Mr. Hopping is the son of Judge and Mrs. R. C. Hopping of Littlefield, and is a progressive young farmer of the Amherst community.

Mrs. Hopping is the charming and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gray of this city.

After the ceremony the young couple returned to Amherst where they will make their home.

Those composing the bridal party were: Mrs. W. O. Gray, Misses Alyne Arnett and Jimmie Silvers; Messrs Earl Hopping, Herbert Gray and Tollie Gray.

NOTHING MORE DELICIOUS THAN HAM

Ham is Always Appetizing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
To bring out the best flavor in an old ham the United States Department of Agriculture says to soak it several hours, thoroughly remove all mold and loose pieces, and rinse well. Cover with cold water, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-half cupful of brown sugar, four cloves and one bay leaf, and heat to boiling. (The amount of cloves and bay leaf may be increased if desired, especially for larger hams.)

Reduce the heat to a constant simmer and allow to cook at this temperature at the rate of 20 minutes for each pound weight, or until tender. Remove from the fire, but keep the ham in the liquor in which it was cooked, until cold; then remove from the container and allow to drain. Take off the skin, score the fat in inch blocks, and cover with a coating of brown sugar and crumbs. Stick with cloves 1 inch apart.

Bake in a slow oven until nicely browned, basting at intervals with one-half cupful of water and one tablespoonful of vinegar. A ham should always be well cooked before it is eaten.

U. S. POSTAL INSPECTOR VISITS LITTLEFIELD OFFICE

W. J. Wade, the local post master was visited by a U. S. Government Postal Inspector. The Inspector reports the local office in fine condition. This is the first inspector to visit Littlefield in three years and many improvements have been made in the office during that time.

While here the inspector went over the proposed Rural route and found it satisfactory. This route covers about fifty miles. Beginning south of town and running east, north and back to Littlefield.

There are probably more than a hundred families who will be benefited by this route.

Littlefield vs Sudan

In a very fast and hotly contested game Sunday the Littlefield Boosters base ball team, demonstrated their ability to deliver the goods by defeating the Sudan team by the small score of 6-7. At one time the score stood 6-1, Sudan leading, but a few timely hits by Littlefield and some bad errors on the part of Sudan changed the score entirely. The game was bare of spectacular plays except for two made by Walden on Third. Batteries for Sudan, Robbie & Harris. For Littlefield, Pate, Beisel and Porter.

Local Showers

Intense hot weather and hot winds which threatened the crops throughout the county last week was broken Saturday when a slow rain began falling in the western part of the county and lasted for about two hours.

Judge's Josh

EXPERIENCE IS A DEAD LOSS TO SOME FELLOWS BECAUSE THEY CAN'T SELL IT FOR MORE THAN IT COSTS THEM.

PLATEAU SINGING CONVENTION NO. 3 HELD IN AMHERST

The entire morning was devoted to singing. Several special numbers being rendered by the Clovis quartet and others.

Dinner in plenty was served on the ground, after which the convention re-convened for a business session.

AMHERST DOWNS TEXICO IN EASY FASHION 11 TO 3

The Texico boys journeyed to Amherst last Sunday to carry home an easy win. But alas the result was in favor of the home boys.

The Amherst nine held the visitors easily. Alvin Mueller was in the box for the locals, with Welch catching. While Tate the star twirler for Texico was pounded to all corners for hits that meant runs. One of which was a home run by Alvin Mueller, scoring two men ahead of him.

Tate held the Herford nine to no hits and no runs the week before, and figured to duplicate the trick Sunday.

The visitors registered one in the 1st on a hit and an error by Harmon playing center field who dropped a high fly.

The Amherst boys came right back in their half, and tied the score. Welch reached first safely and stole second. Art Mueller hit safely between Short and Second scoring Welch.

The local boys found Tate an easy mark, and scored at will, while Alvin Mueller held the visitors in hand throughout the game.

Embert Mueller brought the rooters to their feet when he grabbed what appeared a safe hit after bouncing off of the pitcher's mit, and tossing the man out at first.

The visitors failed to threaten at any time of the game.

