

Revitalized Chamber Sets City-Wide Drive

Trained Chief Sought

Seventy-five Littlefield merchants and interested individuals gave their vote of confidence to the president and the board of directors of the chamber of commerce at a special called meeting at the Community Center Wednesday morning.

The vote of confidence carried the suggestions that the board of directors appoint a finance committee to formulate a program for adequately financing a much improved program in lieu of a gigantic membership drive to be initiated within the next thirty days.

The group expressed its desire of seeing a better and larger chamber of commerce after about an hour's program and discussion period.

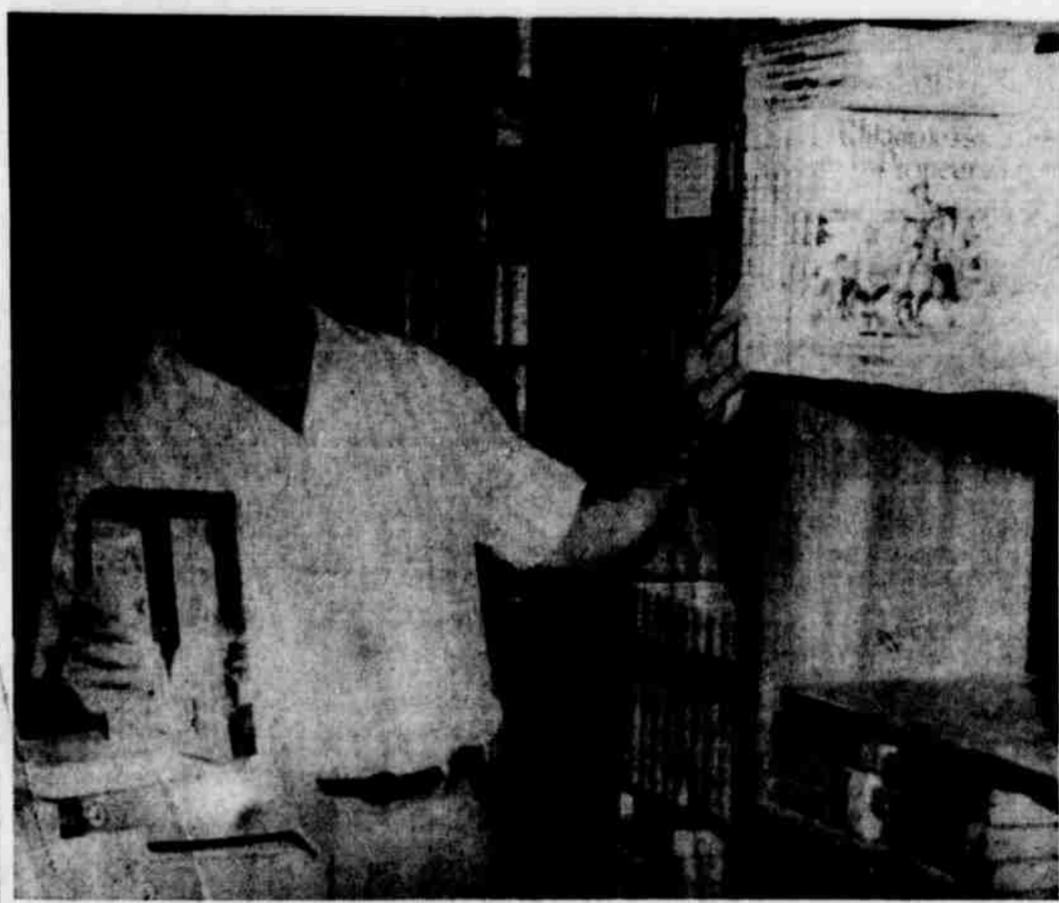

Chamber president Arnold Neumann was in charge of the meeting and began citing the poor cooperation of members and non-members in the past tenures of three chamber of commerce managers.

He mentioned the good work of the retail council in spite of the ineffectiveness of the chamber program in general.

Neumann told the group that all suggestions of how to revitalize the chamber would be appreciated and these suggestions came later in the meeting:

- Leader Needed
1. Littlefield is full of a lot of good Indians, but desperately in need of a chief who would coordinate all phases of community life. The answer being the need of a dynamic, personality plus, and hard working chamber of commerce manager.
- 2. More finances needed to give

Hine Resigns, Schools Face Three Vacancies

Resignation Wednesday of a principal left Glenn Reeves, superintendent of Littlefield schools, with school's opening only 19 days off.

Reeves said he will call the board of education into a special meeting Thursday to discuss the teacher shortage which was further heightened by the resignation late Tuesday of Jimmy Hine, principal of Elementary school for the last five years.

Hine has accepted the position of city manager of Ruidoso, N. M., and will assume his new duties next Monday. The announcement was made by Ruidoso's mayor, Robert Pearson.

