Every day brings new, amazing things, and a million years from now there will be as many, perhaps more, marvels, some of them coming from neighboring planets, with which we shall have learned to talk.

Boise City, Okla., informs you that scientists hope to drive a railway motor car 42 miles from Boise City to Clayton, N. M., with power sent into space by a short-wave radio broadcast. The Santa Fe railroad expects to make the experiment within ten days.

This may be one step in what will be the greatest of all inventions in connection with transportation—wireless transmission of power.

When flying machines, on their way across the continent, can pick up by wireless, power from Niagara and other stations as they pass, carrying no fuel with them, or pick up power from power stations established in mid-ocean, the flying problem will be solved.

Will Rogers Says---

EVERLY HILLS—Well, all I know is that what I read in the papers, and I have finally found something in them too. They are running the story of Christ written by Charles Dickens for his children. They kept it 45 years, and finally decided to publish it.

Well, its the most interesting and best written story I ever read. Maby its because I have a child's mind. It may be putting it a little high but it tells you so many little things in a connected way that its, well I think its wonderful.

Of course the Bible has always been the Best Seller." But unless you are a seeker of knowledge, or of consolation, it sometimes gets hard to read for a dumb fellow, for there is so much that we cant understand. I dont know there is two preachers in the world that would absolutely interpret whole chapter exactly alike, but any interpretation you put on it is good.

I believe this little plain story will be a great incentive to want to know more. I know I am going to go searching there and find out just where he had all these plain facts.

That Dickens must have been a great writer. You know I never did read him, but you imagine any man growing up into an age when it should be called manhood, and not having read Dickens?

I am sure hate to admit it, but there is a case trying to bull it through that I have done any reading for I havent. I have auster busy during my lifetime, and then too I have done a lot of playing. A lot of folks now think I am a busy, that thats the biggest bunk in the world.

I am always playing around at some time. There is days when I actually write that I havent done a thing but I am around. I could just as well have had one of Mr Dickens' wonderful books. They are down stairs right now, and the children have read em, every one, and with the Senate operating six hours a day, and the House the same, and all the investigations, and the robbers getting out of jalls with candy and a million and one things going on, and I read it all. I just got started in reading good books. Well I think I seem to have gone from a simple Merrivell, and Nick Carter at the Military Academy, right to the Congressional Record, just from one end of low action to another.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

Turning from city newspapers to small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of big dailies are so full of murders, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscure by these glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmers' items, and all the thousands and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our national existence.—Christian Science Monitor.

OUR HOUSING NEEDS

One of the greatest needs in Littlefield is additional housing facilities. And, in our opinion, one of the best ways to solve the housing problems in this city is by the construction of one or more modern apartment buildings.

Such a project, we believe, will offer a very satisfactory return on the investment, because the apartments would be occupied twelve months in the year and at very satisfactory rentals.

The apartments desired by most people are not the large type of four to six rooms. What most people want is a two-room or a three-room efficiency apartment, compact, but offering every facility and convenience.

In view of the fact that suitable land for an apartment building in Littlefield is not expensive, it possibly would be cheaper to erect one-story projects, which would reduce the cost of construction.

In addition to solving the housing problem in Littlefield, the construction of one or more apartment buildings would provide a market for a vast quantity of building materials and would give employment to many workmen.

The suggestion made in this editorial is, we believe, worthy of very serious consideration.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

VENTIETH INSTALLMENT

appears: Ruth Warren, born and raised in an Eastern city, is willed fourth interest in the Dead Lantern ranch in Arizona. With her husband, who is in poor health, and their small son, David, she comes to Arizona to take up her share of the ranch. Ruth's brother, reported killed in Mexico, had left off. They come to Dead Lantern, 85 miles from the nearest railroad, with the help of Charley Thane, neighboring rancher who also carries the rural mail. At the ranch they find the dead lantern, a huge woman, Ann, who greets them suspiciously. As they trudge the five miles to the ranch gate to the house they find a huge rock in a gulch where a whispering rock is said to be. Ruth's husband caught in a rain storm after their arrival contracts pneumonia and passes away before the doctor can be brought. Ruth, alone and without friends attempts to carry on but is balked at almost every turn by the crafty and plotting Charley Thane. Despite obstacles of all kinds Ruth gives notes on her ranch interest to purchase cattle. She is assisted by Old Charley Thane and his son, Will Thane. A Mexican family has been hired to assist with the ranch. A peculiar sickness develops in the livestock. Snavelly calls it "the fever" and says he has a remedy for the water to cure the disease. Ruth discovers trickery in Snavelly's tactics of poisoning her cattle, but says nothing, waiting for additional evidence. Drought is over, by sinking a well in a ravine, the water for the perishing stock. The round-up Ruth has enough to sell to meet her notes.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Mr. Martin gazed thoughtfully at Ruth's head. Presently he asked, "Did this man know you were the only beneficiary of your brother's will?"

