weight, or plain fat.

Over 25,000,000 people in the United States are overweight. In Texas the number is probably close to 100,000, causing what State Health Officer George W. Cox calls "a significant public health problem.

Obesity, the doctor declares, brings on a predisposition to diabetes and high blood pressure, and adversely affects arthritis. He says diabetes occurs two and one-half times as often in obese persons as it does in people of normal weight. High blood pressure occurs three times as often.

The answer to obesity? Reduce. But do it right, Dr. Cox cautions. This is what State Health Department nutritionists recommend as a good reducing Tea or coffee may be used as beverages, provided no sugar or cream is added. Skim milk could be used, however, and succharin makes a good substitute sweetner.

Desserts, the doctor says, are O-U-T for the conscientious reducer.

That's the word from James A. Deer, associate extension entomologist of Texas A&M College, He few weeks-repeated showers with warm temperatures and above average humidity has been responsible for the hornfly population increase,

Deer says cattle owners should immediately take the necessary steps to rid their herds of these pests. Here's why; a heavy infestation will cause cattle to go into the winter in a weakened condition and if they become heavily infested with lice during the winter, there'll be more trouble. Hornflies and lice are both blood suckers and the result will be anomic cattle.

According to Deer, cattle treated now for haraflies may also be treated for lice. This combination treatment will save time and labor and is insurance against cattle go-

ou And Your Congress

Congress is deeply concerned at the moment about a kind of security that has little or nothing to do with defense.

The concern centers around President Truman's recent order which, among other things, permits federal civilian agencies to withhold information from the public if they deem such action necessary for

Furthermore, it permits the head of an agency to delegate this authority to any of his underlings, making a potential censor of practically every federal agency employe.

Congressional criticism was immediate and fre-

Rep. Bakewell (R-Mo.) declard that "secrecy is the cloak of dishonesty." Rep. Talle (R-Ia.) said he thought it was significant that "the lid of secrecy is being clamped down even as Congressional committees are sifting charges of corruption in the Truman Administration.

Sen. Benton (D.Conn.), normally an Administration supporter, proposed the appointment to a high federal post of a "people's advocate" to fight for the release of information to the public.

Sen, Moody (D-Mich.), also normally an Administration supporter, and a former Washington correspondent, suggested selecting a group of Washington newspaper men to help the Administration draft a security code. Almost immediately after the White House order was issued, an Office of Price Stabilization official issued a directive forbidding release of any information that might "embarrass" OPS.

Nor were the Congressional critics mollified by Mr. Truman's announcement at his news conference the other day that he would change the order if experience warranted. He attempted to justify the order by saying it was needed to preclude publication of military secrets. But his critics were aware that the State and children have moved to Littlefield. Defense departments and Atomic Energy Commis sion already possess unlimited authority to protect the nation's military secrets through censorship.

Back of the Congressional distaste for the Presi dential order were several important factors.

1. The abhorrence in our Democracy of any sort of censorship of information for the public except where absolutely necessary for reasons of military

2. Awareness that there is no real connection beween the actions of the majority of federal agencies and national security in its real sense.

3. The celerity with which most federal agencies discovered, for purposes of obtaining larger appropriations, that their routine operations were "vital" to national defense. This breeds fear in Congress that those agncies, especially when encouraged by the new Presidential order, would be just as eager to use the pretext of their importance to national defense to withhold information which might encounter adverse public reaction.

There is also the fact that the Presidential order highlights another of the dangers of the sort of "alg government" that has grown up in Washington during the last 20 years. Its growth has found Congress delegating more and more authority, via loosely written legislation, to the Executive branch.

Today Congress faces a situation where suppression of much information under the guise of security may prevent Congress itself, as well as the general public, from learning exactly how the Executive agencies are using their vast authority.

