

Two Die Result Auto Crash Near Alamogordo, N. M.

An automobile accident 30 miles northwest of Alamogordo, N. M., about 9:30 o'clock Thursday night claimed the life of Max Stansell, former Littlefield painter, and fatally injured Miss Bonnie Masten, 22 of Amherst.

According to a report late Wednesday night Miss Bonnie Masten, who would have been 22 years old today, Thursday, passed away at a hospital in Alamogordo about 8 o'clock last night. Funeral arrangements had not been made. However, final rites will probably be held at Amherst.

Other occupants of the light sedan, which was reported to have collided with a truck and another car, were Paul Roberts of Burbank, California, formerly of Littlefield, and three persons from Lamesa, two of whom were Charles Gearhart and Thomas Ward. They sustained severe lacerations and bruises, but were not seriously injured.

The car was reported to be a total wreck. Persons in the truck and the other car were not injured. The group who were enroute to Littlefield and Lamesa for several days visit with relatives, received treatment at a hospital in Alamogordo, N. M. Stansell lived a short while after the accident.

Miss Masten is reported to be in critical condition in the hospital there, suffering internal injuries. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Masten of Amherst. Mr. and Mrs. Masten are at her bedside at Alamogordo. She had been employed in Long Beach, Calif., and was enroute home with the group for a visit with her parents.

Mrs. Stansell, Mrs. Paul Roberts and her sister, Miss Reba Carroll Neely, and brother, Horace Neely, went to Alamogordo Thursday night, after they had been informed of the accident. Mrs. Stansell and Mrs. Roberts had arrived in Littlefield several days previous, for a visit with relatives. Mrs. Roberts is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Neely, and Mrs. Stansell's mother is Mrs. J. L. Dow.

Stansell had been working in an aircraft factory in Burbank, California, about two and one-half months. The remains were shipped by rail to Littlefield Saturday afternoon, and funeral services were held at (Continued on back page)

Former Littlefield Resident Killed In Plane Crash Friday

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at the First Methodist Church for Pvt. James David Glenn, 25, by Rev. J. H. Sharp, pastor, assisted by Rev. Herbert Hamilton, Methodist minister, and Dr. Salem, of Sudan.

Pvt. Glenn was one of four killed in a March field, Calif., last Friday when two primary training planes took wings, crashed and burned. The body was cremated at a quarry at Riverside, Calif., and Dr. Bert E. McDonald of March field accompanied the remains to Littlefield, traveling by rail. The remains arrived here Tuesday afternoon, and lay in state at the church a hour and a half immediately preceding the services Wednesday.

Interment was in the Littlefield cemetery, under the direction of the Ammons Funeral Home.

Funeral bearers were John Underwood, Mason Matthews, J. E. Chisholm, Jr., Bill Aldridge, Doyle Sewell, and Fred Harrell.

Private Glenn was the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Glenn, who are at Fort Worth temporarily, where Mr. Glenn is working as a building inspector at a bomber construction job. They had lived in Littlefield the past 16 years. He entered the air service of the (Continued on back page)

Total Enrollment At Local School Reaches 1,421 Wed.

Total enrollment for the Littlefield Public Schools as of 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon was 1,421, according to F. A. Hemphill, superintendent. This compares favorably with the enrollment figure of last year, for at the end of the first month last year the total enrollment was 1,468. With the entrance of the pupils to the school, the figure will probably be approximately the same as last year's by the end of the month.

The enrollment is divided as follows: Primary 433, Intermediate school 457, High School 436, and colored school 96.

Dove Season Opens In Texas Sept. 1.

Labor Day ushered in the dove hunting season in Texas, and many hunters in Littlefield and surrounding territories are already taking advantage of their opportunity. To save mental labor hunters are advised to paste this primer in their hats:

There are two types of doves—mourning and white-wing.

Texas has two principal zones—the North and South—with varying regulations.

The North zone includes Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Keet, Stonewall, Haskell, Throckmorton, Young, Palo Pinto, Parker, Johnson, Ellis, Kaufman, Van Zandt, Rains, Hopkins, Franklin, Red River and all counties to the north of these.

The rest of the state composes the South zone. Look at a map and you will get the picture.

For mourning doves the North zone season opens September 1 and continues through October 12. Shooting hours are from 7 a. m. to official sunset—daily.

Farmers To Discuss National Defense At Meeting Saturday

Final arrangements are being rounded out for the 24th annual meeting of stockholders of the Littlefield National Farm Loan Association, to be held at 2:00 p. m., next Saturday, September 6, 1941 in the High School Auditorium, in Littlefield, Texas.

