...here's been a general updating of school systems in the County and the area the year, and at least two improvement programs on the drawing board.

...needless to say, this reflects healthy situation in these school districts and communities. It indicates progressive communities with citizens who are vitally interested in the education of their children. The programs also seem to point up the fact these school trustees have some active, forward-looking men as trustees. At least to take the step on improvements was the Anton School District, which last Saturday approved a $285,000 bond issue for upgrading of its school buildings.

...Olton trustees have proved an architect to out expansion in science, athletic and agriculture departments. Littlefield, Spade and Whittier schools are involved in building improvements, some of them already completed. Littlefield's long-hoped for high school plant is now rising from a new site on W. 10th St. The old saying, "What was good enough for me is good enough for my kid," no longer tries much weight--especially in the field of education.

Anton School, City Candidates Are Announced

Seven candidates have filed for the two vacancies coming up on the Anton School Board, with one incumbent seeking reelection in the April 4 balloting.

Kenneth H. Spradley is the incumbent who seeks reelection, Chester Jones' term also expires, but he did not file for reelection.

Others in the race for the two posts are Wayne McLarty, Floyd Morton, T. L. Markham, Bob Biffle, Bobby McGehee, and G. C. Brock.

On the city commission, three men will be seeking two posts up for election there. Mayor George Broom drew no opposition for his reelection. Incumbents Rudolph Shockley and Lewis E. Booth seek reelection to the commission along with a new candidate, R. P. Jones. Absentee balloting in school elections starts March 16, and absentee voting in the city election begins March 18.

Anton School Issue Passes

A $285,000 school bond issue to finance added classrooms and extensive improvements in the Anton schools won approval of district taxpayers in a relatively close vote Saturday. About 60 percent of the voters approved the two propositions in the bond issue. A tax system change, adoption of Public Law 16, was okayed by a 187-124 vote, and the levying of taxes and issuance of bonds won by a 184-124 count.

Major items in the school improvements program are four new classrooms in the elementary building, a home economics department, and enlargements in the vocational agriculture workshop. Passage of the issue will require a 23 percent increase in school taxes, a point which trustees announced prior to the election. The board also outlined a revaluation and equalization program in connection with raising an additional $14,000 in operating money needed for the upcoming school year.

Following last spring's accreditation check, Anton schools faced a Texas Education Agency requirement of building new Negro facilities or integrating and enlarging the regular school system. Projects included in the overall improvements issue: construction of four new classrooms in the present 8-room elementary building, moving and enlarging the library, conversion of an old gym to band-music-speech rooms, modernization of the auditorium, building of an adequate home economics laboratory; Enlarging the vocational agriculture department to include an auto mechanics or building trades shop, addition of a physical education dressing room and the purchase of new land to permit moving the football field, equipping of some rooms with shades for audio-visual teaching, electric re-wiring to eliminate fire hazards, lowering of ceilings, installation of new windows and lighting fixtures, roof repairs and sand blasting of the outside walls of the junior-senior high building.

COUNTY TO RECEIVE 9,797 RELEASED ACRES

Bonus Cotton Acres Hike Lamb Total

Lamb County cotton producers, hampered by cotton allotment decrease the past two years, picked up 9,797 acres of released acres Wednesday to boost the county allotment for 1964 to a total of 195,707 acres.

GIFT FOR GIRL SCOUTS--Mrs. Elnora Trimmer, president of the VFW Auxiliary, Post 4854, presented a $50 check to the XIT Girl Scout building fund this week. Accepting the check from the Auxiliary was Ray Keeling, chairman of the Scout building fund drive. The fund now totals about $6,000.

The report of the released acres came from the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office and was announced here by L. D. Aten, ASCS manager. Aten indicated the acreage would be reapportioned in the county on the basis of adjusted requests. The additional acreage, which does not count on the county's "history," could mean another 10,000 bales of cotton.

The acreage came from other portions of the state where producers did not choose to plant their full allotments. It was the most released acreage in a number of years. The Lamb total of 9,797 compares to only 4,417 received last year.

