boncour's gently persuasive voice asked: "You gentlemen perhaps would enjoy a short personally conducted tour of the Boncour wine cellar. It is known throughout the continent as one of the most ancient. Some of the brands, they are one and two hundred years of age."

Len touched the extended glasses of Boncour and Shay and then the wine was warm in his throat. It sent a glow throughout his body. Boncour looked at them inquiringly. "Splendid!" John Shay exclaimed. "This is," Len said honestly, "the finest I've ever tasted in my life."

The Frenchman beamed. After a few more samples all around Shay said: "Rollins, you know why I am here. Not only in Europe, but—" he bowed slightly toward the Frenchman—"also at this charming party to which Monsieur Boncour was so good as to invite me."

Len made no reply and the tennis promoter hurried on. "I came to Europe to offer Henri Lefevre a contract of fifty thousand dollars and five percent of the gate receipts for a tour of the United States after winning the Davis Cup final. But he did not win. Len Rollins won.

from a distance. "Naturally," the promoter said. "We'll let it rest then, Rollins, until—say tomorrow? Give you time to think things out."

Len nodded. "Yes, that'll be fine," he answered in a low voice. "Maybe I'll let you know even before that."

The novelist, Dupree, whose books sold by the thousands, addressed Len: "Monsieur Rollins, may I present you to a very charming young lady?" His tone implied that he was merely repeating the young lady's request. Len winked at Swanstrom and Letenour standing together as he crossed the room at the novelist's side.

Dupree paused before a chair around which a number of young people were grouped. Len was introduced and there were congratulatory murmurs and ejaculations in both English and French.

"... and this," Dupree was saying as Len turned to acknowledge the introduction, "is a girl whose family I have known for many..."

The man's voice drifted away, ceased to exist. Before Len a girl was rising from a heavy oak chair, and he blamed Joseph Boncour's wine for the terrifying close resemblance.

"Len," she said softly. She was here, here!—standing before him, eyes stary, calling him by name.

He stepped forward and grasped her outstretched hands. "Gracie darling—" a lump rose in his throat and he was unable to say more.

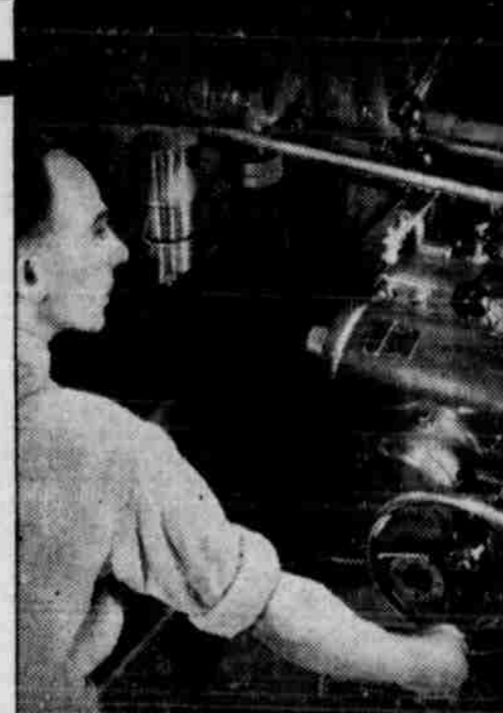

Somehow they made their way out of the room to the garden where other couples sat at tiny tables, sipping drinks. Like two lost children returning safely at last from out of frighteningly dense woods they found a table partly screened by a hedge. Len took Grace in his arms but did not kiss her. Tenderly, soothingly, he stroked her hair.

"I—I just couldn't do it, Len," she said. "I couldn't. He was good and kind; perfect. But he wasn't you. He understood. I caught the first boat I could. I wanted to intercept that letter. If you still love me, Len, I'll go wherever you say. To Boston, Forest Hills, Bermuda. The Riviera—all over the world. I don't care."

For a time he did not speak. He knew now that in time he could do without his game, but never without the dark-haired, stary-eyed girl beside him.

He kissed her. Her hand in his, they left the garden. Frank Wheatley was standing near the door of the big room as they returned to it.

"Frank," Len said with simple pride, "this is Mrs. Rollins, Grace, Mr. Wheatley."

There was a second's questioning flicker in Frank's eyes, then he murmured softly, "I'm glad. Very glad."

The wine merchant came forward with the Titian-haired girl on his arm but Len didn't see her. He said to the host: "May I use your telephone, Monsieur Boncour?"

"But of course." The wine merchant nodded toward a maid, spoke rapidly to her in French.

The maid curtsied and led Len, Grace's hand possessively tucked under his arm, toward a quiet part of the seventeenth-century house to where a telephone was enclosed within a small anteroom off the reception hall.

He took the receiver off the hook, handed it smilingly to Grace. "You jabber with the operator, darling—I don't speak her language."

"What shall I jabber?"

"Tell her we want to put in a trans-Atlantic call."

"But Mother and Dad know I'm—" "Tell her," he went on "to get Mr. Henry Justin; Talbot's on Fifth Avenue, New York City. We're going to Indianapolis."

Quickly she stood, the receiver in her hand, and her eyes rested on his face. He could hear the questioning, insistent voice of the telephone operator asking for the number. And then firmly she replaced the instrument.

"Len, darling," she said softly, "I can't let you do that. You would be unhappy, terribly unhappy. And if you were I would be too. You will always love to play tennis; I shall always be jealous of it. But we must both make concessions. Every couple must. I want you to take that professional offer. It's honest work and you'll like it. I'll go along with you wherever you have to go. And we'll save our money—the money you earn, Len darling. Maybe you'll play for five or six years and then you will have had enough. Then we can settle down. And we'll both still be young and—and..."