"He didn't even know about me until I came to the ranch. I suppose we'd talked he found out there was no one else—I told him my share was three-quarters. He read the will, then I think we might attempt to solve the riddle in this manner; the man may have thought that since you were rather new to ranching he could perhaps encourage you to sell him an interest." Ruth nodded confirmation, and Mr. Martin continued: "He could have given you a cash payment for your holdings, and you might have gone away, assuming that everything had come to a satisfactory conclusion."

Ruth hesitated. "Has my so-called father committed any crime in not telling me that I had no rights on the ranch?"

The lawyer pursed his lips. "No crime, exactly, but it should be plain to any one what his motives were."

"What ought I to do?" asked Ruth.

"I think if I were you, I should tell him that you have consulted an attorney and that you intend to have the will probated. Once that has been done, I do not believe anything further will be done except, of course, the selling of the ranch and the division of the proceeds according to both your interests."

"Oh," Ruth smiled uncertainly as she stood up. "That's a relief. I think I'll be going now. I'll decide later just what I want to do. What do I owe you for your advice?"

Mr. Martin smiled slightly. "You owe me nothing—but here is my card. I rather feel that we shall meet again."

She found David and Will waiting at the machine. During the rest of the afternoon, which was spent at the moving picture show, and later at dinner, Ruth's mind was busy. It was undeniable, that the first time she had been able to leave the ranch and enjoy herself, she could think of nothing but the ranch. She imagined that Will would not notice her preoccupied manner.

This thought was easy in the lighted restaurant, humming with the voices and laughter of many people. But twenty miles out of town—the roadster throbbing into a wall of darkness which never lifted—Will's part in her imaginary conversation with Snavelly became less agreeable.

By the time the car was entering the arroyo east of the barn, Ruth had grown doubtful about saying anything, whatever, to Snavelly. His desire to leave the ranch and to be by himself amounted to a mania—what would he do if she were to tell him that the ranch was to be sold? And she was eighty-five miles from help.

"How long did you say you and your father were going to be away?" asked Ruth, as Will drove past the house.

"About a week. We're leaving tomorrow morning and expect to be home again next Saturday evening."

As they were helping David, who was more than half asleep, out of the car, Ruth thanked Will for the trip. Then said hesitatingly, "I wish you and your father would come over soon—I can't promise you a very cheerful dinner, but—"

"Fine!" Will interrupted tactfully. "You set the day and we'll certainly raise the dust getting here."

"Well, how about coming over the day after you get back—Sunday?" Will nodded. "That'll be all right. We'll show up about noon."

"I wonder—" Ruth paused.

"What?"

"I hate awfully to admit it, but I lost your father's revolver—it was buried when the old house fell. I wish you'd try to get me another like it in Los Angeles. Could you? Te's asked me once or twice why I didn't wear it when I went riding, but I didn't want to tell him."

"Good Lord! Is that all you've been worrying about? Well, forget it right now! Dad's lost more than one gun in his time—as a matter of fact, he was forced to give one or two of 'em away. Sure, I can get you one. But say you should have said something about this before. Here"—Will drew a revolver from the pocket of the car—"keep this until I see you again."

Ruth took the gun without much urging. She stood watchin while he turned the car about. He leaned from the seat. "We'll see you next week—good night."

As she answered, Ruth saw the slowly moving lights swing toward the gulch, and gasped; Snavelly was standing near the fence, partly concealed by a bush.

She ran back to the house. What had Snavelly been doing in the vicinity of the gulch? As she stood on the dark porch Ruth suddenly decided to find Ann.

She knocked on the giantess' door. After a moment Ann slowly opened it. A low-turned lamp burned in the room. She had taken off her shoes and skirt.

"Oh, are you up yet? I just thought I'd tell you that we've come back. Have you been reading, Ann?"

"No, I can't read."

"But why are you dressed? Have you been anywhere?"

The huge woman lowered her eyes and slowly nodded.