The Lamb County cotton allotment this year was for 185,910 acres, but the released acreage will boost the total to 195,707.

Lamb farmers were hit with a 10 percent cut in the 1963 allotment and, with the released acres, the total was only 189,211. The total acres this year, with the boost of released acreage, is 6,496 acres more than last year.

With reduced acreage and bad planting weather, the county produced about 164,000 bales last year. This came on the heels of the best output in history in 1962 when 226,000 bales were ginned. The county had its first 200,000-bale year in 1961 with a 223,990 total. The county's cotton acreage allotments were 208,865 in 1962 and 211,916 in 1961.

With the right kind of weather conditions, Lamb's progressive and efficient farmers could be shooting at the 200,000 bale mark again in 1964.

The suit seeks to recover $200,000 for permanent impairment, $2,500 for alleged out-of-pocket expenses, $15,000 for future medical treatment and $20,000 for exemplary damage.

Depositions in the suit are being scheduled. It was filed in 154th district court by James A. Gowdy, Littlefield attorney.

Girl Scout Hut Drive Hits $6,000

With Girl Scout Week being observed in Littlefield through Saturday, building fund chairman Ray Keeling reminded citizens today of the campaign to build a new hut for local Girl Scout units. A total of about $6,000 has been raised toward the new hut, which is to be located near the old building in Laguna Park. Goal of the drive is $7,000. The campaign is scheduled to climax a three-year buildup of funds for the hut. Local Girl Scout officials had about $2,800 in the building fund prior to the start of the fund-raising drive. The local VFW Auxiliary this week contributed $50 toward the building campaign. Anyone interested in supporting the drive should contact Keeling or any volunteer Girl Scout worker.

Man Killed, 2 Injured In County Accidents

Two traffic accidents in Lamb County over the weekend left an Amherst man dead and two Littlefield teenagers injured. Jessie Hardeman, a 54-year-old Negro farm laborer, was killed when his car overturned about .3 of a mile east of Amherst at 12:45 p.m. Sunday on FM-37. Bill Angel, Texas Highway Patrolman, said Hardeman's car failed to negotiate a curve, ran off the pavement and overturned five times. The victim was thrown from the vehicle and was dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. Keith Neumann, 17, and Sharon Mills, 16, apparently escaped serious injury in a Saturday night crash about .3 of a mile east of Littlefield on US-84. The pair sustained cuts and bruises after being thrown from a late model car which was a total loss. The Neumann vehicle was hit from behind by a car driven by James Floyd Adams, a Negro whose address was listed as Rt. 1, Anton. Adams, who left the scene of the accident Saturday night, reported to officers Sunday morning. Adams pled guilty to aggravated assault with a motor vehicle Monday in county court and was assessed a $300 fine and 30 days in jail. Another man, a passenger in the Adams car, was shaken up in the crash but remained at the scene of the accident. The two-car crash occurred about 9:45 p.m. Saturday as both cars were headed northwest toward Littlefield. The Neumann vehicle flipped over and

Cornerstone Rite Slated At New School

Plans for a Masonic Lodge Cornerstone ceremony at the new Littlefield High School site were approved during a regular monthly meeting of Littlefield School trustees Monday night. The ceremony is scheduled Friday, March 20, at 2:30 p.m. Charles Jones, master of the local Masonic Lodge, is heading arrangements for the impressive ceremony which will be attended by the Mason's Grand Master of Texas.

Schemes Rise With Spring 'Con' Games Can, Have Gone On In Lamb County

One inescapable fact of business, if that term properly applies to these instances, is that a sharp scheme by promoters can take money from the unwary in Lamb County as well as it can in any metropolitan area in the country.

They can take it in amounts ranging from $5.00 paid an itinerant book salesman to $5,000 to a smooth stock peddler driving a plush automobile and loaded with gilt-edge "credentials."

