LITTLEFIELD
RODEO-MAD AS MANY SWARM CITY

Opening Show
Taxes Capacity;
Two More Nights

A blistering sun, with hardly a cloud in sight to dim its rays beat down, to send temperature readings into the near 100 degree range at 1:30 p.m., appointed hour for the start of the parade to officially open the 7th annual Jaycee rodeo, Thursday afternoon—but it didn't make a bit of difference—the crowd came early and stayed lining the parade streets, and they liked what they saw and said so in no uncertain language.

Neither did the beaming sun dampen the spirit of the paraders and the Littlefield High School band, about the only thing unmounted in the parade, may have been silently hoping for a stray cloud or two, but with heads up, and carriage erect, they received and earned the plaudits of the crowd.

Phelps avenue was a solid mass of humanity most of the afternoon, and the mass only thickened as the parade hour arrived.

With seven mounted colorful sheriff posses and three riding clubs from as many counties in the parade, mounted on the choicest horseflesh to be found almost any place in the entire country, with each group spaced through the entire parade formation, this feature alone was a more than money's-worth feature for any parade.

But it would be entirely wrong and out of place to dwell at length on any one feature of the parade, because if it did lack in any single department, that lack was more than made up, by an overplus in others.

And even if you never was able to get more than an occasional glimpse of the passing parade, you were still a part of the enormous crowd—and being a part of the massed crowd of humanity, is, in itself, an integral part and component of the rodeo—as one and all seek to revive for a day, or two, or three the glorious days of years ago—a revival of the old west—when cowboys and cattle herds, not cotton and maize, were the life and the livelihood of practically everyone in Lamb county, and in all of the counties to the north, east, south and west.

Yes sir, as that parade moved down Phelps avenue, the old west seemed to come to life and live again—and more than one old-timer probably wanted to—probably did wipe away a tear—as all of those horses, all of those riders, recalled the days when they were at home in the saddle and on the range.

The parade which formed on First street in the vicinity of the schools, proceeded down First to Delan—thence on Delano to Phelps, and then swung sharply to the right to march the length of Phelps avenue, to disband at the rear of the court house.

Chief of Police Walraven in a city car, accompanied by County Attorney Mat Brown, led the parade.

Six Thousand Witness First Show Of Jaycee Rodeo; Stock Excellent

The first performance of the Littlefield 1952 Rodeo is now history—and upwards of an estimated 6,000 folks, from Lamb and all the surrounding counties, practically all of them decked and bedecked in colorful and striking western style costume and apparel—witnessed the first performance at the rodeo arena, yelled their heads off, had a big time—and pronounced it all to the good.

And it didn't make a bit of difference, either, when a 30-mile wind blew in from the west shortly before the opening, and kicked up a duster, aided and assisted by hundreds of head of horses, rodeo animals, and countless thousands of boot-clad feet.

Splashes of rain intermingled with the dust that swirled—but it had no more effect on dampening the spirits of the crowd, than it accomplished in laying the dust. The wind carried 99 per cent dust—one-half of one per cent moisture.

This is the seventh time that Littlefield Jaycees have staged an annual rodeo, and to write that this is "the biggest of all," may be, probably is true, yet to say just that, is possibly to belittle the predecessors—so we're content just to say that its a big, colorful, well staged rodeo—and the trimmings are all there and on exhibition.

This is a three day, or three-night affair, and the second and final performances are scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights.

Advance sale of tickets is heavy, and it is possible that the final performance will bring the biggest crowd of the rodeo.

The rodeo arena gates opened promptly at 8:30 with the grand parade, featuring hundreds mounted including posses, riding clubs, rodeo contestants and visitors. Then came the rodeo events: roping, bronc riding, bull riding and dozing, interspersed with a pair of clowns on a pair of trick mules, which kept the crowd in an uproar.

The rodeo stock is especially good this year, and the events were thrilling and exciting, with no accident among the performers of consequence to mar the evening's program.

The champs and top money winners will not be known until the close of the final performance.

"THE LONG AND THE SHORT"—AT COLLEGE—College life has its long and short features too. Two Hardin Simmons University grads, Dick Collins of Chillicothe and Newell H. Odell, of Childress, bring out the two extremes. Collins, 3 feet, 11 inches "tall" is a journalism major who has served as the college mascot since his freshman days uses special platforms marked "Dick" which are spotted around the campus to reach "high places."

Odell, 6 feet, 7 inches, received a master of education degree and will become superintendent of schools at Childress July 1.

Mom Outrates Dad ...