Reeves said he still had not filled two vacancies which have existed for several weeks. Both jobs are for sixth grade teachers.

Hine came here nine years ago as primary principal. He served two years as distributive education teacher before becoming elementary school principal.

He attended Hardin - Simmons University, Abilene, and Texas Tech, Lubbock, studying school administration. He came here from Abilene.

"We regret greatly losing Mr. Hine," Reeves said. "He not only has been a strong supporter of our school program, but has been active in community affairs and will be greatly missed. It's going to take considerable study to find a man capable of replacing him."

Meantime, pre-opening events for Littlefield schools are going along on schedule. All teachers are to report for their first session with the superintendent on Wednesday, Aug. 31, followed by group meetings with the various principals.

High school pupils are to enroll on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 1 and 2. Sophomores are to enroll Friday morning and freshmen that afternoon. Senior class members will enroll Thursday morning and Juniors Thursday afternoon.

All other pupils will enroll Monday morning, Sept. 5. However, pupils who are entering school for the first time are being enrolled each morning at the primary school, Paul I. Jones, principal, is at the school each morning from 9 o'clock until noon to enroll these first-timers.

Football practice, got underway last Monday, and "fan night" is slated for this Friday night.

Dial Conversion Set, Chief Says

Just three more days and "the voice with a smile" will pass out of the picture, the voice giving away to a dial tone in Littlefield.

For Saturday night is the cut-over, time, when Littlefield and 12 other exchanges in this area will discard the "number, please" system and convert to dials.

District Manager R. E. Saunders said Wednesday that "everything is in readiness" for the cut-over which is to be made sometime Saturday night between 10 o'clock and midnight, while long-distance service will change to the nation-wide dial system at 1:01 a. m. Sunday.

This means that when local residents pickup up their phones next Sunday for a local or long distance call, they will hear the dial tone instead of "Number, Please" and getting the number wanted will be up to the customer.

Meantime, new phone books have been mailed. Every number in Littlefield has been changed to conform to the new system, and their new directories as well as individual cards telling them what their new number will be, Saunders said Wednesday.

The conversion is the climax to a program which was started in November, 1957 when dial equipment was ordered from the manufacturer for use here. Next major step, taken in 1958, was obtaining property appropriately located on which to construct a new building to house the equipment.

Construction of the modern building, costing $142,000 was started early in 1959. Then specially trained crews of technicians were moved to Littlefield to install the intricate dial equipment and to "enlarge and upgrade outside plant facilities," Saunders explained.

"Of course," Saunders said, "despite every precaution, there undoubtedly will be some 'bugs' which will have to be worked out." He added: We anticipate successful cutover and look forward to serving our customers with this fine new service."

The specific time for the cut-over is set by a national network of telephone companies, Saunders explained. Cutovers can be made only on the first or third Sunday morning of any given month. Thus the date for the change over here.

Bowling League Plans Elections

The Town and Country Bowling League will elect officers and discuss organizational plans Friday night at 8 p. m. in the County Court Room.

Plans are in the mill for organizing 12 teams as opposed to the ten that composed the league last year.

Bowling nights for the league will continue to be Thursday at 9 p. m.

Russell Stevens urged that all interested be present for the meeting.

Asthma Clinic Raided

Simmons Faces State Charges

Glen Simmons, who has operated an asthma-hayfever clinic here since 1932, was free on $1,000 bond Wednesday on a charge of unlawful practice of medicine.

He was arrested after county officers staged a raid on his clinic, 321 W. 4th, Tuesday afternoon and seized treatment tables, a stethoscope and other equipment. A pickup truck was loaded with equipment which was taken to the sheriff's office.

The arrest and raid on his clinic came after a lengthy investigation by Mrs. Gwen S. Durrenberger, Houston, investigator for the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners, who had worked in cooperation with Tom V. Watson, manager of Lubbock's Better Business Bureau.

Maximum penalty upon conviction of the misdemeanor offense is $500 fine and 30 days in jail. After Simmons' arrest, County Attorney Curtis Wilkinson told newsmen he plans to seek an injunction closing Simmons' clinic.

Climax to the investigation by the State Board, Mrs. Durrenberger said, came last week after a "planted" patient, Mrs. Mary Lennox, Lubbock, volunteered to come to Littlefield to seek treatment for asthma. Watson said that Mrs. Lennox reported she was given pills and told to go on an orange juice diet and to take castor oil. She said Simmons told her his fee was $500. However, he agreed to take $250 as down payment, issuing a receipt for that amount. The money was supplied by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

"I would have been the 'patient' myself for this test," Mrs. Durrenberger told the Leader, "but I don't have asthma. We had to have a patient who is suffering from the disease." She said Mrs. Lennox was paid "not one cent" for her part in the drama.