"We'll go back to 4-B."

She nodded, crept into arms he held toward her. "And it will be raining, maybe, just like—just like—oh, kiss me, Len darling; kiss me and tell me this is real, that we're not dreaming, that we've really found each other at last and for good."

"It is real, Grace. It never will change. It will rain tonight, my only love, and many nights to come. And every morning the sun will be shining brightly because we'll be together."

She raised her lips. "Forever, Len."

"Forever."

From somewhere deep in the shadows of Joseph Boncour's ancient, marble-halled castle the crystal chimes of a grandfather clock announced the ending of one day and the beginning of a new.

out trot lines. They stayed up the rest of the night, caught a big five-pound bass and several catfish.

You know there is nothing like sleeping under the stars with the murmur of the water and the gentle swish of the trees, and the mournful screech of the owls to lull one to sleep. Getting back to nature is really grand even when an inquisitive mosquito poked his meandering way into my innocent ear and I clawed, scratched and bumped my head until I almost had conclusions, before he repented and backed out.

Morning, and the sun rising over the trees, smell of wood smokes, bacon frying, coffee boiling, water beckoning and everyone in a haste to get going with a fishing pole. Creek up over bridge, but women folks crossed and went to town shopping. Came back close to 12 with bread and ice. Creek up too high to cross Saturday with nothing to eat but bread and ice for hour and a half. Finally crossed, had dinner, went swimming, water fine, but swift. Lazed around, played "42" and chinker-checks. Fished all day Thursday, caught quite a few. Had two big messes of fish and lots left. Really had fish almost every meal, even if sometimes spiced out with bacon and beans and 'taters. Swimming fine.

Highlights of trip: Running the trot line during night and Kirkendall falling on prickly pears, "that's right, you're wrong," just his hands and knees involved.

L. M. McCoy trying to rescue ladies hook hung on bridge; got tangled up in trousers leg, fell in and almost drowned in two feet of water.

P. W. Graham thinking his swim trunk belt was water moccasin trying to wrap around his neck; let out Comanche yell, jumped high enough out of water to click his heels together, and did a war dance on that rocky creek bed before calming down sufficiently to realize was only his imagination and belt. Incidentally, had bad case of stone bruise.

Mrs. Kurkendall while helping seine bait, stepping in jump-off in neck deep water; fell with a splash, gurgle and bellow, with nary a soul to rescue her. The would-be rescuers on the bank were doubled up and screaming with laughter.

Everyone were extra good sports and all had fun—if not fish—galore.

Two cars returned home Saturday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Kurkendall and Mr. and Mrs. Miller are to return Tuesday. Here's hoping them luck. For a real fishing trip don't forget your sense of humor, and as Kirky Kurkendall says, not even when on a midnight rendezvous with a trot line you run head-on into a ferocious limb and most high scalp yourself.

Here's to more and better fishing trips.

Parking Petition

Mayor Homer Hall reported that a city ordinance had been on record for several years, prohibiting double parking, but the ordinance has not been enforced.

The City Commission voted to mark off the streets in order that automobiles might park to the curb at an angle that will make it possible for more cars to park on Phelps Avenue without double parking.

Nothing definite has been done toward the elimination of double parking, Mr. Hall said, but action will be taken in the near future to relieve congested traffic on main street.

LAMB MAY RANK FIRST IN COTTON PRODUCTION

Clapp Estimates 100,000 Bales To Be Ginned In 1940

Hockley Will Rank Second With Dawson Third, Lubbock Fourth

It is being estimated that Lamb county will lead the 17 counties in the South Plains Area in cotton production this year, according to J. Lewis, Agricultural writer for the Avalanche Journal newspapers, in an article, which appeared in the 12th edition of the Avalanche, on August 22.

Lamb county should produce 65,000 bales of cotton for the 1940 season to top the South Plains, according to K. N. Clapp, of Anderson Clayton & Co., who estimates a total of 431,000 bales will be ginned in 17 counties in this area.

This is the third estimate for the season by a Lubbock cotton man, Jennings and H. E. Blocker previously made estimates. Jennings' figures are higher than Blocker's of 13,000 bales and 7,000 bales of those of Jennings. Blocker estimates Lamb third and Lubbock Hockley, according to Clapp, will rank second; Dawson third; Lubbock fourth; Lynn, fifth; Terry, sixth; Bailey, seventh; Hale, eighth; Crosby ninth.

Clapp's figures for Terry are 4,000 bales above those by Jennings, 12,000 above those by Blocker. The two agree upon Hockley, 10,000 bales. All three place Lynn's cotton production close together, between 41,000 and 45,000 bales. Dawson county is ranked higher than Clapp than the others; Cochran 18,000 bales compared to 10,000 by Blocker and 15,000 by Jennings.

The difference in the area total according to Clapp 17,000 bales above Blocker for the same counties. Jennings includes three counties, Dickson, Scurry and Motley that the other two do not include, but passes them over.

Clapp estimates an increase of 100,000 bales this year over last for the same counties; Blocker estimates 58,000 bales increase and Jennings 53,000 bales increase.

Crosby, Garza, Lubbock, Lynn, will be fewer bales ginned this year than last, Clapp estimates. Reports Saturday indicated further improvement in crop conditions in the area, with a few small areas that received some hail damage.