President J. M. Blessing of the association said reports of the attendance committee indicated a large crowd will be present to take part in the meeting. Invitations have been sent to all farmers and ranchmen who have obtained Land Bank Commissioner loans through the association as well as to all farmer-members who have regular Federal Land Bank loans through credit co-operative.

This year's meeting of 744 landowners will bring important discussions in view of the vital need for farmers and ranchers to carefully plan their future operations and safeguard their interests in these stirring times. "National Defense is putting a heavy responsibility upon the farmers", Mr. Blessing said, "and they are ready to do their part, at the same time realizing farm management becomes a more difficult problem in view of the hardships that such periods bring to agriculture."

The program will include a review of the year's activities of the association, discussion of its affairs, and talks by leaders on various subjects bearing on problems of the farmers of this region.

The High School Cafeteria will serve a buffet lunch at the close of the meeting. Members of the association will elect two directors to serve on the board the next three years.

Law Enacted For Drunk Driving

Convictions for drunken driving in Texas has increased 340 percent under the new law making this offense a misdemeanor, State Police Director Homer Garrison, Jr., reported last week.

Two hundred and thirty driver's licenses were suspended or revoked upon conviction for driving while intoxicated between June 19, when the law became effective, and August 22. This compares with 50 suspensions in the same period last year.

Law enforcement officers and safety officials contended that by the old law, under which a first offense was a felony, was so strict that enforcement fell down through reluctance of juries and courts to send a defendant to the penitentiary. The recent Legislature enacted the new law which makes the first offense a misdemeanor punishable by automatic suspension of the driver's license for six months and a fine or jail sentence or both. The second offense becomes a felony punishable by a one-year suspension of the drivers license and a penitentiary sentence.

Eight convictions under the new law were for second offenses and one was for a third offense.

Rain And Hail Damage Crops

Crops were damaged in this vicinity last week end, when rain and hail fell, accompanied by high winds. The soil conservation service at the CCC camp reported that 1.12 inches of rain fell Saturday here, and .35 Sunday afternoon. Probably a half inch of moisture was received Wednesday afternoon.

Two thousand acres of crops in the Lums Chapel community, six miles south of Littlefield were reported destroyed by hail and wind-storm Sunday afternoon. A four inch rain was reported to have fallen in one hour, and water filled the basement of the Baptist Church at Lum's Chapel, and went into the store there.

The windstorm in Littlefield Saturday afternoon blew down the frame of the new building under construction for the Ferguson Implement company, on highway 7. However, work was resumed on the building Monday, and it is almost completed.

Farmers are busy poisoning cotton against boll worms, and it was rumored that Lamb county's first bale might have been ginned about September 10, before the rains. Reports are that it will be about 15 or twenty days before cotton starts to open in this section.

Local Men Attend Barbecue Honoring Congressman Mahon

Mr. Underwood and Lee Harrison of Lubbock were hosts, and Judge Purl, former state senator, of Dallas, was master of ceremonies.

The affair will be staged at the high school auditorium, and those attending are urged to take well-filled baskets for lunch.

Singers will attend this meeting from all parts of this section. Many special features have been planned

During Past Week 45 Farmers Get Parity Checks

Land Measurements Delayed Due To Late Planting Of Crops

The first group of 1941 Cotton Parity Payments were received in Lamb County last Thursday, the County Agent's office reported this week.

Forty-five checks were received on thirty-four farms. These forty-five checks totaled $5,683.38. The average amount per check was $126.30.

"Compared to 1940 we are up to date with the submitting of Cotton Parity Applications", Aubrey Bingham, Secretary, Lamb County ACA said. "However, due to late plantings and the difficulty experienced in getting reporters, land measurements will not be completed as early as last year," he continued.

Those farmers who have destroyed cotton will have their plowup checked at the earliest date possible.

It is hardly fair to hold up measurements on some farms to check plowups on others. It will be necessary, however, for excess cotton to be destroyed within the ten days after the notice is received in order that all cotton will be destroyed at the time the reporter visits the farm to check the plowup.

Special Session Texas Legislature Called Sept. 9

Road Bond Bill To Be Considered, Gov. Stevenson Announced

The Texas legislature will be called into special session next Tuesday, September 9, to deal with the road bond assumption question, Gov. Coke Stevenson said Monday.

While the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas has not reached an agreement on the form of the bill, the governor expressed the belief that this could be done by the lawmakers without wasting much time.

The Senate and House reached a stalemate on the bond assumption bill during the regular session. Each legislative branch believed the other would give in rather than see the bill fail.

County Judge Stanley Doss and highway committeemen, J. S. Hilliard, attended a meeting of County judges and commissioners in Lubbock Wednesday of last week, at which time the road bond assumption act was discussed.