The Lubbock Better Business Bureau became interested in the Simmons clinic back in 1956, Watson said, "when we first began to receive inquiries from various parts of the United States." He added: "We started a file at that time."

Among items taken was a ledger, listing names of more than 600 persons from some 25 states, and dating back to 1946. Mrs. Lennox' name was the 151st on this year.

After being released on bond, his comment was: "It's not a crime to help suffering humanity." Wilkinson said the question of whether or not "Simmons has helped patients is not our concern; we are interested only in the fact that he had no license to practice."

A chiropratic license was hanging on the wall of his office which showed it had expired in 1944. However, it was in 1952 that records in the district attorney's office here show when Simmons "voluntarily surrendered to the board for cancellation in lieu of a hearing" his chiropractor's license.

James A. Gowdy, Littlefield attorney who arranged for the bond, told newsmen: "We'll plead innocent."

Mrs. Durrenberger told reporters: "We will show that he diagnosed, offered to treat, did treat, accepted money for the treatments and issued a receipt" to Mrs. Lennox, all of which the investigator said, "are in violation of the laws of Texas for anyone without a license."

Community Center next Tuesday between 2 and 6 p. m.

John (Cotton John) Smith of the Amarillo Globe - News, will be the speaker, Mrs. G. M. Shaw, president, has announced.

As a feature of the program, Cotton John will show movies taken on a newspaper - sponsored tour to Alaska.

Mrs. Shaw also has announced the names of "Daughters of the Pioneers" who are to sing at the celebration. The group is composed of Marilyn and Virginia Penn and Christi Smith.

Mrs. Shaw said that door prizes are to be given, one to a man and another to a woman, attending the program.

Invocation is to be given by Joe Salem, Sudan, and Mrs. Shaw will serve as master of ceremonies. One of the features will be a memorial talk by Mrs. Pat H. Boone, Sr., lauding those pioneers to have died during the past year.

Mrs. Shaw said that all families are to bring "both a dessert and a salad," and that meat will be supplied by Pat Boone, Sr., who is barbecuing a beef for the dinner.

Cotton At Olton Ruined By Hail

Rains came to northern Lamb county Tuesday night, but hail did more damage than the rains did good.

This was the opinion of farm experts who said that at least 1,000 acres of cotton had been "completely blotted out" by the hail which centered its fury in the Olton area.

One of the farmers hardest hit was Cleo Smith, who lost 300 acres of cotton, and ASC office here said that the hail damage extended "all the way from Springlake to Castro county."

Grain also was hard - hit in that area with losses estimated at 50 per cent. Grain that was in the ripening stage was hardest hit.

Accompanying the hail were from 2 1/2 to 4 inches of rain.

Elsewhere the county was badly in need of rain.

A two and a half - inch rain this week would give Lamb county a cotton crop that might set a

Church Census Under Way Here

Sponsored by the Littlefield Ministerial Association, a religious census is under way here, Joe Arthur, president of the association, said Wednesday noon.

Arthur is director of education and music at the First Baptist Church.

The census is being taken by paid enumerators instead of by volunteers helpers, with the 12 churches participating in the program paying for the service, Arthur explained.

"We certainly hope that all residents will co-operate with the enumerators when they call at their homes," Arthur said, "so we can complete this census in the seven days' time scheduled for the survey."

Information collected will be given to the various churches, he said.

Disk Fields Neighbors Help When It's Needed

A HELPING HAND—Tractors line up for a picture after a morning's work on the J. W. Sims farm, southeast of Fieldton. Sims, in the hospital, had fields that needed working, so his neighbors pitched in and did the work. Those who participated in the disk were Jess Watts, Willie Steffey, Cecil Johnson, Bill Cook, P. C. Caldwell, N. L. Singer, Truman McCain, Ray Graves, Woodrow Fraser, J. J. Harlan, Walter Hill, Dean Faver, Luther Wood and Fred Cook. (STAFF PHOTO)

A man in the hospital would have a rough time working his fields, no matter how badly they needed it.

That was the problem that plagued J. W. Sims, who farms southeast of Fieldton.

Sims had 165 acres of rye that needed to be disked. But, there he was, in the hospital.

But he hadn't counted on the "friendliness of his neighbors who 'mew' of his plight."

Jess Watts, a friend and neighbor of Sims', decided to do something about the field. He began talking to others farmers in the area and before long he had gotten 14 volunteers to bring their tractors to Sims' place and move into the field of rye.

Early Monday morning, the tractors began to converge on the farm. By 11 a. m. the 165 acres had been covered and the men went back to their own work.

When Sims came home from the hospital and saw what his neighbors had done, he understood the meaning of the old saying about "a friend in need is a friend indeed."

