Federal Funds' Availability Aired

A group of citizens repre-senting a cross-section of Lamb County convened at the XIT Room of Security State Bank Tuesday night to hear the various aspects of Community Action Program and Office of Economic Opportunity explained by Howard Maddera, director of the program in Hockley County.

Spuring the meeting was the consideration of use of the program's funds to establish a regulation day nursery here.

No action was taken, but the group primarily agreed a CAP committee would have to be formed in Lamb County before progress toward the goal could be made, after hearing Maddera explain there are no funds available from any source at this time for the specific purpose of aiding a day nursery.

Further information is expected to be gleaned from another public meeting set at Levelland Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., at South Plains Junior College in the administration building. Discussion will be conducted under the technical guidance of Texas Tech officials.

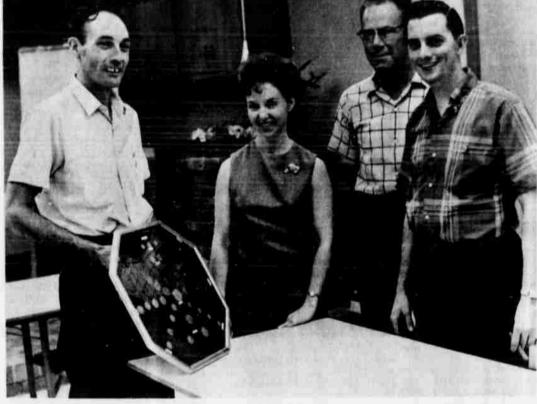

Maddera stressed Chamber officials from "all over Lamb County" are invited to attend the informative meeting.

Project STEP, a planned pro-gram for "Small Town Economic Progress," received the green light for Littlefield at a Chamber of Commerce board of directors' meeting Tuesday

STEP, which grew out of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Small Town Task Force Study conducted here and in other West Texas towns, has a two-fold purpose;

 To allow each small town in West Texas to make a "frank and penetrating evaluation" of its assets and liabilities, and 2. To allow each town to determine its own objectives and

Charles Duval and Jim Joyner, who earlier had attended meetings in connection with the WTCC program, were named Littlefield's co-chairmen for Project STEP.

Duval explained procedures outlined in the project during a regular monthly meeting of the local C-C directors.

Next phase of the project is to call a conference of community leaders.

Goal of that session is to evaluate the WTCC's study, "The Small Community in West Texas," and determine parts of it which might benefit Littlefield.

"We've got to decide what we want to do, then how to do it, ther letermine how the West Texas Chamber's study can be used in our plans," Duval said. "This study will enable us to translate our goals into plans of

Mother's Eye-View Given Of City's Famed Lyricist

By GLENN HONEA

"He's like the fellow next door." That is how Mrs. W.T. Jones Jr. of Littlefield describes her son, Tommy, one of the most successful song writers in Littlefield residents may have an opportunity to see how true that is when he comes "home" for a visit next week.

Jones and his wife Elinor are planning a short stay in the home of his mother and uncle, Q.T. Bellomy, at 420 West 2nd St. Also anxiously awaiting his arrival about June 20 is an aunt, Mrs. Walter Ford of Lubbock, who now is visiting her sister and brother.

Mrs. Jones warned that Tommy-better known as Tom Jones amid the Show Bizz of Broadway where he lives and works--may not look the part of a famous musical lyricist. Infact, one might well mistake him for a common place farmhand from the faded blue jeans and boots she predicts her son will be wearing most of the time. The East-ern accent he has adopted, however, might shatter the illusion.

TOMMY, born in Littlefield 37 years ago, is far from commonplace-even in the New York theater circles where he has circulated successfully the past dozen years. His first off-Broadway pro-duction, "The Fantastics," still is running after six years and with no sign of exhaustion. The musical last year outlived "My Fair Lady" to take the honor of having the greatest lifespan any off-Broadway show ever. Mrs. Jones seems to take her son's success more casually

THIS EVALUATION, incidently, came on the heels of a "brief" rundown of Tommy's accomplishments which took nearly 10 minutes to tell.