Ex-Senator Clint C. Small of Austin outlined a proposed bill for the enactment of a bond assumption act by the state legislature. The proposed enactment was put in form of a resolution to be presented to Governor Stevenson.

More than 100 county judges and counties in West Texas attended the Lubbock meeting. The road bond assumption question is of vital importance to county, and road bonds were voted.

SCHOOLS OF DEMOCRACY

The opening of schools throughout America, although just taken for granted by most of us is probably the most important "defense project" undertaken since the schools closed last June.

Thomas Jefferson named the schools and the press as the cornerstones of a working democracy and ever since his time no interference with either has been permitted in this country.

On the first day of school this year, when millions of youngsters gathered together in assembly and repeated the pledge to our flag, it meant more to this nation than any number of planes or guns could mean.

The spirit of democracy—a spirit of putting freedom and truth above everything else—is being drummed into these youngsters, not as an unpleasant lesson that must be learned, such as Nazi training must be, but as an ideal way of living which is worth protecting with their lives, if necessary.

These young people are going to be the leaders of America when the war is over and they will play the chief role in preserving peace on earth when the nations of the world lay down their arms.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill recently outlined the kind of a peace the democracies of the world are seeking. To achieve those aims and to make them lasting will be the task of those boys and girls who are now busy learning American history, cheering the football team and singing the national anthem.

he was getting his administration underway, and it kept him from smoking.

Governor Stevenson is an almost constant smoker when he is well, and this attack was his first illness.

He presided over the Texas house of representatives and over the senate for a total of four legislative sessions, and there were few moments of all that time when he was not smoking.

Friends were wondering if the throat ailment that seems to be the principal part of pneumonitis will make him cut down on his smoking or make him give up altogether.

He has considerable smoking business that needs attention. State senators presented him seven briar pipes as a little token of esteem during the last session of the legislature and he hasn't gotten around to breaking them in.

Stevenson smokes almost constantly but he smokes slowly and contemplatively—the way you get the most out of a pipe. When a parliamentary rule was referred to him in the legislature, the smoke from his pipe was a pretty fair indication of the way he was progressing in his study of the problem.

When he would sit back, take a few extra-slow puffs and then lay the pipe aside, he had made his decision—and in all his career there never was an appeal from the ruling.

Stevenson smokes rolled plug cut tobacco of popular brand. He taps it into the pipe slowly with his right forefinger as he prepares for a smoke. He lets all the chemicals burn off the head of the match before applying the flame to the pipe bowl and then lights up with apparent satisfaction.

On horseback on the range he uses the same tobacco but rolls it into a cigaret. Occasionally he smokes cigars.

Appointments were pretty well worked out by the governor during his enforced absence from the state capitol. Returning to the office he said he was "ready" on all the appointments but was delaying announcement until he had given audience to persons who had requested to be heard before he made the designations.

The death of J. M. West of Houston created a new vacancy. West had been a member of the board of directors of Texas Technological College at Lubbock. There also was a vacancy on the board for A. & M. college and three places to be filled on the board for the College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville.

Gene Howe of Amarillo was thought to be almost certain of re-appointment to the state game, fish and oyster commission, while Chris Fox, former sheriff of El Paso county, was being boosted for the other vacancy in the event the governor did not re-appoint the veteran board member, A. E. Wood of Austin. Both Howe and Wood were members commission appointed by Gov. Dan Moody. Both were re-appointed after resignations of Jack O'Brien and Jes Showers, who had been appointed by Gov. James V. Allred.

Other appointments which Stevenson had time to mull over during his illness were:

State auditor, state banking commissioner, and membership of the state welfare board, state board of osteometry, industrial accident board, board of water engineers, board of architect examiners and teacher's retirement board.

Resignation of Pat Moreland gave Stevenson an additional appointment on the state unemployment compensation commission, and he will have a regular appointment coming up for that commission in November.

Death of Dist. Judge John A. Valls of Laredo gave Stevenson another unexpected appointment.

Few state departments will be turning money back into the treasury when the state goes on its new fiscal year September 1. In fact some of the departments are waiting until the new year so they will have money available for some of their work.

The state appropriations were made for two years by the legislature, but the amounts are appropriated for two separate years with the dividing dates August 31-September 1.

Any appropriated money that has not been expended by August 31 goes back into the state's general fund. On September 1, the new department expenses are paid out of the appropriations for a new year.

Governor Stevenson's announcement that he has no intention of submitting any topic but road bond assumption to the special session of the state legislature indicates there will be a short session. That will do much to relieve the housing situation that arises in Austin when a special legislative session and the opening of a new term of the state university coincide.