And most of it goes on quietly with the victim accepting his or her loss without official complaint. But at least twice in the past year two sizeable promotion schemes have come into court in Lamb County with sentences for their perpetrators.

Trustees approved the cornerstone event at their February meeting, allocating $100 toward the cost of the stone. Further study revealed the cornerstone required by Masons would cost $276, and the local lodge agreed to pay the additional expense. In other business, trustees approved minor changes in the floor plans of the lunchroom and industrial shop for the high school, adopted textbooks for 1964-65, discussed replacement of a boiler in the primary building, and approved a financial statement. Prior to the business session, the board was treated to a steak dinner by outgoing trustee Delbert Ross. All board members were present for the dinner and meeting.

Sudan City Race Draws 7 Candidates

Seven candidates in the city commission race and four in the school board race have been announced at Sudan for upcoming April elections. A mayor and two commissioners are to be elected in the city balloting, with incumbent Mayor Joe Rone and commissioners Wayne Brown and Marvin Tollett seeking reelection. Kenneth Burgess is a challenger for the mayor's post, while A.A. Pinkerton, Arnold Reed and Galvin Jordan will be contesting for the two city commission seats. Three terms expire on the Sudan School Board, and incumbents Lee Roy Fisher and W.C. Masten are seeking reelection. Two other candidates will be Marvin Bowling and Jerry Ray. Billy Gore is not seeking reelection.

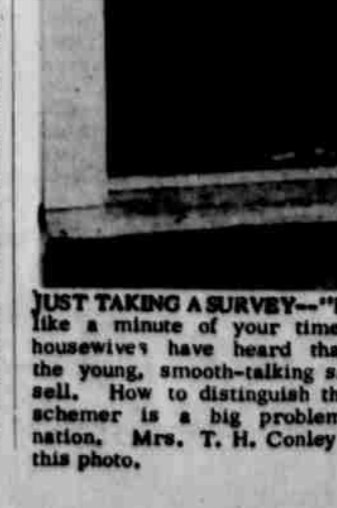

Even then, but for the vigilance of some of the people propositioned to buy the stock, a good piece of money could have been paid out by Lamb county people for a bogus investment. Oddly, when these schemes are examined in a clear light were house siding and roofing jobs. Usually these offer a new, superior product that is just being introduced with a "special deal" for the first few customers.

Before the flaws begin to show up, the salesman has his money and is gone. Many customers suffer in silence, and finally go to their hometown lumberman for repairs. A popular gimmick for years was the sale of vending machines, and at least one Lamb county couple went for about a $400 ride on this way last year.

Fast-talking salesmen line out an itinerary and advertise ahead in newspaper classifieds. Generally these ads read "Earn $400 a Month in Your Sparetime." Below they note that an investment of maybe $400 to $1,000 is required.

They pick up replies mailed to the newspapers, work out prospects in a whirlwind visit and, for years, reaped a few sales in almost every area. They delivered, in most cases, some tinny boxes worth perhaps one-third their cost. The gimmick is usually inside the law. But it became so notorious that discerning newspapers have long refused to accept questionable ads that require an investment. This policy usually subjects even a legitimate salesman to a short

JUST TAKING A SURVEY--"I'm not selling anything, mam, just like a minute of your time for a survey." Many skeptical housewives have heard that line before, and it turns out the young, smooth-talking salesman does have something to sell. How to distinguish the legitimate salesman from the schemer is a big problem in Littlefield and all over the nation. Mrs. T. H. Conley poses with a determined look in this photo.

Plymouth rocks racing world with sweep in Daytona "500"

According to the record book for stock cars in competition, there is no higher average speed for 500 miles than the 154.334 m.p.h.

Adding to that glory is the fact that two more 1964 Plymouths finished 2nd and 3rd for a decisive Plymouth sweep.

For the millions of racing fans and high-performance enthusiasts across the country, Plymouth is proud of its "high speed" victory at Daytona.

This competition was more "your speed." At Plymouth's request, an independent testing company bought and compared showroom models of Plymouth, Ford and Chevrolet.