Spring has nothing on fall and winter when it comes to romance. Little debs back at their books have buckled down to more than their A-B-C's and so now have a raft of questions. What should I I know he cares but . . . how can Somehow every school girl is bent on being popular. And popular to her is not necessarily being tops in her class or the girl athlete. It is more the corralling of the handsomest or most sought-after boy in school. But lots of little girls dream their romance-if the boy looks at them twice, they swoon and day-dream about the "ifs' ands and buts." Here are some rules to be filed away for an "if-and-when"

1. Has he really noticed you?

Some girls get a crush on a young man just because he has picked up their books, fetched a glass of water or has been courteous or kind. These girls pine away thinking the boy is madly in love because he performs a sweet act here or three, when the young man hasn't the remotest idea of being anything but a gentleman.

2. He's not THAT shy . . .

Don't think a boy is dying to ask you for a date but can't get around to it for one reason or another. If you try to entice him with that thought in mind, you'll just drive him away. Romance will always find a way and even if he can't afford to date you, he could always invite you to a party or other nocash-outlay event.

3. If you DO go out with your dream boy . . .

Don't make the mistake of telling him your life's history on the first date. After all, if he knows all about you in a few minutes, what is left for conversation after that? Intrigue is what you must practice, and smart girls always are mysterious on the first, sec ond and even the third date. Let him warm up gradually to you. Throw him an interesting tid-bit on each date, and he'll come back

4. About that class pin or ring You don't get a class pin or ring by asking to wear it, or by being cute and trying it on with the idea that he'll let you keep it. Wait until he suggests it himself and even when he does, hesitate the appropriate time-at least twice. When he offers it the third time, consent date, probably. to wear it if you like, but consent do not let him think he is obligated to offer it just because he's dated you a few times. 5. He's not your private property, books, don't dampen their fun just . If you do manage to snare a like- because you aren't interested in ly candidate for a few dates, don't assume that he's your private possession. Many a girl has lost a nice both interests, happily. If you since he has taken her out two or three times he has no business dating another girl. Actually, some

6. Love and let love . . .

Don't be a disappointed female. If other girls have fun with social recreation (boys), and you prefer dates. Lots of girls can combine guy because she assumes that can't, don't sneer at your sisters.

7. The big dance . . .

If a boy dates you for a dance, boys are smart enough to try to don't expect him to dance with you make up their minds about a girl all evening. He expects that you by dating a few before they pin are as popular as he is and you'd down to one steady date (some be better off to impress him with thing girls could take a feaf from). your popularity, instead of trying If he likes you, he'll be back again to keep him by your side all eve--providing you do not impress up. ning. He'll be more intrigued if you on him that he is tied to your dance with other boys. After all, if apron strings. And if he falls for you suspect he's dating girls with somebody else, you haven't lost whom he dances, he probably anything. It would happen sooner thinks the same of you dancing or later even if you were his steady with the boys. Reep him guessing. LAMB COUNTY LEADER, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1951

Curves Can Go To Your Head

By BETTY CLARKE

let their hair grow or cut some has dried. more off, says a gal can still achieve distinction with a curved part. Says he:

"An arc-part can make a bewitching difference even in an ordinary coiffure. Curving the part is not only flattering but makes the hair behave. A straight part is not very enchanting when viewed from the profile. This is particularly likely to be the case if your head tends to go higher in back, as is true with many women. If the part is curved it will correct this strange profile line and make the head appear flatter and more

Not every woman is yearning to look flat-headed, but it is true that Fall coiffures are based on a flattop look. The girl with a cowlick will find that the flat-on-top effect can be achieved if the part is curved and swirled around her unruly lock of hair. Hair bordering the entire length of the arc should respond easier to combing, provided the curved part followers the natural contour of the head and emphasizes the line where the hair has a natural tendency to fall, he SRYS.

A good hairdresser can solve the problem of a bad forehead line by giving you the right hair part. A slanted part sometimes will make a chubby face look even chubbier, whereas a straight down-the-center part on some thin faces will give the illusion of width.