The final count read Amherst 11, and Texico 3.

Poem By Uncle John

Bill Jester is an optimist—if ever there was one; no matter what his troubles is, he never worries none! While other fellows blame their luck an' grumble fit to kill, an' backfire every time they're stuck, it ain't the case with Bill.

I've saw him—when the weather drapped to twenty-two below. . . He'd whistle like a madder-lark, and holler "Let 'er snow!" Ask him if he hadn't rather see the weather hot, he'll tell ye life's lots sweeter when there ain't no flies to swat!

Ketch old Bill durin' August—when the sun is spittin' red,—hot enough to nearly scorch the cleboards of the shed. . . Speak to Bill about it—an' he'll greet ye with surprise, and then proceed to demonstrate the joys of evntin' sleep!

EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY CROP PROSPECT OF COUNTY INCREASES

Day by day in every way the farmers of the South Plains country grow leaner and happier. They grow happier because the crops are constantly looking better, and they grow leaner because they are wearing off their winter accumulation of fat sweating between the corn and cotton rows as they stir up the dust mulch necessary to conserve the moisture.

Crops all over Lamb county never looked better than they do right now. Drive out across the country in any direction one wishes, and the long rows of cotton and feed stuff looks fresh and thrifty. There are many fields of Kaffir and Milo that is from a foot to a foot and a half high, much of it been plowed two and three times. Lots of the cotton is setting on squares, and the husky oat crop is now being harvested.

Garden stuff looks luxuriant and the farmers have for the past three weeks been eating beans, peas, radishes, cucumbers, etc., fresh from their own gardens.

A prosperous looking country it is indeed. Plenty of moisture in the ground for a long time to come; plenty of energy in the farmers to last until the last furrow is turned, the last swath cut and the last fleecy lock is picked.

Taking it in every way, day by day—a pretty good country to live in.

ASPIC SALADS HELP USE UP LEFTOVERS

Plan Outlined to Utilize Surplus Meat and Vegetables.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good way to use meat and vegetable leftovers is to incorporate them in firm unsweetened jellies made from meat stock or well-seasoned and flavored vegetable water stiffened with jelly which need not be accompanied by salad dressing unless one wishes. When there is not enough chicken left over to make regular chicken and celery salad, a chicken aspic is still possible if there is broth available and perhaps a few tablespoonfuls of cooked peas, carrots, celery or herbs. This aspic jelly would not be an equivalent in food value for the ordinary chicken salad, but it would have its place in a meal at which other foods were served. Beef or veal stock is good in making jellied meat for salad. Tomato-jelly salad is well known. Beets are good in a spiced jelly made with water flavored with vinegar or lemon. To make one of these savory jellies a little less than a quart of liquid—stock or water—is used with one envelope or ounce of gelatin; the seasoning with salt, pepper, bayleaf, or vinegar, is a matter of family taste. When the jelly needs to be firm to inclose a good deal of solid material it is well to reduce the amount of liquid. All such jellies must be made some time in advance of the meal at which they are to be served, and set in a cool place to stiffen. The fact that they can be prepared beforehand is sometimes a convenience. Salads made of these savory jellies, thoroughly chilled, are especially acceptable for lunch or supper in hot weather or when "heartly" dishes do not tempt the appetite.

Baked Pears Are Equally as Delicious as Apples

Baked pears are not so familiar as baked apples to many people, but are equally good, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The pears may be pared if desired, but many people prefer the flavor when the skins are not removed. Halve or quarter the pears and remove the cores. Cook in a small amount of water for ten minutes; add sugar or sugar and bake until tender. A few whole spices or a small piece of ginger root give additional flavor if desired.

purpose, if the object is to raise money by admission fee or otherwise, is an advertisement and when sent in for publication must be paid for at the regular advertising rate per line for each issue printed.
Obituaries, cards of thanks, and resolutions of respect will also be charged for at the same rate.
Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of the Littlefield Leader will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the publisher.

It is our observation that no bathing suit looks naughty that contains something that looks absurd.

After all, it takes the retired farmer just moved to town to do a good job of ridiculing his former countrymen.

