Moisture in the form of rain, sleet, snow and hail fell over the Big Spring area Monday in amounts varying from a light drizzle to more than one inch.

Big Spring had received .39 inches at 2 p. m., according to the United States Weather Bureau at the airport. A heavy drizzle was continuing half an hour later.

Vincent and Comaha reported about the same amount of precipitation as Big Spring, although the drizzle was diminishing in intensity at Vincent at 2 p. m.

Lamesa witnessed snow, sleet and rain during most of Monday and at 2 p. m. more than half an inch moisture had been registered.

Reports were that Lubbock received a three inch rain during the night and that the downpour extended as far south as O'Donnell where an inch was recorded.

Garden City, usually in a wet spot, had missed the precipitation Monday, but an extremely heavy mist was turning into a drizzle at 2 p. m. and heavy, overcast skies there indicated more precipitation.

The rain was most timely in this area. Fields which received an inch during the weekend second in February and on February 13 were beginning to dry out in spots. The precipitation of Monday assured plenty of moisture for ploughing.

Clark Depends On Pair Of Clouting Fly-Chasers From Rochester

BILOXI, Miss. (UP)—A pair of clouting fly-chasers obtained from Rochester of the International League late last season headline a small but eager crop of rookies which Owner Clark Griffith thinks will help his Washington Senators regain a first-division berth in the American league.

Alvin Powell and Fred Sington, the latter a 215-pound six-foot-two former all-America football tackle at Alabama, promise to add plenty of batting punch to the Senators.

All In One Place!
 Griffith spent a paltry $20,000 of the quarter-million he got for Joe Cronin on new blood this year, this being involved along with Catcher Joe Sewell, in the deal with the "Bump" Hadley back to the Senators.

Having cut Sewell adrift,
 Griffith planned to use Cliff Bolton as No. 1 catcher, but 185-pound Sammy Holbrook who, like Bolton, comes from Chattanooga, has shown Griff and Manager Bucky Harris that Bolton's job is not entirely safe yet.

The Senators' infield will be the same as last year with the exception of shortstop, where Lynn Lary will try to fill Cronin's shoes. Joe Kuhel, broken ankle all mended, will be back on first, Buddy Myer at second and Cecil Travis, who made good last year, at third.

Curry Fitchers Meet Fan Out
 Griff feels the success of the solons depends largely on how his rookie hurlers turn out. Reese Diggs, a semi-pro from Pimlico, Md. has attracted the white-haired boss' attention. "He's had no experience whatever but he's got plenty on the ball," Griff says.

The veteran choppers available are Bob Burke, Jack Russell, Walter Stewart, Alphonse Thomas, Monte Weaver and Earl Whitcomb. The latter last year's leading Senator flinger, Ed Linke, right-hander whose arm went dead last year, has reported he's again in good shape.

Large Crowds Hear Rayburn At Services Held Sunday; No Services This Evening

Sunday was a banner day in the Rayburn union revival.

There were six services held at various churches in addition to the regular preaching services at the Deats building Sunday. They were as follows:

Men's services at the tabernacle at 2:30, with Dr. Rayburn in charge, and attended by a large crowd.

Special services for women at the First Methodist church at 3 o'clock, with Rev. E. F. Butts in charge. He discussed the cottage prayer meetings to be held throughout the city Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Dr. Rayburn talked to a large group of young people representing a number of churches at 6:30 p. m. at the First Christian church.

Both morning and evening services at the Deats building were largely attended Sunday. It was estimated over 1500 people attended the evening service.

The Most Deadly Sin in Texas was the subject of sermon given by Dr. Rayburn Sunday evening. Scripture: Matt. 25: 14-23. Prov. 24: 30-34; Rom. 5: 12-19.

Text: Heb. 2: 3. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

He said in part:

"Not how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation, but how shall we escape if we neglect it? Neglect is the deadliest sin in Texas. There is nothing under the sun that will not go to wreck and ruin through neglect. The universal law of nature is one of retrogression. The American Beauty Rose, at alone, will revert to a wild rose, from which all roses came. The same law is operative in your own body. Neglect will injure your physical strength and well-being. All that you need do in order to arrive to death is just neglect to eat."

"What does a man have to do in order to be ignorant? Nothing. Neglect the mind. Never read, never go to school, never lecture. There is not a father or mother in town who would neglect the preparation of their child's mind, and thus give him an impediment of ignorance; yet at same father and mother will neglect the child's soul for ten or fifteen years and think that it does not make any difference. If neglect will injure your mind and body, how reason that neglect will injure the soul?"

