Speed And Efficiency Do Not Always Go Hand In Hand As Thought

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discusses efficiency this week. But we can't say with how much success.

Dear editor: I realize that while whole countries are disappearing these days, worrying over the disappearance of the so-called family-type farm seems like a waste of time if not a misapplication of thought, but according to an article I read in a newspaper last night, a lot of people are concerned about this matter.

But I'm not as interested in the actual disappearance of the small farm as I am in what these people think will bring it about.

According to them, inefficiency is the cause. The small farmer has got to get more efficient if he expects to stay on his farm, they argue.

I don't know about this. In my own case, I don't expect to get any more efficient, and I don't expect to move off this Johnson grass farm. People confuse efficiency with bigness. To me, a four-row cultivator is something you can work your land with in half the time it took with a two-row outfit, but to other people it's something you can work twice as much land with in the same long hours.

Efficiency can be overdone. For example, in this same newspaper I was reading last night I noticed that a contest was held in New York the other day to see which was the fastest way to get across midtown Manhattan. The results showed you can cross this center of American culture and efficiency about as fast in a horse and buggy as you can in a car, and even on foot you won't be far behind.

Efficiency has produced automobiles in such numbers they're becoming useless in big cities, and cities themselves have become so efficient they're unmanageable.

Airplanes have become so efficient and numerous they have to circle around an airport an hour to find a place to land.

Government has become so efficient the tax payers can't afford it.

It was efficiency that produced a bomb that'll kill a hundred thousand times more people than the cannon ball.

The way it looks to me, inefficiency is the hope of mankind and the small farm is the last refuge of this style of operating. The last thing the world should be doing is coming out here and telling me how to get more efficient. In my case it might not matter, but some farmers might listen.

Yours faithfully
J. A.

General Refuses Council Offer For Providing EAS Service To Bula Companies See No Agreement

Companies See No Agreement

By David H. Penn, Editor
Officials of General Telephone Company flatly refused a suggestion made by the Littlefield City Council that the rates on phones in the city be raised enough to cover General's cost for EAS (toll free) service to Bula. The refusal came during a joint meeting between General, Five Area Co-op and the Council Monday night. Approximately 100 persons attended the meeting and heard D. B. Lancaster present the case for Five Area and Ray Red the case for General. It was apparent at the meeting that neither company plans to provide EAS service except on their own terms.

HOME IS DESTROYED BY TORNADO--Above is all that remains of the Allen Roberson home located four miles north of Sudan after Saturday's tornado swept through it. Roberson and his family had just taken his family to shelter when the storm struck. Other storm damage pictures can be found inside today's issue.

Storm Damages 3 Areas

BY JOHN PETTY

Twisting, black tornadoes hop-scotched across portions of Lamb County Saturday evening, bringing with them strong, damaging winds and hail that ranged up to golf ball sized pellets. In Sudan, a twister funnel flattened a four - room house that had only a few minutes before, been evacuated by thirteen members of a family living there. The tornado scattered clothing and linen in the yard and uprooted most of the trees in the vicinity. Ironically, a small chicken house a few yards away from the house was untouched.

A second twister dove out of the skies at Rocky Ford community north of Littlefield, breaking out window panes in the Rocky Ford Baptist Church and de-roofing part of the parsonage. No injuries were reported.

At the Ice Cummings farm near Rocky Ford, the barn was hit, scattering debris over a mile - wide area. Cummings reported that the only injury was a cow in the barn. His well house was blown over and the motor on his pump damaged.

Cummings also reported that a 3500-gallon gasoline tank was blown over two miles and landed inside one of his stock pens. At Spade, Littlefield Press correspondent Joyce Caldwell said that much of the community was damaged by a tornado and high winds.

The roof of the N. N. Frey home was completely demolished along with numerous other out-buildings. Insulation fibers from inside the ceiling of the home was blasted onto the walls of the house, giving it a fuzzy, mud-like appearance.