Dad may be the head of the family, but that's about as far as it goes, when it comes to a comparison with "Mom." Because Mom outrates Dad, six, eight, ten to one, when the comparison is made and measured by the flow of letters and gifts—Father's Day versus Mother's Day.

And that's the way it is, too, right here in Littlefield, according to both the mail carriers and the store clerks, who ought to know, because they carry the letters, and dole out the gifts that are presented on both days.

This Sunday, June 15 is officially known and tagged "Father's Day," and it's true that there have been a few extra letters, a few extra parcels through the postoffice to mark the day—thus far, and of course it may pick up a bit Saturday (this being written on Friday), but store clerks, too, have noted no special rush of gift buyers for Father's Day, though business has upped a bit in the sock and tie departments.

But for Mother's Day, three or four weeks ago—well everything was different—it was almost like a miniature Christmas rush, both in the stores, and at the florals and the postoffice. And the telephone operators worked overtime on jammed toll lines.

Dad may be a mighty good fellow and all of that—but when it comes to rating with Mom—well he doesn't—rate.

Legion Juniors Are Winners In Opening Games With Morton, Earth

Draft Board To Re-Consider Cases Of Some 8,000 College Students

Texas draft boards have started to tackle—or will soon tackle—the job of reopening and reconsidering the cases of some 8,000 college students to determine their eligibility for further deferment to study.

A point stressed by Brigadier General Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, is that students desiring deferments for the next academic year should make written request to their local boards as soon as possible.

"If your present deferment is up," he advised students, "and you want to get it renewed, you had better ask for such renewal. A board isn't required to hand out deferments or give consideration to them unless the individual makes a request."

General Wakefield also advised students that colleges and universities are not required to advise a local board of a student's class (Continued on back page)

The American Legion Juniors opened the season with a game with Morton at Morton Thursday, winning 10 to 4. Bill Jones pitched for the locals.

Littlefield contested Earth here Friday, downing the visitors to the tune of 14 to 6.

The locals made 10 hits, drew eight walks and made six errors. Earth got 6 runs, 6 hits, 5 walks and made six errors.

Twelve year old Dale Gage pitched for Littlefield. He was relieved in the fifth inning by Bill Jones. Billy Murdock caught for Littlefield.

Earth used Hayden, Watson and Hadaway for pitchers and Davy was their catcher.

Poultry Short Course June 16-20

The annual Poultry Short Course sponsored by the poultry husbandry department of Texas A.&M. College will be held from June 16-20 at A.&M.'s new poultry center. According to professor E. D. Farnell, attendance this year is expected to set an all-time high for the event.

The primary purpose of the short course is to train chicken flock selecting and pullorum testing agents. However, adds Farnell, anyone may attend regardless of whether or not he plans to qualify as an agent. The instructions should prove valuable to flock owners especially those in the breeding business, says Farnell.

One half of each day will be devoted to class work and the remainder to field or laboratory work, says the professor. Those attending should bring their work clothing and if available, a late copy of the Standard of Perfection. A handbook will be provided each student at the time registration dues are paid.

Advance registration is not required for the course and plenty of rooms are available to take care of later comers.

More trained personnel is needed to continue and expand the National Poultry Improvement Plan in Texas, says Farnell and this training school provides the opportunity for those interested to qualify as flock selecting and pullorum testing agents.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

From the alarm clock that jolts us awake in the morning to the electric light that we turn off at night, Mr. and Mrs. Average American are constantly surrounded by products which have been purchased by their brand names. The constant use of trade-marked products with satisfactory results, combined with persistent advertising, makes us trade-mark conscious.

What does a trade-mark actually do? It identifies merchandise as being the product of a particular manufacturer or distributor. The use of trade-marks is very ancient. They were used by the brick-makers of ancient Egypt; the lamp-makers of old Athens; and the helmet makers and armorers of medieval England. While a trade-mark is most often a word, it may also be an emblem, symbol, slogan, or other device. The intended function of a trade-mark is to distinguish the goods of the proprietor from the goods of others in the market place. The expression "trade-mark," "brand name," or more simply "brand" or "mark," are synonymous.

A person or company becomes the owner of common law rights in a trade-mark through adoption and use of the mark on goods. The law affords protection to the owner by prohibiting others in the field from appropriating the mark or one so similar as to be likely to cause confusion.

There is a twofold purpose behind such legal protection: first, it protects the purchaser from deception and assures him that he is getting what he wants; and second, it protects the trade-mark owner from piracy of the good will, reputation, and property rights which he has built up in a mark through manufacture or sale of merchandise carrying the mark.