"Strychnine is no respecter of persons. Neither is sin a respecter of persons. Sin will blight, blight, and ruin the most brilliant scholar and the most eloquent teacher. Sin will wreck the wealthiest banker, and blight the life of the purest woman. And you are 'all sinned and come short of a glory of God.' It does not matter how sin got into us, it is there. Strychnine kills when it is finished. James says that sin kills when it is finished. I have come to you to ask men to stop sin before it is finished. What do you have to do to die of poisoning? Nothing."

"My friend, you have to admit that you are a sinner. (God says, a bringeth forth death.) And we do not receive the remedy. There 'halm in Gilead.' You will die today. Who is to blame? God is blame? No. He gave you the need. Jesus Christ is to blame? He died on Calvary. The arch is to blame? No. It might you the Word. You do not have to be violent to starve to death. You do not have to curse the preacher and fight the preacher to die sin. You may call the preacher other and compliment the preacher, and go to hell yourself. It pass it all by. Just let it all pass."

A lot of animals do not go to wreck, but think of a man made the image of God and given the ability to worship, living on the spiritual plane with his dog, that is breaking preaching hearts today in neglect.

James said, "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, it sin." Sometimes doing nothing is the wickedest thing a man can do.

do. The man with the one talent did not go get drunk. He just buried the talent; and the Lord called him wicked.

"It takes no more sense to be a Christian than it takes to be a boiler-maker, a mechanic, or a farmer; but it does take just as much, and it is not fair to use any less. It is unfair to use less sense in being a Christian than you use in your business. 'Come now, let us reason together, saith the Lord.' Everything the Lord asks us to do is reasonable. If neglect will injure your store, your farm, your body, your mind, how can you reason that it will not injure your soul? Neglect will wreck your body. Neglect will make you ignorant. Neglect will bankrupt your business. Neglect will damn your soul. You can drift to ruin just as surely as the most vicious criminal in the penitentiary—not as rapidly, but just as surely."

"What a reasonable text is this! 'How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation?'"

Dawson Test Shows Water

Albough No. 1 Robinson Drills Ahead Below 4080 Feet

Ray Albough and others No. 1 John Robinson, northwestern Dawson county wildcat, drilled ahead Saturday below 4080 feet in sand, carrying one-half barrel of salt water hourly from 4,025 to 4,080 feet was largely sand.

The formation from 4,000 to 4,025 feet was reported to be about 50 per cent lime, but encountering of the salt water was interpreted as indicating that the main lime had not been reached. At 4,080 feet the test was 1302 feet below sea level. On early markets it was credited by some with winning high, but there are no nearby tests to afford comparisons.

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

Chapter 37 SHOOTING PEBBLES A look of wonder ran over the faces of the guards. They turned their heads ever so little towards one another. A glimmer of apprehension and relief came into their eyes. They had learned one new point in the endless riddle of their master's mind.

pleasant fellow—and perhaps this is really El Keed. Think, then, if I catch in my hand, in one day, a friar and El Keed, walking together! But El Keed, he went on, "carries with him a magic pair of guns that never miss."

"Mina miss plenty of times," said Montana, frankly.

It was not heat that was making him sweat, now; it was the thought of joining those rows of chained laborers in the field.

"Set him free, foot and hand," commanded Juan-Silva.

This was done instantly. Juan-Silva dipped his hand and his withered arm into the water—that ran before him and picked out one of the big, shining white pebbles. As soon as it was taken from the water the silver brilliance began to leave

"And you are El Keed?" said Juan-Silva.

"Now, tell me the truth and I think there'll be no harm for you here in the Valley of the Dead. Why did you come here?" "Because ten thousand pesos are posted up for me."

"You were hunted, eh?" "Every man in the mountains was cleaning his rifle. The cattle men were fixing their eyes for me. The shepherds, even, were whetting their knives."

"And at last they drove you in here for refuge?" "I thought it was better to be a living man among the dead than a dead man among the living."

"Do you hear, my children?" said Juan-Silva. "This man is also witty. Very soon he will have me laughing. El Keed is known to be a ready in the hand of the Kid. With his scowling brows he made a shadow that enabled him to look close to the sun. He dared not miss, and therefore he held his fire a heart-taking instant before each shot.