Press Goes Offset This Week

The 'something new in Littlefield' so far as the Littlefield Press is concerned is the switch from letterpress printing to the offset method that has just been completed. In printer's jargon, the Press has gone from hot type to cold type. The term hot type is literally true. The type was cast from molten typemetal. Every letter had to be cast in a mold to get the raised surface that does the printing in a letterpress operation. Until the switch to offset, the Press operated a veritable type foundry in its back shop. Even a small melting box was maintained to reclaim used type. In an eight page paper over 800 pounds of type was used and each letter on a page was cast from molten metal. The back shop was filled with the clatter, heat and dirt associated with any foundry operation. Intertype machines cast a line of type at a time. A Ludlow machine was used to set larger letters and in the stereotype department hot lead was poured into papier mache molds to make illustrations for advertisements. Saws, routers and other equipment necessary in letterpress printing contributed to the din.

But as of today, letterpress printing is a thing of the past.

A new Goss offset press has been purchased by three newspapers including the Littlefield Press, the Hereford Brand and the Canyon News and is centrally located in Hereford. The $100,000 offset press was purchased in the hope that a better quality paper can be produced.

Open house for the Hereford operation is Sunday from 2 until 6 p.m. and all persons in this area are invited to view the new press.

Reduced to a word, offset printing is a photo-mechanical process. Copy, headlines, advertisements and news stories are pasted up, photographed and reproduced on an aluminum plate which is put onto the press. The paper is printed from the plate. Offset printing isn't new, but its application to newspaper printing is new.

Police Report Wreck, Breakin

City Police investigated one accident, one breakin, and one report of vandalism.

The accident involved cars driven by Jackie Parker and Buford Kennedy, both of Littlefield. Mrs. Parker was going west on 4th and Kennedy was going east on 4th and made a left turn onto Phelps. He hit the left side of the Parker vehicle.

Damage was estimated at $150 to the Parker car and $75 on Kennedy's. Kennedy was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

Some time Saturday night thieves broke into the Tassety Cream drive in and took 18 cartons of assorted brands of cigarettes. The glass on a back door was broken by the culprits to gain entry.

Mrs. S. E. Ayres reported a glass broken in her car which was parked near the high school building. The incident occurred Saturday night.

Olton Beauty Named District Lions Queen

District 2T-2 of Lions International put gala final wraps on a mammoth annual convention Saturday night after naming Jack Strong of Lubbock as district governor for the coming year and pretty Cheryl Poteet of Olton as district Lions Queen. Gayla Smith of Brownfield and Marilyn Nix of Amherst were Queen runners up. Strong, who served as a deputy district governor from Region III, during the past year, beat out W. A. (Smoke) Hewett of Plainview in reportedly "close" balloting for the top district post.

The convention paid double tribute to the Olton Lions Club, naming it as the outstanding club in the district, as well as selecting its queen candidate as the best among 38 lovely entrants who charmed conventioners in a formal "parade of contestants" Friday night and again at the concluding governor's banquet.

City Report For May Revealed

There was 46,734,000 gallons of water used by city residents during the month according to the report.

The police department reported 14 accidents and two breakins. Arrests made by the police included four for drunk and disturbance, ten for drunk in car, 17 for drunk in public, one for investigation, one for disorderly conduct, and two for discharging firearms in the city limits. LAMB COUNTY--Pretty Miss Dyanne Curry of Sudan was chosen Miss Lamb County at a beauty con- held Saturday night in the Littlefield High School auditorium. Miss Curry pictured in the middle, is ed by the two runners up, Miss Judy Tapley, left, and Miss Kay Bradley, right, both of Amherst. The ty winner will go to the Miss Wheatheart Contest to be held in Perryton.

Mayor Foust opened the meeting and called on General Telephone to present their case.

Don Holdridge, secretary and legal counsel for General, spoke briefly and then called upon Five Area to present their case before the Council.

D. B. Lancaster, manager of the Five Area Co-op from Muleshoe, presented his case in a six page folder which outlined the Co-op's operation in the area it serves.

In his presentation, Lancaster pointed out that his organization has now four EAS agreements with General Telephone and that none call for a balancing payment or 60-40 agreement.

