Congress Erupts With Demand Of Nazi Retribution

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (P) -Congress erupted today with demands for relentless punishment of Germans guilty of what a cabinet committee calls the systematic murder of millions of innocent European civilians.

There was no angry talk of reeady lost at Hengyang, Lingling, talation in kind, of eye-for-an-eye retribution.

But in both senate and house arose a measured call for peace terms severe enough to keep the Nazis from ever again committing crimes of atrocity and for the death penalty for those tried and found guilty of them in this war.

Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the house foreign affairs committee and Senator Johnson (D-Colo) declared that Germany shouldn't be allowed to keep a single gun. And they said the peace machinery should include the means of meting out punishment to Nazis

The Third army widened its front inside the 'German Saar basin to 19 miles.

The First army burst finally into the forest battlefield town of Hurtgen also and captured Frenz, 25 miles from Cologne. Langerwehe is 15 miles east of the German frontier.

Frenz is 14 miles inside Germany and north of the highway leading through threatened Duren to the great Rhineland city. Troops stood within four miles of Duren. The Third army widened its front in the Saar basin to 19 miles and poured tanks, guns and infantry through breaches aimed at Saarbrucken, already within slege gun range.

Ninth army infantry batiling in the outer defenses of the ravaged Roer river fortress of Julich fought toward the churning stream, sometimes wading in water above their knees. The boggy ground limited the use of tanks.

Heavy infantry battles flamed around Barmen, 4,000 yards north of Julich; Koslar, 3,000 yards west, and Kirchberg, 4,000 yards due south. Flood waters of the Roer flowed through the Barmen streets hampering the Americans but forcing the Germans from

House Committee Inspects English Military Posts

LONDON, Nov. 27 (P) - The army bundled the touring U.S. House Military committee out of London last night for an inspection of military establishments in the United Kingdom.

Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.) was missing yesterday at the first press conference held by the group, Rep. Matt Merritt (D-N. Y.), who presided, branded as "ridiculous" a suggestion that the army was holding the woman representative incommunicado to keep her from issuing any statements.

The New York Herald - Tribune in a dispatch from London said Mrs. Luce told reporters five hours after the press conference that she had been instructed to keep quiet by an army public relations officer attached to the United Kingdom base.

"When informed there had been no authorization for this request," the Herald - Tribune story said. Mrs. Luce "also discussed the cigarette shortage."

The account quoted her as saying "every civilian ought to give up smoking if it is necessary in order to let the GI's have cigarettes, and the women ought to be the first to do it. And I am a heavy smoker myself."

Minister W. L. Mackenzie King faced a bitterly torn parliamentary to ask for a vote of confidence in his new policy of partial conscription for overseas service.

By HARRY T. MONTGOMERY

The life of King's nine-year-old regime hung in the balance as the house of commons assembled to debate the conscription issue, the most explosive political question in Canada's modern history.

In some areas of the Frenchspeaking province of Quebec, traditionally opposed to conscription for service abroad, troops of all categories were told to keep off the streets in certain cities to lessen the possibility of violent outbreaks such as marked the week-end in various parts of the dominion. Similar precautions were taken in the west coast province of Columbia, where more British

It'll be a sweet smelling Christmas - because perfume buying is bigger than ever. Even G. I. Joe who doesn't know what to give Sue, Madge or Jane will probably decide on perfume if the present luxury buying peak is any indication. But he won't be able to give her anything cheap. This year Sue knows her perfumes. She's been buying them herself - the expensive kind.

One large perfume house re ports that a recent magazine article which pictured one of their perfumes at three ounces for $120 caused a deluge of mail orders and phone calls, a great percentage of inquiries being from working girls. Even the white collar girl who is earning (with tax deductions) less than she did in 1939, has become a buyer of good perfume. All-Out On Scent

Elsewhere throughout the nation it has been reported that girl war workers think nothing of a $10 purchase of perfume and of dousing it on for a single date. On the crest of this voluntary purchasing wave, advertising has ecome more to the point. There is less stressing "of the mood of the moment," or the blending of perfume to the color of the hair, eyes or skin; fewer ads emphasize tricks like applying perfume to the elbow, in the hollow at the base of the neck, under the arms, behind the ears and knees.

Instead, the ad writers are frankly stressing the appeal to the opposite sex.

