Only One Building Permit Issued Past Week
A building permit was issued by the City of Littlefield to Ben Crawford the past week, for a $1500 addition to his residence at 605 E. 9th street, using stucco material. Cicero-Smith Lumber Company has building contract and is furnishing the materials.

Approximately 1400 acres of Lamb county farm lands will in all probabilities be planted to castor beans this year, has been tentatively pledged or designated to go into such production, said David Eaton, county agent, at his office in Amherst Friday morning, following a series of three meetings held with PMA and Commodity Credit agents, engaged in making an enlarged castor bean acreage. One of the three meetings was held in Lubbock Wednesday, with farmers from throughout this area to the number of about 150 attending.

The City Commission has instructed "Dunk" Williamson, water works employee, to pick up all dogs in the city, that do not have a license. C of C Officials Return From San Antonio
Bob Crowell, manager of Littlefield Chamber of Commerce and Tavis Jones, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Chamber, made a trip to San Antonio the past week, to make tentative arrangements for the tour for the winners of the Lamb county FFA-4-H stock show, which will be held at the Lamb county fair grounds, Saturday, April 5.

Amherst Meeting Held
Preceding the Lubbock meeting, a Lamb county meeting was held at Amherst with about 35 farmers attending, and Wednesday night, a third meeting was held at Springlake, with about 120 attending. This might indicate that interest in castor bean plantings is more intense or crystallized in the northern section of the county, and we are informed that a large amount of the 1400 acres mentioned above is in the Springlake area.

The Danger of the Demagog

The head of one of our great companies recently said that the people of the United States can keep their country strong if they have the courage to insist on good leadership and actively seek it. He warned of the consequences of the almost daily attacks on business by some men seeking high office in government or labor. Then he said, "Intentionally or unintentionally, these men are splitting the country into factions and then setting one faction against the other. They are encouraging profligate government and jurisdictional strikes, as needless as they are costly, and they are quick to threaten the use of force. We see increasing corruption in public office."

Many of these people would feel libeled if accused of being Communists, he observed. "Yet," he added, "they are following very much the program of Communists would employ to bring about the ruination of our country. Split it into opposing factions. Sow the seeds of dissension, mistrust and fear. Destroy the profit motive and remove all incentive. Bleed its economy white and bring on national bankruptcy. Then take over with help from the discordant elements. If this state of affairs long continues, the country cannot survive."

It is a fact that industries which have done the most to raise our living standards and to give us economic and military strength, such as oil, are under constant attack. It is a fact that free enterprise, and all those other freedoms of which it is an inextricable part, are marked for destruction by those who, knowingly or otherwise, follow the socialist-communist line. Every American should realize the danger of this kind of demagoguery and act accordingly.

Free Banking System Important To All

Texas bankers are alert to a great danger facing the Federal Reserve System.

Some weeks ago, the Federal Reserve Bank at Dallas issued a circular letter signed by all its directors outlining the threat to the independence of the Reserve System that is contained in a series of hearings due to begin soon before a subcommittee of the Senate-House committee on the economic report.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, ostensibly plans to inquire into the fiscal policy of the nation and the particularly into the workings of the Reserve System. But it is an open secret that Representative Patman, long an advocate of cheap money, opposes the principles to which the Reserve System adheres, and that he is determined to do what he can toward putting the system under the direct control of the executive branch of the government.

The Dallas bank directors, and more recently the Seventh District of the Texas Bankers Association, have expressed themselves as wholly opposed to any chipping away at the Reserve System's autonomy.

There is no question but that a system at the mercy of political whims not only would be an ineffective instrument for managing money in the public interest. Worse, it would become an effective instrument for managing money for political purposes.

Our monetary system already is less sound than it should be, partly because we have abandoned its tie to gold and partly because of various policies which have reduced the value of the dollar in terms of commodities.

But it is the strongest system in the world. The faith and credit of the United States government is still a powerful backing for money. It has been possible to operate under a huge deficit largely because of that faith and credit.

The Federal Reserve must be permitted to continue to manage our fiscal policy in the public interest. The danger is that bankers, who by profession are more thoroughly conversant with the subject, will not be able to make a sufficient impression upon laymen, and that in the end we all will suffer because we are not alerted to the danger.

The bankers, through their individual contacts with business men and others, have an opportunity now to spread the word. It behooves the rest of us to listen, and listen well. —Star-Telegram

Woman Scientist Harnesses Sun

By MARY E. PRIM

AP Newsfeatures

CAMBRIDGE—Dr. Maria Telkes, Massachusetts Institute of Technology research associate, makes the sun's energy work for her all year round.

In winter she heats her house in Dover, Mass., by trapping and storing sunlight. Last summer she turned out a revolutionary type of solar still that changed sea water into drinking water.

