

OFFICIAL ADDRESSES 600 FARMERS HERE

Urges Them to Wire Homes; Explains Farm Finance Program

America is going rural. From houses in 1929 to ranches and in '39 is a healthy trend to some of the disagreeable that have been happening to J. Warner Pyles, chief of the section of the Rural Electrification Administration, of Washington, D. C., told approximately farmers, their wives and a number of visitors, at the high school auditorium Monday night.

Pyles came to Littlefield in interest of the Lamb county Electric Cooperative, Inc.

explained the purpose of the program planned by the administrator, and the necessity of homes adequately and for the rural electrification. There are 600 houses to wire project in Lamb county, and a small number of these homes have been wired and inspected.

The purpose of this project is electricity on the farms, so economic and social benefits are obtained, and not only the should be wired, but the premises, the barns, and yards," Pyles said. "Machinery can be at a much lower cost with variety, motors for feed grinding cost very little. And—Who the farmers of today do not radio programs, and the many series that are fast becoming necessities, in the electric refrigerator."

Another purpose of the REA," Pyles stated, "is to urge people to go back to the country, keep children there—and the best way to keep boys and girls at home is to have them growing up in the home about as attractive as possible. Have programs that will benefit the younger generation, so they will be satisfied to stay on the farm."

In explaining how the REA project operates, Mr. Pyles stated that lines belong to the government, there is no holding company, no profits in the organization, and no personal liability; the government invests the money to the organization for the benefit of the farmers.

LOCAL SCHOOL PRESS MEMBERS ATTEND MEETING

50 Delegates Attend Panhandle High School Convention

The annual convention of the Panhandle High School Press Association met Friday, Feb. 4, at Canyon, and members of the staff of the Wildcat, Littlefield high school paper, attended. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the education building of the college, and perhaps the highlight of the program was the address given by Deskin H. Wells, president of the Texas Press association. Mr. Wells is editor of the Wellington Leader, and he gave advice to those students who are entering the work of the "Fourth Estate."

Other features of the program were "What's Right and What's Wrong in High School Sports Writing," by Jerry Malin, sports writer for the Amarillo News Globe; "They Don't Want to Read It," by Dr. F. L. McDonald of the Texas State College for Women; a forum feature writing by Dr. Baxter

A blanket of snow covered Littlefield and the South Plains Thursday last, the fall beginning about 7:30 a. m., continuing slowly all day, and during Thursday night. A total of over an inch fell, which Friday morning was accompanied by high wind and low temperature. The lowest temperature for this winter season was registered by the West Texas thermometer at 8 a. m. Friday, when five degrees above zero was recorded.

MONTHLY EVENT TO DRAW CROWD NEXT TUESDAY

Chamber of Commerce to Take Up Many Important Matters

The monthly luncheon of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce will be held next Tuesday, in the basement of the First Presbyterian church, bids fair to eclipse in interest and attendance, any meeting that has been held since the re-organization of the body.

The major attraction that is expected to draw many visitors—will be the detailed report of the recent Chemurgic congress which was attended by a C. of C. delegation composed of W. H. Cunningham, John I. Bowling and County Agent Dan Turner. The county commissioners have been invited to discuss road improvement projects in the county.

A report will also be made on the meeting held last week, when C. G. Rook of Gladewater, Texas, discussed the possibilities of establishing an experimental plant in Littlefield for the production of a new insulation material that is produced from cotton burrs and cotton stalks.

A fair sized delegation from the Business and Professional Women's club will also attend the luncheon and discuss some matters of general interest to the community.

Secretary-Manager Cogdill has requested that all those wishing to attend this luncheon, get in touch with him as early as possible so that the proper number of luncheon reservations may be made with the ladies of the Presbyterian auxiliary who will serve the luncheon.

ROTARIANS WILL OBSERVE NAT'L DRAMA WEEK

Dave Schein to Be in Charge of Program at Today's Luncheon

In observance of Nation-Wide Drama week, the Rotary program today will be turned over to David Schein, director of the Littlefield Little Theatre. Mr. Schein will briefly review the history of the theatre and highlight his talk with some anecdotes of stage folk.

Judge E. S. Rowe was the speaker at last week's luncheon and made a profound impression with the pertinent query addressed to fathers—"Are you trying to help your boys to live their own lives, or are you trying to force them—to live their lives as you wish—that you might have lived it?" Mr. Rowe's talk was confined to the Youth Administration activities sponsored by all Rotary clubs.

Mr. Patrick who was to have delivered a five minute classification talk, gave way to Mr. C. G. Rook, the visitor from East Texas. Mr. Rook confined himself to sounding a warning to the farmers and industrialists of Texas, indicating that the future of any section of Texas depended upon the alertness with which that particular section would apply itself to a re-adjustment of its own agricultural set-up.

Boy Scout Week

"Scouting Carries on American Ideals," is the message that the Boy Scouts of America are celebrating a birthday again—the 29th this time. These ideals include service, cooperation, tolerance, religious obligation, citizenship, nature study.

This week—February 8 to 14—is Boy Scout Week, and Littlefield and Lamb county will join this national observance with a community-wide program, that will prove to the citizens that "The Boys Have What It Takes."

It is a welcome portent for the future of American democracy that more than a million and a quarter men and boys are now active members of a movement which, although founded to capitalize on the love all boys have for adventure in the out-of-doors, does not fail to provide practical ways for helping them fulfill the obligations felt by every genuine American.