"Keep cool and keep Coolidge," was the Republican slogan adopted at the Cleveland convention. Yep, dog days are coming!

Old fashioned folks are those who consider twin beds synonymous with a divorce. Not many old fashioned folks here,
tho.

We saw a Waco jazz orchestra
in action last week, which made it easy to believe the story that katydids make that noise with their hind legs.

We know some girls of this vicinity who successfully hide their native skin with a drug store make up, but it has no effect whatever on their giggle.

Now days it seems to be one of the inalienable rights of some folks to hate people of another faith even tho they don't practise their own religion.

By the time another presidential campaign rolls around nearly any man who isn't a klanman,
a Catholic, a wet or a dry, a standpatter or a radical may have a chance to become president.

Education and religion are the fore runners of civilization. The towns on the South Plains that make the greatest advancement strides are invariably the ones that furnish the greatest advantages in these lines. They have learned these pay from a commercial as well as a social and moral standpoint.

Above the Pest Line

The editor spent a few days
last week in McLennan county, and every day of his absence
gave thanks that he was a resident of the South Plains country.

What with Web worms, careless worms, alfalfa worms, boll weevil, pink boll worms, and a thousand and one other insectivia etcetera adnausea, the farmers of that otherwise fine county are having the time of their lives to save their crops.

The Fire Risk

A total of 506,541,000 worth of American property went up in smoke last year, according to statistics just made public by the National Fire Protection Society.

According to the report 40 per cent of the fires may be attributed to inadequate and inflammable building construction, another 40 per cent to general carelessness, 10 per cent to simple ignorance, and still another 10 per cent to purely accidental circumstances.

With the inadequate fire protection of this town and the number of buildings of inflammable construction constantly going up no haste for incorporation can be too great.

Senator Sheppard

Senator Morris Sheppard is a candidate for re-election. He is coming home to make the campaign, which will be opened at Marlin in July.

It has been this editor's privilege to have a personal acquaintance with Mr. Sheppard which began when he was editor of the afternoon daily in Texarkana, Sheppard's home town.

Morris has made a good senator, at all times standing for, endorsing and voting for the best interests of the State. He is a friend to the farmer and a friend to West Texas. He and Earl Mayfield both voted for the farm relief measure and against early adjournment of Congress.

The South Plains country
ought to roll up an overwhelming
vote for sheppard this fall.

Wheat vs Cotton

The old law of "Supply and Demand" still holds good. Because there is a carryover of 200 million bushels of wheat with good prospects of a wheat crop
in Russia, the price of that commodity still hovers below the $1.25 mark, and South Plains farmers are wondering how they are going to "break even."

On the other hand, the cotton carryover is about 150 million bales, mostly linters and short staple stock, with poor crop prospects in the southeastern states, and farmers of this section are wondering how they are going to spend their 35 and 40 cent per pound income from their fleecy staple.

The Average Man

The difference between the average and the exceptional man is not so much one of intelligence
as of energy.

The demand of the day is not so much for the man unusual, exceptional in genius or extraordinary in ability; but for the man who will stay on the job giving at least a reasonable recompense
for that which he is paid.

Too many make it a rule to just "get by," when the thing that is needed is men who will do each day a little more than is required. This is what puts men above mediocrity.

The fellows who are doing all they can are the ones who are on the road to prosperity and happiness. It is always the men who do as little as they can that make trouble and never get anywhere.

Work is the great leverage to success. It is the universal panacea to happiness. It is the one element needed by the citizens of this new country to become happy and prosperous, at the same time making it the best section of the great State of Texas.

KEEP EGGS PROPERLY IN GOOD CONTAINERS

Keeping Quality Affected in Various Ways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As soon as eggs are brought from the poultry yard or the market, they should be sorted, and any cracked or soiled ones removed for immediate use, advises the United States Department of Agriculture in a new Farmers' Bulletin, 1974, entitled "Care of Food in the Home."