Cats Schedule Three Warmup Scrimmages

Three pre-season football scrimmages were announced Tuesday by Don Williams, Littlefield coach. The first practice flit comes Tuesday when the Wildcats travel to Canyon for a 4 p. m. contest. A three way scrimmage with Lamesa and Palo Duro at Lamesa has been set for Aug. 31 with game time at 5 p. m. Littlefield will get a chance to see the Cats against competition here Sept. 3 when Borger invades the city for a practice game. The first few days of drill, which began Monday, have been devoted to light workouts with no real contact work, according to Williams. Some 55 hopeful Wildcats turned out the first day to take part in training, and Williams says that he "hopes to get some more between now and when school starts." The void in the Cat backfield left by the absence of Ronnie Rice is being filled, at present, by Charles Coffee, but according to Williams, "the position is still wide open." Littlefield will get its first look at the 1960 Wildcats Friday night at the Fan Night in the high school gymnasium at 7 p. m. Williams said that he expects contact work with the team to begin today.

(Continued From Page One) a first class man some operating money. No matter what kind of manager, or how much money was raised, the strength of the entire program would depend upon the interest and efforts of every member in Littlefield.

Neumann explained that of the 150 firms in Littlefield, only 175 were now members and collections on these dues were 10 percent behind. R. B. McAlister gave a short talk on "What is a Chamber of Commerce?" . . . outlining the fact that a chamber is only as strong as each person in its membership and his attitude and his efforts to work for the good of the whole.

Dues Under Study Neumann said that several applications were now on hand for a chamber of commerce manager, and that it was possible that a manager would be selected before the membership drive. Neumann said it is the hope that from the finance committee there will come a plan of logical adjusting dues for both prospective new members and the present members who have paid the same dues for the last ten or 15 years. The membership drive will attempt to get the interest and cooperation of the many firms who are not now members. In the discussion period it was pointed out that more interest should be shown in the chamber by individuals who had lived here for several years and in fact every person who owned a building in Littlefield should be vitally interested in the future of the town and the possibilities of keeping his building rented.

Group Thanked Neumann thanked the group for its interest in the chamber of commerce and vote of confidence and pledged the best efforts of the board to see that a "man to fill the bill" would be selected as manager and that the finance committee and membership drive would follow.

That's the way the experts summed up the situation Wednesday after checking conditions throughout the county. Assistant County Agent Herb Helbig said the crop now "looks like around 165,000 bales," but L. D. Aten, ASC official, said it will turn out to be a "175,000-bale crop, even if no more rain falls," and he added that a 2 1/2 inch rain "tonight or tomorrow night would push it far above the mark." Dryland cotton, however, is reported as suffering for rain, although Aten said that if no more rain falls he believes the cotton "will hold one-fourth to one-half bale of cotton to the acre." Plants are much more heavily loaded, but continuing dry weather will cause many of the bolls to shed before maturing. Aten, in basing his prediction on a 175,000 - bale crop said the acreage still standing in cotton is 128,000 measured acres which is slightly higher than last year's acreage. Irrigated cotton is making rapid progress and an excellent crop apparently is assured. Late cotton may be caught by an early frost which will prevent full maturity. Usually first killing frost in this area is around Nov. 6. That was the date of last year's first major frost in the Spade district. Late cotton would be hurt by an early freeze, the experts explained. Normal planting date here is May 10 to 17. Most farmers on irrigated farms are planning to stop running their pumps this week or early next week, and some of the water thus saved will be turned onto late feed crops. Feed also is hurting for lack of moisture, especially feed that was planted late on land which had been abandoned for cotton. Early feed, however, is not expected to suffer since most early grain sorghums matured before the dry weather struck this area, Aten said. Bill Turner, Olton Enterprise publisher, said Wednesday afternoon that a check he had made showed the hail strip was about nine miles long and three miles wide, starting at Thompson's gin five miles north of Circle. He said many farms were hard-hit by the hail stones which measured up to one-inch in diameter. Among those, in addition to Smith, whose crops were badly damaged were, Malcolm Ogletree, Jack Edwards, Leon George, Jim Lane, and Leck Carson. Smith was preparing to harvest his bean crop Wednesday, but the Tuesday night hail left his crop shattered on the ground. He farms a section of land in that area. Ogletree told Turner that his cotton was stripped, and that "bolls which weren't knocked off were so badly damaged they probably will sour and fall off the stalks."

Manager Explains How Automatic Dialing System Makes A Call

Have you ever wondered how a telephone call gets through to the persons you are calling, without the help of a switchboard operator?

Many people have, so R. E. (Bob) Saunders, Littlefield district manager of General Telephone Co. of the Southwest, was asked to explain just what happens.