The first stone disappeared at the top of its rise, the second as it began to fall and the third when it was a foot from the ground.

The guards drew in a gasping breath in unison. Juan-Silva said: "That is very good. You are El Keed—I am almost sure. How can you make me quite certain, my friend?"

"Question me," said Montana.

"This man, this gringo, this famous Montana who has ridden through our Mexico and left dead men behind him, he is also a singer, eh? He sings the good songs, the old songs. I have heard about that,

Revenge Given As Motive In Slaying Of Stretcher, Jr.

YPSILANTI, Michigan, (AP)—State police turned definitely Saturday toward revenge as a motive for the brutal slaying of Richard Stretcher, Jr., 7, whose body was found near his home Friday.

It was said they had asked police the country over to search for a man with whom, they were told, members of the child's family had quarreled.

Crosses Attract Attention NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UP)—Two new crosses, found on the roof of the Catholic convent here recently, created widespread attention when it was said they were not fashioned by human hands.

The crosses, approximately seven feet long, with arms six feet wide, were believed, however, to have been formed by shadows from nearby buildings projected against the convent roof in such a manner as to prevent the sun from melting the snow shaded by the shadows.

And, El Keed, I have heard, as a hunter is like a cat that sees in the dark. You shall have that chance. If you see in the dark, you are El Keed and no other. Besides, I shall give you a chance to do something that will be very famous, afterwards."

He pointed to the thin-faced captain of the guard.

"Take him to the room of the old mill. See that not a single ray of light is entering. The room is close. He will not want many clothes. Strip him to one garment. Since he loves our Mexico so well, he must lose the machete of our people, also. Give him a good one and afterwards call up three prisoners who are new in the valley. Big men, strong men, quick men."

invalidating the Schackno law attempting to extend NRA into state business. Pastors' bonus inflation bill loses ground in congress, but bonus goes marching on. Presence of noted public men enhanced the impressiveness of Justice Holmes' funeral. The enfeebled condition of several justices was a matter of remark.

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN
Gold—
The president's recent statement that the dollar is still too high in relation to the debt level and that we are not yet ready for stabilization—which had Wall Street hopped up in the good old-fashioned way for all of three hours—ties in with the prediction in this column that the next New Deal chief would be monetary. The subsequent assurance from Washington that immediate devaluation is not in the cards fits also. The contradiction is only apparent.

Few people realize the vital distinction between the president's power to cut the dollar's gold value and his power to order the treasury to pay higher prices for gold. The latter doesn't necessarily connote the former. Moreover—while there's a legal limit of 50 cents on domestic devaluation—there's nothing to prevent the treasury from cutting the dollar's gold value beyond the corresponding price of $41.34 for an ounce of gold to $50 and $60 and even higher if the boss sees fit. It's perfectly possible for our government to bid the metal way up in foreign markets and still be legally correct in maintaining that our currency has not been inflated at home.

Dollar—
This anomaly is the key to the whole situation. New York sources are confident the president had two purposes in mind when he dropped his "casual" remark at a press conference. One was to serve notice delicately on our British greasing the chutes for the pound paper that they had better quit or else. The other was to test the popular reaction to the idea of further monetary maneuvers.

Important American interests are yelling their heads off—behind the scenes—for drastic action to halt the menace to exports. The cotton textile industry, for instance, has already taken lot of punishment since sterling hit the toboggan. Cancellations of foreign buying orders—especially from South America—are rolling up like a snowball. Foreign purchasers will chisel any price advantage they can from exchange fluctuations. They're assuming that the public likes the looks of the trial balloon insiders expect a minor experiment shortly with a higher official bid for gold in the London market. If that seems to work all right they anticipate bolder steps on the same course would eventually and inevitably lead to formal devaluation—unless an international stabilization agreement were reached first. The latter is quite possible—London would hardly relish the prospect of prolonged jockeying against a free dollar.

Bounce—
Signs multiply that England is having a lot more internal troubles than the world knows. New York sharps interpret the British government's willingness to discuss Lloyd George's "new deal" formula as a desperate effort to find an out. The informed prophesies that unless mounting unrest can be somehow appeased the McDonald course would eventually and inevitably lead to formal devaluation—unless an international stabilization agreement were reached first. The latter is quite possible—London would hardly relish the prospect of prolonged jockeying against a free dollar.

Bulleys—
Financial circles are surprised at the skill with which Premier Flandin of France has confounded his critics by strengthening his political position. But they figure his severest test lies ahead when resounding proclamations about devaluing the gold standard must give way to realities.