He said, "We do not agree with a cost and use basis because where the call originates does not necessarily mean that it is the most important to the person originating the call."

He continued, "We have found in our other exchanges that have EAS there is a closer relationship between the town and the rural people than where there is a toll charge."

In summing up his presentation, Lancaster said his board of directors felt the only fair proposition and answer to the EAS between Bula and Littlefield would be one that: (1) Each system should be responsible for its trunk transmission, switching and local exchange plant required to provide adequate Extended Area Service and (2) Each system should be responsible for its interconnecting EAS trunks up to the boundary either through ownership or lease.

Ray Red, a General vice-president, presented the case for his company showing various charts and graphs thus laying the foundation for the necessity of balancing payment agreements and cost and use payments.

He stated that the basis for 60 - 40 agreements stemmed from an REA bulletin in which the REA asked for some type of uniform agreement between all Co-op phone exchanges and independent phone exchanges. He re-affirmed his company's dislike for the 60-40 agreement and said they much preferred a cost and use basis for contracts.

Red then opened the floor to questions.

J. E. Chisholm, City Councilman, asked "What is keeping Five Area and General apart on an EAS agreement?"

Red answered that the carrier balancing payment and the cost and use basis were the main factors.

Ramage was blown away. Heavy hail, ranging upward to fist-sized stones, fell at Fieldton, added grief to farmers in that area who had already received earlier damage from the weather.

In Littlefield, power service was interrupted from 5:45 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Lines running into the city from several directions were blown down by the force of the hurricane-like winds.

A dairy barn constructed of concrete block was shattered at the Keith Tomes farm near Amherst. The roof and one side of the building was ripped away, but the family, sensing the approach of the twister, sought shelter in a storm cellar and was unhurt.

Severe storm warnings continued to plague the area during the first part of this week, with the county being placed on alerts Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights.

While some young cotton and some wheat in the area were pounded by the hail, farm experts said that there was not too much damage, generally speaking, because there was no rain in the central and southern parts of the county. In the northern section of the county, rains were heavier but little damage was reported.

He continued that his company wanted to use the same yardstick each time they met concerning EAS with any other company.

He was then questioned about the fact that Muleshoe has EAS service with Lazbuddie, Needmore and Lariat and there is no 50-40 agreement or balancing payment being made.

Red said his company realized these were now in existence but were no desirable and that his company would not sign any more contracts on the basis which the agreements with Muleshoe were signed.

Bill Street, city attorney, asked Red if his company would be willing to enter into an agreement with Five Area on each-pay-his-own contract if the City Council would raise the rates enough to cover all of their expenses.

Red referred the question to Holdridge who explained that the company did not think such an agreement would be fair to its subscribers and therefore they could not sign such an agreement. He pointed out further that should a Littlefield subscriber sue General in a court of equity his company did not feel they could show where the rate being charged was equitable.

The Council asked what the rate would be if they agreed to pay for General's part of the EAS service.

Bob Shirey, General rate expert, said he had figured the rates on carrier on a 60-40 agreement as being 44¢ for just the business phones or 9¢ for every phone and one each-his-own agreement as being 60¢ for just the business phones or 12¢ for every phone.

The meeting about turned into a shout fest as Red either intentionally or unintentionally misunderstood a question concerning a proposed 60-40 agreement between Muleshoe and Lazbuddie. Tempers soon calmed and the meeting adjourned with no agreement made or plans for any such agreement settled.

Each of the 38 queen contestants was presented with photographs taken by Photocraft Studio during Friday night's formal stage competition.

They were escorted by local boys, many of whom were secured by the South Plains College chapter of Circle K.

A series of plaques and awards were passed out at the closing convention session, for which Ray Renner served as master of ceremonies.

One of the covered awards went to a Hockley County Club - Pettit - for top attendance at the convention. Another went to the Levelland Lions Club for its convention dignitaries.

The Olton Lions Club won its "top club" award with 5,550 points, accumulated over the year for projects, and the manner in which it carried on and reported on its activities.