If the session is a short one, most of the members will leave their families at home and stay at hotels or boarding houses.

A check made by the University of Texas reveals that there are approximately 400 buildings in Austin that are used to house university students.

There are seven dormitories for women and six for men. Four of the dormitories for men are operated directly by the university as are three of the dormitories for women. These buildings afford quarters for 635 men and for 936 women.

There also are 15 co-operative houses for men students with a capacity for 416. Men's boarding houses and lodging houses care for 262 and the 26 fraternity houses hold approximately 600.

Seventeen sorority houses provide living quarters for 50 girl students — four co-operative houses have 57 girls and there are 68 college-approved boarding and lodging houses for girl students.

Students working their way through college likely will miss the usual part-time legislative jobs that are available when a regular session of the legislature is in progress. With a short session and one topic there will be a much-abbreviated staff of clerks and few of the committees will need any set-up.

Any appropriated money that has not been expended by August 31 goes back into the state's general whatever.

Llano county commissioners pledged the use of part of a $75,000 road expenditure to be used for purchase of right-of-way for a new route of state 29 south of the Llano river. The pledge was made when the right to make the expenditures was submitted to popular vote.

Since then the highway department has adopted a new route for state highway 29 north of the Llano river.

The attorney general's department holds that Llano county earmarked the funds for south of the river and in effect made them a trust fund for that purpose.

Another recent opinion held that the board for retirement of county and district road bonds may buy outstanding eligible bonds at a premium to bring about their cancellation and save the interest that would be due if they ran to maturity.

Warning was issued, however, that the premium must not exceed the amount made available for the particular bonds for the ensuing biennium and also that the expenditure must be in ratio to the portion of the bond indebtedness the state has undertaken to pay.

Approximately 125 Acres Of Tomatoes At Anton To Be Harvested And Marketed By Packing Plant; Good Yields Reported

Harvesting of approximately 125 acres of tomatoes that will be handled through a packing plant that sorts, grades and markets the products has been started and the first round of the crop has been made on a number of farms in the Anton vicinity, according to reports made last week end, at Anton.

George Jacobs, an experienced tomato processor from the Rio Grande valley, is in charge of the plant and the operations. He has a crew of Mexicans who pick, grade and sort and pack. The crew is small and Jacobs has begun to train some local people in the work.

Yield Is Good

Ten acres of tomatoes on the Hart and Grundy farm netted 800 lugs of tomatoes, each lug holding a half bushel. The lugs were sold for 75 cents each, it was understood. A lug weighs 30 pounds.

Acres are distributed among 20 to 25 farmers. Crops are gone over every few days. Tomatoes are picked green, just when they are about to turn white. They are wrapped when packed.

Varieties preferred are the Rutgers globe and the De Mar globe, both round, of fairly uniform size and shape and the size preferred for packing is known as the 6-6 or 6-5 size. That is, when packed in a lug, each layer has six tomatoes one way of the box and either five or six the other, H. G. Richards, editor of the Anton News, explained. Some layers have seven tomatoes in a row.

Production Ahead Of Valley

"Production of tomatoes in this section has surprised me," Jacobs is quoted as saying. "The production per acre is ahead of that in the Valley."

Harvesting may continue until frost. This is the only section of Texas which has ripe tomatoes at this time. Nearest tomato production is in Colorado, with some in Oklahoma, according to Jacobs.

Besides the farmers who are selling their crop through the marketing unit here, a number of other farmers have sold direct to Lubbock grocers and buyers. It is estimated that the total acreage will approximate 200. Some of the yields are not as large as those on the farm

CHAPTER II

SYNOPSIS

Peggy Horton, working off her temper, was driving a car about the golf course, when she saw the windshield of a parked automobile. Harry Wilson, the owner, inquired if she had what she was looking for. She explained that she had written her grandmother that she was engaged. She thought that she was coming to visit the room that she had kept in such a hurry. Really, Peggy is kept in such a hurry by her grandmother that she never meets any boys—and isn't engaged. Her sister, Maxine Trueheart, is a successful screen star. The young man who has just returned and pretends to be engaged to her.

A roadster which she did not recognize was slowing down and stopped beside her.

Peggy turned to walk up the road to the main entrance of Rosewood. She had gone only a few feet when she heard the honk honk of an automobile horn behind her. She turned quickly to the side of the road to see if it was Harry returning. A roadster which she did not recognize was slowing down and stopped beside her. She thought at first that the car was occupied solely by flashing lights and a small moustache, so she met her upward glance. She realized that that was part of a very sunburned face with bright brown eyes were looking at her admiringly. And it belonged to a man around twenty or six, she quickly judged. She had a sudden vision of the fun she would be going riding along on a road with a man like that.

