for raising a financial specialist in cooperation with the Texas A. and M. College Extension service. The specialist has headquarters in Lubbock and works in the 18 counties of extension service district 2.

Guy Carpenter, who has held the job as insect specialist, is resigning to go into private business. W. H. Jones, district agent for the Extension service, was given the responsibility of hiring a specialist to replace Carpenter.

Jones is also to investigate the possibility of employing an assistant insect specialist.

Fortenberry appointed a money-raising committee with approval of the cotton leaders. This committee met at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Agriculture building. Their job will be to raise the money which will be used to help pay salary and travel expenses of the insect specialist. The Extension service pays about half of this expense.

Members of the war chest committee include: John I. Bowling, who is a ginmer from Hale Center; Jim Plemmons, ginmer; Dave Sherrill, county agent; Roy Davis and O. L. Penderman, cotton oil mill men; W. A. Wood, insecticide dealer; John Key, banker; Wayne Smith, Brownfield Chamber of Commerce, and Harold Bodley, chamber of commerce; Ike Dunbar, cotton buyers; E. K. Hufstedler, Bob Helms and Harry Cling of Littlefield, machinery dealers; Carl Fleming and Tom Cadenhead, butane dealers; Henry English, pump dealer; Jacke Hassell, department stores; and Charles Stillwell and Archie Underwood, cotton compress men.

Bowling and Bill Tilson, both of Meadow, will work with the farm bureau organizations in each county. Others will be named later.

Pederman, Lubbock manager for Anderson-Clayton, was appointed chairman of a committee to investigate and possibility of a cotton insect and insecticide laboratory at Lubbock sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture.

K. N. Clapp, also of Anderson-Clayton, told the group how successful he believes the insect control program has been.

"Two years ago most of us and the farmers wouldn't have known a cotton flea hopper if it had lit on our nose. Now I believe 75 per cent of the farmers are beginning to recognize harmful insects."

Jim Foy, Terry county agent, said his county is planning to drop out of the program.

"It's not that they don't believe in it," Foy said. "It is because down there they figure the farmers and the county agent have

You and Your Congress

CIVILIAN MANPOWER questions have combined with uncertainties about the military draft to bring worried looks to Congress.

Is the Defense Production Act, which is the basis for the current Economic Stabilization efforts, going to have to be amended to insure labor's continued participation in the defense program?

Does the present stage of defense production justify the record-breaking federal payroll towards which we are heading?

FEW MEMBERS of Congress fully realize when they enacted the Defense Production Act last summer that efforts to protect the farmer would contribute to the current impasse between labor leaders and the Economic Stabilization Agency. The Act contained a section which said generally that no ceilings on foods could be imposed which would mean less than a parity price for the farmer. Since some major food items were still below parity, ceilings could not be imposed on them when the government slapped on its general price and wage freeze.

Labor contends that it needs authority to negotiate certain wage increases to offset the rise in the price of food and other cost-living items. Stabilization officials agreed. But the two groups simply could not get together on how much the increase should be.

So labor pulled out the Wage Stabilization Board, which with the Office of Price Stabilization makes up the ESC.

Therefore, Congress was puzzled. If it did not change the law, complete across-the-board price controls seemed impossible. If it tried to correct the law, the farm bloc would not be happy. As Defense agencies sprouted and mushroomed in Washington and across the country, the federal payroll began to jump.

The joint Congressional Committee on Non-

Essential Federal Expenditures makes these pertinent observations:

1. Federal civilian employment of nearly two million persons has become the basis for post-World War II increases which were more than 1,000 a day even last fall. There are federal "jobs" stations in every county in the nation except Armstrong County, South Dakota.

2. Unless there is more efficient manpower use in the federal government, efforts will be made by executive agencies to accelerate this rate of civilian employment increase for the foreseeable future.

3. Demands for industrial production and the preparation build-up of the armed forces already have resulted in official indications "that the bottom of the manpower barrel is in sight."