The second place club was Wilson, with 5,500 points. Other clubs in the order of ranking were Ralls 3, Hermleigh 4, Hale Center, 5, Muleshoe, 6, and Whitarral.

Also, principal speaker Dwight E. Stanford, director of Lions International from San Diego, California, was presented an Admiral's commission in the Texas Navy. It was prepared especially by Gov. Price Daniel and presented by Lions Gov. Dyer. Stanford, speaking on miracles of Power, told conventioners that -- like the famed Frenchman who walked across Niagara Falls with his manager on his back -- today "Civilization is on a tight rope and You and I are on its back."

Next year's convention will be staged at Lamesa, home of the retiring district governor and the only community to contend for the convention site.

First the ads are composed and pasted up on a dummy page, exactly the way they will appear. Next the page goes to the pasteup department where copy set on a Justwriter and headlines from the Headliner are put into position until the page is filled.

This pasted up page is the image that will be photographed actual size on a piece of sheet film the size of the page. Once the negative is made it is put into a mask--a kind of frame--to assure proper placement on the plate. Then the light, sensitive plate is printed.

Following the exposure, the image on the plate is ready for the press. The plate is put on the press and the page is ready to be printed.

As the press begins to roll a thin layer of water is put on the plate. The water sticks to areas of the plate which will not be printed and quickly recedes from the parts of the plate which will be printed.

Ink, being essentially a grease, will not stick to the wet parts of the plate, but it does adhere to the exposed parts of the plate on which the image of the page has been recorded.

The ink transfers the image of the page onto a rubber blanket on a roller and then the ink is offset onto the paper. This is how the process gets its name.

And this very roughly is the way a page is printed in the Littlefield Press.

I'VE BEN very fortunate in talking J. B. McShan (former owner of KVOW) to help me out in the advertising department until I can find a new advertising manager. Even when J. B. was running the radio station I felt he was a fine sort of fellow . . . and now I'm assured of this as he has agreed to help us out for awhile.

Penn Point

W.D.R.P.

This is the first paper we have printed completely by the offset method of printing and just between you and me it has been "hell". We were warned by publishers and editors who have made the change from "hot metal" to "cold type" (offset) that things would be rather rough for a while and then things would settle back and not be quite so nerve racking. Personally I am ready for things to get just a little smoother. We certainly hope you like the appearance, especially the pictures, of the Leader and the News. We haven't worked out all the bugs in the new machinery and if any frantic cries for help should be heard throughout the area, they probably came from the Littlefield Press.

knowledge of her association with the party until after they are married. He is reassigned to Formosa and while there a Chinese Nationalist shows the girl a movie of a Red China Commune. The movie shows the workings of the Commune and how the old are killed when they can no longer work and how the children are schooled, not in reading and writing, but in Communist propaganda. One youth tells of his parents plan to escape to Hong Kong. . .the parents are immediately taken into custody. Married persons who live in the Commune have 30 minutes a week to themselves . . .this is not a very pleasant sight either . . .sometimes the men draw straws and then take their pick of the women available.

It was my privilege to see a motion picture Saturday night that should be seen by every American and especially by every person who has now or has ever thought of joining the Communist party. The film was entitled "The Eleventh Commandment." The Eleventh Commandment is "Thou Shalt Not Enslave Thy Brother" and although it doesn't appear in any version of the Holy Bible at this time, it might be well to add it. The movie has met with difficulties from the motion picture industry and does not have a regular schedule of showings. The owners and producers have to go around the country and rent theatres so the movie can be seen by the general public. It is our understanding that the movie was filmed on Formosa and Quemoy.

The film tells the story of an American girl who became a Communist. Her husband is an Army Intelligence Officer and has no

The Officer and his wife then visited a peasant family on Quemoy who were raising a grand-daughter when her parents were killed by the Communists. The story ends as the American girl is killed saving the life of the Chinese orphan, but realizes her mistake about Communism and its workings throughout the world.