"I beg your pardon," he interrupted her ridiculous thoughts. "Could you tell me where I found the Horton place?" "The Horton place?" Peggy repeated in astonishment. "Who on earth was he?" "Yes, Horton. Didn't you ever hear of them? Old family, large estate, and I am sure it is around some place. I thought maybe you could tell me just where it was." "Peggy was somewhat surprised at this brief summary of her home and home by a stranger, but she is the Horton place in here." "Is it really?" he asked raising his eyebrows in surprise. "Now that I think of it, I should have been right to it." He looked toward the house and gave a low whistle of delight. "It surely is a beauty, isn't it? That's what I call a Colonial. I'd like to just pick it up as it is, and take it away from me. Thank you so much," he said as he settled himself behind the wheel and drove on.

Peggy watched him curiously, wondering of his surprise when she followed him into Rosewood. Instead of turning in at the driveway, he drove on past them. Suddenly the car came to an abrupt stop and began to back. But he had reached the gates, and only stopped when he had again reached her

"Could I give you a lift?" he asked. "I'm going as far as the highway—what's its name?" "Marville is the name of the highway," Peggy replied with dignity. "I don't care for a ride."

"I'm sorry," he said. "I hope you don't think I was being rude or anything. You don't look like a hitchhiker, but I just thought I'd say good-by." He drove on.

Peggy looked at his rear license plate. It was a California license. She decided, who had he been of Rosewood.

She entered the grounds of her home through the large iron gates. She walked up the long driveway on both sides by old elm trees. In spite of Peggy's desire to see the house, she loved this place. It had been built by her great-grandfather, with its old-fashioned porch and its old-fashioned windows. It was now tended by the children of the original owner. Peggy had belonged to the original owner of Rosewood. As she approached the house she looked at it with a smile. Harry was right. It was a swell place for a party. The long wide hall running through the center with its hardwood floor and its glass-like surface would be a perfect place to dance. Candie, leaning on the old mahogany table in the double parlors, would create romance for any girl.

She stopped a moment as she entered at the house. She had been here and had never really known it much before. It had always been just "home," but looking at it now it struck her that it had been generations to make it what it was. The silver service had been brought from England by her great-grandfather. Her ancestors whose pictures hung in the large high-ceilinged rooms had, after all, been people who had dreamed, and achieved, that Rosewood should be what it was now. Harry and her had not been all bought at once by one person. They had been acquired by different people of different generations, and the place breathed now through that variety of tastes, harmonious in its completeness. There were ledgers in an old desk in the "office"—a one-story room that formed an ell to one side of the house—that told how these men had planted and built.

The rose garden, which occupied the space that was formed by the angle between the house and the office, had always been the pride of the women of the Horton family. The beds were filled with plants that ranged from the simple old-fashioned roses to a few rare and costly ones. Each mistress of Rosewood had added her own individuality by making some minor changes which had enriched the friendliness, without detracting from the formal outlines of the garden. The first Mrs. Elliott Horton had planted the low box-hedge around three sides, thus insuring greater privacy for herself and family. Then Gran's mother-in-law had built a latticed summer house against the center of the hedge at the far end, with a path leading from it to the open end of the garden, near the house. It was Gran who had an opening cut in each side of the hedge, a path crossing from one opening to the other. In this way the garden was used more frequently than it would otherwise have been.

As children, Peggy and Maxine had run through the garden instead of through the house, and they had played hide-and-seek behind the hedge, so tall and thick was it now. Through the lattice of the summer house the entrance of Rosewood could be seen, and Peggy had often looked up from her school books when she studied there to imagine a knight on a white horse coming through the gates and up the sloping road that led to the house. That had been years ago, of course. Peggy smiled now at her youthful dreams.

She could not help loving this place that was home.

As Peggy ran up the steps she saw through the open doorway a small but very spry old lady coming towards her down the hall. Her brown eyes were keen and she wore no glasses. She said she had her second sight. The face was lined, but they were lines of laughter, of understanding, and of character that had developed in eighty years. Her skin was pale but of a delicate texture, like a lovely piece of old china. She wore, as always, a black silk dress made with a basque and a full gathered skirt. Over this she wore a dainty white embroidered apron. Her soft white hair was parted in the middle and drawn over her ears to a small knot at the back of her neck, and she wore a fragile lace cap on her head.

"Dinner is ready, Margaret," she said as Peggy entered. "What have you been doing? You are as mused as you used to be at ten years old."

"I'm sorry, darling. I shan't be a minute. I was just working off a lot of energy."