"Ann! Have you been down to the rock?"

"I got to go—down there—sometimes." Her eyes darted fearfully in the direction of Snavelly's door and her voice dropped to a husky whisper. "Oh, Gawd, Miss Ruth—you take yo'r little boy an' go 'way from this place!" Ann stepped back and softly closed the door.

Snavelly eyed her cautiously when, at breakfast, Ruth gave him the packet of notes which represented his share of the cattle sale. There was something oddly apologetic and inquisitive in his voice as he asked, "Didn't have no trouble in payin' off the note, did you?"

"Oh, no," answered Ruth, as she seated herself at the table. She was thinking of the money she had just given Snavelly—it had not been earned through any effort of his.

"Nice sort of feller, that Witherspoon," he remarked, guardedly.

"He seemed pleasant," said Ruth.

That morning Snavelly did not ride; he stayed in the neighborhood of the corral. More than once Ruth saw him watching her.

After the noon meal, Ruth went to the corral and caught up Brisket and Sanchez. To her surprise, Snavelly came from the blacksmith shop and helped her saddle the horses.

"Goin' for a ride, eh?" he asked with a strained smile.

"Yes, 'til the mail. Today's Saturday."

"I was jast gittin' set to go down that-away, myself. I'll be startin' directly."

"Perhaps David and I will see you, then," replied Ruth.

Snavelly did not speak for a moment; then said casually. "No use in you goin'—without you're set on it, I can bring the mail."

Ruth ignored this suggestion and helped David to mount.

As she and David rode along the faintly marked road, the girl's mind was busy. The situation on the Dead Lantern was drawing to a climax; it seemed to her as though the very air was tensely charged.

Since the evening before, Ruth had definitely connected Snavelly with the voice in the gulch; he had been standing there by the fence when she and Will came home, and Ann had heard the voice that same evening. She tried to recall Snavelly's whereabouts on the occasions when the voice had spoken. At first she told herself that the man had two or three perfect alibis—yet, were they? Did she know positively that he had gone to Palo Verde on the night of the storm? One thing certain he had not brought back any Mexicans. And that evening when she and Kenneth and David had first come through the gulch, Snavelly had apparently been milking at the barn—yet, Ruth had never known of his milking since. True, he always avoided going through the gulch as though he were afraid of it. But that did not prove that he had nothing to do with the voice. Perhaps he went around, merely to give her the idea that the only thing that definitely mitigated against Snavelly being responsible for the voice was that the legend of the whispering rock was very old—there was no getting around that. Every one knew of the legend; even Don Francisco had heard of it as a boy. She determined to explore the gulch.

But Ruth did not explore the gulch that day. In the mail was a letter addressed to J. B. Snavelly. In the upper left-hand corner of the envelope was the business head of the broker, Witherspoon.

Snavelly had evidently changed his mind about fixing the gate. He was near the saddle shed when Ruth and David returned. Ruth nodded to him but made no other answer to his questioning eyes, until she and David had turned out their horses. Then trunk, and took out the Quaker Oa's Ruth walked up to Snavelly, the letter in her hand. "Well, here it is," she said, looking him full in the eyes.

For an instant, Ruth thought he was going to pretend surprise, but he suddenly began to laugh. It was a desperate laugh, somehow horrible; yet the laugh was meant to convey that he was greatly tickled, as though he had a tremendous joke on Ruth—a friendly joke in which he expected to be joined. Ruth did smile.

"Dogged if this ain't th' beain' it!" Snavelly exclaimed. "You see why I done it, don't you, pardner?"

Ruth had not been wholly sure of what Snavelly had done or why he was receiving a letter from Witherspoon, up to the time he began to laugh. Now she said very soberly, "I hope I know why you did it, Mr. Snavelly."

Snavelly spoke glibly. "Not at all, spoke. 'Well, I was aimin' to tell you just as soon as it was settled. Last month when you did get enough cattle money an' met the note, I jest figured I'd let you go ahead an' pay it anyways, an' then surprise you." His lips smiled.

"If I had not been able to meet my note, Mr. Snavelly, is it not true that you would have had my entire interest in the ranch?" asked Ruth quietly.

Snavelly spoke glibly. "Not at all, Mrs. Warren. Such a thing ain't possible because we're pardners. Parker or anybody else could have took your interest away from you if you couldn't pay the note. But not me; I'm your pardner."