This film taught me two lessons. The first is that the film industry must be pretty well in the hands of the Communists if they refused to show the film because it was Anti-Communist. The second is that I have decided more than ever before that America should be and must be kept free . . .free at any cost. The man who said, "There are a lot of things worse than war" knew what he was talking about. America or any other country for that matter, under Communism would be a million times worse than war.

Right of Private Ownership Is Basic Pillar of America

THE OWNERSHIP OF PROPERTY is as old as man's acquisitive instinct. It also is as old as his instincts for freedom and survival.

Ancient man who could claim a stone ax as his own had a tool with which he could fend for himself, provide for himself and his family.

Deprived of his possession, he became a prey of nature; a dependent upon others for his protection and his sustenance.

Man has come a long way since the Stone Age. But the principle of private ownership of property is still true in its basic applications.

THE RIGHT TO OWN PRIVATE property is a fundamental pillar supporting the American way of life. It is so recognized in the Constitution.

As the nation begins the observance of Constitution Week next Thursday—the 172nd anniversary of the signing of the Constitution—we might well reflect upon the high place the Founding Fathers assigned to property, and to the safeguards they designed for it.

In the Fifth Amendment of the Bill of Rights—the first Ten Amendments to the Constitution—we find the provision that no person shall be deprived of "life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation."

This prohibition was addressed to the federal government. Later, in the 14th Amendment, the protection of individual was extended:

... nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

It can be seen from the foregoing that the Founding Fathers evaluated property along with man's most precious possessions—his life and his liberty.

WITHOUT PROPERTY, OR the right to own it, a man is virtually a slave.

We see this today in slave states where the right to private ownership either is nonexistent or so circumscribed by an authoritarian regime to be mere sham.

In America the right of private ownership is basic.

This does not mean that every American has the "right" to a piece of land, a house, or a set of tools without working for them.

There has been too much of the twisted thinking by those who would "share the wealth."

THE RIGHT OF PRIVATE OWNERSHIP—like every right that is worth anything—requires effort to earn, devotion, even sacrifice, to uphold and preserve it.

This, too, is another part of the American way of life.

Riley - Haberer Vows Exchanged

Before an altar decorated with white mums and candles, Eleanor Riley became the bride of Ronald Myer Haberer in a June 1 ceremony in the Springlake Baptist Church.

Mrs. Haberer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Furche Riley of Hart, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Haberer of Muleshoe.

All were attired in dresses of festive pink nylon chiffon fashioned with scoop necklines and brief sleeves. Soft gathers enhanced the bodice and set-in midriff. # About Your Health

"Spring", the song says "has busted out all over". And when Spring comes, can the bugs be far behind?

Between now and fall, insecticides in back yard gardens will fog the air like smoke as the annual battle between gardener and pest is joined in earnest. And woe unto the insect; a single breath of the lethal spray, a single drop on his tiny body, a single bite of spray-covered green and his doom is sealed. Good riddance.

His only consolation is a grim but satisfying one: his executioner, being human, is liable to the human disease of carelessness, prone to the very weapon he uses against the insect. So it is that the executioner may become the executed.

It is entirely possible to avoid this not-too-unlikely contingency; however. All that is required is the ability to read the following recommendations and the wit to accept them at face value. They were compiled by the chemists who compound our most potent insecticides. Who should know better how they should be safely used?

1. Read the label carefully and make sure you understand it. The warnings are never exaggerated. Always keep the material in its original container, covered, and with the warning label attached.

2. Keep the pesticide away from children and pets. Never give a neighbor part of it in an unlabeled container. When you are using it, store the material on a high shelf or in a closet where it won't be exposed to excessive sun or cold. Never keep it around food or feed stuff.

3. Don't smoke while spraying, and wash your hands and face after you get through spraying and dusting the garden or flower bed. The transfer of insecticide residue from hands to mouth can be dangerous.

4. Be extremely careful not to spill the insecticide on your skin, and avoid breathing spray or dust. A damp handkerchief tied around your nose and mouth is a good safeguard.

5. When spraying around pet or livestock quarters, cover all food and water containers before starting the job. Guard against contaminating fish ponds.