Peggy leaned over to kiss the wrinkled cheek.

She rushed up the wide spiral stairway pulling off her sweater as she entered her own room. Clothes were never dropped on the floor nor on a handy chair or bed by any member of the Horton family. They were put in their proper places when they were taken off. It had become second nature to Peggy. Hastily she opened a lower drawer and stuffed in the discarded sweater, pushing the drawer shut with her knee while she unfastened the skirt. The drawer stuck and she gave it a vigorous push. In a few minutes she descended to the dining room in a cool, crisp frock of yellow linen, the braids, freshly plaited, once more neatly coiled and in place.

The thick walls of the old house insured coolness in every room even on the hottest day, just as Aunt Jenny's delicious cooking insured a hearty appetite from everyone who ate at the old mahogany table.

"What time will you want William this afternoon, my dear?" Mrs. Horton asked.

"Oh, Gran, I don't need William. I'll take the pony cart to meet Nancy."

Mrs. Horton had never ridden in an automobile, nor would she consent to own one, although that was one of the things for which Peggy had been teasing her for several years.

"There are one or two things I want to get while I am in town," Peggy continued, "so I'll leave a little early. You had better bring the pony cart around right after dinner, William," she addressed the somewhat aged Negro who was serving them.

William had been just a little boy playing about the place when Mrs. Horton had come there as a bride. He had become a stable boy when he was a little older. That was when there had been many more servants than there were at the present time. Since then he had acquired other duties—houseman and coachman among them. His loyalty to his "white folks" was never questioned. To him there were no such "quality" living as the Hortons.

His one sorrow was that he could not be in two places at one time—here to look after "Mis' Ma'y"—Mrs. Horton—and "Mis' Marg'et," and at the same time be in that far away land of California to see about Miss Maxine. He frequently shook his woolly old head over the fact that the "puriest" of the girls was alone in some, to him, foreign country.

After dinner Peggy ran up to her room for her hat and the ring that was still in the pocket of her sweater. Opening the drawer she drew the handkerchief from the pocket and with nervous fingers untied the corner in which she had hidden the ring. A gasp of dismay escaped her. The object that had stuck when she was hurrying to close the drawer had been Harry's ring, and now the fragile platinum circle was bent. Quite bent.

For a moment her knees gave way, and she sank to the floor to sit staring at the distorted emblem of love lying in her hand. It looked just like a broken engagement, she thought.

Hearing her grandmother's footsteps in the hall, she jumped to her feet, and quickly closing the drawer, dropped the ring into her purse.

"How pale you are, child," Mrs. Horton exclaimed as she entered and caught a glimpse of Peggy's face in the mirror. "I am afraid that you overdid this morning out in that hot sun. Shall I get you a little blackberry cordial?"

Mrs. Horton would have been horrified at the sight of her granddaughter tasting a cocktail, but a little homemade blackberry cordial or egg-nog on Christmas mornings was different. Peggy shook her head.

"No, thank you, darling. I am really all right. Perhaps just a little excited at the thought of seeing Nancy again." Her mind was working rapidly. "I am going to run along now. Good-by for a little while. Be good!" she admonished.

Kissing her grandmother good-by she hurried down the steps and out of the house.

County WPA Sewing Room Makes 950 Garments From July 7 To August 9

During the period from July 7-13, 1941 to August 9, 1941 the WPA Sewing Room has cut into garments 1780 yards of material, and seamstresses have made 950 garments, Miss Alma Byers, supervisor, reported this week. The Lay-Cutting system is used by which 18 or more garments can be cut from one lay of the pattern, by cutting 6 thicknesses of the material. There are two people who are classified as cutters for this position. At present there are 18 people employed in the sewing room. They are divided into four different groups, one group of four people make the men's garments, each person has a different seam to sew until the garment is completed. The other groups make the children's and the women's garments. These garments are transferred into Lubbock to the commodity Distribution Project, and after they are checked they are returned to the welfare office and given to the needy here.

The following amount of money has been used from WPA $468.39 and the county has spent $266.60. The general public is invited to visit the project at any time.

Arrows show the points of invasion by the British and Russian armies. Gen. Archibald Wavell who commanded the British in Africa led the main British detachments from the south while the Soviet troops pushed down from the Caucasus in the north. Iran is important because (1) it contains rich oil fields that Germany could profitably use and (2) even more important, it provides a strong geographical position if the principal war action between Germany and Russia shifts from the Russian front during the coming winter months. Military experts believe that when the cold winter weather comes to Russia, the Nazis will have to push their invasion by a southward route. Iran would be in the way and thus is important to the cause of Russia and Great Britain.