Desire, Funds And Credit

Banking of any character leaves most of u old. It has its complexes, and those in the financial world have had a happy talent for speaking in rms that utterly confound the average individual. nsequently, most of us shirk from any discussion Consequently, most or us shirt iter economic terms,

Yet, the people of the nation will do well to do e simple thinking about ban'ting-and international or world banking at that. Before long much will be heard from Washington concerning the adinistration proposal to expand the export-import bank fourfold or more. A companion move is to erase from the statutes the law which prohibits ing to nations which defaulted in payment of their World War 1 debts.

As the issue is debated, there is an excellent rtunity for public opinion to make itself known, To make an intelligent expression, the public should nalyze the situation, in terms of their thinking.

Banking, local or world, is simply a handy device for fostering trade. Most of us can understand hat if we wish to buy something, we either must have money in the bank with which to pay or a edit arrangement made whereby we can get the ods. We may be in desperate need of the thing which we wish to buy, but unless one of these conditions is met, we cannot get it for ourselves.

This can be applied to world trade. Other nations of the world are going to offer big demand markets for our products. However, we may be inded to the necessity of taking advantage of this mand if we look only at the backlog of civilian mands within our own country. We may be so bent on supplying these lush markets that we will forget to do justice to our international responsibility and opportunity.

In the long run, no nation can survive econoically within itself. It must trade with other naons. This is going to be more so after the war than ever before. Our foreign trade admittedly was not what it should have been until World War II came along, but now we have the opportunity of etting some countries into the habit of trading with

There is just this one little fly in the ointment-and that's where world banking comes These nations will be like the individual with a desire but no cash or credit.

We have virtually al lihe world's gold supply red. Most nations have exhausted their credit with us. The problem is how to make it possible to get credit or funds with which to pay-and indeed, the problem of making it possible for them to pay. It is a certainty that if we do nothing, trade will kifle. Others will trade between themselves on a arter basis. Far seeingbanking policies toward se nations might enable them to slowly but surely get back on their feet. In so doing, they not only uid be able to pay back what we advance them

The Allied and German battle-lines at the entrance to the Cologne plain continue to struggle fiercely at close grips, with the Hitlerite front sagging and giving ground in spots under terrific pressure-but still not breaking.

WASHINGTON

The Timid Soul

The fighting which is raging in this Aachen sector opposite the great Rhenish city of Cologne is some of the toughest that western Europe has seen since D-Day. For instance, take the case of Weisweiler which was captured by the American First army yesterday. The Yankee doughboys fought for twenty-four hours through the streets before they took this strategic town which sits astride Hitler's great six-lane motor highway to Cologne.

Still, this bitter conflict was in the cards, for the German defenses in this zone are the key to the rolling terrain a bit further eastward-across the River Roer-towards Cologne. That open plain bids fair to be the amphitheatre for the decisive showdown..

We are, of course, still witnessing the preliminaries to this battle of the Cologne plain. The Allied offensive hasn't yet reached its full intensity. Nazi Field Marshal von Rundstedt probably already is employing about as many reserves as he can rake up to the defenses of the Roer, which represents the last great obstacle between the Allies and the Cologne plain. If Von Rundstedt really has accepted the gage to combat in the Cologne plain he will indeed be a smart general if that isn't his last big battle. . . .

Once he's committed to such a stand-and he seems to be so already-he will have fantastic luck if he is able to withdraw any considerable portion of his troops back across the Rhine. The bridges over that great and swift river are at the mercy of the Allied bombers and can be destroyed at any moment. Those bridges not only are Von Rundstedt's means of escape but they also are his life-lines for supplies.

What It Means-Revamping The World Court

By FLORA LEWIS

WASHINGTON-When the new peace organization is set up, the World Court may well be a holdover from 1919.

Many international lawyers and diplomats have already suggested that the permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague should be carried over to the new security organization, and this is now a strong possibility.

The United States, Britain, Russia and China provided for a court in their Dumbarton Oaks plan but didn't get around to deciding whether the established one should be modernized or whether a brand new one should be created.

International lawyers point out that few changes would be need-ed to fit the existing court into the proposed organization.

Local Workers Must Have Social Security

All Big Spring boys and girls who plan to work, if they do not already have jobs, after school and on Saturdays in local stores in order to help relieve the rush during the holiday season, must have social security cards and numbers, the Social Security Board in San Angelo announced Monday.

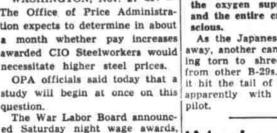

Cards received other years for his type of work are still good this year, but the board urged that all young people working for the first time should apply for a social security number. These cards may be secured from the San Angelo Social Security field office without charge and application forms may be secured at the