4. By next June 30, the federal payroll will be running at an annual rate in excess of the World War II peak of $4.2 billion.

All these facts are preying heavily on the minds of Senators and Representatives as the time approaches for votes on those parts of President Truman's $71 billion budget which do not relate strictly to the National Defense Establishment. They are wondering how they are going to control the situation.

PREDICTIONS were being made on Capitol Hill this week that Congress will not provide for the drafting of a youth for military service as soon as it becomes 18.

On the other hand, it seems likely that Congress will decide to give a youth sufficient military training so that by the time he becomes 18 he could be called on for actual military service. Such a training period would be from four to six months.

The Armed Services Committees of both the Senate and House are still looking for ways to meet from as many sources as possible before tapping the 18-year-old group.

Dressed for fun in the sun, this pretty vacationer chooses a fetching cotton shorts ensemble that allows her to absorb a maximum of Old Sol's tanning rays. Here, she has added a neat little jacket as a cover-up for a few minutes' recess. The three-piece cotton picnic outfit was designed by Korset of California.

Texas Narcotic Thefts Reach High Total

TEXARKANA, Tex.—(AP)—Theft of narcotics in Texas last year totaled upwards of $50,000 for what the department of public safety calls a "probable high for the nation in 1950."

The department's statement was included in a survey by Ernest Valachovic of the Texarkana Gazette which deals with the state and national illegal drug trade.

Glen H. McLaughlin, chief of the Texas bureau of identification and records said the value of narcotic losses in the state last year is only a small percentage of the value the drugs acquired when they reached the illegal market.

McLaughlin said the illegal narcotics are "brought in" from Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio. These dealers in turn, are tied in with supply sources in Kansas, Oklahoma, Michigan, Illinois, New York, Louisiana and other states.

A trend noted by McLaughlin and Frank Dove, U. S. Commissioner of Customs is a two-way traffic with Eastern interests trading in opium type drugs, presumably smuggled in from the Middle East, for marijuana of Mexican origin.

Thus local gangs in the Southwest obtain narcotics, especially heroin, for peddling to addicts, while Easterners get marijuana for the big city "Reefer Trade."

Drug experts list heroin as the most popular drug; morphine the most common, with demoral, a habit forming synthetic opiate, also climbing into favor. Cunningham explained heroin is favored by peddler and addict alike because of its small bulk and superior euphoric effect. Heroin must be smuggled or clandestinely produced because this outlawed drug long ago.

McLaughlin said available records show that the greater proportion of addicts are males, but police reports indicate numerous instances where young girls are being induced by boys to use marijuana.

—Addiction Rises—
The Bureau of Narcotics states there has been a "disturbing" rise in narcotic addiction in the past two or three years, principally among young hoodlums, some of them in their late teens.

Springlake School Bond Proposition To Be Submitted to Voters of District

An election will be called in a few days by the School Board of Springlake Independent School District for a vote of the resident property taxpayers on whether or not the School Board will have authority to issue $40,000.00 schoolhouse bonds. It is set out in the petitions that the bonds, if voted, will mature serially and annually over a period of 16 years from their date. The bonds would bear interest at a rate not to exceed 2 1/2 per cent.

If the election carries the money will be spent for the construction, equipment and repair of buildings. The particular improvements needed to the present facilities are:

- (1) Installation and improvement of sewer and water systems.
- (2) Chairs for auditorium and gym.
- (3) Purchase of equipment for transportation.

There will be three propositions on the ballot for the voters to decide:

First: The $1.50 maintenance tax. It is necessary to vote the maintenance tax again before issuance of the bonds. This is due to the fact that some territory has been put into the district since the last maintenance tax election. The territory added to the district was from the old Pleasant Valley School District of Lamb County. Since the maintenance tax rate NOW is $1.50, the voting of this tax limit will in no way increase the tax rate. It is merely to spread the tax of $1.50 equally over the entire district.