"The most important element in the automatic switching of a telephone call," Saunders said "is the selector switch. Basically this switch consists of the following:

"First there is a vertical shaft carrying a set of connecting 'fingers' known as 'wipers'."

"Second, a 'contact bank' of 100 rows of arcs, each having 10 sets of contacts. Each set of contacts represents the terminal of one line or trunk."

"Third, there is an electro-mechanical device that raises the shaft vertically any number of steps from one to 10, and then rotates the shaft horizontally any number of steps from one to 10 thus causing the wipers to connect to one particular set of contacts in the bank."

"Finally, there is a release mechanism by which the shaft may be permitted to drop back to its original position."

Saunders then went on to point out that this basic selector mechanism can be set up to perform any one of the following functions:

As a Linefinder: In this case the bank contacts are the terminals of subscribers' lines, and the switch operates automatically when the calling subscriber lifts his handset to make a call. The shaft and wipers lift and rotate until the wipers come to rest on the terminals of the calling line. This action takes place in a fraction of a second - before the subscriber has a chance to operate his dial.

As a Selector: In this case, the vertical motion is controlled by the dial at the calling station, and the rotary motion, which is completely automatic, serves to select an idle trunk to the group of lines represented by the particular figure dialed.

As a Connector: This switch is the last in the train of switches used in setting up a connection, and both vertical and rotary motions are controlled by operation of the dial. After the connector reaches the terminals of the called line, it tests that line for busy condition. If the called line is busy, the switch returns "busy tone" to the calling station. If the line is idle, the switch sends out a ringing signal, and when the called stations answer, the two stations are connected for conversation.

When receivers or handsets are placed back on the hook after a conversation, the shafts and wipers of all the switches in the train drop back to their original positions, and the same switches are then available to other subscribers.

Saunders explained step by step just how a telephone call actually is switched.

Assume you are calling the County Wide News whose new number under the automatic system will be 385-4481. The 385 part constitutes what is known as the nationwide intertoll dial code for the exchange and the distant operator in Seattle, Washington, for example, dials this as part of the dial tone.

Then you proceed by dialing the seven digits comprising the telephone number. If the exchange is busy, you will hear a sound at intervals which indicates the terminals of your own line in a few minutes.

General Started In 1926, Now Serves 261 Exchange

Birthplace of what is now General Telephone Co. of the Southwest was in Lubbock in 1926, when the former State Telephone Company of Texas was incorporated.

Originally composed of some 40 exchanges serving about 7,000 telephones and employing 177 people, the company now serves 261 exchanges, over 300,000 telephones in Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas, and Louisiana, and employs over 3,500 people.

General of the Southwest is the fifth largest operating telephone subsidiary of General Telephone & Electronics Corp. The corporation operates over 4 million telephones in 31 states and several foreign countries as well as manufacturing subsidiaries in the U. S. and abroad.

The General Telephone System is the largest privately owned, non - Bell, telephone company in the world.

Headquarters for General of the Southwest is in San Angelo. Total payroll cost for the company exceeds $14 million annually, and the company has over $110 million invested in telephone equipment and facilities.

In 1959, the company paid $6, 112,688 in taxes to federal, state and local governments.

The TREMENDOUS Teens

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Ezekiel	46	2-3
Monday	Romans	14	22-23
Tuesday	Psalms	102	25-28
Wednesday	John	1	17
Thursday	Colossians	1	6-9
Friday	Romans	12	6-9
Saturday	Romans	13	10-18

Hardest fact for the adult mind to comprehend is that a teen-ager stands at the threshold of life.

When you enter a strange door you are uncertain. You don't know what's in store for you. You aren't sure which way to turn.

There may be familiar, welcoming voices — but even these now have the ring of uncertainty. For when your whole world is changing, can you be sure that the people around you are not changing also?

For boys and girls in this time of uncertainty the Church is the fulcrum of strength. Its truth is unchanging. Its teaching is clear. Its promises are worthy of hope, trust, endeavor, sacrifice.

The problems of the teen-ager are tremendous — but so is the might of his God. The character, the certainty, the charity of the Church inspires his ideals — challenges his courage.

In The Martin Manner

By Ramon Martin

THE GOOD medico thumped around on this writer's semi-fallen chest, listened to his pump-er through his stethoscope at various and sundry places on the upper anatomy, and said, "Well, basically everything is ok. You're tired, and there is a slight cold. Your throat is red and the blood test shows too many white corpus-cles. The red ones are ok, so that would indicate that you have an infection."

There was a prescription and the usual suggestion to "take it easy for a couple of days."

The prescription was for one of the many current antibiotics without which the modern doctor would be greatly handicapped.