Scouting has succeeded in becoming a part of the American boy's world because it is a program of action plus idealism. So it has a twofold appeal, demonstrated by its growth in popularity each year, in many sections limited only by the lack of leaders or adequate funds of extension.

In our own community right now there are many men, part of the 8,400,000 who have been included in the Boy Scout family since 1910, who believe in the principle that "Once a Scout Always a Scout," and who are doing their best to extend and interpret in practice the concept of civic and moral responsibility that came to them in their scout troops.

Recently the scouts in Littlefield were re-organized—Capable young men have been named scout masters.—Young men who are eager to carry on the American ideals, and those boys who are in the scout troops will look back, possibly thirty years from now, and say: "We are better men because of our training in Scout Work." They will make better citizens, because they were taught in boyhood the true meaning of idealism.

"No War" Says Shaw

There is not the least chance of a world war happening in the near future, that is the firm belief of George Bernard Shaw, distinguished dramatist and author, revealed in an interview with his friend W. R. Titterton for the current Rotarian Magazine. If there were, it would have happened in September, 1938, when there was more inflammatory talk and even feeling than there ever was from the Agadir incident to the bombardment of Liege.

"What would happen first in a world war?" asks Shaw. "The airplanes of A, B, C, and D would bomb the cities of E, F, G, and H so effectively that the white flag would be hoisted at approximately the same time in the several capitals, and adject pleas for peace would cross each other in the air."

The tragic nastiness of this latest development of warfare is that the attack of the civilian population is absurdly easy, he points out. Because adequate defense is impossible, the danger to civilians of wholesale extinction is greater than ever before. Governments of the civilized countries—those well equipped with the latest means of destruction—are well aware of this fact.

"I think that man is on trial," declares Shaw. "If we are proved definitely to be a mistake, we shall be scrapped, and God will use some other creatures a trifle less stupid to carry on His purpose. Our opportunities have been great, our stupidities have been monstrous. And, no doubt, war is one of the greatest of these."

"But don't delude yourself with the notion that when nations are at peace with each other, they are at peace with themselves, or that slums and unemployment and inhuman working conditions and sweating wages are far more admirable than the miserable squalor of war," he continues. "As long as pugnacity is considered to be a virtue, you will have international war, and you will have all the blessings of peace I have enumerated. I see no signs that, however great a mistake man may be, he is likely to be superseded in the lifetimes of our present national leaders. God works on a big canvas, and we are only an inch or so away from the Siege of Troy."

"In a war everybody loses, but formerly it was possible for one side to think—for a year or two—that it had won," concludes Shaw. "The single redeeming feature of the next world war, when it happens, is that this will not be possible. In reflecting upon that, perhaps you may find some particle of hope."

SCHOOL DAYS

HOWDY FOLKS:

For a long time past—I have tried to figure out whether sympathy is the prelude to understanding or its sequel. Have just about decided that it is both. What made me think of sympathy at this particular time—was the fine meeting we had in Littlefield last Friday when C. G. Rook, of Gladewater, Texas, discussed with us some very important agricultural and industrial developments for this section. Primarily the 35 men who attended this informal session, were drawn by their sympathy for the needs of their fellowmen and their community. This sympathy urged them to seek a better understanding of those needs and—in turn, strengthen their sympathy for communal well-being and progress.

The state-wide discussion and criticism, engendered by Governor O'Daniel's orders for the reduction of State Employees' expense accounts, brought to light an interesting incident. When Chief Justice C. M. Cureton was attorney general of Texas he once ate a $2.85 meal on a state trip. Cureton is a large man with a corresponding appetite. When he is working on a difficult legal problem, he abstains from eating until he has completed the work. He had been before the U. S. Supreme Court in Washington representing Texas in a complicated boundary controversy. As usual, he omitted eating on the day he presented the case. Then he boarded a train for Texas. He was so tired he went to sleep without eating and slept so late that he missed breakfast in the morning. He waited for the diner's mid-day call. Thoroughly relaxed by this time, he ordered a turkey dinner and ate heartily. In those days dining car rates were much higher than today's streamlined travel charges. The bill was $2.85. Cureton noted the expenditure as he did all expenses while traveling, and turned the notations over to a secretary to prepare his expense account. Going over the account before signing it, Cureton stopped at the $2.85 meal. He crossed off the $2 and left the 85 cents. "The people who pay the taxes don't eat $2.85 meals," he said.

A parody on "Beautiful Texas" is being circulated in Austin since Gov. O'Daniel proposed his transaction tax.

The parody goes: "OH, BEAUTIFUL, BEAUTIFUL TAXES, THE CAUSE OF OUR MIS'RY AND WOE, 'OUR DEAR FOREFATHERS WERE LUCKY 'TO DIE IN THE ALAMO!'"

Rep. Karl Segrist of Dallas and representatives from other counties between Dallas and Del Rio took time off from the legislature to visit the state highway commission and ask for a direct highway between those places via Cleburne.

Some gaps remain in the route. "We will do all we can for you," said Highway Commissioner Harry Hines. "That's what we tell them in the legislature," replied Segrist. As the discussion proceeded, Hines exclaimed: "If we just had all the money we needed to do the things we want to do—" Segrist broke in again with—"That's what we tell the old folks."