MISS ALLYNE WILLIAMS, JUNIOR 4-H CLUB GIRL, TO QUALIFY FOR 4-H CLUB PIN

Below is a story written by Allyne Williams, Amherst Junior 4-H Club girl who has completed the required ten goals for the year and has written the story in order to qualify for a two year 4-H pin.

"This is my second year in 4-H club and I have enjoyed it very much. I was poultry demonstrator of the Amherst Junior 4-H club. Since the first of the year we have sold over a hundred dollars worth of eggs from the hens. When the roosters were from 4 to 6 weeks old we sold them at 12 1/2 cents each. From these we received thirty dollars.

"I completed the 2,000 points and went to the encampment. At the encampment at Ceta Glen I learned things that I never thought of about the four counties represented there. These were Bailey, Parmer, Castro and Lamb. This was given to us in the history of the counties. We learned new games and many handicrafts such as beads made from things which we all have at home. We learned many things about West Texas birds, flowers and trees. It was nice to see what we can make out of bear grass.

"This year I made a smock and bonnet to wear in the yard and when doing my poultry work and garden work. I helped Mother put out twelve dahlias. I set out some rose bushes and flowers. I also made a cobble stone walk.

"I think every girl should be a 4-H Club member because it teaches you things you do not otherwise learn. Besides cooking and poultry work it teaches manners and I know no one could use too many of them. I have enjoyed being a 4-H club member and shall be one as long as I can."

Farmer Loses 3 Head Horses In Electrical Storm Saturday P. M.

W. L. Smart, farmer living 2 miles north and 4 miles east of Littlefield, reported the Saturday afternoon storm cost him 3 horses. After combing the neighborhood for trace of the missing horses, a neighbor notified him Sunday afternoon that they were dead, had been struck by lightning presumably on Saturday afternoon during the high electrical storm. The damage to his cotton and feed crops was slight, but the loss of 3 horses at this time of year was quite a calamity.

August 11—Drove 224 miles today and crossed the golden gate bridge. Drove over town and visited the zoo. Saw some fine grape orchards today.

Aug. 12—We drove 111 miles today and visited a big ship called the "Pacific Queen". It was built in 1886 and was on exhibit and we saw one of the big ships come in that just comes in ever six weeks. It was a passenger and it sure was loaded, it was from Australia. We crossed a bridge today, it was seven miles long and a double deck. The trucks and street cars used the lower deck and the cars used the upper deck and the speed limit was 45 miles per hour and a six lane drive way. San Francisco has 550,000 population.

Aug. 13—We drove 147 miles today and stayed all night in Sacramento. This town is 102 years old and has 110,000 population and is the Capital of California. We visited a fort here that was built in 1839 and still had most all the kitchen and bedroom furniture in it that was used by the captain. Saw wagons and two wheel carts. There was a woman made a trip from here in one of these two wheel carts to San Diego, California. It took three months to make the trip. The road was so dusty they had to spread blankets over the cart and the dust would settle on the blankets and get so heavy they would dip it off with a dipper. We spent the night last night in Carson City, Nevada.

Aug. 14—We drove 397 miles today. This is a desert, nothing but rocks and mountains and some sage brush. Very little grass. It is a mining country, mostly gold and copper. We drove 60 miles without seeing a living creature of any kind. We saw over a hundred movie stars in Carson City this morning, making moving pictures.

Aug. 15—We drove 268 miles today. Met a party of home folks on Boulder Dam. They were going out in California. We visited the power house at the bottom of the dam. They have a very fine power plant there. We have stopped for the night near the Grand Canyon, Arizona.

Aug. 16—We drove 357 miles today and stopped tonight at Gallup N. Mexico. We visited the Grand Canyon, Arizona and Arlis desert and the Indian ceremonial here at Gallup last night. There was 7000 Indians here from all parts of the U. S. A. and they had a big crowd and really enjoyed their performance.

Aug. 17—We have stopped at Hot Springs for a few days. We have been in the mountains where the weather was cool most all the trip. Guess we will stay here a few days and thaw out.

Recruiting Officers Visit In Littlefield

Major R. Peller and Sergeant Jack N. Costello of the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, Lubbock, were in Littlefield Friday of last week, relative to securing Aviation Cadet Recruits.

At present 30,000 student pilots are needed and in order to secure that number there should be 100,000 applicants, Major Peller said. Applicants for an aviation cadet should be between the age of 20-26 and should have at least 60 hours of college credit, or be able to pass an intelligence test in lieu of college credit.

A recent ruling has made possible the enrollment of cadets who have only high school training and permitting them to be advanced to an aviation sergeant as progress merits advancement.

