

Human Crutch Helps West German Leader

BONN, Germany—The chairman of West Germany's powerful Socialist party walks with a human crutch.

One-armed, one-legged Dr. Kurt Schumacher is unable to stand or walk alone. He lost his right arm in World War I and his left leg as a result of tortures in a Nazi concentration camp. So he moves by draping his left arm around the neck of his long-time secretary, Anne Marie Renger.

Frau Renger, a pretty, 32-year-old war widow, accompanies the ailing Socialist leader to all official parties and dinners, to press conferences and meetings. Only when Schumacher enters the Bundestag (the lower house of the parliament) is Frau Renger missing. Since only members of parliament are allowed in the chamber, one of the deputies helps the Socialist chieftain to his seat.

Frau Renger took Schumacher to her home when he was freed from the Nazi concentration camp in 1945. She nursed him for months and then became his secretary—and crutch.

Supporting Socialist Dr. Kurt Schumacher is his human crutch, Frau Anne Marie Renger, who serves as his secretary, AP Newsfeatures

TEEN TALK

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP NEWSFEATURES

A puzzle to many parents is what to do about daughter's partying. It intrigues teen-agers, also. Judging from the mail which boils down to... why can't I stay out later... why do Mom and Pop hang around the house when the gang comes to dance... why am I the only one in our crowd who must bring a boy home to meet the family before we go out on a date?

Sometimes young people will not agree to Mom's terms unless Susie's mother or Jane's mother come through with the same rules. The idea that misery loves company is not the answer to this feeling—a girl does not like the idea of being the only one to leave the party early, or the only one in the crowd who must conform to a particular rule.

This might have been one of the reasons why five Hartford, Conn., parent councils drew up a party code which would apply to their offspring—a wonderful idea to solve the "why does it have to be me" query from their darling daughters. Here is the code which might prove helpful to other parents with similar problems. Teen-agers will appreciate it, too, when the rules apply to all their friends:

1. Insist that your boy or girl go to no party to which he or she is not invited and insist that no one be allowed to your party who is not invited.
2. Have no parties at your house unless you are there. The parent council feels strongly that every party of teen-agers should be adequately chaperoned.

(Smart chaperones will not haunt you; they will keep the party going in a fun vein but will prove good stoppers if things get out of hand.)

3. Impress upon your son or daughter that when he or she is driving someone in a car, he or she is responsible for the person's safety.

(This speaks for itself. If you'll glance over statistics on teen-age automobile accidents. One girl who was injured in a crash which killed four other teen-agers testified that the boy driver had been drinking and crashed on purpose to teach the other driver a lesson.)

4. Think of this: Do you, as a parent, have the right to serve intoxicating drinks to someone else's children? If you do serve them or have alcoholic beverages available, then you as an adult are responsible.

(Lots of young people who are forbidden to have wine or other alcoholic drinks in their own homes will be offered them in the home of a more broad-minded mother. They are likely to become dissatisfied with their own family regulations.)

5. The parent council disapproves of parties running into the small hours of the morning. Please insist that your boy or girl telephone you if he or she is to be out later than agreed.

(If you get in the habit of leaving a party in the wee hours, you'll get into the habit also, of arriving later and later. It's only a question of time when you'll be going to a party when you should be getting home.)

6. We feel that our boys should ask the parents of their girls what time the girls are expected home and comply with the parents' wishes. They should also advise the parents where they are going.

(A boy will have more respect for you if you make a point of stressing that you must be home at the time set by your parents. And, as has been said before, if he complains about having to get you home early, don't see him again.)

One ride and You'll say:

"That's the Smartest Million Dollars BUICK Ever Spent"

WHEN we tell you that every 1952 Buick rides like a million dollars, we're not just slinging slang—we're talking real money—right-on-the-barrelhead cash.

A million dollars and more were poured into research and testing—design and tools—engineering, production and components—to team up the combination of ride features you'll find on a Buick—and on no other car in the world.