The keeping quality of eggs is seriously affected by rough handling, changes in temperature, dampness, dirt on the shells, unclean surroundings, and fertility. Fertile eggs tend to spoil more quickly than those that are infertile, for even room temperature (70 degrees F.) aids the development of the embryo in a fertile egg. Eggs, therefore, are best kept in a covered container in a dry, clean place where the temperature is not above 60 degrees F. All eggs should be washed, but not until just before using, because water removes the protective film on the shell that hinders evaporation, the entrance of bacteria, and the absorption of odors. Preserving eggs for home use in water glass (potassium or sodium silicate) or in lime solution is a good way to care for any surplus when eggs are plentiful. The department will supply information as to how to do this by either method. Fresh, clean, unwashed, infertile eggs should be used for this purpose, and they should not be left in the preservative for more than a year. Eggs preserved in water glass or other solution should be rinsed with water and wiped dry before being opened, but eggs should not be washed before being put into the preservative. If such eggs are cooked in the shell, a small hole should be pricked in the large end before putting them into the hot water; otherwise the shell is likely to crack. For the pores have been sealed by the preserving solution.

Comfort of Bed Depends on Making It Properly

Do you know how to make a bed so that it looks neat and is comfortable to sleep in? It is an art worth learning, says the United States Department of Agriculture. First, straighten the mattress pad so that it lies smooth and without wrinkles. Over this, spread the under sheet, right side up, with the wide hem at the head and the center of the sheet to the center of the bed. The comfort of a bed depends in a large measure on tucking in the under sheet so securely that it remains smooth and straight. Making mitered corners is one of the best ways of doing this, and any person who has had nurses' training can quickly show you how to make them. Next, put on the upper sheet, right side down and allowing for a generous turnover at the head, tuck it in at the foot, using mitered corners. Then, put on the blankets so that their top edge comes about nine inches below the head of the bed, turn the upper sheet back and tuck in all edges. Last of all, put on the spread, draw it smooth and straight, and arrange the pillows.

DAIRY

INCREASED INCOME
 DERIVED FROM COW

The number of dairy cows and the interest in dairying has increased greatly during the past few years. This has been due to the greater income to be derived from dairy cows during the period of depression. The question of overproduction has been brought up in view of this dairy interest.

It is not the problem of overproduction which should concern us, but rather the problem of encouraging real dairymen to take up dairying and how to keep them in business permanently after they are once established. Periods of depression have come before and many have taken up the dairy cow. The fact to be regretted is that as soon as grain or cattle or any other agricultural pursuit became profitable again, a large number deserted the cow and gave up the business. Will this occur again, and if so, how can it be prevented?

No man should undertake dairying unless he really likes cows, and no man should begin before first making the firm determination to stay with the industry. Nothing is more disturbing to agricultural economics than the lack of permanency, consistency, and stability. The farmer who is constantly changing his agricultural business is usually "out" in times of high prices for that industry and "in" during the times of low prices.

Since 1850 the ratio between our population and our dairy cattle has remained practically constant. From 1900 to 1920 our population increased 39 per cent. If this increases at the same rate in the future, our population will need more cows to maintain the ratio. During recent years our consumption of milk has increased, and it will continue to increase as the value of milk as a food is realized.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Balanced Ration Is Best
 for Producing More Milk

Twenty good cows were recently placed in an experiment at the Illinois agricultural experiment station, and the results are very definitely in favor of a balanced ration. The 20 cows were divided into two lots, and during a preliminary period, both received a balanced ration, which consists of 30 pounds of corn silage, 8 pounds of clover hay, 4 2-3 pounds of ground corn, 3 1-3 pounds of ground corn. The nutritive ratio of the ration is 1:6. After the first period, one of the lots was taken off of a balanced ration, and given the following instead: Thirty pounds of corn silage, 5 pounds of timothy hay, 3 pounds of clover hay, 8 pounds of ground corn; nutritive ratio of 1:11.

At the end of 131 days, lot 1, which had a balanced ration, had gained from 1.7 to 10.65 pounds of milk per day. The lot which was changed to an unbalanced ration gained from .09 to .305. In other words, even though the second lot was getting what many dairymen might call at a glance a good variety of feeds, it was falling to gain along with the balanced ration by a long way. This illustrates very well the point we have made before: Even though you may be feeding roughage and a grain you are not getting all the milk you could from the same cows unless you know that the feeds are balanced.