Second: Debt Assumption: The Springlake School District now owes $82,668.00. The proposition on the ballot at this election is merely to spread the indebtedness over the entire district, including the new territory taken in from the Pleasant Valley School District. The spreading or assumption of this debt does not in any way increase the debt now outstanding. This simply means a uniform tax levy can be set over all the district to pay this outstanding debt.

Third: The $40,000.00 schoolhouse bonds: The proposed bonds are described above. It is also set out above what the funds will be used for. The voting of these bonds will not raise the tax rate, as the rate to pay interest, and principal of the bonds, must, under the law, be a part of the $1.50 maintenance tax, which is now levied by the district. The law states that 50 cents out of this $1.50 may be used to service bonded debt; that is, to pay interest and principal. At the present time, it requires a tax levy of about 35 cents to service the $82,668.00 bonded debt, leaving out of the $1.50 total tax $1.15 for operation and maintenance of schools. If the new bonds are voted, the school board will levy about 50 cents tax for all indebtedness, which will leave $1.00 tax levy for operation and maintenance. So the voting of these bonds cannot in any way raise the tax rate as the maximum is $1.50 and this tax is now being levied. It is to be noted that the district now, after paying its indebtedness, has $1.15 tax levy left to operate on, pay teachers, maintain buildings, etc. If the new bonds are voted, this maintenance tax will be able to maintain and operate the schools.

Since a 10 cent tax levy is all the tax rate which can be set aside by a district to pay indebtedness, it will be necessary to raise valuations in the future to an extent necessary to service any later bonds for a new building, if one is ever required by the school district. The district does not always have ample money in its operational and maintenance funds. This may have to be done regardless of whether the proposed $40,000.00 bonds are voted or not. The school must give consideration to raising and equalizing assessed valuation.

The voter should note, however, from the above, that the voting of the $40,000.00 proposed bonds, will not raise the tax rate. However, valuation will have to be increased if it becomes necessary.

Need State Help
C. W. Cunningham, Deputy U. S. Commissioner of narcotics, stated that "Federal Laws are generally adequate except that the situation would be improved if mandatory penitentiary sentences of substantial length were required in cases of second and subsequent offenders."
"Narcotic addiction is actually contagious in that it spreads from one individual to the new thrill seeker. Bearing that in mind, most state laws may be deficient in the matter of compelling addicts, to take treatment."

TEEN TALK

By VIVIAN BROWN

What's the matter with American girls—on the romantic scene, that is? Why do some of their sweethearts marry girls across the sea?

So many girls are concerned about this problem and the man shortage, that I asked war correspondent Hal Boyle, recently back from Korea, what in his estimation foreign girls have that American girls do not have.

Mr. Boyle's answer is simple. Says he:

"Japanese and French girls, in particular, are more feminine than the average American girl. They are modest and charming and learn how to build a guy up. American boys love it."

What does Boyle mean by "building a guy up?" He defines it as that certain something which makes a fellow feel important, permitting him to make a few decisions—a privilege he is not always accorded by American women, he says. Abroad he is not likely to be led around "by the nose" as he is in this country.

So there you have it in a nutshell, girls. The boys want a rat on the back, not occasionally, but pretty darn often. And if that's what they want—well, why not?

The little girls in Japan, in particular, impress our boys with their courtesy and willingness to please them. Some boys tell us they are embarrassed by all this sudden affection.

One could point out that 18,000,000 working women in this country not only grease the wheels of industry, but the family bankroll as well, not to mention assuming all the household and nursery chores. They probably are just about as feminine as might be expected after daily bouts in the man's world. If the poor husband must seek his own dropped collar buttons or draw his own bath water, he is put upon, indeed.