A million dollars and more was the price paid to work out control of end-sway and side-roll on curves—to double-check vertical "throw" with shock absorbers and big soft-acting coil springs for all four wheels—to V-brace the torque-tube keel and X-brace the frame—to cushion body and engine—and to silk out the whole operation with Dynaflo Drive.*

You may not care how the job was done, or what it cost. But we'll lay you this: You're going to say "thanks a million" to Buick engineers once you get this spirited smoothie under your hands and haunches.

Old familiar roads take on a new smoothness. Gone are the weave and wander, the jitter and jounce that you've felt in lesser cars. You ride with road-hugging assurance and level ease.

All of which only begins to tell you what really great cars these 1952 Buicks turned out to be.

Never before have style and stamin comfort and character—power, performance and price been brought together with such satisfying skill.

The obvious thing for you to do is in and look them over. How about taking half an hour off to do that—today?

*Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Buicks.*

area have been quarantined by state officials, who can be expected to take rigid precautions to stamp out the epidemic.

Burning of the animal carcasses (being careful to avoid touching any of the blood, or refuse from the animals is preferred by State veterinarians, but deep burial (6 feet or more) is recommended in case burning is too difficult or impractical.

There is little or no advance warning of the disease in cattle. They simply weaken quickly, bloat and die.

In issuing precautions, and urging watchfulness on the part of farmers and cattle owners, Dr. C. O. Morgan, a well known Amarillo authority, and of the Franklin Laboratories at Amarillo, Dr. Morgan stated:

"This form is seen most often in horses and seldom in cattle. It causes large edematous swellings under the skin and swelling of the lymph glands which are tender to the touch. This type has been successfully treated with sulfa drugs.

"The internal form is the most fatal of the two and the most common in cattle. In this form there are few symptoms. Most often you don't see sick animals, especially at the beginning of an outbreak. You unexpectedly find dead animals. As the outbreak progresses, you will notice sick animals, depressed and breathing fast. They usually die in a few hours.

You And Your Congress

WASHINGTON—Congress, which frequently and with reason decries the growth of federal bureaucracy, is now pointing a suspicious finger at itself.

Specifically, the finger points at Congressional investigations. The reason is that the number of these Capital Hill inquiries is mushrooming to proportions that alarm more than a few members of Congress. The latest bill for them comes to $70,000.

It was not completely in jest that one nationally prominent news commentator referred to last year's session as the "who dunnit" Congress. That session rolled up a record of 130 special investigations—inquiries, that is, in addition to those held in the normal course of developing legislation.

This session probably will not equal the last one in the number of investigations. It will be a shorter session because of the political conventions and the campaign season that follows them. But it already is off to a running start in the investigation field.

This leads Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) to caution his colleagues that the Senators are "rapidly getting ourselves into the position of some agencies" which they criticize for over-expansion.

On the same subject, Sen. Bridges (N.H.), Republican Leader of the Senate, says the committees carrying on investigations "should live within the funds given them."

In the Senate and House, special committee investigations must be approved by the Rules committees and special appropriations to finance them must be approved in each chamber.

Sen. Bridges had reference to the fact that some committees, like some federal bureaus, exhaust their appropriations before their year's work is finished and come back for more.

Sen. Aiken went on to say that some of the Congressional Committees are "overstaffed" and some have staff members who are "overpaid"—both charges frequently leveled by Congress at the Bureaus.

Sen. Hendrickson (R-N.J.) endorsed the warning of Bridges and Aiken.

Between the lines of those comments is the realization that some committee staffs have been known to think up new things to investigate to keep themselves in business.

It also is realized that Congressional investigations sometimes are conducted mainly to get publicity for the chairman and the head of the investigating staff. Some committee staffs have been known to develop techniques for winning the utmost publicity from investigations. Television is a new boon for them.

The occasion for the remarks on this subject by the three Senators was the approval by the Senate of $700,000 for eight special investigations. These cover grain storage, election laws, inflation and credit policies, surplus tanker sales, health programs and labor relations, defense mobilization, internal security and crime in the District of Columbia.