Producing Quality First
 Is Aim of Good Dairymen

The far-sighted dairymen has no trouble in realizing that one of the biggest factors in his business is to market a first-grade product. During the past few years, attention has been more forcibly paid to dairy products as an essential human food. Through the efforts of the National Dairy Council, the great army of physicians, nurses, state and federal institutions, the consumption of dairy products has been slightly increased per capita.

This increase per capita can be advanced tremendously when each and every man who milks cows realizes that he is like every one else in business, namely, that when he produces quality first, volume always follows.

The best buttermaker on earth cannot make first-grade butter from second-grade cream. This summer let us all renew our efforts to market a product of which we can be proud.

Get out the milk cooler, keep the barn and surroundings clean and sweet, wash the separator after every time it is used, wash the cow's udders and brush them off a little oftener; the details count, and attention to details pays.—H. R. Lasswell, Fieldman for the Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Solve Problem of Feeding

Ensilage when fed along with alfalfa hay or even native hay solves the greatest problem of feeding cows to keep them in milk flow. When a farmer has ensilage, alfalfa hay and some other good hay, the amount of grain necessary is greatly reduced.

Need Good Winter Feed

Dairy cattle need good winter feed. They do not carry so much flesh as beef cattle and therefore need more protection.

SYSTEMATIC HOUSE-CLEANING PLAN

Vacuum Cleaner Saves Time and Labor.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Save labor in the weekly house cleaning by having a definite plan. The United States Department of Agriculture says. When this is done, the same work will not need to be repeated. For example, when rooms near together are to be cleaned on the same day, it is often easiest to get all of them ready, then clean them all, and finally put them all in order.

Dust Small Things First.
Small pictures and bric-a-brac should first be dusted. If not removed from the room entirely they should be placed in a pile and covered. Furniture, mirrors, and pictures should be dusted and covered with cloths. Draperies and portieres should be taken down or pinned up. Radiators, registers, grates, stoves, or fireplaces should be cleaned.

Walls, ceiling and baseboards should be brushed and dusted, and floor and floor coverings cleaned according to the kind. The object of sweeping and dusting is to remove dust, not to scatter it. In sweeping, the strokes should be firm and even. Keep the broom or brush on the floor most of the time instead of flinging it through the air. The dust cloth should be held in a fairly compact mass, so that the surface to be cleaned is wiped or polished and at the same time the dust is held by the cloth. While the dust is settling, remove spots from the woodwork and wash windows if necessary.

The covers may then be taken from pictures and furniture. They should be shaken out of doors if possible. Then the room and furniture should be dusted thoroughly, beginning at the top of the room and working down.

Use of Vacuum Cleaner.
When a room is cleaned with a vacuum cleaner, the order of proceeding is different. The room is first dusted, then the vacuum cleaner is used on upholstery, hangings, walls, and carpets or rugs, and finally the floor is dusted. By this method of cleaning fewer articles need to be moved, no dust is scattered, and more dirt is actually removed. A vacuum cleaner, therefore, saves time and labor.

How The Billboards Fail

The same principles apply in selling a cake of soap, a phonograph or a sewing machine as apply in selling the League of Nations or any idea calculated to affect foreign or domestic legislation. The people must be told about the article, they must be convinced that it is worthy, they must be stimulated to interest and moved to a determination to buy or to demand action.

In these days the recognized principle factor in selling is advertising. It is the only means of reaching the people. All of which brings us to the question of the kind of advertising that is most effective. Of course, there always will be some difference in opinion, but it is enlightening to note that the strong advocates of billboard appeal run to cover quickly when they have a desire actually to sell.

Quite apart from the unsightly aspect of the billboard, it seems strange that when its supporters wish to sell the people an idea with a view to bringing about beneficial legislation they see at a glance the billboard is a failure. When the large corporations want to really sell an idea they proceed as a rule to engage a press agent, or a "director of public relations." Then a drive is made to get their story before the public through the news columns of the newspapers. This is not always attempted because the corporation likes to get advertising without paying for it. The policy often is adopted because the corporation realizes that only newspaper advertising has a definite selling power.