I am getting along in years, and have lost most of my youthful tendencies to judge or act upon impulse. The hot and cold attitude displayed by Texas voters towards W. Lee O'Daniel, during the past eight months, has not—so far caused my blood to boil or frizz. It is true that I looked upon the pre-election ballyhoo as pretty much of a joke, and that the spectacular victory filled me with awe and apprehension. But the overpowering evidence of half a million ballots, pretty much convinced me that he must have something besides good showmanship. Of course, he is going to make a lot of mistakes because every man who does anything at all is bound to err in judgment before he can accomplish a great deal. Has it occurred to you that in all the criticism of our President—Franklin D. Roosevelt there has never been the slightest question or doubt as to his honesty and sincerity? So far—there has been no question as to O'Daniel's honesty of purpose and integrity and everybody is pretty much agreed that the new Governor will lead. The lawmakers whom we have chosen to represent us in Austin owe it to their constituents, to every effort to develop sympathy and understanding, in their relations with the new executive. It will often disagree with him—but a spirit of fairness and cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of our government, will smooth the road of progress, and help us all solve common problems.

So long. DAVE SCHEIN.

TENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Jocelyn Harlowe, raised in a convent, at the age of 18, her mother, Marcella, in New York, was worried about her safety, because she is unfamiliar with the world and has developed a beautiful woman, her mother's wish is to get her safely home. Attending her first ball, she meets Felix Kent, rich, and 19 years older than she. Encouraged by her mother, Felix quickly becomes engaged to her in her apartment one night. Nick Sandal, a cripple, the fire escape, confides in her. He is her father and that name is Lynda Sandal. Visiting her father in his apartment, she meets Jock Ayleward, a rich man. When she mentions the name of Felix Kent, he tells her story of how he was a mining engineer, under Kent, and was sent to prison for making what was admitted to be a false affidavit. Jocelyn believes him, but, after more of Jock, and after he had her passionately during a night they had alone, she says she will search Kent's safe for the jewels. When asleep one night, Jocelyn's mother wakes her up because she has seen that her jewels have been taken and Jocelyn suspects Jock or Nick. She goes to see her father who seems to know nothing about the jewels. She meets Jock who kisses her against her will. She tells him she will be safe, which she does. She shows papers showing Jock's story is true, and Felix is arrested. Meanwhile, returns the jewels to Lynda and tells her about them.

with their gems, to South America and live there happily ever after. And so again, in the immemorial fashion of Pantaloone, some instinct pinched the husband awake and back he came unexpectedly to his little golden California house. Moonlight, I remember. Soft. Summer. But they were indoors. It was night. And everything was ready. The jewels lay between them on the table.

"I said what Pantaloone always says. Julian was not patient under insult. I struck him. He was armed. He would have shot me, Lynda." his voice left him and he began to whisper, "he would have shot me. I was no cripple in those days and I got the pistol away from him and I shot him."

Lynda heard herself asking, "You killed him, Nick?"

"Yes. Instantly. And almost before I could stand up from ascertaining this, the police were on top of us."

"It wasn't only the shot that had brought them. They were hot on Montree's heels. That was one reason why he was for South America at once. The noble aunt had grown suspicious. The police were looking for the nephew of the Marquise de Montree."

"Well, as soon as I saw that he was dead—before the police came in—I had told 'Celia to go to her room and to lock herself in. Her story would be this: that she had gone to bed and to sleep. That the quarrel had awakened her but that she had not dared to come out to us. That the quarrel was between two gamblers who had come in late. And that it had ended in Julian's death, at my hands, by his pistol."

"She went to her room—where you were sleeping quite peacefully—and locked her door. But with her . . . she carried Montree's jewels."

"Nick, what did they do to you?"

"Arrested me of course. After this, that and the other thing was said and done, I was tried and convicted of manslaughter and sent to prison for the matter—almost of your lifetime, Lynda."

"They thought that Julian and I had quarreled over the swag. Lord, how they tore my house to pieces looking for the jewels! It's a wonder you weren't flayed in the search. Lord knows where 'Celia kept them. But the police couldn't pin anything on me. For lack of evidence, I wasn't tried for theft as well as for murder."

"And she didn't tell? I mean, at the trial, she didn't try to help you by telling the truth?"

"She didn't tell. She kept the jewels."

Nick drew himself almost roughly from her comforting.

"Until that night when you both came out from that ball, Lynda, where you were dressed as Juliet and as lovely as she, I had not seen 'Celia since that last day of my trial. I hated her afresh. The aspect of cold virtue she wore, the look of sanctity . . . and when I saw you so dutifully in her power I began to envy her. That envy grew. I began, you see, to love my own daughter. I was jealous, ashamed, unhappy. And so, because I thought that it would tear away her mask and expose the background of her piety, I stole her jewels."

"The ones I returned were imitations. I still have the real gems. I wanted you, Lynda, to see her in her true colors so that she'd not be able to influence you against me in the end."

"Oh, Nick, Nick, Nick!"

They looked at each other then with their wasted and faintly similar faces and their wit, strained eyes and contrived, for each other's sake, a sort of shaken laughter.

At the end of that laughter, Lynda, having risen, asked, "Won't you tell me something about—Jock?"

Jealousy crept back faintly into Nick's face.

"Not much to tell about him. He came out of prison the same day I did. He'd had his three years of hell, poor devil! We'd both been engineers. That drew us together. I taught him the gambling game."