But if he wants femininity, give it to him. You don't have to put him on a leash and stroke his brow every few seconds to make a pet out of him. Rustle up some of those superlatives you use to describe next season's fashions. For instance:

1. If you know more than he does about a particular thing, don't let him know it. Treat him to the "wonderful," "marvelous," "stupendous," "terrific" routine, even if you don't share his viewpoint.
2. Make him feel like heap-big-man-on-campus even if he's low-man-on-school-thermometer.
3. Be awed by money. Act as if you'd never seen it before, and don't tell him how to spend it.
4. Make a big thing over presents (if you get any). Don't say, "Do you mind if I exchange it for . . ."
5. When and if he proposes, do not mention that you'd like to continue working to help out with the family exchequer.
6. It is a good idea not to appear too healthy if you're adopting this new feminine viewpoint. Cancel dates occasionally because you have the vapors or ague or some such.
7. If you should play tennis or golf with him, let him win by a big healthy margin, and of course ask him to suggest a few pointers on how you can improve your game.

Mr. Boyle points out, however, that a very small percentage of American boys do not come back to their sweethearts, and a few get fooled settling for second-best. Take the American author, who

SWC May Change Mind On Letting Frosh Play

BY WILBUR MARTIN
Associated Press Staff

The Southwest Conference turned down the proposal to allow freshmen to compete in spring sports this year, but don't be surprised to see a change of heart in May.

When the faculty representatives gather for their annual spring meeting, there's going to be a lot of talk about manpower and football.

Four schools voted against the proposal to use freshmen in spring sports; three were for it.

At the spring meeting, this topic will probably be brought up again with football the sport in mind. Just a hunch, but when this vote is taken, it will probably be five to two—in favor.

Proponents are going to argue that it takes more men to play football. They'll also argue that Uncle Sam is going to take more men for his Armed Forces, and that colleges must utilize every man they've got if they're to continue sports—football particularly.

At about the same time of the year, the smaller conferences will be holding their spring meetings. Most will put a freshman rule into effect. They may also change their transfer rules.

At the moment, none of the several conferences in Texas are in danger of losing teams for the duration of the emergency. But there are a couple of independent teams reportedly ready to quit.

The University of Corpus Christi has already given up football. Midwestern dropped track.

West Texas State recently finished a basketball game with just shall be nameless, who married a Japanese girl, and even became a Japanese citizen. Mr. Boyle says that rumor has it that he's the most hen-pecked man in Japan.

That's consolation, girls! four players. The other three on the squad had fouled out.

This brought an anguished plea from West Texas that the border conference allow freshmen to compete—right away, immediately if not sooner.

The Canyon school didn't get that quick action, but the conference did start wheels turning for a vote.

SOLDIER ENTRIES BOOST REGIONAL BOXING TOURNAMENTS IN TEXAS

Arthur Martin
Associated Press Staff

Boxing is one sport in Texas that may help rather than hinder. That's Golden Glove Boxing. Soldier entries boosted tremendously regional tournaments this year at Waco, San Antonio, and El Paso.

again produce bumper crops of fighters.

During World War II, soldier boxers dominated most regional tournaments. They also entered heavily in Texas amateur athletic federation tournaments.

The Golden Glove is one sport where nobody expects everybody to look like a champion. Fans recognize it as amateur effort and courage counts more than class.

And there are few sports where the "Booses" look after the athletes more carefully than in the state Golden Gloves Tournament.

Each fighter gets a complete physical examination before every bout and the doctors have no qualms about ruling out an entry if they think there is the slightest danger he may be seriously hurt if he fights.

Referees are also instructed to stop immediately any bout where it is obvious one fighter is hopelessly outclassed.

A cut over an eye—if it is deep—is an automatic technical knockout. Grayford Campbell of Fort Worth lost a state bout this way, even though he was winning by a big majority.

The only reward the fighters get are small trophies and—if they win—a trip to the state or national tournament.

Some of the individual trophies are worth fighting for, like state championship rings or the gladiator trophies given in the Amarillo regional tournament.

Selective Service System Reports 33,818 Draftees Rejected in Three Months

Baylor Student Has Varied Existence

WACO, Tex., March 2 (AP)—William Anthony Shell, 19, Baylor University student, joined the Navy, but not to see the world.

He's seen it. Born in Belgrade, son of a Polish mother who was born in China and an Ozarist colonel who escaped the Bolsheviks, young Shell was bombed in Posen, besieged in Warsaw, put in a concentration camp in China by the Japanese. He came to the U. S. from Mexico.