"He wrote me right after he got to New York that he had written a show preformed before the Duke and Dutchess of Windsor," she remembered. Her reaction to the news was; "1 just wondered how he did it!"

Tommy's road to success probably began in the Central Texas town of Coleman where he than the severest critics. "I grew up, according to his don't even think about his sucche would be a teacher." Soon after Jones enrolled at the University of Texas, he removed all doubts of what he thought he would be.

AFTER STOPPING long enough to earn his masters degree from the university in 1950, and to serve a two-year tour in the Army, he was off for New York. With him went a college classmate and fellow Texan, Harvey Schmidt, whose composing talents literally have set lones' words to music ever

The boy made a deal with his father that he would return home if he had not found his place within a year. "It took him a little longer than that," Mrs.

Jones admitted with a smile. Mrs. Jones said she and her husband never tried to keep Tommy from going to New York. "I wanted him to realize his own dream," his mother said. "He has a message to tell and he is doing what he wants to do."

"Fame and success never did enter into it with me," she said of son's career decision. "And I don't think it ever did for Tom-

Salem Describes Recent Tour Of South American Countries

EARTH-- Joe Salem, district lay-leader of Plainview Dist-rict, Methodist Church, spoke and showed films in Earth Methodist Church Sunday night.

Salem was among twenty-seven preachers and lay-leaders who toured, spoke and preached in South America recently. The men were from various parts of the United States, from New York to California.

On one occasion in Panama, hungry children were seen on the road. They gave them souvenirs and sang. "The Yel-low Rose of Texas".

Salem said the span of life in Asia, Africa and South America was less than one half of ours, due to lack of food and medical care.

In Rio de Janiero, a shoe shine was 5¢. They gave the shoe shine boy a New Testament in Spanish and he quit shining shoes to read it.

The second week was spent in Argentina, an extremely dry country, with some canals and irrigation. "The people are thrilled to know some one loves and cares for them, Salemsaid. he had no earthly possessions and was buried in a borrowed

Mrs. Stewart, whose paint-ings reveal a profound sensitivity to her surroundings and to any beauty or interesting lines that might be tucked therein, says whenever a choice comes between painting and sewing, the latter usually wins -- as any able-bodied grandmother can understand.

However, the rivalry apparently is stimulating, because whenever Lucille Stewart takes brush -- or palette, or sponge -in hand, a piece of canvas becomes alive and vibrant with nothing to fear. He points out that there are two types of people completely immune-the totally indifferent and the insane. Since I have never been exactly noted for being indifferent to anything, it is perhaps best that I don't dwell on his implications here.

The thing that really worries me though is the plight of the poor bull.

A week or so ago I read in the paper about a bull fight where a "bad bull" came into the arena and refused to attack the matador. He just wasn't interested and, according to the book I just finished, he was one smart bull.

It seems he just wasn't bull-headed enough to co-operate in his own destruction. Of course, he was destroyed anyway so this presents a problem.

If it doesn't pay to be bull-headed, it sure doesn't pay to be the bull.

GOOD OLD ANGER is apparently a vital weapon in thought-control, the theory being that if you become angry enough at your opponent, he has a much better chance of bringing you around to his way of thinking.

Now at first glance, this may seem a little confusing until you consider that it is an idea which has been used for years by children, who can be exceptionally single-minded in the pursuit of their desires.

Suppose, for example, that it is one hour before dinner and your child desires a bowl of ice cream, which both you and he know he should not have this close to meal time.

Obviously, he does not ask for ice cream since he knows it would be immediately denied. First, he must provoke you to a state of absolute mental exasperation.

He initiates a conversation something like

"I want to go swimming."

"It is too late to go swimming," "May I go riding on my bicycle?"