It was not until several days thereafter, that the papers began to blazon the story of a certain Felix Kent—his wealth, his possible crime, his treachery. The law court in Chicago was set for a scandalous trial, not the reopening of an ancient indictment of one unfortunate engineer but a new trial to prove Kent's embezzlement of his fellow citizens' funds. Kent was very expensively and very ably represented. Jock's story, in one form or another, ran to columns; and already the name of Jocelyn Harlowe had been mentioned. Nick carried the first edition to Lynda and was then told what she had done, the history of her search, her capture and her tragic victory. He heard it without comment.

Lynda, meanwhile, in her own fashion, prowled the room. It was 10 o'clock of a gay spring morning. "I won't talk about it, Nick. I don't want to see the papers. I want to go away until it's over, please."

"Well, I was about to suggest an adventure. Will you come with me to France?"

"Nick, can we? Is it possible?"

"I must go, you see, and since I'm a cripple I need your help. Besides, for my intention, two travelers might perhaps be safer than one."

"What is—your intention, Nick?"

"To return to the Marquise de Montree her jewels."

"That's what I meant to do, some day."

"Today is best, for me and probably for you if you do want to get away from this. He flicked the scattered newspapers."

In secret, the two conspirators made their preparation and set their date. Nick got the passports, bought the tickets.

Then Lynda, all dressed for travel and holding in her hands a leather case which contained her toilet articles, her money and the jewels, sat down beside her window to wait for Nick. He had been living in his old rooms and was to come for her at 8:30.

The clock chimed. Startled, she saw that it was already 9, that Nick was very late. She began to be alarmed. Passengers were supposed to be aboard by 10.

She phoned the desk but was told that there had been no call.

She had hardly hung up the receiver, when shrilly the mechanism rang. She knew Fuji's queer little voice:

"This Miss Har-lo."

"Yes."

"Please, Lady come see Miss-tair Sandal. He say, Velly sud-den sick. No can come. No can get to 'phone. Please, lady come his room now."

"Tell him I'll be there at once."

She got out quickly at the door, told her driver to wait and, keeping the small case with its priceless contents in her hands.

She climbed up the three well-remembered flights and hurried in at Sandal's unlocked door. He was not in the stripped front room. She called him and went through the bedroom door.

Quayle stood against the entrance door. He was smiling sickly.

"Don't yell," he warned her. She saw that in his pocket a lump thrust upward, threatening her.

"Look a-here, girlie. I'm on to Nick and you. You got the lady's sparklers and you're going to beat it to foreign parts. A neat job too."

"Where is he?" Lynda whispered.

"Not far away. I found he didn't have the stuff so I got Fuji to call you. Don't yell. I got him in a closet out there. It's not even locked but he's tied up. But look a-here, you can go away with me if you like. 'On my word of honor.' I got a real fancy for you. But if you don't like it, that's all right with me too. Only just hand me over the sparklers. If you make a row I'll put a hole in your pretty carcass and take the stuff. It's in your bag there?"

She shook her head. He took the case from her, opened it and, without freeing her from any fraction of his watchfulness which was as cold and as intent as a hunting cat's, he, quietly pocketed the gems. Then he began to back towards the door.

As he stepped from the door, Lynda's crazy courage flared up, as though her brain had been saturated in crude oil. She darted after him. As he fled down the stairs, she drew in her breath to shout, but Quayle stopped below her and, with a hideous white grin, levelled his gun. Before her voice had left her lips, he fired.

There was, with her shortened wailing cry, a shock of sound. Quayle scuttled down and out past grinning Fuji who had the front door open for his gold-lined exit. Lynda lay crumpled near the banister over which she had leaned for her intended outcry. Below her on the stairs, on the very step where Quayle had paused to shoot, was the dead body of a man.

Helping herself up by the railing and moving shakily down, she found Nick Sandal.

She sat there on the step and held his peaceful head upon her arm.

The police found them. The police took them away and, next morning, the Harlowe family lawyer having been summoned, the police delivered them at Marcella's apartment. There, then, Nick Sandal was laid in a room sweet with flowers, while springtime's hurdy-gurdy made incongruous melody beneath the sun-filled window, and his pale young daughter wept.

The rank outsider was buried in the Harlowe burial lot and lay there, untroubled by social distinctions or by any sense of his inferiority. The lawyer, the clergyman, Cousin Sara Mullet, Jocelyn and one other stood beside the grave. This was Jock Ayleward.

She could think of no one else presently, remember no one else. Every look of his mobile face was hers; every turn of his strong and graceful body. It was Jock's turn now to climb up out of the dust. But why must it be away from her?

She saw, turning, stiff with trouble and with weariness, that he was in the vestibule.

He came toward her, looking tall and grave and white.

"Have you read the papers, Lynda?"

Her "no" was inaudible.

"I've got my verdict. I'm cleared. Don't try to speak, Lynda. I won't stay. I know what you must feel toward me. I've spoiled your life . . . or you think so. And I've dared to come here to thank you for giving me the power to do it. Since I last saw you you've been hurt horribly. And I went away and left you to go through with it alone. It's beastly. I'm ashamed. But," he held out his hands, "but no one will call them a thief's fingers again. Nor my mouth a convict's mouth. And . . . I love you, Jocelyn Harlowe. Life is ahead of us, although there has been so much pain behind—and I have a mania for hoping."