6. When the last bit of insecticide has been used, dispose of the container so it poses no hazards to humans or animals.

Legislative Facts

State Treasurer Jesse James reported the deficit in the state's general revenue fund increased during the past month to $69,641,536. A shortage of $63,000,000 is generally expected for the end of the fiscal year August 31. State Supreme Court al. sheared off some of the privileges of lawyer-legislators to get court cases in which they are involved postponed until after legislative business is complete. It said the law doesn't cover such preliminary activity as taking depositions before the actual trial.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. -- From now until July 10 will be a period of testing how representative democracy works in Texas.

Legislature is to reconvene July 10 to make a fresh stab at writing a tax bill to raise some $350,000,000 for the next two years. Gov. Price Daniel has urged Texans to give the legislators and him their views on how the matter should be handled.

Governor Daniel is strongly opposed to the adoption of any sales tax plan designed to raise the major portion of this needed revenue. He used his influence in the regular session to block a move in this direction.

"But," said the governor, "if this is really what a majority of the people want, I don't see how I can go on fighting it."

He believes, however, that a very limited sales tax, which he terms "selective excise taxes" on only more expensive items, with the balance to be raised from gas pipeline taxes and increased interstate corporation franchise taxes, would be more fair and more acceptable to most Texans.

Only bill which came close to passing the Legislature was one in which the main money-raising feature was a retail sales tax on items costing 25 cents and more, with food, medicine and farm necessities exempted. It also levied increased gas and corporation franchise taxes. Speaker James Turman cast the crucial vote that prevented the bill's being sent to the governor.

Actually, the difference those voting for the sales tax "package" is mostly one of degree. Governor Daniel grants the need for some sales (or excise) taxes, but feels that they should be stringently limited.

A majority of the Legislature cast votes indicating they felt Texas has reached the point where only a broad-based "growth" tax, such as the sales tax, can raise enough money to meet the state's increasing needs.

Now it is the people's turn to say what they think. If enough speak up, the legislature will have little difficulty in deciding what to do when it reconvenes July 10.

At that late hour, getting broad agreement in the Legislature will be more important than passing a bill that suits the governor. Bills passed by only a simple majority cannot become effective until 90 days after the session ends, but bills passed by a two-thirds majority of both houses can take effect immediately. That late in the summer, the Legislature will need to get a two-thirds vote for immediate effect so there will be money and authorization to keep the state going after the new fiscal year begins September 1.

And a two-thirds majority is also sufficient to override a governor's veto.

OIL ON TROUBLED WATERS. -- A number of lawmakers had their "backs up" before the governor made his statewide "report to the people" after the regular session closed. But the governor's message smoothed some feathery.

Many lawmakers expected Daniel to roast the Legislature for its failure to take care of money matters during the 140-day session. They had their hot replies all ready for press release. Instead, Governor Daniel adroitly praised the lawmakers as one of the hardest working legislatures he had ever seen. He even singled out for kind words some leaders who had opposed his program.

It was those infernal lobbyists who were to blame, said the governor. He described hordes of lobbyists, choking the hallways and bothering members while they were in session.

Now, it's the lobbyists who are riles.

Governor Daniel has announced that he will name a new citizen's committee to study the state's fiscal problems and make recommendations before the special session begins.

GRAND GESTURE. -- Before adjourning, the Senate gave approval to a $2,600,000 general appropriations bill for the two years beginning September 1.

But without passage of a money-raising bill to back it up, appropriations had no meaning.

Senate adopted the appropriations conference committee report -- a plan that called for spending $385,500,000 from general revenue, compared to the present $320,000,000 general revenue appropriation. Welfare programs, the state hospital system, junior colleges and the state senior college and university system would be among the main beneficiaries.

Senate also passed an equally ineffective $810 a year raise for school teachers before adjourning.

All was for naught, however, when the tax bill failed to pass.

14 AMENDMENTS PROPOSED. -- Texas voters can get ready for a bumper crop of 14 proposed constitutional amendments to be on the November ballot in 1962.

