The Wildcats just can keep going inside the twenty and everytime we get in there we choke up. The officials called a good game, but it seemed like they were too much for Denver City.

Next Friday we play Plainview here. Plainview is where Don Williams went. If the Bulldogs are fired up for any game, I imagine it will be this one. We will have hard workouts so we will be ready for this game, too.

The game is here and it is our second home game and I hope the stands will be stacked.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by Valerie MacNeese, a student writer for the Academy of Notre Dame school paper in Washington, D. C.)

Youth of America, Communism needs your cooperation to succeed. Will you cooperate? You can further the socialistic system in two ways, one active, one passive.

The energetic can join the Communist youth movement. In the Washington area there are training centers for young people in Communist doctrine and method. Advanced courses include instruction in "How To Start Youth Riots," "Discrediting the FBI" and of course, "How to Debate with Democracy."

Every student receives special tutoring during job training, as he carries out minor directives for a Communist leader.

When job training and studies are completed, the student is assigned to a Communist youth club. His job will then be to convince school or business associates that communism is inevitable. He will demonstrate the peaceful purpose of Mr. Khrushchev and enumerate the social evils that communism seeks to destroy. He will attend party youth conventions to report on his progress.

For the less energetic, communism offers another key role - that of passivity.

This passive role is the "conquest of freedom" and is an easier part to play.

All that is necessary is that you allow your mind to be completely taken up with your own ambitions and pleasures, so that the rest of the world is no concern of yours.

By thinking that communism is something on the other side of the ocean you are doing your part. By thinking that materialism is a vice possessed only by adults or by the rich, you are doing your part. By failing to develop a sense of personal responsibility for the common good, you can further the cause of communism as effectively as the top party leaders.

"We must all stand for something," says J. Edgar Hoover. "or we will all fall for something."

Communism needs you, the youth of America. Without your patronage of your tolerance, it cannot conquer.

Court Decision Opposed By Most

This week members of the Skat staff quizzed students and teachers on the Supreme Court's decision concerning prayers in the classrooms of public schools. The specific question was "What is your opinion of the Supreme Court's decision concerning prayer in the classroom of public schools?" Below are the answers.

Charlotte Johnson - Jr; I think it is okay to have prayer in school.

Sharon Walding - Soph; I have no opinion because I don't know enough about it.

Martha McQuatters - Sr. - I do not approve of the decision because they call our nation a Christian nation, but then they try to cut it all out. Why haven't they taken "One nation under God" out of our pledge of allegiance when the supreme court has taken the word God out of everything else.

Joann Rhodes - Soph; I think anyone should be able to pray when they want to and the Supreme Court shouldn't have passed their decision.

Diane Cook - Jr; I think it is fine to have prayer in the classroom and I don't think the Supreme Court should give the decision of not having prayer in the classroom.

David Tull - Advisor; I do not feel that prayer should be discouraged in the classroom. However, denomination interpretations of religion should be avoided.

Prof Hayes - Band Director - I agree with the decision particularly concerning the forcing of students to memorize prayers that may be contrary to their religious convictions or beliefs. The public schools must be for all denominations. Prayer in the classroom can not be effective when we have Protestants, Catholics, members of the Jewish religion, etc., in the schools. Prayer comes from the heart of each individual; not from class activity or by lesson assignments.

Linda Kay Hodge - Jr - I agree with the Supreme Court in their decision. I do not think it's right to make students memorize a set prayer.

Judy Conlan - Sr - At first it made me mad because I felt prayer in the classroom was very good, but after I began thinking about it, I saw their point and realized that it was the only constitutional thing to do. (See Question on Page 6)

Joint Cotton Meet Planned For Area

George W. Pfeifferberger, vice president of the Texas Cotton Producers and Research and Development Council, announced this week that a joint meeting of the High Plains Cotton Growers' Association and the High Plains Cotton Industry will be held in Lubbock, Texas, on October 24th through the 27th. The meeting is being held at the ATMI, known as the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, until October 1st of this year, is the central association of the cotton, wool, silk and rayon segments of America's textile industry. W. H. Ruffin, president of the High Plains Cotton Industry, is currently serving as president of the well-known and highly respected organization.

Also included on the tour will be a look at the huge beef cattle feeding operations at Lewter's feed lots, and other agricultural industry in the Lubbock area. The Lubbock Cotton Exchange, the oil mills, cotton warehouses, Plains Ginners, Lubbock Clearing House Association, Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Texas Tech College, and others are working in close cooperation with PCG in making preparation for the meeting.