The Navy plans to use Shell as an interpreter. He speaks four languages, has forgotten a fifth, can count in a sixth and hopes to learn a seventh.

The Selective Service System reports that of 33,818 draftees in Texas in the three months of August, September, and October, 12,346 or 36.5 per cent, were rejected for military service.

Rejected for physical reasons were 4,150 or 12.3 per cent of the total, and on mental tests were 7,540 or 22.3 per cent. Other factors entered into the rejection of the rest.

In the southern states as a whole, 48.9 per cent of all those examined were rejected; for the nation as a whole, those rejected accounted for 40.1 per cent of the total. Those rejected for failure to pass mental tests accounted for 34.9 per cent of the total examined in the southern states, 18.6 per cent for the nation as a whole.

He is a member of the Cadet Honor Committee, Ski, Golf, and Skeeet Clubs. Upon being graduated in June he hopes to be commissioned in the Corps of Engineers.

Before entering the Academy he served in the Air Force and attended Texas Technological

Personal To Women With Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-assertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Texans Help Operate Latin Culture Centers

(By AP Washington Service)
WASHINGTON (AP)—Six Texans are helping to operate cultural centers in Latin America through which the State Department seeks to promote good will and understanding between those countries and the United States.

One of the oldest centers is that at Lima, Peru, now in its 11th year, where Mrs. Edwin T. Cornelius, Jr., of Fort Worth is director of courses.

Another Texas woman, Miss Faye Bumpass of Lubbock, was there for several years, teaching English to the natives so they could instruct others.

Miss Bumpass now has an assignment which takes her from one Central American republic to another, conducting special English courses and offering suggestions for improvement of the various centers. She spent Christmas in Guatemala.

Other Texans engaged in the program are:

Anita Proviolo, of Anthony, N.N.M., and El Paso, with the State Department here; Louis L. Curcio of Houston, director of the cultural center at Rosario, Argentina; Miss Virginia N. Hightower of Newgulf, teacher of English at Santiago, Chile; Mrs. Aurora de Luzardo, San Antonio, English teacher at Bogata, Colombia.

gained from the movies, some tourists and overly aggressive businessmen.

3. Sponsorship of social organizations, discussion groups, exhibitions and concerts.

4. Establishment of libraries; sometimes the only library to be found in a community is that set up at the cultural center. Books are in both English and the native language.

The cultural centers are financed largely by the communities in which the centers are located, or by the national government of the country. The United States put up only 19 per cent of the total cost of the program in 1949, the last year for which figures are available, and that went largely to hire Americans as teachers and administrators.

AROUND THE CAPITAL

The new assignment of Galveston's Rep. Clark Thompson, that of assistant whip, is one of the major rungs in the ladder toward leadership in the House.

As right hand man to Rep. Griest (D-Tenn.), the whip, the Texan has to see that the Democratic members are on the floor when a vote is about to be taken on a close issue.

The chef in the House restaurant got a special course recently in the preparation of Mexican food Texas style.

Rep. Ken Beagan of Midland was host at a luncheon in the Capitol. Mrs. Beagan went into the House kitchen to see that the food was prepared according to Texas standards. The ingredients came from El Paso.

Under the heading "Old-Age Assistance," an article appeared in the Congressional Record quoting a letter by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rosson of Austin.

Put in the Journal by Rep. Homer Thornberry of Austin, who asked that his colleagues consider it carefully, the letter said:

"You must certainly be aware of the suffering of our aged citizens who are compelled to exist on an average of $42 per month old-age assistance, or $26 per month old age insurance. Compare this income with the $150 per month which our government suggests is the amount required to provide a decent standard of living. How are these people supposed to live?"

Roy Othello Jackson, formerly a geologist with the Magnolia Petroleum Company at Dallas, has been loaned by the Geological Survey to the Saudi Arabian government to help survey critically needed ground water supplies in that country. With Glen Francis Brown, a graduate of the New Mexico School of Mines, he is already at work in Saudi Arabia.