"It's too bad we're not in sympathy, Jock. I haven't any mania for hoping and very little patience at all with pain. Your talent will be wasted. And I think it was never Jocelyn Harlowe that you loved. I am Lynda Sandal. I am tired of unhappiness. And I've been lonely. Can't you have a mania for being happy here and now?"

At that they were together and out of reach of fear. The Little Master, temporarily conquered, vanished into thin air and it seemed to Lynda that in his place was the sure promise of splendid happiness.

LIEUT. AND MRS. C. L. KEITHLEY ARRIVE IN TEXAS AFTER STAY IN ORIENT; VISIT RELATIVES HERE

Lieutenant Charles L. Keithley and Mrs. Keithley arrived in Littlefield Saturday night for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Keithley. They are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Ford, in Dallas, this week.

Lieut. and Mrs. Keithley have been in the Orient for the past two years, where he has been disbursing officer in the United States navy. They were stationed in the Philippines, but they visited points in China and Japan during the two years.

J. W. Keithley, Jr., met his brother and sister-in-law in San Francisco last week and accompanied them to Littlefield.

In the Bamboo Breezes, the weekly news magazine, printed for the personnel of the United States navy and marine corps, in Misericordia, Manila, gave the following write-up about Lieut. and Mrs. Keithley. Also his picture was printed in the magazine.

"Lieutenant Charles L. Keithley, supply corps, U. S. navy, has been relieved as disbursing officer of the receiving station by Lieutenant C. M. Charneco and, with Mrs. Keithley, is departing for the United States in the 'President Cleveland' next Tuesday, Jan. 10.

"He has been here since April, 1937, and in the assignment he has just left since October, 1937. He graduated from the Naval academy in the class of 1931 and entered the supply corps upon graduation. His duties have included a year's instruction in the USS Oklahoma, two and a half years as disbursing officer of the California, a year and a half at the Naval Clothing depot in Brooklyn, and an assignment as supply officer of the Centennial Exposition of Texas, his native state.

"He and Mrs. Keithley have taken an active interest in social and athletic activities in the district. Both are ardent golfers and tennis players, and Lieut. Keithley has, to offset some of Mrs. Keithley's golf tournament triumphs, the record of having made a hole-in-one on the Sangley Point course. He has been district tennis officer for some time and has also served on committees of the Officers club. He is under orders to the 12th Naval district for further assignment to duty.

"Bamboo Breezes regrets the Keithleys' departure and extends best wishes for a happy crossing and pleasant duty ahead." They will go to Puget Sound, Washington, the latter part of this month, where the lieutenant will have a similar duty.

SCOUT WEEK TO BE OBSERVED IN LITTLEFIELD

Religious Services, Mobilization and Banquet to Be Highlights of Week

Highlight of the Boy Scout week in Littlefield, from Feb. 12 to 18, will be the Father-Son banquet, to be held on Thursday night, at the Legion hall. Tickets are on sale, and general arrangements are under the direction of J. O. Von Lankin, T. L. Matthews, and Morgan Layfield. Littlefield will have five mayors next Friday, when scouts in the four troops will each elect a mayor to assist Mayor Pat Boone. Also policemen, city secretaries, fire marshals and constables will be elected.

Church day will be observed Sunday, when all scouts will attend services, and Sunday night, they will go en masse to the Baptist church, where George Holland, of Plainview, district scout supervisor, will deliver the sermon.

Monday, Feb. 13, will be Mobilization day, and prizes have been offered to the troop, troops and districts who organize the quickest. Main purpose of this mobilization is to show the citizens how quickly they can get together in case of catastrophe.

Tuesday night the Court of Honor will be held in Sudan, after the scouts observe Home day, doing special favors for members of the family and special chores about the house. Wednesday the scouts will be guests at a special assembly program at the high school.

The senior scout troop was recently organized, with Coach Frank Selfridge, counselor; Nolen Walker, first mate; J. G. West, Jr., assistant mate; Harold Latimer, purser; and David Storey, keeper of the log.

EARLY MORNING BREAKFAST ENJOYED BY EIGHTY WOMEN WEDNESDAY

Sleepy eyes, pajamas, and flowered robes were seen Wednesday morning from 8 to 11 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mancil Hall on East Ninth street, when members of the Woman's Study club were hostesses at a breakfast.

Clever invitations were sent last week by the finance committee of the club, stating that someone would call for their guests at an early morning hour, and they were requested to go "just as you are." A quarter was charged if you did not dress, but went willingly with the "lady in the Klu Klux garb," but a nickel extra was charged if the ladies stopped to "powder your face."

Approximately 80 women called during the morning and enjoyed the home made doughnuts and coffee. Proceeds amounted to about $20.

Members of the finance committee were Mesdames J. H. Barnett, W. G. Street, J. M. Stokes, Ivan Fowler and C. E. Cooper. They were assisted by Mesdames G. M. Shaw, J. C. Hilbun, Pat Boone, and Mancil Hall.

Cottrell of Littlefield, and for a few months was associated in business with his father here. He is now employed on the Dick McGill farm near Cotton Center, where they will make their home.

Littlefield Kitties Lose to Sudan to Score of 26-27

The Littlefield Kitties and Wildcats entered the Anton cage tournament last week-end, and from all indications, they let their good record fall a bit.