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

Trade-marks are frequently among the greatest and most valuable assets of a company, for they symbolize the good will and reputation of the company. To achieve such a status, however, a trade-mark must be carefully selected. Among other considerations it is, of course, important that a mark be chosen which is not confusingly similar to any other trade-mark used by another on similar goods. It may be necessary to conduct a search of marks already in use in order to determine this question.

When a word or symbol has been selected, it must then be properly used in connection with the goods to become a valid trade-mark. Once in use, it should be carefully guarded. It is possible for a good trade-mark to lose its legal protection due to improper use by its owners or the public.

The Federal and most State governments including Texas, have, by legislation, provided for the registration of trade-marks by their owners. While a trade-mark need not be registered to receive protection in the courts, such registration does afford substantial benefits to trade-mark owners.

NOW SHAVING'S QUICKER
... EASIER! GET A

To blame feeling out of sorts on your nerves is about like a switchboard operator sitting and saying, "One of these phones is ringing," when the whole switchboard is all lit up with incoming and outgoing calls.

Any feeling is a condition of "nerves," whether it's a good feeling or a bad one. And there are heaps of nerves that come in a variety of names.

The things you feel are felt through the central nervous system, the brain and the spinal cord which includes the cranial and spinal nerves. The things you feel ON your body are felt through the peripheral nervous system, which takes messages to and from the central nervous system. The things you feel IN your body are felt through the autonomic nervous system, which regulates your insides.

Since the autonomic nervous system is a regulator, it has to have two parts, one that speeds up and one that slows down. The two parts are called the sympathetic nervous system and the parasympathetic nervous system. The sympathetic nervous system speeds up some of your insides, such as the heart beat and the sweat glands, and slows down other parts of your insides, such as the intestinal flow and secretion of saliva. In most instances, whatever the sympathetic nervous system does, the parasympathetic nervous system does just the opposite.

The sympathetic branch of the autonomic nervous system is also known as the "fight or flight" mechanism of the body. Buck fever, stage fright and all the other uncontrollable nervous reactions which pop out at unexpected moments seem to be the work of this sympathetic system. It makes the heart beat faster, the eyes get bigger, the breath drawn deeper, the intestines stand still, the sweat break out and the hairs stand on end. All these actions in medicine can be organs for the purpose of shifting more blood to the brain, the muscles of the body and the heart.

The autonomic nervous system can't function completely by itself but it doesn't require conscious effort of the central nervous system. The spinal nerves are divided into groups starting from those in the neck known as the cervical nerves, those that form the back of the chest known as the thoracic nerves, those that form the back of the mid-back known as the lumbar nerves, and those that make up the

Mermaids Vie For Olympic Squad

PAT MCCORMICK

AP Newsfeatures

The combination of youth and experience figures to feature the 1952 United States Olympic women's swimming squad which will go to Helsinki, Finland, this summer.

Most of the contenders will be teen-agers, although the backbone of the squad will be the mermaids of voting age, say the water experts.

The team will be picked following the trials scheduled for Indianapolis July 4, 5 and 6.

Experience An Asset

In an Olympic test, experience has always proven to be a swimmer's best asset. For that reason such veterans as Jackie Lavine, Iowa Club of Chicago freestyler, Carol Pence, Lafayette, Ind., breast-stroker; Maureen O'Brien, Red Bank, N. J., back stroker, and Mrs. Pat McCormick, Los Angeles diver, are favorites to win squad berths. The Misses Lavine and Pence were on the 1948 squad.

Gail Peters, off her record-breaking breast stroke performances in the AAU indoor championships at Daytona Beach, Fla., in April, seems almost certain to battle Miss Pence as America's No. 1 breast stroker.

Miss Peters, a 22-year-old government worker from Trenton, N. J., broke the AAU 100-yard breast stroke record as well as the National AAU and American records in the 200-yard breast stroke and the 300-yard individual medley events.

In diving, Mrs. McCormick stands out. She won all five 1951 diving crowns and both indoor tests this spring.

Teen-Agers Vie

Among the teen-agers who will make things interesting at the trials are: Sharon Geary, 18, Los Angeles freestyler who is the 100-meter outdoor champion; Jody Alderson, 16, Chicago freestyler.