A native of Detroit, Mich., Jackson worked in World War Two on aerial photography for the U. S. Air Force in Mexico, French Equatorial Africa, the African Gold Coast, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Gives Vivid Word Picture of Fighting In Korea

Winans, now a patient in a San Antonio military hospital, is a nephew of Mrs. Julia Kelly, 821 West Eighth street, Littlefield.

The Leader is indebted to Mrs. Dan Heard, Littlefield resident, for arranging to have this newspaper print Pfc. Winans' interesting letter.

The letter, published in part, follows:

December 21, 1950
Dear Sus:
I guess you have heard by now that I am in a hospital. Well, this is how I am here, thanks to Almighty God:

We moved up past the first marine division, and we were going to make an attack on Chosen River-erwin. The next day we were going up one side of the river and the marines the other, but that night they attacked us and pushed us back up the road a mile or so, to where the field artillery was.

We fought all night. The next day we pushed them back to our old position, then we heard they had cut us off from the marines which was not good for we were low on supplies and ammunition. We fought that night and the next morning we dropped back a hundred yards and a bunch of us built a line around some wounded we had in a house.

We were there about two hours when all of a sudden I had a streak of fire hit me in the shoulder. I thought I lay down and called for the medics with a stretcher. I thought I was going to die. They brought the stretcher up and then got pinned down by enemy fire, and they couldn't get to me at the time.

Then something hit again. "My jaw," I bellowed "they got me again, my jaw's off—" but it wasn't. I was just hit in the ear. It was hurting, and I was bleeding like a stuck pig. I rolled over on stretcher which was near, then the medics ran, grabbed the stretcher, and took it behind the house where they gave me a shot of morphine, to ease the pain, and asked me where they got me.

I told them in my shoulder and jaw. Then they took me down to the aid station, and the doctor asked me where I was hit. I said in my shoulder. He said, "You haven't got a hole there." Then he looked on my neck near my throat; there was the hole and it came out at the back.

He patched me up, put a tag on me, and sent me to the tent where there were a lot more wounded fellows.

I lay in the tent for awhile, then they started coming in, hitting near the tent. I was scared and everyone else was scared.

A little closer—a little closer—then I started praying that they wouldn't hit the tent. Then one hit the tent corner, about eight feet from me. The fellow lying there didn't know what had happened. The doctor came in. "We are going to try to take you all to the marines and get you out of here."

We loaded on trucks. There were about five or six trucks loaded with wounded guys. We started out with bullets going through the boards on one side, and going out the other side of the truck. I looked over at my buddy to ask him what he thought. There were two fellows between us.

He had just got hit between the eyes.

We rode all that night. It was pretty bad. We ran about ten miles when there wasn't a second that they weren't firing at us. Finally we came to a road block. They turned the machine gun on the trucks, jeeps and three quarters. They killed all the drivers and we ran without ammunition. They made a banzi attack. I crowded over behind a pile of logs. I lay there after everyone had run off that could run. They were all around me.

I played like I was dead. Two of them walked over and looked at me but I just lay there and didn't even breathe, then they left and went back up to the road, about 50 yards from me. I raised up and looked around, after lying there about two hours.

There were hundreds of Chinks up on the road. I had to leave, as it was fixing to get daylight, so I said to myself, "I HAVE to leave—if they see me after daylight they'll kill me!"

So I got to my feet. I could hardly stand up. I was so weak, but I walked off, expecting a bullet to get me any minute. But they didn't even fire at me.

I walked and walked about a mile down the road. I made it in about 45 minutes. It was daylight and the sun was up. I came to a village and stopped at a house. The river was out back.

There were some other guys in the house and we stayed there a long time—two or three hours. Finally an old native came in and told us there was a GI jeep out back on the Icy river. We went out back, toward the jeep, and a lot of fellows were walking around picking up bodies of wounded guys and putting them on the jeep. It didn't look like GI's to us GI's—so I looked at the other two and said, "Well, we'll have to take a chance," so we took off through the snow on the river toward them. We started waving our hands so the guys at the jeep wouldn't shoot at the three of us.