The last-mentioned, a mid-sized hangerover of what the Kefauver Committee started, is under way and is filling Washington newspapers with lurid accounts of gamblers, narcotics peddlers and cops—all of whom were dealing in crime under the Kefauver Committee's very nose.

The Senate Expenditures Committee has reported that in the four years between January 1, 1947, and January 1, 1951, Congress spent nearly $7,000,000 on special investigations.

But so far no special Congressional investigation has been proposed to determine how the number of special investigations might be reduced.

Sudan Students Contribute $436.62 To March Of Dimes

Students in the Sudan schools have contributed a total of $436.62 to the March of Dimes drive, according to reports by Joe T. Salem, campaign chairman, and Mrs. W. V. Terry, chairman of a committee representing three study clubs, sponsors of the drive at Sudan.

Grade school pupils contributed $394.04, and junior high school students, $87.58. The sum will be taken on a tour.

The March of Dimes was concluded Thursday at a benefit square dance, sponsored by the Wagon Wheel American Legion Hut. Club members include J. E. B. president, Raymon Dorman secretary and Mrs. Simeon

Bus Depot Broken Into Sunday; $100 Cash, Radio, Cigarettes Taken

The Littlefield Bus Station on Highway 84 was broken into sometime during last Sunday night, and the thief or thieves secured about $100 in cash from a locked cash register and the cigarette machine. Both the cigarette machine and the register were badly damaged in the process of getting the money out of them.

A General Electric radio, belonging to the Manager of the Bus Depot, and some cigarettes were also taken in the loot.

Entrance to the bus station was gained by knocking out the exhaust fan over the back door.

Both the bus station and Cafe adjoining have been undergoing remodeling, but the bus station has been open at the time of the arrival and departure of buses during the remodeling operations.

The Sheriff's office is still conducting an investigation of the robbery. No arrests have been made.

Experienced Hand Wanted

Cappy Miller's back from visiting relatives and tells about a big snow storm that knocked out the electric power for miles around. Naturally, the local power company was doing everything possible to restore service but folks kept calling in and one woman gave them a new twist.

"I don't mind not having lights," she grumbled, "but I've got 20 cows in my barn and they all have to be milked by machine. Nobody around here knows how to milk a cow by hand any more."

From where I sit, it's only too easy to forget how to do something—even as simple as milking a cow—if we don't keep at it. And that goes for practicing tolerance, too. Like forgetting our neighbor has a right to decide for himself whether or not to enjoy a temperate glass of beer. If we don't keep the other fellow's point of view in mind we're all liable to get "snowed under" by intolerance.

It's Loaded—So Be Careful!

Before you drive the Golden Anniversary Cadillac, there is one thing we should like to impress upon you: It's loaded—so be careful!

There's more power in that dynamic engine than you'll ever need—except for the rarest emergency. And it should never, never be used for dramatic display on the get-away.

If somebody else wants the honors when the light turns green—let 'em go. You don't have to prove anything, anyway.

But that great power works for you—even when you're not unleashing it to the limit. It works for you as a reserve—and gives you that easy, quiet, flowing ride which makes a Cadillac such a joy to own and such a thrill to drive...

It gives you that slow-moving engine—that simply loafs at all legal speeds—and which is a literal Methuselah when it comes to long life...

And it is a primary reason for that unbelievably low upkeep expense, at which Cadillac owners never cease to marvel. Some fleet owners have found, for instance, that Cadillacs cost less to operate and maintain than any other cars they have ever used. And the easy-going engine, that never operates under strain, is a big factor in this economy.

Yes—Cadillac's great power works for you—and is necessary—and is one of the vital reasons why Cadillac's performance is so outstandingly different.

But we trust that no Cadillac owner will ever use it for dominating the highway. To do so is not only counter to the rules of safety—but it is not in keeping with the graciousness the motoring public has come to expect from the person who sits at the wheel of a Cadillac.

Have you seen this great Golden Anniversary creation? If not, we should be pleased to welcome you to our showrooms—at any time.

Deputy Sheriff Returns Prisoner To Littlefield

The Olton branch of the Lamb county sheriff's office brought three charged law offenders to the Lamb County jail this week, and all three were scheduled for hear- ings in County Court, Wednesday and Thursday.