Some towns received first bales last week. Abernathy, Plainview, Littlefield, Whitharral and Post being among them. Others had not been reported.

Gins are preparing to get under way; bagging and ties are here and crews assembling. Only a few itinerant cotton pickers are here.

Clapp's estimates are:

County	Estimate
Bailey	25,000
Briscoe	3,500
Castro	4,000
Cochran	18,000
Crosby	23,000
Dawson	50,000
Floyd	12,000
Gaines	4,000
Garza	7,600
Hale	24,000
Hockley	55,000
Lamb	65,000
Lubbock	49,000
Lynn	45,000
Parmer	6,500
Swisher	3,000
Terry	37,000
Total	431,000

Plateau Singing Convention To Be At Amherst Sunday

The semi-annual Plateau Singing Convention will be held at the Amherst high school auditorium next Sunday, September 15, officials announced this week.

Approximately 28 Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma counties are embraced in the organization, and talented singers from the entire territory will be present for the program.

Arrangements have been made for a number of special quartets to appear on the program.

The last convention was held in Littlefield in March.

4-H GIRL PROFITS FROM HER POULTRY

"My pullets were 5 months old last week and we have already found 3 pullet eggs," Merle Rochelle told the home demonstration agent Saturday. Merle selected her chicks from stock that had good laying records. Lightweight breeds should begin laying at 5 months and the heavier breeds at six months.

These pullets will be coming into good production by the time egg prices advance. Merle is expecting a profit of 75c per hen. As these pullets were vaccinated for fowl pox early this summer, there will be no danger of the set-back that the Rochelles experienced this last year. The pullets have been moved into a laying house and nests have been provided. There should be one nest to each five hens.

Merle is the poultry demonstrator for the Amherst 4-H Club.

Three million farm families of the nation, 53 percent of them in the South, are living on gross incomes averaging $615.

Conscription Bill Passed By House

The House passed the Burke-Wadsworth peace-time conscription bill Saturday night, but with a provision that the actual draft be deferred for 60 days to permit further trial of the voluntary enlistment system.

The vote on final passage was 203 to 149.

A vote of 207 to 200 reaffirmed the earlier, tentative decision to defer the actual drafting of men. This provision is not contained in the Senate bill and it, with other changes, raised the possibility of time-consuming delay in getting the two houses to agree on the final form of the measure.

The House measure would require all men between 21 and 44 inclusive to register and make them liable to the draft, while the Senate bill fixed the age limits at 21 to 30 inclusive.

The bill will now go back to the Senate with a request that the House amendments be approved. The Senate will decline to do so, and each chamber will appoint representatives for the task of bringing the two bills into conformity.

Since the 60-day postponement provision was defeated in the Senate by only two votes any effort by the conferees to drop it—the war department is opposed to the provision—would encounter intense opposition. Some were already suggesting a compromise formula which would involve retaining the House's sixty-day postponement and the Senate's age limit figures.

E. A. Whitfield Announced National Maize Heading Champion In Anton Saturday

E. A. Whitfield, of Anton, was crowned the United States maize heading champion in the first annual National Maize Heading contest sponsored by the Farmers and Merchants club of Anton Saturday.

A total of 49 South Plains farmers slashed down as many rows of maize in the V. E. Pritchard field northwest of Anton and when the dust had died down more than 23 tons of feed had been headed from ten acres.

Whitfield received a prize of $50 in cash for his efforts. He headed 860 pounds of feed net and left but one head in his half-mile long row in 54 minutes. Pritchard won second prize of $25 in his own field with a total of 920 pounds in 61 minutes, leaving two heads. Horace Hutton of County Line, Hale county, won third prize of $10 with 590 pounds net in 41 minutes, leaving six heads. Whitfield's average was 15.93 pounds per minute, compared to Pritchard's 15.08 pounds and Hutton's 14.39 pounds.

A. C. Evitt of Anton had the best time of 40 minutes for completing his load closely followed by Hutton in 41 minutes. M. A. Evitt and Ralph Wade were tied for third best time with 43 minutes each.

Ray Stevenson brought in the heaviest load, 1060 pounds, but was docked for 16 percent long stems, time and left heads to drop out of the money. E. E. Whitfield, a brother of the winner, brought in the second heaviest load—980 pounds, and Joe Sooter of Shallowater was third with 970 pounds.

The contest attracted a total of 80 entries but only 49 showed up for the heading which was run off in three heats starting at 9:30 o'clock and closing out about 4 p.

m. A large crowd of interested spectators witnessed the various heats of the contest and an even greater crowd thronged the streets of Anton during the afternoon when results of the contest were being tabulated and announced later.

K. W. Wells, president of the club, announced the winners over a public address system. Ed Hart, director of the contest, introduced Mayor E. L. Roach, who told of plans already being laid for an even greater contest next year.

Each contestant headed maize down a half-mile row on the Pritchard farm. For each head left in the row, the contestant was docked ten pounds. Ten percent long stems of four inches or longer were allowed but each man was docked 100 pounds for 10 to 15 percent long stems and 200 pounds for 15 to 20 percent.

ENJOYS STRAWBERRIES UNTIL FROST COMES

"The strawberries I set out this spring are full of blossoms now and we are having a few berries," Mrs. M. J. Wilson told the Littlefield Home Demonstration Club at Mrs. W. K. Bagwell's home last Thursday.

Mrs. Wilson kept the runners pinched off so the plants would become well established. These are ever-bearing and they will produce berries until a freeze. Berries set out in the fall will produce in the spring, but those set out in the spring will not usually produce well until fall.