It was a moment before Ruth could reply. She saw the deadlines behind the man's eyes . . . if she could only keep him good-natured until next week. "It was very thoughtful of you," she smiled; "it's nice to know I was safeguarded all the time. Well," she turned, "it's all over now, the note is paid and the ranch has been improved."

"It sure has," replied Snavelly. He watched the girl as she walked toward the ranch house, his pale eyes fastened on the retreating figure, suspicion and hatred mingled on his face.

The next morning after breakfast Ruth entered her room. She sat for a time looking at her trunk, thinking. Suddenly she rose, unlocked the box on which was scrawled, "for liver fever." Going into the kitchen, she asked Ann to keep an eye on David for an hour, and taking up a potato and a paring knife, left by the front door. Sugarfoot greeted her and for a moment the girl looked down at the little dog. Once more, she asked the question, "Sugarfoot, why didn't you die when you ate the meat Ann poisoned?" Sugarfoot wagged himself knowingly.

LOAN OFFICE IS OPENED AT CITY HALL

The Lamb County Leader has just received word that an emergency crop loan office has been opened at the justice of the peace office, city hall, Littlefield, Texas, and farmers desiring loans should apply between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. Applications for loans are now being taken.

According to the regulations under which the crop loans are to be made this year, any farmer who secures a loan must obtain a statement from the county production council, where one exists, that he does not intend to increase his acreage or production in violation of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program.

In counties where a county production council has not been set up, before any application for a loan will be considered the farmer who is applying will have to give satisfactory evidence that he is cooperating with the production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The maximum amount of an emergency crop loan that may be obtained by any one individual is $250, the minimum is $25.

Applications for loans in any amount from $25 to $150 may be accepted by the emergency crop loan office provided the farmer does not have sufficient security to obtain a loan elsewhere.

A farmer applying for $150 or more must first make application to the Production Credit Association for a loan from it. Rejection of this application by the Production Credit Association will be considered sufficient evidence that other credit is not available and the applicant may then make application to the emergency crop loan office.

John S. Andrews, who is stationed here, attended a meeting of supervisors in Dallas Monday, which meeting the rules and regulations were discussed.

Mr. Bob Smith spent the week in Odessa visiting friends.

This old earth, that ceased being incandescent, then red hot, then boiling in spots, only a few hundred million years ago, is still settling and shifting a little, like the crust of a pie fresh from the oven. There are contracting and expanding, geological slips and slides, and in the earth's interior volcanic disturbance, sometimes caused by intrusion of salt water into deep, red-hot crevices. Therefore, men read on the front page, "Earthquake Rocks Utah Cities, Disturbance Extending to Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada and California." A slight shaking anywhere on earth's surface is terrifying. But it is only a part of the normal adjustments of a planet still in its infancy, having, according to science, at least a million million more years to go.

The British conclude, sadly, that war must come, and, wisely, decide to be ready. Intensified warship building begins, with 17 major warships, including three powerful submarines, in the program. Brits hate submarines, because Britain has so many ships afloat, and submarines sink floating ships, but if others have them Britain must have them.

It will interest our financial wizards, printing billions in bonds, paying as many billions in interest, to learn that Britons feel able to build because their budget shows a surplus of more than $12,000,000 this year. No surprise about a blessed country, thanks to the friends in Europe billions of dollars return.

Next of interest to British warship builders comes the birth of a child in London with a "tail" two inches long. This should have happened while William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow were arguing evolution in Tennessee. Infants with tails are born occasionally, confirming Darwin's belief that the small in-curved or crooked at the lower end of every human back bone was once a full-fledged tail.

There is nothing in this to worry the proud soul rebelling against "descent from monkeys." Darwin never said we descended from monkeys, only that we came up in a parallel line of development, diverging and passing the monkey on our way up. Evolution teaches and proves that every human being goes through many different lower animal forms in the months previous to birth. You may see that for yourself in museums. If that suits the plans of Providence even now, it might also have suited those plans to have animal life, as a whole, come up through the same process.

Will Rogers—

I dont know how I got to reading about the fantastic running of our Country. Instead of boning up on Shakespeare. But I did, even before I got to making a living by doing a little police reporting on the lawmakers. I am a kind of a slow reader anyhow, and a lot of the stuff I have to read was not delivered in what you would call a straightforward or lucid vein, so I have to go back over it a few times to catch the meaning, and then I dont always grasp it.