The Kitties, who have won several games over Sudan, lost their first game in the tournament to their northwestern foes, in a hard fought battle. Sudan taking the lead with a 26-27 score. The girls, who have only lost three games during the entire season, were handicapped because only a small portion of their first string players were able to go to the tourney. However, they intend to rally by this week-end, and bring home the county championship, when they play at Olton.

The boys quintet clashed with those Spade longhorns, and from all reports, they'll be giving the locals their stiffest competition in the Olton tournament this week-end.

At Anton the game was close—they changed leads several times and at the end of the game the score was 19-19, so they played an extra five minutes. The Longhorns tossed out the Wildcats 23-19.

Don't let us down, boys and girls, we're depending on the Champs being you this week end! You can do it!!!

Length of 1938 Cotton Staple Is Increased

Only 8.6 per cent of the 1938 Texas cotton crop (up to Dec. 1) was under 7-8 inch in staple length as compared with 16.7 per cent in 1937; 65 per cent of the crop graded white middling or better in 1938 and 53 per cent in 1937; and the average staple length increased by 1-32 inch.

PLANTS AND SHRUBS PROVIDE "BOARD AND LODGING" FOR QUAIL, SAYS CHAMPAN

Scattering food on the ground for birds during severe winter weather is a good practice, but not nearly so effective as helping nature to do the job of feeding them, according to A. B. Chapman of the soil conservation area located near Littlefield.

Earl Minton, first, Emil Bigler, second; Jack Mullins, third.

Seven teams were entered in the contest and placed as follows: Anton, first; New Home second; Whitharral, third; Tahoka, fourth; Lorenza, fifth, Frenship, sixth, and Cooper, seventh.

Earl Minton, Emil Bigler, Tullis Walker, and Gordon Davis are working out for the Dairy Products judging contest at Tech in February. They also plan to enter the state contest which will be held at Fort Worth in March.

tion service is using plants and shrubs which will serve the double purpose of controlling erosion and providing food and cover for wildlife on small, scattered areas on farms of cooperators.

By selecting a variety of such plants which mature seed and make food available over successive periods throughout the year, conditions favorable to the development of wildlife can be provided on any farm. Many species of grass, small grains, and such shrubs as hackberry, skunk brush, New Mexico locust, desert willow, Russian olive, and wild plum are excellent for this purpose, it is pointed out.

Gullies and other eroded spots about the farm make ideal locations for such plantings. Other desirable sites for bird-food patches include field borders, fence corners and other spaces not suitable for cultivation, A. B. Chapman states.

Eight Named to Carry Banners to Fort Worth Affray

Littlefield was well-represented when the leather started flying and the blood started flowing at the District Golden Gloves tournament in Lubbock Monday and Tuesday nights, when eight lusty champions were named and will carry the banners of the South Plains to the All-Texas Golden Gloves tournament in Fort Worth next week.

Authorities declared the tournament was very successful, and fans who attended from Littlefield were pleased with the way the locals penetrated defense in the ring. A delegation of CCC boys were accompanied by George Hull.

The only champ from Littlefield was in the light heavyweight division, when Herman Dirickson, champion of the local tournament, won from Oscar "Red" Robinson of Amherst. This came as an upset, for Robinson had laid away V. N. Townsend, the Plainview champion from Hale Center, Monday night, and ruled a favorite to win decision. He rested until late in the program Tuesday night, while Dirickson had to take on A. C. Rawlings of Lubbock in a semi-final bout. Dirickson won the decision, and had enough left to put away Robinson in the champion clash.

Here are the results of the eight championship fights, naming winners and runners up, all of whom receive valuable awards, winners to receive, in addition, expense-paid trips to the Fort Worth tournament where state champions will be named:

Flyweight division (112 pounds)—Curtis Lebow, Abernathy, outpointed J. T. Hancock, Slaton.

Bantamweights (118 pounds)—Harry Bell, Slaton, stopped James Burras, Floydada, technical knockout, in third round.

Featherweights (126 pounds)—Tommy Coats, Texas Tech and Seagraves, outpointed Billy Bates, Slaton.

Lightweight (135 pounds)—Pete Nachlinger, Texas Tech knocked out E. J. Smith, Littlefield CCC, in second round.

Middleweights (160 pounds)—Kermit Woodridge, Abernathy, outpointed Melton Wyatt, Abernathy.

The middleweight division probably saw the most upsets of the tournament. The pre-tournament favorite was Lubbock's Melvin Billings, but he faded in a knockout Monday night to Kermit Woodridge of Abernathy. Favored to meet Billings in the finals was Melton Wyatt, an ex-fighter from Abernathy who drew a pass from Dick Grambling of the Littlefield CCC defaulting. Wyatt met Woodridge in the finals of the middleweight bracket, and it was quite a battle, rivaling that of Robinson and Dirickson, which went down as the classic of the tourney. And Woodridge won. Flyweight and bantamweight titles were decided in two fights Monday night. Curtis Lebow, the little Abernathy puncher who won the Littlefield and Lubbock tournaments, and who defeated Wayne Rinkley of Whitharral, outpointed J. T. Hancock of Slaton, a battling youngster who put away Lubbock's favorite, Victor "Hugo" Payne, in the first night's card.

Knockouts were few and far between Tuesday night as the cream of the South Plains district, survivors of previous engagements, came back to take up the wars in more meaningful manners.