TASTY SNACK TRAY ... a must for informal parties

For informal celebrations there's nothing better than a colorful, taste-tempting snack tray. In hard-by any time at all a clever hostess can have an assortment of cold cuts, cheeses and hors d'oeuvres ready to satisfy the heartiest appetite. As this picture suggests, it's a good idea to arrange your snack tray around mounds of crisp, golden brown "Fritos" corn chips. Corn chips are always ready just pour them out of the sealed, moisture-proof bag perfectly with all kind of and with both hot and cold. Just one note of caution: be sure to have plenty of corn chips on hand for you. They go faster than the hotcakes!

SNACK TIME SUGGESTIONS

Lunch Meat Snails... roll spiced luncheon meat and thin sliced bread jelly roll style, skewer with toothpicks and slice into half-inch snails.

Avocado Dip... mash ripe avocado and season with lemon juice, mayonnaise, salt, and garlic salt. Let guests use corn chips to dip mixture out of serving bowl.

Deviled Eggs... mix hard-cooked egg yolks with deviled sandwich spread, season with mustard, salt and pepper, and refill shells. Top with slices of pimiento.

Ham n' Cheese Bolls... chopped stuffed olives or relish with cream cheese, slices of spice ham and a roll.

Sardine Spread... mix sardines, chopped dill pickle, onion salt, spread on toast and sprinkle with crushed chips.

Pineapple Spears... 1/2 of American cheese and chunk with toothpick and long toothpick for handle.

The Olton American Legion blasted Morton, 18 to 4, in a West Division opener played in Olton.

HITTING TIPS

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Today's batting instruction is by Stan Musial, one of the greatest hitters in baseball. The 31-year-old outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals has led the National League in hitting five times during his nine full years. Only Honus Wagner (8) and Rogers Hornsby (7) have led the league more years than Musial, who broke into baseball as a pitcher in 1938. He has scored 100 or more runs eight straight seasons.

In our book Stan Musial is the best 175-pound slugger baseball has ever known. This six-footer looks like he's about 5-8 to the pitcher because of his crouch yet he's a giant with the bat. In the last four years he has averaged 34 home runs and 118 runs batted in a season. He and Ted Williams are the only active players with lifetime averages over .320. Stan and Ted have 347 marks.

Here are Stan Musial's tips for better hitting:
"Don't try to copy anybody. Be yourself. Very few players stand and hit alike. It's very important for a boy or a major leaguer to get a bat he can control. I use a 33-ounce model. Don't try to use a heavy bat. Only use a heavier bat if you can control it."
"Your physical makeup should decide if you are to be a choke batter or a fellow who can go for distance."

"Take a comfortable stance in the batter's box."
"In my particular case I crouch because I think I can see the ball better that way."
"Bad hitting habits, like hitting in your swing, are hard to overcome."
"A hitch comes in lowering the bat. Don't wiggle it. Hold it steady."
"Know where the good part of the bat is. Try to hit where the ball is pitched."
"Sure, I'd like to hit a home run every time. It just can't be done. On an outside pitch I gladly settle for a piece of the ball, or a single to left field."

One oldtime cowboy estimated that there were 200 horses in the parade, and many of them carried lady riders—in colorful cowboy costumes and regalia. Following the parade, the posses repaired to the city park, where the Lamb County Sheriff Posse was host to all of the visiting posse members and their families. Then on to the rodeo grounds—and at 8 o'clock the big 1952 rodeo was on.

Littlefield Well Represented At Lubbock Water Meeting Wednesday

A long range, orderly development of the recently proposed and City of Lubbock in the acquisition of underground water rights in Bailey county, through leases, and the then piping of this water through Lamb county, in a new to be constructed 42 inch pipeline, was expressed by Lubbock spokesmen at a gathering of representatives and officials from several surrounding counties, from New Mexico, and from Lamb county and Littlefield, at Lubbock last Wednesday evening.

Furthermore, it was also explained by Lubbock spokesmen, that the development of the project was probably 15 to 25 years away, and might never be put into operation or only in the remote future. If other alternate sources of water, including the Canadian River Dam project, as well as underground water supplies which may be obtained near Idalou—but that Lubbock must do its long range planning to secure adequate water now. It was also called to attention that the City of Lubbock that the acquisition of water from Bailey county would cost a tremendous amount of money, upwards of fifteen million dollars, and that expenditure necessarily would also probably delay the project for years.

Bailey county was represented at the meeting by Al. Hall, Joe Sooter and Jess Mitchell. Sentiment in Bailey county is said to be strong against the project—but they came to the Lubbock meeting to hear it explained. Six other Bailey county men were also in attendance, to comprise a committee of nine.

It was brought out at the meeting that it was now planned to drill five testing wells on the Birdwell ranch in a Bailey county. They would be 30 inch diameter wells with 16 inch casing. Wells would be spaced so that an average of not more than one-half million gallons per day would be pumped from individual leased section.