"We are certainly happy to have these leaders in the textile industry visit our area," stated Pfeifferberger. "This opportunity for members of the textile industry and cotton producers to become better acquainted should prove mutually beneficial to both groups," he concluded.

way to farm, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

I was out here on my Johnson grass farm yesterday sitting down resting my mind from all the current crises of the world when a pleasant October breeze blew a newspaper into my yard and I picked it up and skipped the front page headlines and was going through the inside pages when an article caught my eye.

"Computers Will Work on Farms," it said, and I read it immediately. "Farms of the future will be handled largely by computers," it continued.

This is just what I'm looking for, I told myself, but then I got to the next paragraph. "Computers will be used by farmers to tell them when to plant crops what to feed the animals, and how much water is needed by the crops."

That's when I cooled off. I don't need a machine to tell me when to plant, what I want is a machine that I can tell it when to plant.

The last thing I need is an electronic machine on this Johnson grass farm running me ragged with orders. I'm not carrying out the orders I'm already getting.

The article even went on to say that "Information obtained from transmitters placed on cows could be transmitted to a computer and a report would be made outlining the animal's needs." This is ridiculous, I already know what my animals need. They need more feed, and I also know the way they'll get more feed is by me working harder, and I wouldn't be interested in having a machine on this place to tell me that. Aren't you going to catch me working harder to pay for a machine to tell me to work harder to feed my livestock.

I've never fully understood the point in these big electronic computing machines anyway, I know they can figure up in a few seconds the answer

Cotton Production, Gathering Discussed

In a meeting held this week in Lubbock, leading cotton authorities from the Lubbock Experiment Station, the Extension Service, the cotton trade, the cotton ginners and other segments of the cotton industry discussed the use of harvest - aid chemicals on the High Plains. The meeting was called by the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. at the request of area ginners and farmers.

and in a direct mail program to High Plains ginners. According to Don Johnson, PCG executive assistant, the ginners will receive a letter emphasizing the importance of proper defoliation practices, a cotton defoliation guide prepared by the extension service, and a poster outlining the major points to consider in a defoliation program. "It should be understood," said Johnson, "that the recommendations on the poster are intended as guidelines only. Each grower must to a problem it'd take a man years to figure, but the way I get around needing such a machine on this farm is, I just don't think up any problems that big. Why don't they turn these machines loose on the problem of Cuba?"

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Bristle Cone Pine Is Of Interest To Area

A bristle cone pine is the focal point of interest for lawn and garden enthusiasts, visiting the new headquarters at the High Plains Research Foundation. The descendant of this ancient pine has been planted at the northeast corner of the new Killgore Foundation office building at Halfway.

The keen interest evidenced is attributed to the fact that this pine species is the oldest living thing in America, 4,600 years ago, according to the March 1958 issue of the National Geographic Magazine, a bristle cone pine started its growth in the Inyo National Forest in the White Mountains in carefully evaluate his situation and circumstances in making a decision regarding the use of a defoliant or desiccant on his crop.

The last few years has seen a marked increase in the use of harvest - aid chemicals as a recognized management tool. With the increase of machine harvesting, both defoliants and desiccants have been used to good advantage by area farmers. Harvest - aid chemicals when properly used can increase profits through earlier harvesting, higher grades, improved fiber quality, and other values to individual growers. However, as was pointed out at the meeting, improper use of such chemicals can lower profits to the grower through lower grades, decreased yields, poor fiber quality and other damaging effects.

It was also pointed out that poor fiber quality can injure the reputation of a cotton producing area, thus causing the trade to look elsewhere for its supply of raw cotton. High Plains cotton has enjoyed an enviable position in the market place over the past three years, and every effort should be made to maintain this position.

Research at Lubbock and throughout the cotton belt has shown that 60% of the cotton bolls should be open before a true defoliant is applied and more than 60% open before a desiccant is applied. Harvest - aid materials thus applied have not been observed to reduce yields or lower fiber quality. This is not, however, a hard and fast rule which will apply to all cases as other factors such as stage of growth, variety, date of last watering, weather conditions, and condition of bolls on the plant must be considered.

"Again it should be emphasized," said Johnson "that each grower will need to evaluate his individual situation, to determine whether he should or should not use a harvest - aid chemical. If in doubt, he should seek the advice of his county agent or some other recognized authority."

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. -- With 12 items already returned in East Texas slant - hole investigation, there are strong currents growing out of East Texas scandals.

Rep. Charles Ballman of Eppler and his fellow House investigators sent a preliminary report to Speaker James Burnham and Gov. Price Daniel. They urged "immediate action" on eight changes in relations to the criminal laws.

They also proposed that a procedure be set up to re-evaluate state officials who are ill and unable to handle their duties. This obviously is a reference to Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson, who has been ill at his home in Littlefield for several months.

A major policy change would be the revision of the old "margin-sell" law which could be important to many Texas particularly in old oil areas.