Anything done to the franc will be a well earned for the numerous French groups which specialize in raising hell to start getting promotions with bricks and bullets. If Flandin can get by them he will be in a class by himself as a politician.

K. O.—
New Yorkers observe that Bill Green's celebration of Clay Williams' resignation from the NRA board as a great labor triumph is like a rooster claiming credit for the sunrise. The word here is that Williams saw his job fading to less than a shadow and simply decided to call it a day. The NRA is already three dead letters where code enforcement is concerned and the chances that it can be palmed back to life loom very slim.

Comment runs—in the light of administration concessions to congressional critics—that the Blue Eagle is like a punch-drunk boxer who suffers the ironic fate of a final knock-out by his own manager.

Copper—
All the published optimism about the international copper conference finds no response among New Yorkers who know how those things work.

They remark that the three big Canadian producers are not represented at all and that any agreement which fails to include them is worth about as much as a Confederate greenback. They also doubt that Katanga interests—on which the whole Belgian Congo virtually depends for existence—will take kindly to the idea of restricted production.

Cynics also observe that—even if an agreement is reached—the copper people have frequently proved themselves past masters at sidestepping.

The Herald erred in reporting some of the antics of freakish spring weather last week. Distinction of being one of the first trees to put on leaves in Dallas county district No. 2, said he was anxious to "combat the ravens for public good." E. W. Kluever, Houston, Gulf Coast Field Trial club, asked for "specifications or designs for traps."

J. N. Wass, 81 year old Beresford, D. D., sportsman, said he was "anxious to learn methods of handling the crow proposition."

A. H. Rose of Hutchinson, Kansas wanted information on trap construction.

Elmore G. Cooper of Sycamore, Ill., expressed an "interest in trapping what we think is the greatest enemy of game birds anywhere."

D. L. McDonald, Amarillo, asked for data to enable sportmen of that city to stage an affair similar to the one held here.

C. L. Pillot, Houston, joined the chorus with "we would like to do likewise in this county."

Many other similar letters from all over the nation have been received by association officials.

AT THE first "hook" I gazed skyward. There, high in the air flew a patriarchal gander guiding his flock due north in perfect V-formation—Nature's advertisement that spring had really arrived.

And, speaking of advertisements, do you read those that appear in this newspaper? They forewarn you of the change of seasons just as surely as the first robin or the first golden daffodils.

Reading advertisements is a habit well worth cultivating. They tell you, well in advance, of the latest trend in styles. They keep you posted on this year's developments in automotive engineering. They bring to your attention new foods—nourishing, appetizing. They introduce to you marvels in household helps. They point out interesting locales for your vacation—or for tours that broaden your outlook on life.

The advertisements are interesting, helpful, reliable. By comparing the prices and qualities of merchandise advertised you buy to best advantage. You may rely on the advice given you by the advertisements in this paper just as you depend on the advice of a friend.

Conoco Travel Bureau Releases Interesting Figures On Tourist Travel

The popularity of Texas as a Mecca for automobile vacationists from all parts of the country is indicated by a report just released by the Conoco Travel Bureau, a branch of Continental Oil Company and America's largest free travel service. According to the report, 238,679 Travel Bureau tourists spent more than $9,522,480 in this state last year.

It was also revealed that motor travel throughout the entire United States was unusually heavy during 1934. Hotels, tourists camps, restaurants and many other types of business took in more money from tourists than during any other year since 1929. The Bureau supplied detailed trip services to 999,425 vacationists, a figure 41 per cent greater than the organization's total for 1933. Statistics also show that Travel Bureau tourists spent in excess of 40 million dollars while they were away from home.

The Conoco Travel Bureau is an organization maintained by Continental to provide motorists with up-to-date information on North American roads, routes, hotels, cottage camps, scenic and historical attractions plus any other data likely to make vacation trips pleasant and profitable. More than 100 carefully trained men and women are employed in the bureau's central offices at Denver. Conoco's 22,000 service stations act as field branches. It is predicted that one and one-half million vacationists will rely on Travel Bureau assistance during 1935.

Deduction For Losses Other Than From Sale Or Exchange Of Capital Assets

Deductions for losses are divided into four classes, and to be allowed must follow, closely the wording of the income-tax law. Losses are deductible if incurred (1) in the taxpayer's trade, business, or profession; (2) in any transaction entered into for profit; (3) from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualties; or from theft; and (4) from wagering transactions.

