Many schools smaller than our local school system have this program of special education. Why not Littlefield? -Because too many parents allow their pride to stand in the way of their child's education. They don't want other people to think that their child is different. Actually, most of these children are no different than other children except for different circumstances. If a child has a rare disease and needs a specilalist in the field of medicine, then we rush that child to the best specialist as soon as possible. The same reasoning should go along in the education as well. That is what a teacher trained for the exceptional child's work is - a specialist in that

DURING A RECENT VISIT to the U. S. Naval Training Center in San Diego, Calif., Lubbock radio men Bob Nash and Ernest Mark met many bluejackets from the South Plains area, including Seaman Regruit Robert L. Gee, USN, of Littlefield. Aboard NTC's land-locked training vesel, the USS RECRUIT, Nash, right, made a tape recorded interview with Seaman Gee for later broadcast over KFYO and Littlefield radio stations. Gee, now in advanced stages of training, will soon complete the nine week indoctrination which will have transformed a civilian to a Seaman Apprentice, and return home to Little-field for a 14-day recruit leave before reporting to his first duty station in the Navy.