The cars were comparably equipped standard V-8s - cars people buy. And the tests were of "things people buy a car for" - acceleration, handling, braking, and gas economy.

In test after test, Plymouth accelerated best, handled best, braked best, and got the best gas mileage. This is the kind of competition Plymouth most likes to win.

Girl Scouting 52 Years Old

Fifty years ago today, the first troop meeting organized by Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, took place in Savannah, Ga. Members of the 18 Caprock Girl Scout Councils will be among the more than 3 1/4 million girls and leaders, who will be observing Girl Scout Week, which began Sunday and ends Saturday. Girl Scouting is the reflection of the best ideas in the American way of life. It is entirely voluntary; it is supported by the community; it recognizes that children want to learn and to be useful as well as have fun. Girl Scouting maintains the right of any girl to belong regardless of color or creed; and it believes in the country where Democracy is a living concept. The theme for Girl Scout Week, is "Girl Scouting--A Promise in Action." The observance of Girl Scout Week reminds each of us that this is the time to re-examine our values--and the values we are passing on to our children.

'CON' GAME

quiz in placing solicitation advertisements. A couple near Amherst last year paid a salesman about $400 one evening for vending machines. Having second thoughts the next morning, they called their banker. But the salesman had already been there at bank opening to cash their check, and was gone. James W. Sharp, a promoter who drew five years in jail and a $3,000 fine for some Lamb County stock operations in 1963, sought out prospects with classified advertisements. He offered a thing called "World Wide Fee Finders Service" through which members anywhere could find a possible business deal, offer it through the service and get a fee if the service produced a transaction, presumably through some other fee-finder listing the second party to a trade.

This had a certain logic and Sharp and an associate sold several memberships in the Lamb County area. His advertisement, however, was turned down by the Lamb County Leader and the News. Two Bula men who became involved briefly with Sharp--one of them was a principal in the charges against the promoter--made their contacts through the World Wide ad in a neighboring newspaper. In the newspaper's hometown one day Sharp reportedly sold three $78 memberships in World Wide; $234 for what?

But bigger pickings apparently loomed. The Wichita Falls promoter shortly set up Central Equity Corporation, a company to underwrite nursing homes. To support Central Equity he offered a balance sheet showing ownership of $75,000 in land in Brazil, S.A., more than $300,000 in land in Montague County, Texas, $165,000 in buildings in Bowie and $225,000 in oil properties in Jack and Montague counties. District Attorney Jack Young and investigators from the Texas securities commission were unable to find any of the properties listed.

Sharp, in fact, was unable to make bond while awaiting trial in Lamb County where a jury last month found him guilty on a charge of offering to sell unregistered stock and being unregistered as a securities agent. He still might be operating except for a simple check run by two Littlefield people he picked as prospects. They simply asked for a credit report on the promoter.

It showed a record of stock promotions going back for years through the midwest. This simple device triggered a plan that led to the man's conviction, before District Judge Pat Boone of Littlefield. Young described the suave, distinguished looking Sharp as a "white collar crook."

This apt description applied also to a free-wheeling "stock broker" who appeared before Judge Boone a year ago. This man took $4,000 cash money from two Lamb County people for stock in an investment company and simply did not deliver any stock. Similar other operations in the area accounted for another $6,000. The "broker" pleaded guilty and Judge Boone gave the man until January - 1964, to make restitution to his victims and fined him $1,500. Failure to pay would result in a prison sentence. He paid. These are the deals that came to light. They undoubtedly were many more. Almost any of them could have been prevented by a telephone call to a banker, a lawyer or credit bureau, persons who know the signs of a fast-buck operation.

With spring almost here, the promotion sturrgs will get new speed. A good rule of thumb is never to buy anything from the fellow who knocks on your door, unless he is representing a home business. It takes just a minute to pick up the telephone and ask your banker or some other business friend. The odds are long that your cheerful door-salesman will be gone before you finish your telephone call.