Pete Nachlinger, who dressed down from walter to lightweight proportions after winning the City welterweight title, registered a clean layover E. J. Smith, champion of the Littlefield tournament, and Billy Bates, the ex-bantam who lacked four pounds making the weight and was forced to compete as a feather, was the other clean knockout winner, putting away Horace Woods of Littlefield CCC in a semi-final bout.

 Chairman, House Committee on Agriculture

Much has been done during the last six years in behalf of agriculture. The total average farm income has been greatly increased. The farm program is not a bill. It is a movement. It involves the tariff, freight rates, low interest credits, new markets. The various bills are but steps in that movement.

I feel that some improvements can be made in the regular farm program.

First—The allotments should be made known much earlier so that the farmer can make his plans prior to preparation for seeding.

Second—The payments should be made much more promptly.

These two administrative changes would help materially.

Third—The benefit payments to farmers might be based on the lease of a definite percentage of the tilled acreage of each farm and conditioned on soil-building crops and practices on such leased land.

The payments might be conditioned on proper diversification rather than the use of the one-crop system.

This would place the program more fully on a soil conservation basis. Not only would the leased land thus be treated but the rotation of crops brought about on the remaining part of the land would further conserve and build up and prevent wastage of the soil. At the same time, the farmer would be left free in the pitching of his crops and the operation of the program would be greatly simplified.

More emphasis should be placed upon wider distribution, both at home and abroad, and freight rate discriminations should be corrected.

Applications for cotton allotments for farms on which cotton will be planted in 1939 for the first time since Jan. 1, 1936, should be on file in the county office not later than Feb. 15. This applies to new sod farms as well as old land. All cotton allotted under this provision will come from the 2 per cent reserve.

One hundred and seventy-five farm people attended the monthly meeting of the Rocky Ford Agricultural club Friday night. One of the highlights of the program was a debate on "Resolved that Farming with Horses is More Profitable than Farming with Tractors." The affirmative team won the debate.

A number of Lamb county poultry raisers are preventing losses in their flocks by vaccinating against fowl pox and roup at the beginning of the season when the birds are healthy. Birds can be vaccinated at a very small cost and will prevent large poultry losses.

An increase in interest of 4-H club work in Lamb county is shown by the fact that the enrollment for 1939 has increased almost 30 per cent over the 1938 enrollment. Two hundred and eleven boys have enrolled in 4-H club work for 1939.

Farmers in Section Benefited by Farm Loan Association

Otha Key, Jake Hopping, L. L. H. Spann, C. W. Smiley, J. R. Montgomery, L. H. Albus, B. D. Birkelbock, Ben Brannon, and Ben Gann attended the shareholders' meeting of the Plainview Production Credit association in Plainview Jan. 30.

Five years of cooperative production loans to Lamb, Floyd, Briscoe, Hale, Swisher, Castro, Bailey and Parmer county stockmen and farmers are now completed, according to the reports given at this meeting.

Established to assure farmers and stockmen a dependable source of credit available at all times and at reasonable rates, the Plainview Production Credit association has made loans totaling $1,702,196, according to M. R. Snyder, secretary-treasurer. The members have cooperated in an excellent manner and have given good attention to their obligations. The total loss sustained since organization amounts to approximately $916 with a possibility of a part of this being recovered.

Although the greatest use of production credit loans in this area has been for financing farmers and stockmen, a good number of association members have obtained loans for a variety of purposes such as loans to finance truck farming, dairy operations, and the feeding of cattle, sheep and hogs for the market.

The association now has 277 local stockholders, and capital investment of $169,470 protected by sound reserves of $16,579.

J. P. McGarr of Plainview is president of the association, Carl Daniel of Lockney is vice president and the board of directors includes O. C. Axtell of Spring Lake, C. W. Smiley of Littlefield, and W. M. Pool, Jr., of Muleshoe. This is one of 36 similar associations operating in Texas, and the services of a

Stock Law

State Inspector Lewis is at present in the county inspecting hogs, and Mr. Hall announced Saturday that the Department has demanded all county attorney's and peace officers to enforce the law in Lamb, and all other counties that are under quarantine. It is reported that there are 19 counties in the State of Texas under quarantine for hog cholera.

Dr. Lewis, who was sent here by the Livestock Commission, states that cholera is getting spread in a big way in this part of the state, and that unless something is done about it, there will be as much of it here as there is in East Texas.

A notice to farmers and other dealers in livestock is published as an advertisement by County Attorney Hall in another section of this newspaper.

discussion by the group, on the one variety of cotton seed for this section. A large number of the farmers advocated the purchasing of only one variety of seed for the South Plains, with the argument that a better grade and longer staple would be secured.

proposes to subject his product to every practical test. Mr. Rook exhibited his product and outlined the possibilities for mass production and marketing, in the event that it would prove itself in actual use.

Those who met and talked with Mr. Rook, quickly realized that he is—in no sense, a promoter but an out-and-out scientist interested mainly in research and creative development of our natural resources.

Those who discussed the proposed plant with Mr. Rook were extremely interested in the possibilities, and promised to make every effort to secure all the information possible as to raw products, fuel, water, machinery and other data required before details can be worked out for a holding and operating company. The essence of Mr. Rook's discussions and talks, can be best conveyed in the warning that Texas agriculturists must look to diversion and new products in the future, and not depend on government aid. The situation is really a very grave one and will brook no delays or postponement of action.