Allow 15 plants for each member of the family and set them out 10 inches apart. October and No-

WAXING VEGETABLES

Eastern truck growers are waxing such vegetables as peppers, tomatoes, eggplants, cucumbers, and squash. A wax emulsion for that purpose costs three to four cents a bushel and results in premiums of from 20 to 30 cents. Leafy vegetables and bunched root crops cannot be waxed satisfactorily.

ANOTHER DRY HOLE?

In the constant search for new oil reserves in Texas, even the dry holes benefit the communities in which they are drilled.

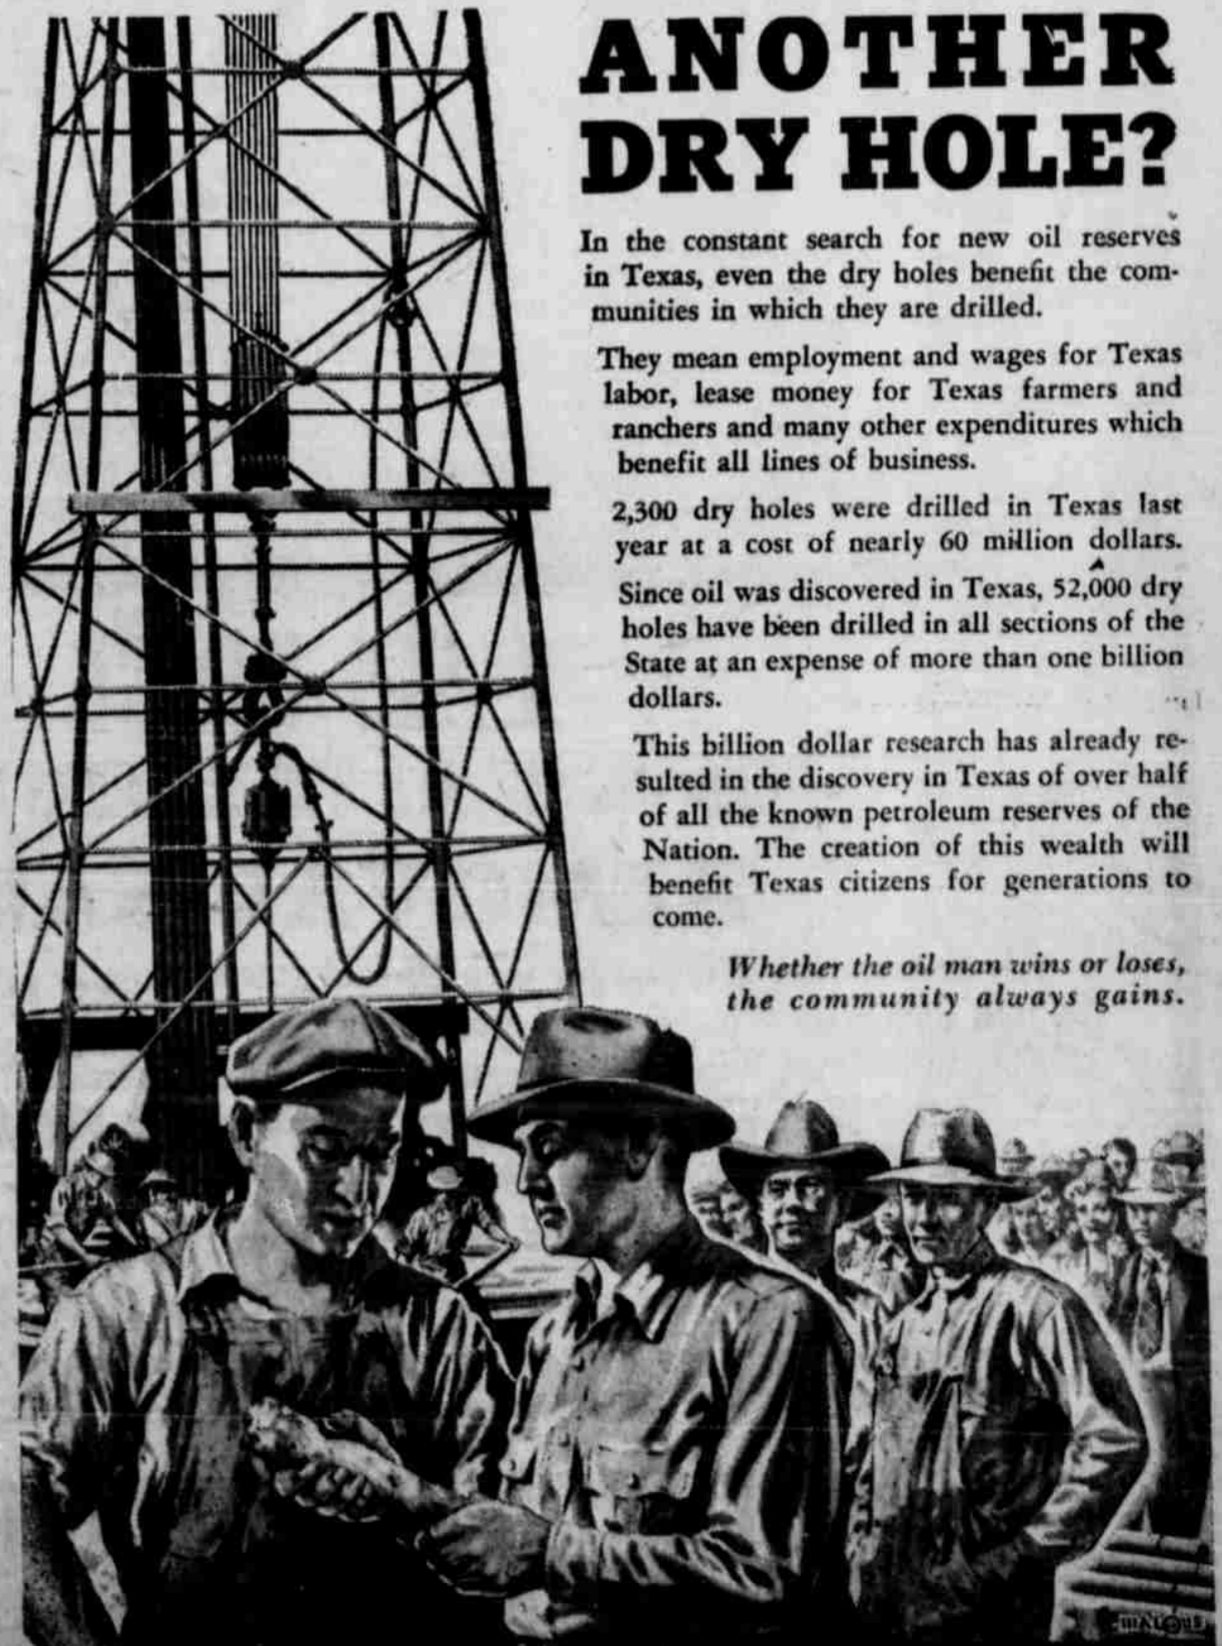

They mean employment and wages for Texas labor, lease money for Texas farmers and ranchers and many other expenditures which benefit all lines of business.

2,300 dry holes were drilled in Texas last year at a cost of nearly 60 million dollars.

Since oil was discovered in Texas, 52,000 dry holes have been drilled in all sections of the State at an expense of more than one billion dollars.

This billion dollar research has already resulted in the discovery in Texas of over half of all the known petroleum reserves of the Nation. The creation of this wealth will benefit Texas citizens for generations to come.

Whether the oil man wins or loses, the community always gains.

MEMOIRS OF FORMER LOCAL WOMAN RECALL EXPERIENCES IN EUROPE

W. M. Blackburn, the former Prudence Courtney of Shreveport, La., who, with her brother and sister-in-law, Mrs. S. L. Blackburn, have spent the past 20 years in France.

Roy Wade, sister of Mrs. W. M. Blackburn, sent a clipping from the Shreveport Times to the Leader, telling of the experiences of Mrs. Blackburn recently.

Mrs. Blackburn is a native of Louisiana. They were married in 1914 at the end of the World War.

Mr. Blackburn served over the American forces, and in France ever since, and on a short visit to this country in 1919.

They were on the famous road of the Germans swept on to victory. They were in the 45-mile-an-hour German march through the Paris area.

They were in the Paris area, through their own home headquarters for a German and his staff.

Conditions in France as reported in the Shreveport Times are as follows:

"I never even gave us a chance to die!"

It was the bitter, broken-hearted platoon of once dashing French officers as they told their mechanized and Fifth Army crushed the forces of Belgium last spring in the world's most terrible blitzkrieg.