BUT YOURS truly felt better almost immediately, the psychol-ogical therapy starting to work even before the prescription had been handed to a pharmacist who is trained at reading what a doctor laughingly calls writing.

Funny about such things. The best treatment the doctor could have given was that little opening statement: "There's nothing basi-cally wrong." If the equipment is working properly, pains don't seem to matter too much. It's the constant fear of today that the blood pumping equipment is out of whack that sends a fellow to the medico in the first place.

Every paper one picks up these days tells about somebody, fre-quently someone still in his 30's or 40's who has conked out be-cause of a heart attack.

It seems that half my long-time friends either have had an attack or else have already joined their ancestors, due to heart attacks.

THIS WAS the first time yours truly had been to a doctor in 10 years. I guess, Oh, I know they advise everyone to have a check-up at least once a year and to brush after every meal, but who actually does either? I was never one of those eager young beavers one sees on the TV screens these days, proudly waiting a den-tist's report and shouting, "Look Mom, No cavities!" Seems there were always cavities in Manner's teeth back before he was old enough to wave a report and yell at his Mom. And ever today's store-boughts have one cavity!

I'm all for the new antibiotics, and each night when I see a old-time doctor in a TV western removing a .44 slug from the hero's muscle-bound body. If they had had antibiotics in those days, think how much eas-ier Dr. McDaniel's work would have been.

Now there was a great old man - old at 40 from hard work as a country doctor. Ancient at 50 and still going strong night and day. It was purely trial-and-error in those days, as compared with the equipment today's doc-tors have at their command. They tried one nasty-tasting medicine after another, and if none of them worked, the undertaker took over.

There was my boyhood pal who lay sick of a fever all sum-mer. Dr. McDaniel spent many a sleepless night with the boy, and tried everything at his command. Finally, late in August, the fever left, and the good doctor literally breathed a sign of relief. When school started, Paul showed up, 20 pounds underweight, as white as a sheet, and with so lit-tle strength that the rest of us had to carry him up and down steps.

I don't know whether antibi-otics would have turned the trick if they had had them in those days, but I do know that with the knowledge doctors have today and with their modern tools of the trade, they can stop such ru-zing diseases.

EVERYTIME someone gets to talking about the "good old days" I think of Paul and others like him, and for my book, I'll take the modern day, if for no other reason than for today's advanced medical science.

In fact, when I stop to think about it, I become amazed at the success which our old-time doc-tor had, with his limited supply of medication and his poor diag-nostic facilities. I think many of those old-time doctors, like Dr. McDaniel, must have been guided by a faith far greater than their medical equipment, and I'm quite sure such was the case with

Dr. McDaniel.
There was the time when I was a very small boy and my mother was seriously ill. Dr. M. c. Daniel was summoned. He tried everything he could think of, and finally he told my father, "I frank-ly don't know what the trouble is. I suggest you take her to the hos-pital (30 miles away) and see if they can find out."

That was at the end of a long and gloomy summer when it seemed that it might be my moth-er's last summer.

We carted her to the hospital and even there they didn't have much equipment with which to diagnose her disease. Finally they decided to operate after one doctor had said he "believed" it was gall stones. He was right, and my mother was back on her feet a few weeks later.

But today's modern facilities would have found the trouble much sooner and have relieved a long summer of suffering, both for my mother and for our faith-ful doctor who suffered too with each stubborn case.

I like the summary which our long-time doctor friend says about medicine: "We (the doc-tors) don't cure anyone; we sim-ply help nature cure." Just the same, they have so much more with which to help nature these days.

Automatic Telephone Born After Phone Customer Lost His Temper

The world owes the automatic telephone, being provided to all subscribers of the General Telephone Co. of the Southwest next Sunday to a man who capitalized on his temper.

ORIGINAL SWITCH—This is the ancestor to all automatic telephone switches. This is the original 1890 prepatented switch invented by A. B. Strowger as a result of his conviction that a way could be found to route telephone calls automatically.

It happened in Kansas City, Mo., back in 1888. Almon B. Strowger barged into his undertaking parlor and slammed the door behind him. His white beard bristled and his whole body trembled with anger. He had just learned that a customer had tried to telephone him, only to be told by the Central operator that the line was busy. He was sure of it — yet, with a sense of futility, he realized that he could not prove it.