But I do a lot of newspaper reading, then at the end of the week I have to do a lot of magazine reading, for it contradicts what the papers have said all week. Then by that time come the monthlies, and they get the issue up more than ever. Here is something I have learned that is absolutely true. If you are going to write, talk, comment, or argue over any public question, dont do it by just reading one newspaper. I try to get all kinds, breeds, creeds and every single different political one. You can tell in a minute a person that only reads one paper. Gosh, you would be surprised how one bit of political news is so differently construed in different papers. Some public man is a horse-thief in one paper, and pick up the other and he is just about to be canonized and made a saint. Then the next paper will say is a horse thief in the day, but repeats at night.

But its sorter fascinating to read a paper clear through, even if you do know before you start about whats in it. But some day when no papers come I am going to get a Dickens book, and see how he stacks up with the Beverley Hills citizen, and the Claremore Progress.

Checkup Indicates Over Five Million Acres Retired

That the complete check-up on cotton contracts signed in Texas up to March 1st showed 226,971 contracts retiring 5,395,291 acres from cotton production was wired to C. A. Cobb, chief of the Cotton Section, by H. H. Williamson for the Texas Extension Service.
Looking ahead to the summer work on these contracts Mr. Williamson said that compliance by farmers with the terms of the 1934-35 cotton acreage adjustment contracts will be certified by the field organization of the cotton section during the summer months, according to plans of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.
This certification of performance, by contracting growers must be made before either the second rental payments after July 1 or the parity payments in December are distributed.
Full responsibility for compliance rests with the parties to the contracts, and committeemen of the county organizations will merely check the facts to certify that performance is in accord with the contract terms and administrative rulings.
Facts that will have to be determined before certification of performance can be made by local committees and the second payment issued by the government include:
Correctness of description of the farm under contract; acreage planted to cotton in 1934; acreage marked off as rented acreage; average productivity of planted and rented acreage; use of rented acres; any change in status of ownership or tenure on the farm which may have occurred after the contract was prepared; comparison of the total acres planted to crops on the entire farm with the total acres in crops as stated in Table One of the contract; determination as to whether cotton is grown on any farm in the county not under contract, not specifically exempted by non-participating agreement" under administrative ruling 7-A or any other administrative ruling; the number of tenants on the farm in 1933 as compared with 1934, and reasons for changes; use of rented acres by tenants for production of supplies.

Commenting upon the progress of the cotton program and upon the plans for certification of contracts, Cully A. Cobb, chief of the cotton section of the Adjustment Administration made the following statement:

"The manner in which the entire force in the field has met its responsibility in the performance of the first quarter of the present year's cotton adjustment program is a matter of the deepest gratification to all of us. Problems have arisen here and there that have been called for the exercise of unusual judgment as well as for a very high sense of justice and fairness. In spite of agitations and misunderstandings, landlords and tenants in the main have dealt fairly with each other. There are perhaps as many cases of unusual generosity as there are cases of the reverse order. However that may be, we would take this opportunity to congratulate those tenants and landlords who have been able to work out their problems, first for their cooperation with each other, then for their cooperation with the government, and lastly for the exercise of that type of citizenship that more than all things else will make a success of this campaign and other calmer prosperous days and the independence that goes with having more. County committeemen have met the difficulties of this first quarter of the present year's work with unusual intelligence and efficiency. They have rendered a type of service that will last far beyond the immediate present. From all of us they deserve wholehearted commendation."

Alexandra News

The moisture recently received certainly was a great benefit to the sod turners. The tractors can be heard from morning until night singing their humdrum songs. We should congratulate ourselves that we live where opportunities have come and are still coming. Yet the depression is on which has made it so hard on everybody. We still have the three big essentials that has attracted so many people and caused this country to develop, those essentials of water, soil and climate.

This honest HIGH TEST gasoline
Says LET'S GO
TO COOLD MOTORS
HIGHEST TEST AND anti-knock at the price of ordinary gasoline

There is more zip and action, more energy and power in every drop of this sensational motor fuel. And longer mileage, too.
Note, below, the definite gravity figures which prove how high the "test" is. The very fact that we publish them is evidence that Phillips 66 is higher test, indicates that we fear no comparisons with other motor fuels. Remember, Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high test gasoline.
In freezing weather, our greater gasoline delivers split-second starting. In any weather, it improves acceleration and flexibility. Besides, you get high anti-knock value. Phillips 66 eliminates the carbon knock in old motors, the compression knock in new ones.
Why not try it for yourself? Feel the difference it makes in your motor. Phill-up with Phillips at the Orange and Black 66 shield.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm
The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.
The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward. The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.
An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