The people to whom the corporations wish to sell their ideas are the same people to whom the corporations wish to sell their merchandise, and the same selling principles apply. Is it not strange that thinking men should in such circumstances adopt rules of advertising so diametrically opposed as the newspaper and the billboard?

The more thoughtfully conducted corporations tell their stories over their signatures in paid advertising appeal, recognizing the force of frank and open statement that can stand the light of public investigation. There are enough of the others left, however, who still cling to the old time poster idea of advertising, just as there are homes today that resent the installation of modern plumbing and hang on to the old time pump and bucket.

The billboard is an economic waste. It is thrust under the nose of a suffering public with its garish designs and half finished message. Instead of being taken into the home as a friend it is resented as an intrusion on public privacy and a menace to the public landscape. Newspaper advertising will stand the acid test as against the billboards any day in the week for any purpose.

Somewhere we have read that if poverty is the mother of crime, want of sense is the father. Whether this be true or false, certain it is that the offspring is illegitimate and uncomfortable.

Doctors don't advertise. Ethics prohibit, and leave the field open for the quacks to unload fake nostrums on the suffering public. No wonder the Frenchman asked what's an ethic?

Have You This Habit?
By Margaret Morison

DAISY MUDGE

MR. CABOTSON inspired awe among his subordinates in the big main office of the City Electric company, and Daisy Mudge trembled in her boots when she was assigned to act as Mr. Cabotson's special stenographer. He did not choose to see her for at least five minutes when she reported the first morning at his desk, and as the minutes increased she became more nervous. His letters finished, he suddenly asked her whether she used blue or black ink. Daisy, feeling at last on firm ground, replied that she had both kinds of ribbon. Whereupon Mr. Cabotson swung round with the information that he was sorry to hear that—he always insisted on black. Daisy had the confused feeling of having failed a test without quite knowing why, but she also began to see wherein lay Mr. Cabotson's power to intimidate.

When he passed through the rows of clerks in the morning, Daisy noticed that he would look at one or another so that a greeting was expected, and then, when the clerk had his face all ready to smile, pass by in stony silence. So he struck terror into timid hearts. Another Cabotson method was to pit one clerk against another, and so Daisy determined to try a little competition game on her own account. When another official's stenographer left one day, Daisy saw to it that her quickness in taking dictation should seem very desirable to him, and when she was asked to fill the vacant position, she enjoyed watching Mr. Cabotson scramble. On a certain morning she was late to her work, and following another Cabotson method of getting in first when a complaint was imminent, she quickly deprecated the worn-out condition of the typewriter she was using. She did not get a new machine, but nothing was said about her tardiness.

In short, the office began to see that "Cabotson was eating out of Daisy Mudge's hand." The spell was broken, and his prestige was on the wane. No one bothered when he scolded any more; the office ceased to look from the corners of its eyes when he came in the morning. Cabotson's stock was going down, down, down.

The habit of depending on method instead of dealing straightforwardly is a two-edged sword. Daisy Mudge had discovered the habit and turned it against Mr. Cabotson himself.

USE SWEET POTATOES IN MAKING BISCUITS

Department of Agriculture Gives Recipes for Bread.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Good muffins and biscuits can be made from sweet potatoes, says the United States Department of Agriculture, which furnishes the following recipes:

Sweet Potato Biscuit.
(15 biscuits)
3 cupfuls sifted flour
1 teaspoonful salt
3 teaspoonfuls baking powder
1 cupful mashed sweet potatoes
1 cupful sweet potatoes
2 tablespoonfuls shortening
Liquid sufficient to mix

Sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder. Cut or rub into this the cold shortening. In the same way rub into this flour mixture the mashed potatoes. Finally, add just enough cold liquid to make the mass cling together. Do not knead. Place on floured board, roll until one-third-inch thick, and cut into rounds. Place these in lightly-floured biscuit tins and bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Bake all potato breads more slowly than those made with flour alone.