Local Woman Overcomes Handicaps, Working On College Degree Now

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story of a young Littlefield woman's problems in overcoming physical handicaps written by Mrs. Maurine ... public relations director at South Plains College in Lubbock. The young lady in this article, Jo Anne Meeks, is presently employed at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church Rectory in Littlefield. She is a former student of (Sudan and Earth). *****

at a handicapped person and he will respond in a more normal way. He does not have a feeling of being frustrated.

Jo Anne Meeks, a 24-year-old evening school student at South Plains College, who has handicapped herself, knows the feelings of a person who is afflicted with physical weaknesses being that of deafness and speech defects. She has been stoned, had chilblains, pulled the cords from my hearing aid, call me a 'freak' and suffered untold ridicule because I could not hear and speak as other children. Miss Meeks declared, "Children can be cruel, and once a child is picked on another, others will pick on him, until many times injured child is 'picked' to death."

"It reminds me of a chicken," she said. "My mother used to pick chickens and I recall one of her chickens had a limp, and because of the abnormality, the other chickens were picking at the chicken until it was picked to death."

"I feel that my early life was like that. No friends, in fact, I have never had more than one girl friend in my entire life, and I have suffered some humiliation because of my handicap," she asserted. "My life is going to be different for Jo Anne from now on. Through the help of the Vocational Rehabilitation tion program, Jo Anne declares that she will get a college degree. "I can not say enough for the TVR program. It did so much for me. It gave me courage to get an education when it seemed utterly impossible. I had had the desire for an education since early high school days, but neither of my parents, were educated, and with my handicap, I needed the extra admonition TVR gave to me," Miss Meeks declared.

Some 30 members graduated that year from Springlake High School where Jo Anne attended during her senior year. She lived with her brother the first semester and took care of the children. The second semester she took care of an 82-year-old woman for $12 a week, which was enough to keep her in school. That was a great day in her life, the day she received her high school diploma just as she was going into her 19th year.

One has to go back into Jo Anne's life to realize that it was just short of a miracle that she could complete her high school education.

Born in a very small town in Oklahoma, (Antlers) second to the last of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Meeks, the little girl was reared on a farm by parents of very little means. Many times the family, according to Jo Anne, was in need. There was the Christmas of her 5th year in school when it looked as if the Meeks children would have nothing at all for Christmas, not as much as a dinner. Mrs. Meeks went out and cut down a small tree, about three feet high, and the children decorated the tree with pop corn and a little tinsel.

Before the Christmas Eve had come to an end, some kind soul, Jo Anne still does not know who he was, came with a huge basket filled with all the makings of a Christmas dinner and little gifts for the children. So it was not as difficult for Jo Anne to be deprived of so many things as it was for those who had never experienced privation.

The fact that 62 per cent of the girl's hearing was gone was not discovered until she was in the third grade. During her first two years of school in Farwell, no one seemed to pay much attention to the fact, and Jo Anne, by this time, had become very proficient in lip reading; in fact, so good, that her parents had not detected the extent of her loss of hearing.

The family then moved to Sacramento Valley in California and it was there during one of the school's routine sight and hearing checks that the girl's handicap was discovered. She had been a good student, making good grades in all subjects except spelling.

She continued in school until the 5th grade when the family moved to Sudan. She had a long period of illness about this time and because of the nature of her illness, she was sent during two summers to the mountains of New Mexico where she visited her cousins. She climbed mountains and went on hikes and seemed to improve with every day.

She was also in the fifth grade when she put on her first hearing aid. George Mahon Sr. of Lubbock called at the Meeks home and sold the hearing aid to her mother. It was the most painful type of aid, a bone conductor, the one with a very tight band across the head. She came home crying every day from the tension of wearing the aid. The children would pull at the cords and she would leave the device in the principal's office for periods of time.

On one occasion some of the children tore the aid into pieces, and the school replaced it with a new one. She wore it through the 6th grade of school and then was forced to leave it off after the doctor said it was causing too much tension for her. After discarding the aid, Jo Anne was put in front of the class and learned by reading lips and studying alone until she was a junior in high school.