A GAS WATER HEATER MUST PASS RIGID TESTS

To Merit The Testing Laboratory Blue Star Seal

The photograph above shows an expert in A. G. A. testing laboratory is testing a new automatic water heater to see if it meets the Thermal Efficiency requirement.
 The automatic gas water heater does its work so quietly and so efficiently that its very existence is forgotten days at a time by the entire family. Its principle is, of course, a regular cycle of water temperature. When the maximum temperature of the water is reached, the thermostat turns off the gas, and automatically turns it on again when the temperature drops to the correct minimum. The very fact that it is automatic, silent, and hidden makes it particularly important when you purchase a new one, that it meets the exacting requirements of the American Gas Association testing laboratories for construction, performance and safety.
 These requirements, though, do not necessarily add to the manufacturing and selling cost of the water heater you buy; and hence you can find a wide selection of models possessing the BLUE STAR Seal at popular prices. This is likewise true of all other gas appliances, so that you do not need to feel that because you are buying a priced appliance, you cannot expect to have a model with the BLUE STAR Seal affixed to the side or back of it.

Precinct No. 4. "I had planned to run for commissioner two years ago, but did not seek the office at that time as I had not purchased a home and therefore was not definitely located in this precinct.

"If you elect me your commissioner I will serve this precinct to the very best of my ability, and will welcome at all times the advice and cooperation of the people of our precinct. I also will cooperate with other county officials and with state officials when it seems to the benefit of the majority.

"I have had four years experience in road and bridge work in Jones county and some with the A. E. F. in Europe. This experience, I believe, would prove of much value in satisfactorily serving the people of this precinct.

"But in referring especially to road and bridge work I am not unmindful of the fact that there are many other important duties connected with serving the people of this precinct as their commissioner.

"I do not intend to make promises that are not workable and that are not reasonably certain of being fulfilled.

"I pledge a square deal to everybody in the precinct. If elected I will be at the end of nobody's chain.

"I am seeking election on my merits, and not on the demerits of any other person or persons. It is my intention to see each voter personally before the primary. But in the meantime I will appreciate it very much if you will make an investigation into my fitness and qualifications for the office which I seek.

"I will appreciate the cooperation and influence of all in electing me to office."

a salary; I've never held office; my opponent has held the office for two terms; my name is X or Y or Z or something else."

Doctor Jackson declared, "If my name was Terrell, I could run in Texas and get a pretty good vote."

Senator Duggan Speaks After asking, "What is this nation of ours going to do with its greatness?" Senator Duggan said, "We've given no attention to the kind of people we bring into the world."

He pointed out that an annual average of about 75,000 college graduates reared less than two children each; that about 85,000 persons entering insane homes annually had more than three children each, and that 110,000 persons sent to penitentiaries each year had families averaging four children each.

"I think we'd better begin paying more attention to our people," he said.

Dr. Ira Woods, president of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce was toastmaster. J. W. Hale, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, was a speaker, and the invocation was said by Rev. J. W. Hendrix. The Littlefield orchestra furnished delightful music for the evening. Others appearing on the program included Orville Bernethy, tap dancer of Lubbock; Miss Ellarene Vause, reading, and Mrs. Gus Shaw, vocalist, who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Bobbie Lee Skipworth. Several short talks were made by out of town visitors.

The dinner was held to entertain all of the new members who have been put on the Chamber of Commerce roll in the past two weeks during the drive for new members. The drive closed Tuesday evening with approximately 60 new members. This was the first drive staged in Littlefield in the past three years and proved to be a great success.

The annual Chamber of Commerce banquet and election of officers will be conducted some time in June.

ment: "Having thoroughly studied the needs of the precinct, I believe that I can serve the precinct satisfactorily.

"I have had considerable experience in road work in Hardeman county, previous to coming to the South Plains, and have also worked at odd times on Highway No. 7, which I believe would aid me in carrying out the duties of a commissioner if elected.

"I am not running this race on the merits of my opponent, but on my own merits.

"I have never held the office as a commissioner; and don't intend to make a lot of promises I cannot fulfill, and shall show no special favors to any person or any part of the precinct.

"If elected I ask that the voters of Precinct No. 4 cooperate with me, and I shall give my entire time to serving the precinct and in the interest of the entire county.