Business losses result, usually, from the purchase and sale of merchandise. Such losses usually are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue their use is necessary to determine the income of any taxpayer.

The term "transaction entered into for profit" means any kind of business proposition. For example, a taxpayer purchases an automobile to be used solely for business purposes, and which is sold at a loss. As this is a business proposition from start to finish, the loss is deductible. But if he had purchased the automobile to be used for pleasure or convenience, the deduction would not be allowed; it was not a transaction entered into for profit.

A loss sustained in the theft of an automobile purchased for pleasure or convenience is deductible, as it falls in class 3. If, because of faulty driving but not of "willful negligence," an automobile maintained for pleasure is damaged, the taxpayer may claim the loss sustained, as it comes within the meaning of the word "casualty." Where damages result from the faulty driving of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned the taxpayer likewise is deductible.

Losses from wagering transactions, whether legal or illegal, are deductible only to the extent of gains from such transactions. The excess of such losses over the gains is not deductible.

All losses are deductible only to the extent to which they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

TODAY and TOMORROW
By WALTER LIPPMANN
General Johnson's Speech

General Johnson has made a bold, a witty, and an eloquent speech. The effects will be felt longer than his words are remembered. For he has not merely delivered a speech. He has produced an event which will affect the course of American politics. Others have challenged the arguments of Senator Long and Father Coughlin. Others have denounced their appeal to primitive passions. What General Johnson has done is, with unerring accuracy, to pick the precise moment to state the real issue on which the politicians have to stand up and be counted.

Only incidentally is this speech an attack on Senator Long and Father Coughlin. Its great importance is that it is a challenge to the leaders of both political parties. To the Democrats General Johnson has said: Does Huey Long belong to your party or not? Are you going to use Long to fight the Democrats in the hope that he will give you a victory in 1936?

These two questions go to the heart of Huey Long's political importance. The failure to meet and answer them straightforwardly is the reason why, since the opening of this session of congress, he has become the most powerful figure in congress. The publicity he receives, the influence he wields, are derived from the general belief in Washington that Huey Long may decide the fate of the Roosevelt Administration and the results of the 1936 election. It is not the power he exercises in Louisiana and the adjoining states, it is not the size of his popular following—which is not really very large—it is not the sensational entertainment he provides, that account for his present influence. It is the fact that he has maneuvered himself into a position where politicians and newspaper men think that he might hold the balance of power between the two parties.

Thus what he says and does is news of national importance, and his power grows because so many politicians fear it and so many politicians are hoping to profit by it.

The Democrats have seen in him the leader of a faction who might split their party. They have not known whether to placate him; to fight him, or to pretend to ignore him. As a result they have allowed him to paralyze them and to disunite them. When they have tried to placate him by outbidding him they have lost the support of their own moderates without making the slightest impression on Huey Long. When they have fought him, they have fought him feebly and have strengthened him with easy victories. When they have tried to ignore him, they have demoralized their supporters by seeming to be afraid of him.

The thing could not go on. The time had to come when, for their own self-respect and for their own safety, the Democratic leaders had to say openly and resolutely that they prefer Huey Long as an open enemy outside the party breast-works. General Johnson's speech has forced them to make that decision.

... The Democratic paralysis has had its counterpart in the shame-faced, furtive hope of many Republican politicians that they could stand on the sidelines and later profit by Huey Long's raid. This is the most dangerous political maneuver imaginable, and one of the most desperate and disreputable.

Almost certainly it could not succeed. For, unless one lacks all belief in the political sanity of the American people, we may be sure that if they see Roosevelt beset by Huey Long on one side and the Old Guard on the other, a tacit alliance of the two ends against the middle, they will resent mightily so malicious a combination. But even if one doubts the common sense of the people and their ability to see the meaning of such strategy, the fact remains that the Old Guard cannot use Huey Long without ruining themselves. The notion that they can let him build up his strength, perhaps helping to build it up, and that they will then take it away from him for their own advantage is as fantastic as it is irresponsible.

General Johnson has exposed this strategy, and has challenged those who resort to it.

... The real issue is greater than the fate of either party. It is not the issue of what kind of social order is to evolve in the future. The issue is whether primitive passion and unreason and ruthlessness and appetite and barbarism are to dominate American politics, and to that issue there can be no compromise by civilized men.