Major Peller maintains an office in the post office building at Lubbock, at which place he is eager to interview any prospective candidates for aviation cadets.

'More Coming' Is Tax Forecast

WASHINGTON — While finance committee members predicted their record $3,672,400,000 tax measure would have clear sailing in the Senate next week, Senator Capper (R-Kan) said Saturday that "this bill is just a starter, and next year's will be even stiffer."

Capper, a member of the finance group, told reporters that the unprecedented revenue legislation "is a good bill" and added: "I would have liked to see more of a pay-as-you-go program, but this was the best we could do. I believe we are in for steadily increasing taxes from now on."

The new measure, carrying $456,000,000 more than similar legislation approved by the House, will be taken up in the Senate next Wednesday. Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he hoped for Senate approval by the week end, but conceded that two finance committee amendments might cause controversy.

One of these, designed to raise more than $300,000,000 of new revenue, would lower existing income exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals. The broader tax base would bring 6,000,000 more persons into the income tax system.

The second amendment, which encountered vigorous opposition within the committee, would forbid husbands and wives from dividing income when making tax returns. Such division now is permitted in the "community property" states of Louisiana, Texas, Arizona, Nevada and Washington. In practice it operates in some cases to reduce the aggregate family tax liability. Committee members estimated that the prohibition against such division would raise about $50,000,000 in additional revenue.

Discussing the bill as a whole, Senator Brown (D-Mich) said it was "a fair compromise between direct taxes, which will produce about two-thirds of the revenue,

Morton School Opening Postponed

Opening of the Morton Public schools was postponed from Monday, September 1, to next Monday, September 8, according to an announcement made last week.

The group went to the factory the first of last week, and had planned to return last week end, in time for the opening of the school. Reports were that due to a strike in the bus factory, they could not take delivery on the vehicles.

METHODIST CHURCH Jim H. Sharp, Pastor

We are working hard to get our Church Building completed as soon as we can. We need your help financially and other wise. We need the building completed before cold weather comes.

You can help a lot in your attendance to all the services and we urge you to attend The Church School as well as the preaching services. Church School begins at 9:45 and there is now plenty of room for every one in our Church School. We are getting some of the rooms ready for use and every class will have plenty of room. Be sure and bring every member of the family to Sunday School. We welcome every one to our services.

AMHERST METHODIST CHURCH

We are surprised that with all the talk of the annual meeting at the Methodist Church, beginning September 7th, there are some of our own members who do not know about it. We are seeking to get the information of the church to all the people, so they cannot say, "Why, we did not so much as know you were having a meeting." Visitation committees have been appointed and leaders and captains for them and the visiting preacher will arrive as soon as he has time to come from his last place.

The pastor will preach next Sunday if Brother Klien does not arrive here by that time. At the morning hour we shall use, "Our Evangelistic Cross," at the evening hour, "Some Realities of Eternity." We have this meeting for 9-7 to 9-21, and the Fourth quarterly conference 9-28th, and our annual conference 11-7th at Abilene. Our year has been too short and we have not accomplished nearly so much as we had planned.

Many of our youth are going away to college too and this is going to be a loss. In fact the Young People's class will have only a few left in it.

Miss Bonnie Maston, one of our girls who has been in California for sometime, was in a bad car wreck last Thursday night, and word comes Monday A. M., she is not expected to live.

Rev. Gus Klein will arrive here Friday noon 9-5. He wants to meet all sponsors, and the captain, with the officials and Board of Education Friday night at the church at 8:15. Please all who can come meet us at that time and place. He will do the preaching from the first services. Let the word be passed along so that we shall have a good crowd from the first.

EMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH E. H. Riess, Pastor

Sunday School and Bible classes will meet next Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Service with Holy Communion at 11:00 a. m. Announcements may be made at the parsonage on Saturday from 1:00 to 9:00 p. m.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, we will celebrate our annual Mission Festival with services at 10:30 a. m. and at 2:30 a. m. The Rev. Paul Kaiser of Iowa Park, Texas, will deliver both sermons. He will address the young people at 8:00 p. m. on that day.

Since there will be no Sunday School and Bible classes on Sept. 14, the Sunday School teachers and officers will not meet until Tuesday, Sept. 16th.

Baptist Revival To Close Sunday Night

The Revival meeting at the First Baptist Church will close with the Baptismal Service Sunday night, Rev. Roy Shahan, pastor, announcing this week. During the first ten days of the revival, there have been 33 additions to the church.

Rev. Hal C. Wingo is in charge of the preaching services, and Joe Trussell is leading the song services.

A special young people's service has been planned for Friday night, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. Rev. Shahan and the entire Baptist congregation invite all young people of the town to attend this service.