The best way to experiment with a new hair part is to use a threeway mirror so that sides and back can be viewed. When you find a hair part that looks ideal for your type and which does more for you than the one you are using, go to your hairdresser for a good haircut based on the hair part you pre-

> "We live in a world of constant change on battlefields of words which control and direct the destinies of peoples and nations. Newsprint must be considered essential along with other dire necessities of nations."

> One of the big shortages in production of newsprint in Canadawhich produces four-fifths of all such paper consumed in the United States, is sulphur. And that commodity comes almost entirely from Texas and Louisiana. The committee report said:

> "One ton of sulphur produces some seven to eight tons of sulfite pulp, and one ton of sulfite pulp is used for each six to seven tons of newsprint. A ton of sulphur, accordingly, represents some 50 tons of newsprint."

At present there are two newsprint mills in the South-at Lufkin, Texas, and Childersburg, Ala. A bill has just been introduced in the House which would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend up to 50 percent of the amount needed to erect new

When Congress adjourns Beckworth plans to take his subcommittee and look further into the possibility of new mills being erected in this country. The group also may go to Mexico to check timber resources there.

The House resolution under which the Beckworth newsprint subcommittee is operating instruts the group to study and determine whether any government agency is formulating plans for putting into effect:

1. Restrictions relating to the production or consumption of newsprint for book papers; 2. Requirements respecting the grade labeling of commodities; or, 3. Requirements intended to bring about simplification and standardization of production, marketing, and distribution of commodities.

Should his committee go to Mexco. Beckworth says, it also will make a thorough study of the petroleum industry below the border. Shipments of oil from Mexico to the United States, which averaged 10,000,000 barrels annually in the past five years, leaped to 18,000,000 barrels in 1950.

Oil Industry Fights Problems That Beset It When Spindletop Was Youngster

Conservation, transportation, refining-these and other problems have plagued oilmen from Col. Edwin Drake's first well in Pennsylvania in 1859 to present-day holes that drop thousands of feet into the earth.

Oilmen, generally, believe they are over the hump. But heavier demand for petroleum products, created by government stockpiling and normal industrial expansion, causes problems to recur.

When Texas' famed Spindletop blew in Jan. 10, 1901, oil operators didn't know how to cap a gusher. Previous wells had flowed gently. The new salt dom field in East Texas gushed crude oil at the rate of 3,000 barrels per hour for nine days while engineers worked feverishly devising a method to halt the flow.

This problem, and others of a rudimentary nature, were solved built in the years after, but in 1901 relatively fast. But the problems when Spindletop came in there of wastage, moving and getting were only two refineries operating more from oil persist.

An extra producting day statewide, giving operators 25 days to flow oil during dustry's basic problems had been the 31-day month, accounts for the added production. The big East Texas field remains on a 19-day lines were already in use and rall-

More oil means more wells, men and equipment. Steel and experienced workers are becoming scarce, and oilmen are bracing for the pinch.

Several hundred oilmen met in Fort Worth recently to discuss problems connected with the giant West Texas Spaberry trend. They discussed the idea of 80-acre spacing between wells rather than the conventional 49-acre plan. Thousands of tons of steel could be saved, they said. A committee was appointed to study the plan.

From Col. Drake's first well in Titusville, Pa., oil went west rapdly. In 1866 oll was discovered in California. Production spread from Pennsylvania, though Ohio, West Virginia, and briefly, into Illinois and Indiana. In 1890 Southeastern Oklahoma entered the oil picture. Ten years later Spingletop definitely fixed the oil production center of the world in the Southwest.

By 1919-11 the cracking process had been discovered; the Model-T was driving Dobbin off the road. The motor age was just wheeling Oil was fast becoming the blood of the nation and the world.

Petroleum had been known and used since earliest times. The Indians in New York and Pennsylvania collected seepage oil for sevbral years before the white man came. They called it "Antonotons," which means, "oh, how much there oil. George Washington listed in his will lands in Pennsylvania which contained a "burning Gasoline was not sought in the

there were only four automobiles in the U.S. in 1894, and that in the same year the airplane was simply an idea kicking around in the minds of the Wright brothers.