A resident of Old Mexico, was picked up on the highway near Olton and is charged with driving while intoxicated. The two others were charged with obtaining gaso- line at an Olton service station, and then leaving without paying for same. They were driving a car, said to have been equipped with California license plates, and gave their address as the state of Cali- fornia.

Under sheriff Tommy Gilbert went to Wichita Falls this week, and returned Ray Miller, aged 21, who gives his home address as Chillicothe, and who is charged in connection with a check passing hereon December 22. The check is alleged to have been passed at the Martin Department store here, and alleged to be signed with a ficti- tious or non-existent name. His case will be turned over to the Grand Jury next month, and in the meantime Miller is held in custody here.

OR RICH MAN: Nizam of Hyderabad Parades Frugality

down Hyderabad streets in his vintage '33 Chevrolet.

The story goes that the Nizam wears one ancient suit, reclining in his bath while servants perform necessary washing or patching. This cuts down laundry bills. One prominent Hyderabad official insists that the Nizam has been wearing the same pair of socks each time he has seen him in the past two years.

Haggles Over Prices

Oldtime Hyderabad residents say they have observed the Nizam in his familiar red fez and high-buttoned "sherwani," or longcoat, haggling in the bazaar over the price of mangoes.

Conservative estimates place the value of the Nizam's gold bars alone at 250 million dollars. His exalted highness himself sets his personal wealth in bullion, investments, and real estate at this sum, declining to estimate the worth of his jewelry, which includes the famed Jacob Diamond, Chief Minister Vellodi declared.

"He doesn't tell us the half of it," said Vellodi wryly. "And of course, trying to put money value on that incredible collection of gems doesn't get you far."

Informed guesses on the jewelry range from 500 million dollars to well over two billion dollars, depending on valuations.

Land holdings of 7,990 square miles, which once brought the Nizam annual income exceeding six million dollars, have now been taken over by the Hyderabad government, Vellodi stated. But the government will pay "compensation" of a million dollars each year until the Nizam dies.

He's on the Dole, Too

The Nizam also receives an annual privy purse of a million dollars from the Indian government. Nehru's deputy prime minister, Sardar Patel, granted this concession after the Nizam capitulated to the Indian Army in 1948 and abandoned his dream of a sovereign Hyderabad surrounded by territory of the new Indian nation. The Nizam was the last holdout among the major princes in joining the Indian Union.

Many of his privileges remain. Within the confines of Hyderabad he still gets the 21-gun salute on important occasions, an honor tradition has conferred only on the Maharajahs of Baroda, Gwalior, Mysore and formerly Kashmir.

He continues to maintain six elegant palaces in his state as well as a "Hyderabad house" for traveling members of his family, in Calcutta, Delhi, Bombay, Madras, and elsewhere. His own palace in Hyderabad city, however, is in reality a modest bungalow behind palace compound walls.

He Has 60 Secretaries

Helping the Nizam with his public and private responsibilities is a secretariat of 60 aides. The palace guard of 1,000-odd "watchmen" is not armed, Vellodi stated. "After all, we can't have private armies any more."

Today as always the big moment of the Nizam's—and Hyderabad's—day comes when he makes his punctual dusk visit to the grave of his mother. Hyderabad police line the Nizam's route, signalling ahead with shrill whistles on the approach of the royal jolopy. Citizens scatter to the sidewalks and watch the Nizam's motorcycle escort whiz by, then the curtained Chevrolet touring car.

It was his mother's Hindu birth which won the Nizam his crown in 1911.

Last of his line, the Nizam ends a dynasty started by Asaf Jah the First, shortly after 1700. Moslem Asaf Jah solemnly accepted a Hindu pandit's reading of the stars that the line would run through seven rulers and then cease. The present heir apparent, 40-year-old Muazzam Jah the First, Prince of Berar, would begin a new line if the changing times would let him.

In addition to the Prince of Berar and another "legal" son by his first wife, the Nizam has fathered two "legal" daughters and 95 children by his concubines.