There were reports that a mass meeting might be called at Muleshoe soon, to thoroughly consider the matter, and possibly recommend action against. Sentiment in Bailey county at the moment may be termed to be in favor of "Bailey underground water for Bailey county."

Attending the meeting from Littlefield and Lamb county were:

Mayor A. C. Chesher, Arthur P. Duggan, Roy B. McQuarters, and Nelson Naylor.

TEEN TALK

AP NEWSFEATURES

If you've a yen to spread your wings in the big city, summer is the ideal time. A job away from home during school vacation may help you size up future employment possibilities.

Or you may combine summer school at a city university with a parttime job. One girl who tried it—pretty Jean Arthur of Kansas City, Mo.—embarked on her venture in New York last summer, stayed through the winter and doesn't quite know when she'll go home.

A graduate of Kansas University, 22-year-old Jean had taught one year at Shawnee-Mission H.S. in Mission, Kansas when she decided to study for her M.A. at Columbia University, N.Y.C. She banked everything on being able to land a job. Her experiences might be helpful to you for this or another year. Says she:

"Since my only work-experience was as a speech teacher, I decided to look for work along those lines. I narrowed this down to available jobs such as 'telephone clerk'—answering complaints perhaps for a department store or utility company—or conducting guided tours, where good speech would be important and useful."

Jean got the guide job—at Radio City, and after summer classes were over, decided to stay on at Columbia for classes three nights a week. Fortunately there was no conflict between school and job hours, she says.

At first she was a receptionist in the sales and ticket information department of the tour service. There she acquainted herself with the guide job as a trainee. Her first pay was $13 a month. Later when she became a full-fledged guide her base pay was $45 a week plus $2.25 for every additional tour. Since she wears a uniform all day, clothes are not a big item on her budget, except for dates.

Jean shares an apartment with another student (rent $85 a month). She believes any girl in a strange city should either share an apartment with a friend or live with classmates, friends or relatives, if possible. Most colleges have a service directing students to apartments and roommates.

It is not easy to figure the cost of food, she says. There are always invitations to dinner, and when she eats at home the cost of food is shared. Says she: "I'd always heard that big-city boys were wolves, so I was a little nervous about dinner dates. Pretty soon, I realized that they were not very different from boys back home—a little more sophisticated, perhaps, and likely to treat romance more lightly than country boys. But all of the young men I have met so far have been gentlemen."

Jean classifies her New York dates this way:

1. Students: These are the boys you meet at classes. They are fun to be with—discuss school events, examinations and are the "pal-type."

2. Business: Most of the young men she has met in job contacts have been eligible, witty and pleasant. They have a "big brother" complex about a little girl alone in a big city—remembering her birthday, and on holidays and weekends taking her to meet their families.

3. Social: These are the boys you meet through relatives and friends. They are very nice in a dutiful sort of way.

Eastern men have one fault according to Jean—they expect girls to be subtle, and mid-western girls, aren't! She says this frankness which is new to these boys can upset the appreciat if you like the boy—he's always being offended at some!—g said, unintentionally. Jean is glad she came to the city

Handbags Geared To Peak U. S. Travel Year

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

Everybody's going places this year. With package tours and family rates offered by land, sea and air, U.S. travel figures are expected to hit an all-time high.

The prospect of travel at once suggests an exciting search for travel clothes to most women. And one of the most important parts of any globe-trotting outfit is a handsome, roomy handbag.

The travel bag poses a special problem, because it must have space for tickets, passports, money, cosmetics and souvenirs, in addition to complementing the travel costume according to the latest fashion dictates.

All sorts of travel handbags are available in the nation's shops this summer, says spokesmen for the National Authority for the Ladies' Handbag Industry. For short trips, there are trim box bags decorated with travel stickers or names of faraway places, efficiently planned to hold more than you would think.

Another bright idea is the four-in-one handbag, consisting of four bags in different colors which fit into each other, for economy of packing space, and provide handbag changes for different costumes.

Scrubbed Look Scores In Popularity Race

School dance season brings a lot of bright new hopes and many disappointments. Some girls are invited to all the social functions their male acquaintances can muster up at this season. More unfortunate classmates lucklessly do not even get a bid to a golf driving range.

Some girls are more popular than others because they dress attractively and have the ladylike demeanor that young men admire. It isn't always the prettiest girls who are invited to school dances. Sometimes the well-groomed girl with the well-scrubbed look can outshine her glamorous sisters in a man's eyes.