At about that time she became ill again and lost more of her hearing. She then had an 82 per cent loss.

Through the encouragement of a friend, who was a polio victim, Jo Anne visited the Rehabilitation Center in Lubbock. The staff there immediately began to help her. She was placed in a beauty school where she studied for three months, until it was learned that she was allergic to many of the beauty aids, and was forced to give it up. It was then that she decided to re-enter high school and continue with her education at Springlake High School.

Jo Anne worked hard during her early years. She chopped cotton during the summers. She didn't mind as this meant she could go to school in the fall. The money she made from chopping would provide clothes and necessities to keep her in school. That meant everything to the growing girl. And there was the piano which she longed for. It was $100 and by saving rigorously, she was able to purchase it just before she became ill in her junior year and to this day she has never had the opportunity to learn to play.

After the illness which kept her out of school for some time, she heard of a doctor in San Francisco who performed extensive ear surgery and had been known to help cases similar to Jo Anne's. A brother invited her to come out to California and visit him and his family and try to see Dr. Sooy. Finally she went to San Francisco and stayed three months before she was permitted to see the renowned doctor. Jo Anne paid for her room and board at the different places she lived in the city by keeping house and taking care of children. At one interval she lived with her uncle, at which time she washed, ironed, and cooked for her board and room.

The day of the surgery finally arrived. A day in November of 1962, Jo Anne was overjoyed at the thought of being able to hear and speak as other girls of her age. The doctor performed a myringo-plasty and tympano-plasty with nine student doctors assisting. Jo Anne was the 150th patient to have this particular type of surgery.

A small piece of skin was taken from her arm and put on ice and kept alive. During the surgery, the skin was grafted inside the ear to form an ear drum in each of her ears. Her head was bandaged for months and she suffered much pain.

Disappointment and discouragement followed when Jo Anne was told there would have to be more surgery. This time it would be a mastoidectomy. Again her head was bandaged for about two months and after the second and final operation, she gained most of her hearing.

Jo Anne is now able to attend college without the great difficulty she once had. Her speech is also improved, only a slight impediment is detected. She says she shall always be grateful to a freshman English teacher who kept her in after school an hour each day and helped her with her dictation.

She is currently employed at the Rectory in Littlefield. She teaches catechism to the children in the Sacred Heart Church and is an active member of the Ladies Society.

Her goal is to become an elementary teacher. She has made a start at South Plains College.

She attended one semester last year taking English and economics. For lack of transportation, she was not able to go the final semester last year. This year she is back again at SPC taking English and art. She does not intend to stop here, she plans to continue studying until she reaches her ultimate goal.

Jo Anne thinks there are many people who have handicapped children and do not realize that they are handicapped. She admonishes parents to check into this possibility and learn whether or not the child is handicapped. "Don't let your child be a misfit, not being, as I did," she said. "Give them tests and be sure."

She expressed her appreciation to her relatives, and others who have helped her financially, emotionally and physically along her road of life, which, as she stated, "has been no bed of roses." She feels no bitterness whatever, "I did not look for the idealistic, it is my life and I have taken nothing for granted, and I'm trusting that my road in the future will be somewhat smoother."

Scouts In Exposition Saturday

Littlefield Cubs, Scouts and Explorers will be among some 135 units with booths in the gigantic Scout Exposition Saturday in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Two shows are on the agenda--a matinee from 2 to 4:30 p.m. and an evening show from 7 to 9:30. Admission is 50 cents and tickets may be purchased from Scouts in your neighborhood or at the door.

Scout units from all over the 20-county South Plains Council will have booths with themes such as archery, cooking, camping, emergency service, realistic first aid, rattlesnake burgers, skin diving, nature, pinewood derbys, auto mechanics, astronomy, photography, mountain climbing, boat building, handicrafts, and many more.

There will also be special entertainment originating from the stage on the floor of the coliseum all during the shows.

FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHTER--Jo Anne Meeks, a 24-year-old evening school student at South Plains College, is working on a college degree and a goal of being an elementary teacher after overcoming serious speech and hearing defects. Miss Meeks is employed at the Sacred Heart Rectory in Littlefield and attends evening school at SPC in Levelland.

Cadillac

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

THIS OWNER LOVES IT!

The three pictures above illustrate one reason for their enthusiasm. The top car is a 1963 model . . . the center car is a 1962 Cadillac . . . and the lower car is four years old. The styling through the years has evolved and refined, but each is unmistakably a Cadillac.

These owners share a common knowledge. Not even most new motor cars offer the degree of pleasure and reliability that come with a previously owned Cadillac.

First, there is Cadillac's renowned craftsmanship, which results in a car of unusual endurance.

Next, consider value. The equipment on a Cadillac of older vintage is still extra cost on most new cars . . . and includes such features as Hydra-Matic, power steering, power brakes, power windows on most models . . . plus many Cadillac engineering advancements that still have not found their way into other new 1964 cars.

And don't overlook Cadillac's reputation for operating economy--comparable to many smaller cars.

So when you make your next motor car investment, new or used, consider only one name--Cadillac.

FOR AREA ADULT FARMERS

Swine Short Course Starts Here Monday

A swine short course for adult farmers will be held Monday through Thursday under the sponsorship of the Littlefield High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to Glenn Reeves, superintendent, and W.W. Hall, LHS Ag teacher.

Joe Tocquigny, swine specialist with the vocational agriculture division of the Texas Education Agency and the Department of Animal Husbandry at Texas A & M University, will be the instructor.

Tocquigny holds a BS degree in Agriculture education from Texas A & I College, and an MS degree in agriculture from Texas A & I. He has been a Hampshire breeder and commercial feeder for the past 10 years, maintaining a 15-sow herd.

"Many swine courses in various parts of the state have been taught by Mr. Tocquigny and all have met with outstanding success," according to Hall. Arrangements for the adult education short course in swine husbandry and in other fields are made through the supervisor of vocational agriculture in Plainview.

The short course in Littlefield is scheduled to begin Monday at 8 p.m. in the vocational agriculture building. Other meetings in the series of four will be held the following three nights, beginning at 8 o'clock. During the dates the short course is in progress, Tocquigny will be available to assist students with individual problems and to provide on-the-farm instruction, according to Hall.

Farmers interested in attending the short course should write or call Supt. Reeves or the teacher of vocational agriculture, Hall. An entry fee of $2 will be charged. Swine Production Short Course Certificates are to be presented to each student who attends all the training sessions.

Tocquigny states that the short course will be adjusted to wishes and interests of farmers enrolled, but that he expects to cover such subjects as selecting and breeding, feeding and feeding requirements, management, disease and parasites, housing and equipment, and marketing.

"Short courses in swine production, as well as in other areas, are now available to farmers throughout the state under the cooperative program between Texas Education Agency and Texas A & M University," stated Bob Jaska, associate professor of agricultural education at Texas A & M, who coordinates the program.

"This cooperative program," states Jaska, "is designed to make the services of specialists available to conduct short courses under the supervision of public schools. Such a program will enable teachers of vocational agriculture to provide improved educational services to farm people."

Specialists are now available in the fields of beef production, insect control, farm management, farm electrification, farm (arc) welding, swine production, tractor maintenance, dairy science, pasture and oxy-acetylene welding.

Davidson To Cattle Meet

Cattlemen from areas throughout the Southwest will play a prominent role in proceedings at the 87th annual convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Dallas, March 16-18.

Attending from Littlefield and Sudan is Jim Davidson, member of the Cattle Feeders committee.

In addition to serving on committees and attending general business sessions, cattlemen will hear a number of outstanding authorities discuss recent developments in the cattle industry.