Present law says that if an oil well cannot make as much as 20 cents a day, it is a "margin-sell" which must be exempt from shut-down days. Thus, a producing 19 barrels a day get an allowable of 570 barrels a month. But a well capable of making 1,000 barrels a month will be held to 160 barrels a month -- 20 barrels a day as eight producing days.

The committee recommended marginal wells be held the same monthly allowable as non-marginal well in the field.

Governor Daniel has been committed on the possibility of calling a special session of Legislature to act on this other current problem.

COMMISSION SHAKEUP -- The Railroad Commission is in a reorganization study by Texas Research League. Any changes in procedures being put into effect.

Commissioners William J. Gray Jr. and Ben Ramsey led a committee of oilmen headed by James E. Russell of Pampa to advise on revision Comptroller Robert Calvert gave Texas some charts. They show where $1,300,000,000 went last year. Education took 41.01 cents of each dollar, highways took 28.50 cents, public welfare cost 16.29 cents, state hospitals and prisons cost 5.16 cents, and all the rest -- Legislature, courts, administrative agencies and everything else -- cost 9.04 cents of every dollar.

LAND SENTENCE -- A third man's conviction from the veterans land scandals of the mid-1950's was affirmed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

He was E. R. Sheffield of Brady, who was found guilty by a Hill County jury of "uttering a false instrument" in the case of one of the 54 veterans whose rights were put together to buy a 10,000-acre ranch in Kinney County.

Supreme Court has been studying the case since April. Should it agree with the taxpayers, it would take a constitutional amendment to legalize the college districts. Meanwhile, state money might be needed to keep the 32 junior colleges going until the voters have a say on the subject.

OLD BADGES -- Texas Rangers have gone back to the old days and old ways. Old-time Rangers carved their own badges out of Mexican pesos. It was a star within a circle.

A fancy new-style badge was adopted in 1936 when Rangers were put under the Department of Public Safety.

Now they are going back to the old-type badge. But they won't carve their own. All 62 Rangers were issued shiny new ones, ready-made.

SLOW PICKING -- Texas Department of Agriculture reports a slow-down in cotton picking. Harvest slowed to 29 per cent which is the same as this time last year.

Damp weather kept bolls from opening in the South Plains and rains slowed the picking in other areas.

Wet fields also have slowed the sorghum harvest.

SUMMER READING -- Nearly 21,000 school-age children in 285 cities earned certificates from the Texas State Library for summer reading. Boys and girls who read 12 books during the summer got the awards.

NEW ERA PREDUCTED -- Maurice Turner, chairman of the State Parks Board, believes a surge of public interest presages "a mighty effort to modernize Texas' neglected state parks system."

He credits this new interest to a sizable movement to develop tourism in Texas.

In keeping with the national trend, overnight campers increased by more than 100,000.

Attendance at Texas state parks increased by some 500,000 persons during the last fiscal year.

Total visitation for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1962 was 7,099,672, compared with 6,614,332 for the preceding year.

SHORT SNORTS -- Governor Price Daniel attended his last Southern Governors Conference in Hollywood, Fla., and brought out a report challenging national import policies on oil saying that the domestic oil industry is hit hard by imports from foreign lands.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson held that school teachers are not entitled to get their jobs back when they return from military service, such as the recent call-up of part of the Texas National Guard.

Texas will send 153 men to military service through the draft in November. August report of the Liquor Control Board shows revenue collected for the state since the prohibition was created at the end of prohibition, November 16, 1935, amount to $501,279,416.

Counties and schools in the forest areas get 25 per cent of the Forest Service's income from the forests, to help maintain road and school programs.

BOOK DEFENDERS -- The men and women who run the public schools came out in strong support of the present method of selecting textbooks in Texas.

Plan has been under attack by some witnesses at recent legislative hearings.

Texas Association of School Boards, meeting in Austin, found no fault in the system by which a textbook committee selects as many as five books for each course, and then local textbook committees decide which of the five they will use.

School board members also took no action on an Ector County proposal that central state purchasing of school buses be ended.

COLLEGE TAX ILLEGAL? -- Texas Supreme Court action is expected soon on a case which could upset the junior college set-up in Texas.

Taxpayers' suit from Harris County contends that the Legislature had no constitutional authority to allow the levying of taxes by junior college districts.

Previous convictions were on former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles, and J. T. McLarty.

Sheffield recently paid back the Veterans Land Board, with interest, the money he received for the land.

LOST PARK -- Back in 1933, Joe Espy of Fort Davis gave the state 169 acres in the Davis Mountains, with a provision that if it were not developed for public recreation he would get it back.

The state failed to develop the land, so Espy sued to get it back.

Trial court held that he was entitled to the land, and ordered it returned. The State Parks Board is appealing.