Lost Business He had lost some business, the damage was done and all the protests in the world could not recapture that customer's call. It had happened before, and whether it was the result of honest errors on the part of Central operators, Strowger decided, he had had enough. In a few short years Alexander Graham Bell's invention had caught on well, and more and more city dwellers had come to depend on it for rapid communication. Businessmen such as Strowger, by this year of 1888, going through an operator. He recounted what he knew of telephone operation. He wasn't an engineer, but he knew that a man could not be depended on to connect telephone lines. He also knew that marvelous things had been accomplished every time a call was placed through the control of electricity. This and this alone, Strowger decided, and the peculiar abilities of the electromagnet. Now, if this telegraphing device, the early telephone switchboard operators and the ever-present threat could be directed automatically of "listening in" that telephone by electrical force, if an electro-mechanical device could seek out the desired line according to the number of pulses sent to it by the machine, the telephone would be a different matter. For days, Strowger pondered the telephone. A machine could do the problem in his Kansas City, this job better. Machines, if connected, undertaking parlor.

pla. Then he tried out his experiment. Series of 'Pulses' By transmitting a series of electrical impulses, he could direct the finger to move up the rows of contacts, one row for each pulse. He could also make the finger move horizontally along any row a step at a time. Therefore, if he wanted terminal number 75 in his little switchboard, he would transmit seven pulses over one circuit, moving the finger to the seventh row. Then he would transmit five pulses over a second circuit, which would move the finger to the fifth terminal on that row. If a telephone was connected to that terminal, he would be able to complete a connection without any intermediate assistance from an operator. Strowger knew he had found the answer.

The little businessman-turned-inventor worked on his idea for several months, refining it into a workable model. Then on March 12, 1889, he filed his first patent on the device and two years later the patent was granted. Nobody impressed But, like so many inventors before him he found his problems were not over. Nobody was really impressed by his odd little "thing-majig" and other businessmen were highly skeptical that his device would really work. It took an enterprising salesman from Chicago, one Joseph Harris, to take the automatic switch out of obscurity and into the national spotlight.

Harris persuaded Strowger to come to Chicago where they arranged to have several model switches built by a novelty company, using Strowger's drawings. They borrowed three telephones and set up an experimental system with which to demonstrate the revolutionary product. With this much to go on, the Strowger Automatic Telephone Company was founded in 1891.

The young company had the usual number of hardships and crises but gradually the true value of Strowger's invention began to attract the support of both financial and technical men. A year later, the automatic system was given its first public trial at La Porte, Indiana, and met with instant success. Subscribers were delighted with the innovation; newspapers cheerily caught the mood of the day with headlines reading "Goodbye to the Hello Girl!" It was only the forerunner to a major revolution in the telephone industry.

Improvements Made Improvements on the original came rapidly, largely from the experienced telephone men who had joined the Strowger company because of their faith in the automatic switch. In 1901, the company was reorganized into the Automatic Electric Company, which vigorously carried on the pattern of development set by its predecessor. Strowger's invention signalled a new era in the telephone industry, providing inspiration for a flood of automatic service features which has continued to this day. The dial was developed to replace the push button method of calling; the lighter, desk-type telephone made its appearance when the source of power was removed from the individual telephone and placed in the central office. Engineers introduced automatic intermittent ringing; automatic busy tone; instantaneous ring

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Austin — Election year upheavals plus Texas "lame duck" are playing havoc with the work of interim legislative committees. Atty. Gen Will Wilson ruled that, except in special cases, interim committee members not re-elected to the Legislature may not continue to serve on the committees. This brings a shake-up in the membership of a number of study groups now in the midst of their work.

Biggest change will be in the make-up of the House General Investigating Committee which has been asked to look into several politically touchy questions. Going off the five-member committee are the chairman, Rep. H. J. Blanchard of Lubbock, and Reps. Joe Burnett of Kerville and Carl Conley of Raymondville. Nine other legislative committees lost one or more members who did either die or not run again or were defeated.

Not affected were members of the Commission on State and Local Tax Policy. Attorney General noted that this group was set up under a law which specifically provided its members should serve a two-year term. Also continuing to serve, whether re-elected or not, will be those members of the Legislative Council and Legislative Budget Board who — like the Speaker of the House — are members because of the jobs they hold.