Our morale had been high, we wanted to fight, they were fighting. But when someone tried to mine the bridges in the retreat across the Meuse leaving them for German use, someone failed to open the Canal Albert in Belgium to flood that area and stop the German mechanized forces.

These young fellows found themselves trapped. They were killed, lost or captured, with no chance to fight back—without a chance to die, as they put it, they got back to their homes."

For the future—the future of our and of other nations—the sums are hopeful, but not all. They hope someday they will cover some of their property loss. But they hope especially that this nation will avoid war, and the fate of France, by always being prepared for any and all contingencies, no matter how powerful.

America had been prepared to give sympathy and beliefs with Hitler never would have moved, and there would never have been a war," Mr. Blackburn said.

"If Hitler knows America is ready, he will never move against this nation or anyone with which it allies itself. He caught France with her guard down from the military, civilian and political angles, and he caught England about the same way. If this country is to keep from being caught, it must prepare, and the civilians must prepare as well as the military forces."

Sudan Hornets To Play Whitharral Sept. 20

The Sudan Hornets will meet the Whitharral gridders at Sudan Friday afternoon, September 20 for the first game to be played at Sudan. The Hornets open the season Friday at Amherst.

Both the Sudan and Whitharral boys are well matched, and it is thought by officials that a thrilling game will be played at this time.

Phillip Harmon, 1940 graduate of Texas Tech, Lubbock, was recently elected coach in the Sudan high school.

Harmon was a three-year letterman under Tech coach Pete Cawthon, playing in both the '37 Sun Bowl and the '38 Cotton Bowl games.

"Sudan affords prospects for a pretty good ball club. Twenty-six green and inexperienced boys have reported, but they have an energetic spirit, and that is what counts," says Harmon regarding his ten-game schedule. He believes that Olton and Littlefield will possibly present the greatest competition.

Navy Dept. Orders Seven Battleships

Seven monster battleships of 45,000 tons a piece and an armada of 194 other vessels were ordered by the navy department Tuesday in a $2,861,053,312 batch of contracts designed to equip the United States with a two-ocean navy greater than anything now afloat.