Before leaving—Mr. Rook made it a point to express his delights with this city and its progressive citizenship. He predicted a wonderful future for Littlefield and the entire Panhandle, and promised to come back often and—perhaps, have a share in the development of our possibilities and the progress of this section.

The distinguished visitor was particularly delighted with this climate and the forward-going spirit that pervaded the entire community. He will attend the Chemurgic congress at Beaumont next week, and report for the Leader, the activities at that important session.

A thorough investigation of the proposed industry—is now in progress, and interesting announcements will likely be made in the very near future. Those who attended the meeting last Friday, are agreed that it was quite the most important get-together that had been staged in Littlefield, in many years.

Among those who helped bring about this meeting were—officers of the Chamber of Commerce, Federal and county agricultural agents and technical educators of this section.

Power has been built into a national issue, and incidentally, it is worthy of note that electric power is the only item in the government's standard cost-of-living index which costs less today than it did before the war and with the completion of this rural electric system, hundreds of farmer homes in this area will be able to use such power for lighting, cooking, refrigerating, turning cream separators and corn grinders, operating coffee percolators, bread toasters, vacuum cleaners and numerous other purposes—and at a much less cost than they could have done so a few years ago.

Mr. Pyles urged the farmers to wire their farms so that they can receive a revenue from the savings. "You cannot get the best benefits from a few light bulbs, for power is one of the smallest items in any family's budget. It's difficult to see how government funds could be spent for anything that would do the average citizen less good than socializing power."

He also explained a farm finance program, whereby farmers can secure financial help from the government to help defray the expenses of the wiring. A loan will be made for five years, with a simple interest, and can be paid back in the smallest of payments. A six-room house can be wired for as little as $50, Mr. Pyles stated.

C. W. Smiley, president of the board of directors, of the Lamb County Electric Cooperative, Inc., stated that the directors would probably adopt the farm finance plan, for the customers.

Uniform prices have been made with electricians, and an effort is being made this week to divide the territory among them, to make the wiring cost as low as possible. All electricians must meet with the REA specifications, and Mr. Pyles told the farmers not to pay for the wiring until it was approved by C. M. Wagner, the inspector.

A program of several musical numbers was rendered, and Mr. Smiley welcomed the group to the meeting. E. A. Bills introduced Mr. Pyles.

In speaking of the meeting, Mr. Smiley stated that he felt the farmers had derived great benefit from the instructive talk made by Mr. Pyles, and he and Ben Gann, secretary of the local organization, were pleased with the large number of people who were interested enough to attend the meeting. Applications for membership were made, and farmers were urged to become members of the organization, so they can reap the benefits of the rural electrification for only members will be served. Mr. Pyles was in Littlefield Tuesday, and he accompanied Woodall, supervisor, along with the group being made in the construction.

"KENTUCKY," FEATURING LORETTA YOUNG, TO BE SHOWN AT PALACE SATURDAY MIDNIGHT, SUNDAY, MONDAY

For the first time in the history of the motion picture, the Kentucky derby will be seen on the screen in full natural color when "Kentucky," the 20th Century-Fox technicolor production featuring Loretta Young, Richard Greene and Walter Brennan Saturday midnight at the Palace Theatre, continuing through Sunday and Monday.

In the many years that newreel companies have been filming the running of the derby, no shots have been made in anything but black and white.

The huge technicolor cameras have now captured every glint of brilliant color to be found in America's premier turf classic. With the aid of race officials and stable owners, Director David Butler was given every facility to make this one of the most dramatic sporting events ever filmed.

"Kentucky," a romance of the Blue Grass country, is said to have captured the glorious tradition of that state, and a love, all fire and pride is the glamorous theme of the story. Loretta Young and Richard Greene are seen in the two young lovers who are born in the traditional country between their families which has torn apart since the civil war.

Walter Brennan, academy award winner, also has a notable role in the film. He portrays a very old southern gentleman who knows more about horses than anyone in Kentucky. As Loretta Young's uncle in the film, he tells it what is reported to be the finest performance of his career.

The film was adapted from the famous book, "The Look of Eagles."

Watch Your Kidneys!
 Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
 Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not get as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
 Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
 There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Gored Skirt
This dress, 8159, has a graceful, six-gored skirt, a tailored top with soft roll collar and very short, full sleeves, puffed high at the shoulder. Make it up in pretty print, and choose ruffing or lace for the sleeves and collar. It will be lovely, too, in a plain-colored sheer-navy black or the new earth brown, brightened by the touch of white. Later on, make it for summer in dimity or dotted Swiss.

Pattern 8159 is designed for sizes: 16, 18, 20; 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 18 requires 4 1-8 yards of 39 inch material, with 3-8 yards for collar in contrast, and 1 1-2 yards lace or ruffing.

Pattern 8405. The simple, two-seam dress that's taken the grown-up fashion world by storm is equally smart and becoming to school girls, too, as you can see from this design (8405).

Of course this design is the easiest thing in the world to make, with the diagram. Just sew the front and the back together, sew in the sleeves and there you are. Thin wool, velvet, challis, silk crepe and prints are pretty for this design.

Pattern No. 8305 is designed for sizes: 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 10 requires 2 1-4 yards of 39 inch material, 3-8 yards for contrasting collar and cuffs.