Sweet Potato Muffins.
(12 to 15 muffins)
1 1/2 cupfuls wheat flour
3/4 teaspoonful salt
1/2 teaspoonful baking powder
1 cupful cooked sweet potatoes
1 or 2 eggs
2 tablespoonfuls shortening
Liquid sufficient to make a rather stiff batter (about 1/2 cupful)

Roll the potatoes in the skins until tender; drain, peel, and mash fine, or still better put them through a ricer or colander. Sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder. Beat the eggs until light and add to the cool mashed potato. Next add the melted shortening, then the flour mixture, alternating with portions of the liquid, until a batter is formed somewhat stiffer than for ordinary flour muffins. Bake in muffin pans for about thirty minutes in a moderately hot oven.

Round Steak on Biscuit
Makes Appetizing Dish

Cut round steak into pieces about one-half-inch square. Cover with water and cook it at a temperature just below the boiling point until it is tender, or boil five minutes, and while still hot put it into a fireless cooker and leave it for five hours. Thicken the gravy with flour mixed with water, allowing two level tablespoonfuls to a cupful of water. Pour the meat and gravy over split baking-powder biscuits so baked that they have a large amount of crust.

Roll the clothes line when it is new and it will not then twist as new rope always does.

Select fine wicks which are soft and loosely woven; they will burn far better than the others.

Not very often is it that the magnitude of church work in a town the size of Littlefield demands an assistant pastor for the church, but such is the case with the Lutherans, and Wednesday Rev. and Mrs. C. Schreider welcomed into their home the young assistant.

It is reported the young man immediately took charge of all religious affairs about the household, manifesting that same sturdy spirit of Martin Luther when he nailed his defiance upon the church doors of Whittenburg. In fact, present indications are that the junior will, for the next year or so, be the leading preacher and the Rev. Dad will take orders. Mother and babe are getting along nicely.

MILK SUBSTITUTE IS EASILY MIXED

Dairy experts at the United States Department of Agriculture experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., have worked out a calf meal milk substitute which is practical, and easily mixed and which contains a greater proportion of home-grown feeds than is used in most calf meals.

The department's recommended ration is as follows: Take 50 parts finely ground corn, 15 parts linseed oil meal, 15 parts finely ground rolled oats, 10 parts dried blood flour, 10 parts skimmed milk powder, one-half part salt. Stir up with warm mixture at the rate of one pound of the meal mixture to about six pounds of water. Increase gradually as the whole milk is decreased, until at the time the calf is 50 days old it should be getting only the cereal. At this time 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the meal mixed with water will constitute a day's feed. The total quantity of milk used is about 300 pounds; if less is fed the calves are likely to be unthrifty.

The time at which calves can be put on milk substitutes alone, say department dairymen, depends upon the same factors as in the use of separated milk, namely, the breed, development, and vigor of the calves, etc. It is hardly safe, as a rule, even with the most vigorous ones, to attempt to put them on milk substitutes alone within one month after birth; and with calves below normal in vigor some milk for two months or more may be necessary to raise them.

The department suggests, as a guide for feeding the above substitute to large, vigorous calves, the following schedule: First 10 days, 10 pounds of whole milk daily; second 10 days, 8 pounds of milk and 0.4 pound of meal (mixed up in 8 times its weight of warm water); third 10 days, 6 pounds milk and 0.8 pound meal; fourth 10 days, 4 pounds milk and 1.2 pounds meal; fifth 10 days, 2 pounds milk and 1.6 pounds meal; after 50 days, 2 pounds meal and no milk. Smaller and less vigorous calves should be fed somewhat less, and the milk feeding should be continued a little longer. In any event, a total of 300 pounds of milk should be sufficient. Grain and roughage should be fed with milk substitutes the same as with separated milk.

Whole milk is the best food for a calf, skim milk ranks second. Calves fed the substitute as stated above have been subject to no more digestive troubles than the skim milk fed calves and the gains in weight have not been materially less.

The feeding of scrub cows and the "scrub" feeding of good cows are two of the worst mistakes a dairyman can make.