The group of orders, largest ever placed at one time in U. S. naval history, was announced within a few hours after President Roosevelt signed a $5,251,000,000 defense bill providing funds to begin construction. The orders, which went both to private plants and the navy's own ship yards will call into service private yards where no combat vessel has slid down the ways since World War days.

By CHARLES DIDWAY

Tomorrow is Friday the 13th, not only in Littlefield, but throughout the world, and whether or not those in other lands ominously regard the numerals "13" as agents of dire doings, the fact remains that many of them will experience occurrences "brewed by witches."

If we, in America, are so unfortunate as to lose at the races, be jilted by our "onliest," or live through some equally harrowing experience, let us still find time to give thanks to whatever gods of luck might be that we are not living in war-torn Europe, where the "witches of war" ride broomsticks which deal death and destruction.

Incidentally, there will not be another Friday the 13th until next December, which, on second thought, isn't so far off at that. Rarely do two Fridays the 13th fall so closely together, and it bodes ill luck for either the Democrats or Republicans.

Revivals and family reunions—two of America's most sacred institutions and a goodly share of both are held in Lamb county. We don't believe we've ever been in a section where church revivals were more numerous, and attendance must be good, else there wouldn't be so many of them. And every time we read or hear of a family reunion we gain strength in our belief that the world after all is not headed straight for the jumping off place. Families have held together down through the ages, and if in the dim future a bleak wind howls over a world gone stark mad, the outstanding picture probably will be of a family group huddled together in inherent loyalty 'neath the spreading branches of the family tree.

Have you ever given any thought to the name of the town in which you live? Littlefield takes its name, of course, from Maj. George W. Littlefield, soldier, builder, philanthropist. There are, according to a recent postal guide, only two other Littlefields in the United States. One is in Pitt county, eastern North Carolina, and the other is in Mojave county, northwestern Arizona. This county is the only one in the nation which bears the name of Lamb.

Unless one seeks such information as the above, a postal guide can be as dry as a dictionary, telephone book or Congressional directory.

Wendell Willkie To Visit Amarillo

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 11 — A huge demonstration by Texans in honor of the first presidential candidate to visit the state during a campaign will greet Wendell Willkie when he arrives here the morning of September 17.

When Willkie arrives aboard a special train at 10:30 a. m., he will be met by Texans from all parts of the state, Miles Bivins of the Amarillo arrangements committee predicted. A flood of visitors, some from as far away as Brownsville, 900 miles distant, at the opposite end of the state, will come by trains, buses, planes and private automobiles.

On Saturday, September 21 at 2 p. m., in the College Auditorium, Hillsboro, Texas, a meeting of the State-Wide Cotton Committee of Texas will be held.

Several matters of vital importance to the state will be discussed.

On that night, beginning at 6:30 p. m., a big stag barbecue will be held, which is an annual event given by several friends in honor of citizens who have rendered valuable service to the state. This barbecue has nothing to do with the cotton meeting, except that those who attend the cotton meeting in the afternoon will be invited to attend the barbecue at night.

There will be three complete lines of cars styled in the Torpedo manner... longer in wheelbase... more graceful... roomier... more powerful... a low-priced DeLuxe Torpedo of 119 inch wheelbase; a daring new steamboat Torpedo of 122 inch wheelbase and an ultra-smart Custom Torpedo of the same wheelbase. They will replace the shorter wheelbased Special Six, DeLuxe Six, DeLuxe Eight and Torpedo Eight of 1940.

Unusual skill and finesse has been shown by Pontiac engineers in providing all 1941 models with either a six cylinder or an eight cylinder engine.

Thus with many combinations of colors, bodies, equipment, chassis, and engines available in the new Torpedo fleet, motorists will have a wide range from which to choose in selecting a new Pontiac. And at the low prices announced, a high level of values is certain to continue as it has in recent years.

The DeLuxe Torpedo (119" w. b., six or eight) will be available in six models—four-door sedan, two-door sedan, sedan-coupe, business coupe, convertible sedan-coupe with power operated top and taxicab (six cylinder only). Overall length is 201 1-2 inches.

Streamliner Torpedoes (122" w. b., six or eight) present an interesting advance in aerodynamic beauty in a four-door sedan, a sedan-coupe and a series of Streamliner Torpedoes with special interior trim. Overall length is 207 1-2 inches.

Custom Torpedo (122" w. b. six or eight) models offer marked roominess, beauty and luxurious appointments and will be available in four-door sedan, sedan-coupe and station wagon. Overall length of passenger car models is 211 1-2 inches, of station wagon 213 1-2.

Eight doors with fender and wheel striping to harmonize are available with an additional six two-tone combinations at slight extra cost.

Canda cloth, corded woolcloth, two-tone worsteds are available on closed models with leather or cloth for the convertible sedan-coupe.

One-Fourth Of Texas Under Lease For Oil And Gas

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 10 — More than one-fourth of Texas is now under lease for oil and gas developments, a statewide survey just completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association shows.

Out of a total area of 169,130, 716 acres in Texas, Texas oilmen have under lease 45,402,656 acres, the association found. This is nearly 27 per cent of all the land in Texas. The figures were compiled from county tax records, company reports and ownership maps of individual counties.

Local Managers Of Gins Attend Meet At Lubbock

Earl Hobbs of the Littlefield Farmers Cooperative Gin, and Bill Boutwell of the Farmers Co-op gin of Hart Camp, attended a meeting at the Hilton Hotel in Lubbock Thursday when 25 managers of cooperative gins on the South Plains discussed their problems with Hollis Beall of Houston, secretary-treasurer of the Houston bank for cooperatives.