Among the highlights will be the presentation of the state winning 4-H beef demonstration by Paul Beaver of Talpa and Jack Horne of Coleman, the presentation of the TSCRA Distinguished Service Award, and the annual "Cattlemen's Ball."

Revised Cooley Bill Explained

There is now a good possibility that the months of hard work by the various segments of the cotton industry toward getting new cotton legislation may not go for naught. It looks now like the revised version of the Cooley Bill, which was passed by the House early last December and is being considered by the Senate as of this writing, has a good chance of becoming law in time for the 1964 crop.

The bill now being considered by the Senate would not do all things for all people. What it would do, however, is accomplish the stated objective of correcting the inequity of the two-price system and providing cotton to domestic mills at a price which is competitive with world markets.

With the growing demand for custom milling of feed in Texas, mobile feed mills are becoming popular. Custom milling, which involves processing the farmer's own grain into feed with balanced concentrates, has increased since 1939.

A new aspect was added with the advent of the mobile mill. With this complete processing unit mounted on a truck, grain and roughage can be ground, feed concentrates mixed and molasses fed right on the farm.

The first mobile feed operation was established in Texas in 1955, according to MP-689, "An Analysis of Mobile Feed Milling Operations in Texas." The new publication of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station says that in 1961 the number had jumped to 75.

For a copy of MP-689, contact the Department of Agricultural Information, Texas A & M University, College Station, Texas.

SCS NEWS REPORT

Irrigation Water Management Vital

Irrigation water management, a relatively new conservation practice, can be of vital importance to the South Plains farmer. But just what is "irrigation water management?"

The Soil Conservation Service defines it as: the use and management of irrigation water to produce agronomic crops and pastures which will bring ample economic returns to the irrigator and conserve his soils for future productions.

This is a management practice which involves many factors. The quantity of irrigation water used for each watering may be determined by the moisture-holding capacity of the soil, the needs of the crop, the application of water at a rate and manner that the crops can use it efficiently, and the prevention of erosion when applying the water.

The length of run is too short an uneconomical use of water occurs. If the length of run is too long the plants closest to the water source may become water logged while the plants farthest from the water source receive insufficient amounts of water.

The prevention of erosion comes high on the list of irrigation water management practices. Should the grade of slope of the furrow watered become too great the soil will be removed from the area closest to the water source. Channels may be cut in the furrow exposing plant roots or water may pile up at the end of the furrow and become lost by spilling over as run off.

The needs of the various crops for moisture varies from crop to crop. One element in determining this is knowing when the period of maximum water use for each crop occurs in its growth stage.

For example, grain sorghums begin their heaviest need for moisture about 25 days after planting, or at the seven-leaf stage, and reach their peak of water use in the middle of the booting period. Cotton plants begin their heavy need for moisture about 45 days after planting, or when the first squares appear, and reach their peak of water use during the peak of the bloom period.

The application of water so that the plants can use it efficiently may vary with the type of irrigation system. When using a furrow type surface system the length of run would be held to a length that will allow efficient distribution of water down the furrow.

The personnel of the Soil Conservation Service are ready to help the farmers of Lamb County in planning any irrigation water management problems that they may have.

'64 CHEVROLET-THE GREAT HIGHWAY PERFORMER

Nothing feels steep in a Chevrolet Impala (including the price!)

A hill is just something to admire the view from in a '64 Chevrolet with engines up to a 425-hp V8.

And if Chevrolet can go over a whole mountain so you hardly feel it, you can imagine how it goes over plain old bumps. Jet-smooth, of course, because we put a big coil spring at all four wheels (and 700 sound and shock absorbers throughout the car).

As you'd expect, Chevrolet turns in its usual fine performance with everything inside that big beautiful body by Fisher, too. All kinds of stretch-room. Wide thick-cushioned seats. Yards of deep-tufted carpeting and elegant fabric and vinyl upholstery. You feel good just being there. You can see how anyone might get the idea this is a high-priced car. Unless they happened to look first at its Chevrolet price.

And your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to show you that the price is probably what you feel least of all.