A Bunch Of Hogwash

THAT COLUMN about "eating like a hog" last Sunday brought immediate reaction from my brother, Roy, who was visiting us last You'll remember, maybe, that I said scientists now consider the pig to be a much maligned animal when it comes to eating. Studies show that a pig eats only four per cent of his weight daily, while a pelican consumes 25 per cent.

Roy (that's still hard for me to say, since I've known him as Bubba ever since we were kids) insists that the pig hasn't received his just due from mankind.

ROY, you see, is an expert on pigs, at least from the scientific point of view.

He's a biology teacher at a college in Roanoke, Virginia and he can tell you anything you want to know about any animal, insect, birds,

Well, maybe I shouldn't say the birds and bees, because after 32 years on this earth, he's still single.

"Why take on a wife," says Roy, "when you can have just as much fun, and freedom, with-out one?"

This sort of talk galls Amy. She can just barely stand him.

Getting back to the subject, which was pigs, I think, Roy says a pig is one of the smartest animals, just as much intelligence, say, as a dog.

"This business about pigs," Roy says in his most scientific manner, "is a bunch of hogwash."

THE POPULAR image of a pig snorting at the trough, rolling in the mud and sleeping in the sun, does the animal far less than

Roy says the hog has been a good and faithful servant of man since way back when, During the reign of Louis XI of France, 500 years before Porky Pig of the movie cartoons, a performing troupe of pigs in dainty dresses danced to bagpipe music for his majesty's edification. In Egypt, along the Nile, pigs were employed to tread seed into the soil and to thresh grain. In medieval England, the serfs on large estates were forbidden by the landowners to keep hunting dogs, so the more resourceful among them trained pigs to point and retrieve birds and small game.

And in southern France today, there is a species which is trained to nose out the under. ground fungi called truffles which are considered to be such a delicacy.

By Bill Turner

THE PIG'S most recent contribution to man is in the field of medical research. The animal resembles man in anatomical structure, physiological processes and biochemistry, Many laboratory techniques can be refined by using the pig for experimental purposes, according to the National Geographic Society.

When all's said and done, however, it's a a source of food that the pig has made his mark in the world.

We were having ham Sunday when Roy was here, and Amy asked him how come hedidn't eat as much as he used to.

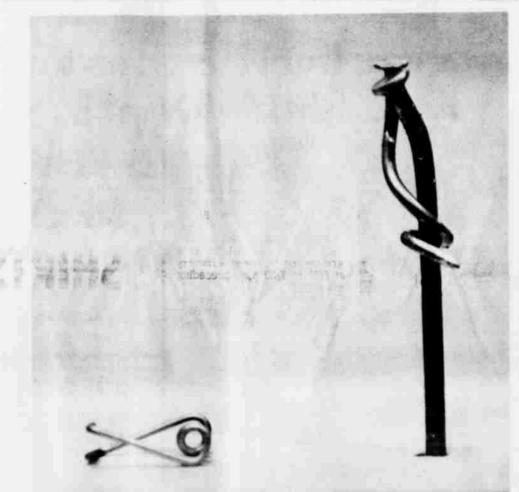

You see, Roy's quite a bit heavier than I am, like about 40 pounds, and he's a little concerned about his weight. "I'm just dieting," he said.

I suppose you could say he used to eat like

This past weekend I made a momentous customers a ton of money! Here's how I found this out;

Saturday night I was in a small town a few hours drive from here. Having missed my lunch, I was famished. I drove to a cafe, ordered half a cow medium-well and devoured

But when I sat down at the table, nobody in there except me knew I was going to order more than a cup of coffee.

ALONG COMES this nice waitress, a big smile on her face and says, "And how are you tonight?" Immediately the ice on my pocketbook melted a fraction,

"Fine," I said, "except half-starved,"
She laughed a friendly little laugh and placed a menu in front of me.