Sterling C. Evans, bank president and former district 2 agent of the state extension service, was the principal speaker. He discussed the bank's loan program for cooperatives.

Gin managers present indicated ginning prices probably would be 25 to 30 cents per hundred pounds this season, as in several previous years. They indicate crop prospects were excellent and that at many points there would be more cotton ginned than in 1939. August moisture has greatly improved conditions.

Managers attended from Lamb Bailey, Hoekley, Lynn and Lubbock counties, among others. Besides operating matters, plant and office problems were discussed, including the handling of applications for government loans.

Consensus was that practically all of the crop this year would go into the loan. "At least all that is eligible for the loan," one ginner remarked.

BETTE DAVIS COMES TO PALACE IN "ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO"

In line with its policy of presenting the finest of the new crop of film entertainment, the Palace Theatre will show "All This and Heaven Too," Warner Bros. picturization of the sensationally successful Rachel Field novel. Bette Davis and Charles Boyer are co-starred in the film, which opens at the Palace Saturday midnight, and continuing through Sunday and Monday.

As one of the most important pictures on the 1940 schedule, "All This and Heaven, Too," has been produced by Warner Bros. on a lavish scale, sparing no efforts in making the brilliant, absorbing novel come to vibrant life on the screen. Made under the personal supervision of Jack L. Warner, vice president in charge of production, Hal B. Wallis, executive producer and David Lewis, associate producer, the film was directed by Anatole Litvak, whose deft artistry in handling deeply romantic themes is well known to motion picture audiences. From the brilliant co-starring team of Miss Davis and Boyer down to the smallest character bit, the film has been cast with minute care.

Supporting Miss Davis and Boyer is a huge featured cast which includes such names as Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Weidler, Helen Westley, Walter Hampden, Henry Daniell, Harry Davenport, George Coloursis, Montagu Love, Janet Beecher, June Lockhart, Ann Todd, Richard Nichols, Fritz Leibner, Jan Keith and many more. Casey Robinson, who was responsible for the screen treatment of such recent Bette Davis successes "The Old Maid" and "Dark Victory," wrote the screen play based on Miss Field's novel. A brilliant musical score by Max Steiner accompanies the dramatic action "All This and Heaven, Too."

With Outstanding Features In Structure And Styling The 1941 Buick Is Now On Display Here

The new 1941 Buicks have now replaced on the market, and the dealer is cordially invited to see the new car at the showrooms of local dealer, Hewitt Buick Co. In an interview with Mr. Hewitt he stated that notwithstanding general rises in material operating costs, list prices of Buick cars for 1941 have been to an average increase of 2.12 cent, while four models have been reduced and another body modification added at a price $55 less than its nearest counterpart.

With styling and the related items, appointment and finish, and with the use of power to better performance at lower cost the major feature, the 1941 Buick automobile is on display in the showrooms of the Buick Co. The new mass-stream bodies were developed by Buick for the 1941 model. Here you'll find running gear hidden under the doors, five front seat-room, rooflines in one broken sweep from windshield to bumper and interiors that are new in every dimension—more room, leg-room, elbow-room, trunk-room, even a bigger luggage compartment. In spite of these features, the line of the car is so low that you can stand and look over it. The lines give sedans the look of convertibles. All bodies are unibody with top bodies by Fisher. Nothing but safety plate glass is used in all windows. Rock wool insulation is heavily used to deaden sound to keep out heat and cold. Beyond this, you can note such things as flush-mounted gas tank covers, the heavy door handles mounted in the body belt moulding, side locks on both front doors, no-draft ventilation, fore-n-flash way signal with automatic off, two-tone upholstery in interior, twin sun visors with increased protection, dual horns, windshield wipers and tail lights, the glove compartment, plenty of receivers, automatic lighters, cords, robe rails, and so on. In addition of an overdrive, speeds, special clutches, compound carburetion are features of an improved Buick motor three ranges of power. The Buick has a Buick Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight 115 horsepower motor with two models with the same engine with compound carburetion developing 125 horse-is "King" in the Littlefield story at the present time, taking place of cotton, which has ruled South Plains! The harvest season has already begun as farmers and truckers haul case and grain sorghums to local market. Thousands of tons of green feed, stored from the bountifully yielding acres within a 15-mile radius of Littlefield, are being brought to Peyton Packing Company where four ensilage cutters prepare it for trench silos. Two more cutters will be put into operation soon. The ensilage will be fed to cattle in the Peyton feeding pens, during the winter. Approximately 5,200 head of cattle are in the pens now, it was reported.

ALREADY REAPING PROFITS FROM GREEN BUNDLES

Fifty trucks, loaded with cane, maize, hegar and kaffir, which had been cut green, were on the yards at Peyton's at one time Tuesday, and farmers in this territory are already reaping profits from this year's crops. Reports are that 636 tons of feed were cut and stored in the silos Monday, which is an average day's run. Two large silos have a capacity of 12,000 tons, while the four smaller ones contain only 2,800 tons of ensilage. Twenty-five men are employed during the 24-hour shifts. Only one man is required to operate each of the ensilage cutters while men with teams stamp the ensilage as it falls into the silos. Sorghum grains, sold in green bundles, are bringing from $1.50 to $2.25 per ton, Roy Stewart, manager at the packing company, said. The fodder is lighter than it was last year, but more plentiful, he stated. A few years ago trench silos were unknown to farmers and feeding corporations, but they have proved very beneficial for storing feeds, and ensilage is reported to contain more food value for fattening cattle and sheep than other methods. It is unusual for operations to start so early on the South Plains, but due to early rains in Lamb county, conditions over this section have materially improved, and farmers are predicting bumper crops.