We got to the jeep, and saw it was marines. We were really happy to see them! They had a jeep load of wounded GI's and said that the ones who could walk should start following the jeep tracks.

A lieutenant asked us if there were any more at the village. There were two ROK's—who couldn't walk. He started toward the house we showed him.

The jeep started off toward a village a way off in the distance, and we started to following its tracks. The jeep came back empty and it picked up and took us to where there were two or three trucks parked about 100 yards off the ice. We got in the truck and went to an airport, got on a plane, which took us to a hospital in Korea, and from there we flew to another hospital in Japan, and from there to here.

I am doing fine and getting lots of rest and sleep.

Clapp added, "We lost about 25 per cent of our cotton to insects last year and I remember years when we lost 40 or 45 per cent of our crop to insects when we didn't have a hint as many insects as last year."

TEXAS FISHING

By BOB BRISTER

Athens, Tex., March 1.—(P)—Now is the time to get things ready for spring. To a fisherman this means tackle.

For the plug caster, for instance, there's a real pleasure in knocking the cobwebs off a favorite reel and having it in the time of the reel again.
Look over the reel first. If it's a bamboo check the frame for signs of cracks. Casts reels need plenty of care. Steel or glass reels need hardly any care, but it's always good to glance at the windings and guides. A cracked spring has ruined many a fishing trip.
Your reel, unless you're one in a million, is going to need attention. Fix it up too.

Take a small cut of gasoline or kerosene and use it to clean the reel's gears, but be careful not to assemble the reel until the oil has dried. Wash everything thoroughly and be sure to clean out your fishing gear.
Then grease the gears with a lubricant made especially for the purpose. All of the bearings and oil things back together again.
And now what's really new? Well, the tackle box has been looked over. Make sure it's in the shape it was in. A lot of other things will be up.

When the fish are out after the winter months, you'll be glad to get the tackle back in shape. It's a good idea to have it ready to go.

Chignons Back In Fashion

By BETTY CLARK

47 Newmarket, Beauty Editor.
Chignons are back in fashion because they help transform little tresses into waves, curls, and bouffant hair styles.
This is the custom of last year's designers. They thought that the European wig makers, and it's coming to the Americans, would lead the way to the hair styles of the future.
"They were absolutely miserable about the short hair styles. They saw their own hair as really they love women to have beautiful and feminine hair. They were under no illusion as regards their own hair styles. They were in a hurry to get back to the hair styles of the past."

Women who had, toward the short hair styles, at once, welcomed the news. They love the idea that they can have different styles with just one set and wear a truly feminine look.
The girl who has just graduated from the hair school, the student who has just finished the course in the hair school, she will be a jiffy with a hair set.

Dairy Cows Need Plenty Water

It takes a lot of water to produce a lot of milk, and dairy cattle do not always drink enough water during the winter months. Quite often, this is because an adequate supply of good water is not available.
Good water is clean and cool, but not colder than 50 degrees F., says R. E. Burleson, associate extension dairy husbandman of Texas A. and M. College. There should also be an adequate supply of water and the cows should not be forced to walk long distances for their drink. They prefer to stay in the barn or under a shed on cold days, and the water supply should be nearby.
The dairy cow is primarily a converter of roughages, reminds Burleson, and since roughages are usually dry feeds and comparatively high in crude fiber, the dairy cow needs a large amount of water for the digestion and absorption of feed nutrients and for the removal of waste from her body.

Burleson reminds also that milk is approximately 87 per cent water. The lack of water will cause a more rapid drop in milk production than will the lack of most feeds.
The average dairy cow will consume from 100 to 120 pounds of water daily. Burleson says that a cow producing 60 pounds of milk daily may drink as much as 180 pounds of water. On the average, dairy cows need from two to three pounds of water per pound of milk produced.