She didn't say any more, just stood there with that friendly smile -- making me feel like she had been waiting all day just for me to come in, although I'd never seen her before, and that all my unhappy tummyn-needs were in her capable hands and I needn't fret

Suddenly I heard myself ordering about twice as expensive a steak as I had planned

WITH that same little smile -- and it was for real, not plastered there -- she asked me the usual cafe questions then went to have my order filled. But in half a moment she was back with a cup of steaming coffee and bustling about seeing that everything was "A-Number-One" at my table.

This went on the whole meal. Quietly, efficiently and with no disturbance to my enraptured chomping.

Well, my check came to $2.50. The point is -- I laid the customery 10 per cent tip on the table, 25 cents. And here's the punch line -- on impulse, completely beyond my control, I suddenly reached into my purse and laid 15 cents more on top of the quarter.

THEN SUNDAY night I was in another town about an hour's drive from here and took a friend to dinner. I planned to shoot the works. So about that time a waitress sorta slouches up, looking not at us but at nothing-in-particular back over her shoulder. Still looking around absent-mindedly, she shoved menus in front of us. Meanwhile, she had stuck a glass of water at each place -and how she did it I'll never know because she never once even glanced at that table.

I looked at my guest and she looked at me.

OUR EYES had started at the top of the steak price-list -- I had told my friend to order the best -- but for some unexplainable reason, our eyes began to slide to the lower

The festive "easy come, easy go" atmosphere had got up and gone.

We each ordered a $1.95 steak. All through the meal, that waitress never really looked at us -- not once. We sat there feeling like two beaks being fed with nothing to hold them up. Our bill came to $3.90 plus tax.

Automatically I placed a quarter, a dime and nickle -- 40 cents -- on the table as a tip.

THEN I looked at my friend, "I oughtn't to do this," I said, "after the indifferent way she has acted."

My friend nodded, "I'd pick up that nickle and dime if I were you."

Immediately my tight-fisted little hand whipped out and scooped up the 15 cents. You see? I not only made back my 15 cents I had added impulsively to the rip the night before, but I saved on the price of the steaks. But -- somehow -- it wasn't quite as much a bank robbery with a committee from the PTA. Maybe I was wrong. At any rate, after the cease-fire order was given, a representative from the Arab countries, I didn't catch his name, was asked in a television interview what the result would be. "I can answer that easily," he said, "The result will be that the United States will be the biggest loser in the whole affair." I didn't understand that at all untill picked up a newspaper I was saving to read while the Ambassador from Syria was talking and read that in the last few years the United States has sent 346 million dollars worth of military aid alone to 10 Arab countries.

Then it began to dawn on me what the Arab representative was talking about. He meant the United States will lose one of its best customers for hand-outs. Naturally this would be a serious blow. However, I am afraid the Arab mind doesn't understand the resourcefullness of the American mind. What it doesn't know is that while we might have our aid rejected in the Arab nations, we'll find somebody else to take it. You wait and see.

There must be some country on earth we haven't sent aid to yet, although off-hand I can't think of it. If you know of one, please wire Washington at once so we can off-set out losses in the Arab countries.

HORTICULTURE EXPERT -- Mrs. Jack Grace, left, a lifetime national flower show judge from Anton, examines a horticulture specimen with Littlefield Garden Club president Mrs. M. A. Parmer. Mrs. Grace spoke to club members in Littlefield Tuesday on methods of growing and grooming horticulture specimens for their flower show this fall.

ways one-way. It led him to part-time jobs in everything from a bookstore to a post office--and often to the necessity for two jobs at one time. Mrs. Jones said Tommy never complained in his letters home, even while living what she called his"crackers and water" existence in the "big city." She claims never to have worried seriously about Tommy during those times. That is, until her sister, Mrs. Ford, reminded her that she used to slip a dollar or two into letters to him.

"Well, you know how mothers are," Mrs. Jones sheepishly replied.