Some of the amendments are of major importance; some are only local in effect and application. Among them are proposals to:

1. Increase maximum possible yearly payments to the permanently disabled from $1,500,000 to $2,500,000.
2. Allow the state water development board to purchase water storage space in reservoirs constructed by other units of government, such as the federal government.
3. Permit the Veterans Land Board to sell forfeited land to non-veteran buyers to liquidate land the state is "stuck with."

How The Littlefield Paper Was Produced . . . . . Until Today

TELETYPESETTER--Above is the teletypesetter which converted news onto rolls of tape, which in turn were mounted on the Intertypemachines to produce column width galley copy. The tape activated the Intertypemachine. Shown operating the tape machine above is Mrs. Treva Quigley.

JUSTOWRITER AND HEADLINER--Shown above two of the new off set process machines, the Headliner in the foreground and the Justowriter in the background. Operating the Headliner is Cindy Siems and at the Justowriter is Mrs. Marlan Mansell, both new employees. Mrs. Treva Quigley also operates the Justowriter machine. The Justowriter converts news copy onto rolls of tape, which in turn are mounted on the reader machine and produces column width copy.

TYPE MIXER MACHINE--Jimmy Chapman is shown setting a line on the type mixer, one of the machines used for making larger type letters. The line above made the type on metal slugs, when cooled were placed in page and locked on the press for printing.

MELT POT FOR THE INTERTYPE--All metal slugs are emptied into the above melt pot and poured, when molten into "pigs" which could then be used in both Intertype and the Ludlow. Raymond Contreras is shown operating the melt pot. He also made metal printing plates cast from heavy paper mats.

THE NEWSPAPER OFFSET PRESS--Above is the new Goss Suburban Offset press located at Hereford and owned jointly by the Littlefield Press, the Hereford Brand and the Canyon News. The $100,000 press was located in Hereford to afford a central location to the three newspapers that will use it. The press can handle 12 pages at one time and operates at a speed of 15,000 copies per hour. The public is invited to an open house to be held at the Hereford plant this Sunday from 2 until 6 p.m.

WATCHING THE LAST RUN--Joe Harrell, Leader and News pressman is shown watching the last run from the Goss Comet press used by the newspaper for the last nine years. The press printed directly off the metal page forms, printing eight standard newspaper pages at the same time.

Speed And Efficiency Do Not Always Go Hand In Hand As Thought

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discusses efficiency this week, but we can't say with how much success.

Dear editor: I realize that while whole countries are disappearing these days, worrying over the disappearance of the so-called family-type farm seems like a waste of time if not a misapplication of thought, but according to an article I read in a newspaper last night, a lot of people are concerned about this matter.

But I'm not as interested in the actual disappearance of the small farm as I am in what these people think will bring it about.

According to them, inefficiency is the cause. The small farmer has got to get more efficient if he expects to stay on his farm, they argue.

I don't know about this. In my own case, I don't expect to get any more efficient, and I don't expect to move off this Johnson grass farm. People confuse efficiency with bigness. To me, a four-row cultivator is something you can work your land with in half the time it took with a two-row outfit, but to other people it's something you can work twice as much land with in the same long hours.

Efficiency can be overdone. For example, in this same newspaper I was reading last night I noticed that a contest was held in New York the other day to see which was the fastest way to get across midtown Manhattan. The results showed you can cross this center of American culture and efficiency about as fast in a horse and buggy as you can in a car, and even on foot you won't be far behind.

Efficiency has produced automobiles in such numbers they're becoming useless in big cities, and cities themselves have become so efficient they're unmanageable.

Airplanes have become so efficient and numerous they have to circle around an airport an hour to find a place to land.

Government has become so efficient the tax payers can't afford it.

It was efficiency that produced a bomb that'll kill a hundred thousand times more people than the cannon ball.

The way it looks to me,

inefficiency is the hope of mankind and the small farm is the last refuge of this style of operating. The last thing the world should be doing is coming out here and telling me how to get more efficient. In my case it might not matter, but some farmers might listen.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.