In the appointment of committees on which "lame ducks" may not continue to serve, next year's speaker and lieutenant governor face a problem. Only way to prevent vacancies would be to second-guess the political future of each appointee. Anti-Loan Shark Committee — A citizens committee is being formed to work for approval of a constitutional amendment to give the legislature more regulatory power over the small loan industry. Almer V. McCall, executive vice-president of Baylor University, is chairman, and Tom Reavley, Austin attorney and former secretary of state, is vice chairman. Proposed amendment will be Number Four on the general election ballot in November. It would give the Legislature power to license and regulate lenders and set maximum rates of interest. Draft and unless the Legislature set a new rate, the present constitutional maximum of 10 per cent would apply. Adoption of Amendment Four is an essential first step, said McCall, to wiping out Texas' reputation as "the lone shark state." He said that Gov. Price Daniel, Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey and Atty. Gen. Will Wilson favored the amendment and were honorary members of the committee. TEC Hits Cheaters — Texas Employment Commission has filed complaints against some 100 persons accused of drawing unemployment compensation pay while actually working. As a result of a widespread investigation, TEC has filed several suits against persons it declared were receiving benefits and salaries at the same time. Some of the defendants have already been tried, fined and ordered to repay the money received from TEC. Most of the cases involve workers in Houston and Brownsville. Law provides that workers who lose their jobs through no fault of their own and cannot get other jobs may receive $28 a week for up to 26 weeks, while unemployed. Violators can receive up to $50 fine and 30-day jail sentence. Lawbreaking on Increase — Department of Public Safety report shows that one of the fastest growing statistics in Texas is the number of major crimes committed — up 10.3 per cent for the first half of 1960. For the first six months of this year DPS estimates 96,681 major crimes were committed in Texas, compared to 87,679 for the same period in 1959. One of the brighter spots in the report is that murders and homicides decreased by 15.1 per cent. Burglaries, however, rose 19.2 per cent. Biggest crime increase was in urban areas — up 12.5 per cent. In rural sections the rate was 5.1 per cent.

Sandhills Philosopher Congressional Session May Undermind Political Parties

Editors note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm probably is unnecessarily concerned about the current session of Congress, but that's his worry. In the first place, a promise had been changed in front of man longer than from July to August of the same year. How much fun would kids get out of Christmas if they didn't start wishing till Christmas eve? A man lives on promises, at least as farmers do. Pick out any year you want to, and if the average farmer hadn't thought the next one wasn't gonna be better than that one, you wouldn't have much farm population left, or any crops. The same is true of politics. The very least a voter can do is enjoy a set of promises from convention time in the summer to legislating time along in early spring of the next year, but this idea of promising in July and dashing hopes in August, takes all the fun out of life. If a man can't dream of a better life, of more aid and fewer taxes, longer than two or three weeks, reality will get him down and politics will begin to lose its appeal. It's the craziest thing I ever heard of, trying to deliver on a set of promises before the people have a chance to vote on you. Let's get back to the old system. Both parties have promised to help the farmer, but if they're wise they'll wait till the planting's all done next spring before they tackle the job. Yours faithfully, J. A.

Dear editor: I don't know how it happened and I hope it never happens again, but this idea of a session of Congress before an election, instead of afterwards, has me worried. What I'm afraid of is it will destroy one of the most cherished things in American political life, from the precinct level to Washington, namely, PROMISES. Next to a handshake, I guess a promise has been the strongest weapon a man could have when he's running for office, although this doesn't mean a wife and kids don't help too, and I'll never understand how both parties managed to get in a position like they are now here they have a chance to deliver on their promises before the election. It seems to me it's undermining the entire system of politics. down a little — less than one per cent. Vaccinations urged — Texas is one of the safer states as far as paralytic polio is concerned, but it's seventh in the nation in number of whooping cough cases, ninth in diphtheria and scarlet fever. All these rates could be cut, said a State Health Department spokesman, if there were fewer people who can't be bothered with getting protective shots. Late August and September are the usual season for polio epidemics, the Department warned.

Good Pasturage — Texas range conditions showed a bigger mid-summer improvement this year than in any summer for 37 years, reports the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. Range conditions usually grow less favorable from July to August in Texas, but this year they got substantially better. Though some areas of the state were reported very dry, 85 per cent was rated 12 points above the 10-year average. Short Shorts — Parents of children who will enter school for the first time this fall are urged to get the children's birth certificates immediately. State Health Department noted that requests pile up at school opening time and can delay the child's entrance into school. Texas' general revenue fund went $6,000,000 deeper into the red last month. This brought the fund's deficit in rural sections the rate was 5.1 per cent.

There will be no change in local telephone rates at the time of conversion to dial operation, according to R. E. Saunders, district manager for General. The present rates, which have been in effect since March 16, 1954, are noted below. They do not include the 10 per cent Federal excise tax. BUSINESS — 1 party $11; 2 party $8; Extension $1.50. RESIDENCE — 1 party $5.25; 2 party $4.50; 4 party $4; Extension $1.75. CHIROPRACTIC HEALTH SERVICE W. S. Dickenson, D. PHONE 592 LITTLEFIELD

"These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck... but not our Chevy"

Few trucks are subjected to body-wracking beatings that a day's work for a Chevrolet Series 60 pulpwood hauler. It's owned by J. E. North Carolina logging contractor. As Bobby Fox, a partner in the business says, "Loaded and potholes you'd think would tear the truck to pieces. The trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck, but not our Chevy. We can average an extra load a day . . . make $45 a day more with this Chevy. We can with the others."

In every weight class these Chevys are doing more work at less expense than trucks have ever done before. Drive one at your Chevrolet dealer's. It's an experience you could pay you big dividends.