The mother said she never doubted her son's ability and "He knew I had ambition. faith in him," she said. And as she tells the story, a great deal of obvious faith--and even more hidden talent-was almost all Tommy took with him on his quest of the Great White Way.

MRS. FORD had faith in Tommy's ability, too, and very early in his career jokingly suggested she would like to "buy an interest in him."

It took the theatrical world about three years to discover what Mrs. Jones had known all the time; namely, that her only son had talent.

Jones spent the first few years writing bit comedy parts for television, nightclub routines and reviews while he waited for his big show,

At one point in his progress, Mrs. Jones noted, Tommy roomed with the well-known television personality, Tom Pos-ton, and wrote nightclub material for him.

"The Fantastics" offered Jones and Schmidt the chance for which they had worked and waited. As soon as the necessary $16,500 capital was raised, the creative Texas team and their show were on their way-and neither has stopped since. Jones, himself, expressed sur-prise at the show's persistence.

IN 1963, Jones and Schmidt scored again--Jones with the words and Schmidt with the music--for their first Broadway effort, "110 in the Shade."

That hit led to an offer from noted director David Merrick for the duo to concoct their sec-ond Broadway hit, "I Do, I Do," which starred another Texan, Mary Martin. The musical is still playing to a packed house after seven months of curtain

Some of the songs from these shows, like "Try to Remem- art course. ber," are apparently destined to outlive even the long-running shows from which they came.

Jones and Schmidt recently tried their hands at writing a motion picture. Their award-winning short film, "A Texas Romance: 1909," is the story of a courtship in Waxahachie.

THE PAIR'S latest musical effort, "Celebration," is still on the drawing board.

Mrs. Jones contended that success, and the degree of financial independence that has come with it, have not changed her son and that he is like "anybody else." -- except, of course,

At any rate, Tom Jones may well be "the fellow next door" to some Littlefield residents a week from now.

Religious Group Sets Convention

More than 200 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses from parts of a 5-state area are preparing to attend a 4-day convenin Amarillo, June 20 through July 2, which is expected to draw 7,000 delegates. The event will stress the Bible as an indispensible guide book for making Christian disciples.

In referring to the event as the "Disciple-making" District Assembly, Loyd Lowery, local presiding minister, said it will have as its objective the reaching of persons who understand and accept the teachings of Jesus Christ and who would be willing to follow him closely in spreading them.

"The method employed by Jesus Christ was a revolutionary one, designed to meet a specific need," Lowery said. "He was looking for disciples, men who wanted to learn the good news', as he called it, who would be willing to take their stand for the truth."

Family groups are encouraged to attend daily sessions that will feature constructive discourses, demonstrations and Biblical dramas designed to help them cope with increasing worldly pressures and continue in Christian discipleship," Lowery said.

1966 Cotton Production, Yields Down

Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has issued its preliminary county by county report on 1966 Texas cotton production, showing 1,293,700 bales of 500-pound gross weight produced in the 23 High Plains counties represented by Plains

Cotton Growers, Inc. This compares with a 2,227, 000 bale revised production figure for 1965. The huge reduction was a joint result of fewer planted acres and adverse weather conditions last year. The production cut comes to 41.9 per cent. Weather worked two ways to bring the 1965 total down. First, losses to hail, sand and drouth resulted in 5.7 per cent less acres being harvested than were planted. In 1965 such losses amounted to 5.3 per cent.

Second, wet, coldweather and an early freeze reduced yeild per harvested acre from 519 pounds in 1965 to 449 pounds in

The High Plains crop last year figured 40.6 per cent of the 3,182,000 bales produced in Texas, considerably below normal. For the past several years this area's production has been between 45 and 50 per cent of the state total. Lamb County had 122,300 pl-anted acres, 115,900 harvested acres, 417 yield per acre, and total production of 100,800 bales (500 pound) in 1966. In 1965, yield per acre was 532 and total production was 195,400 bales.