Business and professional men voted that the City Commission investigate the legality of a petition to be circulated and signed by local tax-paying qualified voters, requesting that an election be called for the voting of bonds for the erection of a municipal auditorium at the mass meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the Palace Theatre.

It was not known late Wednesday whether such an election would be legal, Mayor Homer Hall stated. The election would be called for the voting of bonds amounting to $10,000, which will be matched by the National Youth Administration for the erection of the building. The proposed building will probably cost approximately $28,000 and will be located in the City Park, with a seating capacity of at least 1,500, Mr. Hall said. Tentative plans for the auditorium have been drawn by an architect of the NYA, and if the calling of an election is legal, and bonds are voted by city property owners, very few changes will be made in the plans, it was stated. General opinion among the business men Tuesday was that a modern structure should be built, that would last through many years to come, and motions were voiced that the auditorium would serve as a community center. Mayor Hall appointed the following committee to confer with City Attorney E. A. Bills about the legality of the circulating of a petition: Lester Walters, W. H. Madden, J. W. Keithley, Jack Brannen and Dr. C. E. Payne.

Approximately 100 members and their families attended the annual meeting of the Littlefield National Farm Loan Association Saturday afternoon at the high school auditorium. J. M. Blossing was re-elected president of the association, and J. S. Hilliard, secretary-treasurer and the following directors: F. W. Lichte, W. A. Locke, H. L. Woody, and R. L. May. Informal discussions were given by V. F. Jones, county agent, Mrs. Ruth Perry, home demonstration agent, and others. After the business session, the group journeyed to the School Cafeteria where they were served a buffet lunch.

Three cars with trailers loaded down with fishing tackle and camp equipment pulled out of L. M. McCoy's place near Spade Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock bound for San Angelo on a four-day fishing trip. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. McCoy, and C. B. McCoy and wife led out in the first car, followed closely by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kirkendall and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Miller. Bringing up the rear car were Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Kirk of Littlefield and Mr. Prentiss Graham and Clark Trichel of Fieldton. Having agreed to stay closely together and honk in case of car trouble, the cars sped rapidly through the night. Many a laughing remark was exchanged about the fryers riding peacefully in the

According to an announcement Wednesday, the Masonic lodge will lay the cornerstone for new Littlefield postoffice building, which is under construction, and is developing into a beautiful structure, one of which a city much larger than Littlefield might well be proud. Mr. Mahon stated that it is expected Congressman Mahon will be here as a guest speaker. The Barnes Construction Co. has the contract for the building, and Art Strey is in charge of construction. Good progress is being made on the building. The brick work has been completed, and the glass is being installed in the windows. Not army trucks, but huge truck loads of green bundles of cane and grain sorghums are shown in the picture above, while they wait in line at the Peyton Packing Company to unload. Ensilage is being made of the feed and put in trench silos. Fifty trucks were on the yards at one time Tuesday, when the picture was made. About 1,200 People Attend Gathering At Muleshoe Saturday

Approximately 1,200 people gathered on the shady court house lawn in Muleshoe Saturday, September 7 where they enjoyed a very interesting and entertaining program of the annual stockholders' meeting of the Western National Farm Loan Association, according to L. W. Jordan, secretary-treasurer of the association. Cecil "Stuttering Sam" Hunter and his radio entertainers from Amarillo furnished the main entertainment. Interesting and helpful talks were made by Sam Logan, county agent of Bailey county; J. C. Smith, Jr., assistant farm administrator; J. W. McDermott, county RR supervisor and M. R. Snyder, secretary-treasurer of the Plainview Production Credit Assn. From a result of this meeting, the northeast one-fourth of the court house square has been set aside permanently for gatherings of this kind, where a band stand will be erected and adequate benches provided. The reports made by the secretary-treasurer reveals a very healthy condition of the affairs of the association. Seventy-four loans have been closed during the past year for a total sum of $181,450.00. Thirty-three loans are now pending for a total of $136,000.00. The association is servicing approximately 1,000 loans. No loans have been foreclosed during the past two years and the association has no anticipated losses on any of its loans.

Mass Meeting Held At Palace Theatre Tuesday Afternoon

Would Vote Bonds For $10,000 To Be Matched By National Youth Adm.

Business and professional men voted that the City Commission investigate the legality of a petition to be circulated and signed by local tax-paying qualified voters, requesting that an election be called for the voting of bonds for the erection of a municipal auditorium at the mass meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the Palace Theatre. It was not known late Wednesday whether such an election would be legal, Mayor Homer Hall stated. The election would be called for the voting of bonds amounting to $10,000, which will be matched by the National Youth Administration for the erection of the building. The proposed building will probably cost approximately $28,000 and will be located in the City Park, with a seating capacity of at least 1,500, Mr. Hall said. Tentative plans for the auditorium have been drawn by an architect of the NYA, and if the calling of an election is legal, and bonds are voted by city property owners, very few changes will be made in the plans, it was stated. General opinion among the business men Tuesday was that a modern structure should be built, that would last through many years to come, and motions were voiced that the auditorium would serve as a community center. Mayor Hall appointed the following committee to confer with City Attorney E. A. Bills about the legality of the circulating of a petition: Lester Walters, W. H. Madden, J. W. Keithley, Jack Brannen and Dr. C. E. Payne.