Espy said he would give it to the Parks Board again if the Board will develop it as a park.

FEDERAL AID -- Texas has received $317,920 from the U. S. Forest Service to be allocated to East Texas counties where four national forests are located.

Counties and schools in the forest areas get 25 per cent of the Forest Service's income from the forests, to help maintain road and school programs.

QUESTION

do. Martlynn Richey - Sr - Banning prayer from a school does not make that school anymore neutral than before.

Mrs. Betts - teacher - Supreme court decisions must be obeyed. However, the Court has often made a clarification at a later date, or reversed itself.

Jimmy Zoth - Jr - I think this decision was right. But I don't fully understand the problem. I would like to read more about it.

Bill Wright - Sr - When the Supreme Court decided against prayer in the classrooms, it marked an important step toward Federal control of education. Then by letting the Federal Government control education this would eventually lead to a dictatorship. So, if the public schools want prayer in the classrooms then, by all means let them.

Masie Naylor - Jr - To tell you the truth I really don't know what it is all about. All I know is that they are stating that no one can be forced to say a prepared prayer against their will. I really think that the Supreme Court has the authority to do this for the simple reason that there are people in this world that do not believe in a Supreme being and should not be made to do something against their own beliefs. I, personally, think that prayer in public schools is a wonderful thing.

Mr. Pirkey - Principal: I agree with the Supreme Court in that it is unconstitutional for a state or legislature to adopt a prayer to be used by everyone in that system, but I am not against prayer in school unless it involves a denomination.

Susan Nail - Sr - I am very much in favor of the morning devotionals and prayers we have each morning. It helps to start the day off right for me. No one is forced to listen so I don't understand what the gripe is!

Mrs. A. D. Ward - English teacher - I understand that the Supreme Court's decision had to do with a person's being forced to say a prepared prayer. I agree with this decision that no mortal man can tell anyone how to pray nor what to say in his prayers. To me prayer is a conscious contact with a Higher Power whom I choose to call God. I highly approve of a devotional period in public schools such as we have each morning at Littlefield High School when a student reads scripture from the Bible and closes with a heartfelt prayer of that student's own choice of words.

Richard Kimbrough - Jr - Those who don't agree with it don't fully understand the reason for it. I think they were right.

Coach Gerber; I do not feel that any type of a body should be able to dictate one type of prayer to be used by all schools. Therefore, I agree with the Supreme Court decision that you cannot force a person to use a certain prayer. This should be up to the individual school. I feel like the decision by the Supreme Court was misunderstood or misinterpreted by many of the people throughout the United States.

Rhonda Thompson - Fr - I think it was right. But would like to read more about it.

Troy Jones - Jr - I don't know.

Willie Bennett - Sr - I didn't even know they had one.

Larry Shipp - Sr - I think the supreme court decision was right as stated in our constitution, but I think more thought should be given this timely question.

Watzell Kennedy - Sr - I believe that our country is sliding more and more into the depths of Socialism and this decision backs this up. I believe a person should have the right to pray anytime he feels like it. To me the prayer before school day begins, strengthens a person for the day ahead. It should come from the heart not be memorized.

Cynthia Jordan - Sr - The United States Constitution states that we have freedom of Religion -- not from Religion. Our morning Prayer always raises my spirits and helps me through the day.

Joyce Green - Sr - I think it is taking too much of our private rights. Communism is a government that tells you how, when, and where to worship, if you worship at all. Our government is not a Communist government, yet and it is up to us to see that it does not become one. I am against their decision. I believe they are wrong and I hope they will have sense enough to realize it before something more comes of it.

Sylvester Bass - Jr - I think it was a wise decision because they found a prayer concerning denomination. I think it should be cut down to certain principles. Lola Martinez - Sr - It isn't unconstitutional but I don't think we should be forced to say the same prayer. Margaret Bass - Sr - I think you shouldn't be forced to pray but I don't think they should stop prayer in classrooms. Richard Eddings - Sr - I don't think it was right. Darla Neuwenschwander - Jr - I don't think everyone really understood the Supreme Court's decision. Donice Reast - Jr - I don't think that people fully understood the decision. I agree with the decision of the supreme court that there should be no stated prayer to say in the classroom. Diane Phillips - Jr - I think the Supreme Court ruling was misinterpreted by most people. I don't think they meant all prayers but only those fixed prayers which were being said every morning in schools. I think this ruling is right but I don't think we have our morning devotionals usual.

Lola Martinez - Sr - It isn't unconstitutional but I don't think we should be forced to say the same prayer.

Margaret Bass - Sr - I think you shouldn't be forced to pray but I don't think they should stop prayer in classrooms.

Richard Eddings - Sr - I don't think it was right.