Instead of a furnace, oil burner or steam pipe, the Dover house is kept cozy through the New England winter by heat from the sun.

The dwelling, painted red like old barns of the region, looks like the traditional New England salt-box house. But the second story is made up of 10-foot high windows through which the sun is lured and trapped in air ducts.

The solar energy is blown through the ducts to first-floor storage bins which contain huge quantities of chemicals piled to the ceiling in five-gallon cans.

There are 4,275 gallons of the chemical—an inexpensive sodium compound—used over and over to release the solar energy and provide comfortable temperatures throughout the house. Dr. Telkes calls it the "heat of fusion" method of solar radiation.

The solar heating apparatus cost $3,900 to install. But the upkeep is virtually nothing. The slight expense is for three ordinary electric fans which pick up the heat rays from the windows and blow them through the air ducts.

Dr. Telkes has lent the house to

Dr. Anthony Nemethy, her cousin, a consulting engineer. His wife and small son find the house completely comfortable even when the temperature drops to freezing. He estimates an average $150 saving in fuel bills.

Dr. Telkes' method stores up enough heat to keep the house warm for 10 days without sun. She said the Boston area is about as far north as this type of heating could be used satisfactorily.

The attractive Budapest-born blonde sadly admitted little interest in solar heating hereabouts—right now. Conventional New Englanders may be apathetic. But those in other parts of the country who hear of the heating novelty through her lectures are not. Many write to her to learn more about it. One correspondent suggested a hotel be built in Tokyo and heated entirely by solar energy.

Dr. Telkes thinks it could be done.

She confessed her main research interest just now is distilling.

To Dr. Telkes goes the credit of improving the solar stiller—used in a crude form back in 1880—by lifting it off the ground and insulating it.

Sponsored by the Pacific Science Board of the National Research Council, she advised a 200-square-foot solar still on the Cohasset (Mass.) sea shore. Fifty feet long and four feet wide, the still was the biggest of its kind ever built in this country.

It was raised from the sands on stilts and topped with triangular glass covering. The general effect was like a combined hothouse and seaside pier. Seawater placed in the distilling pan is heated by the sun and its vapor is condensed into distilled water.

Dr. Telkes found that the flat-type distillers caused waste of nearly half the sun's energy, as the heat escaped into the ground on which the pan rested. The new-type Cohasset distiller produces 49 gallons of drinking water from sea water.

A pre-World War II graduate of the University of Budapest, she came to this country to do electronics research at the Westinghouse Laboratories in Pittsburgh.

She has been at M.I.T. since 1947 as research associate in the department of metallurgy. Originally she worked through the Institute's Solar Energy Foundation on solar distilling research that the government developed as apparatus for life-raft use in the war. She believes solar distilling could mean immense prosperity for arid, tropical lands. Says she:

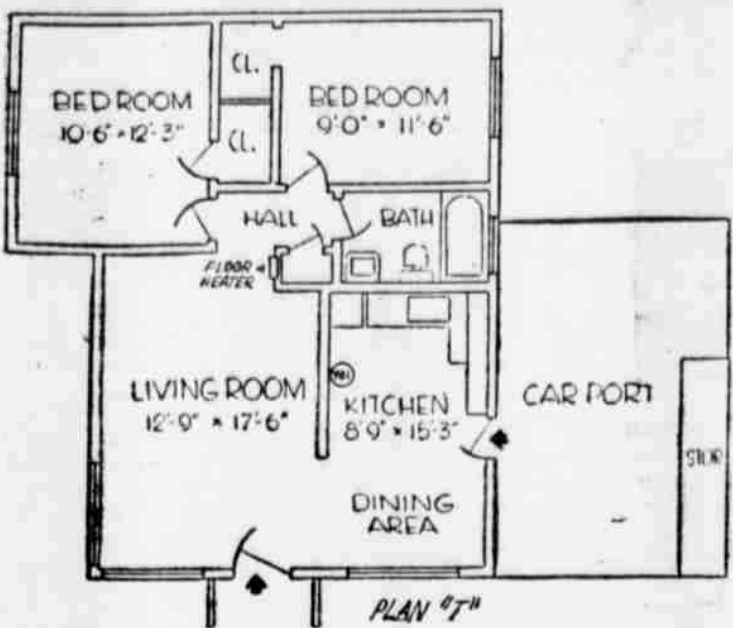

"Places in South America, particularly Peru, that haven't enough water would benefit. It doesn't matter how dry it is. The hotter the sun, the dryer the air, the more drinking water the solar still will produce."

The process also gives a valuable by-product—salt.

Reluctant to talk about herself, Dr. Telkes said she is unmarried but declines to disclose her age.

She said she has been interested since high school days in scientific work, particularly in the possibility of using sunshine for heating and for power.

MODERN LIVING

MODERN LIVING IS ELECTRIC LIVING!

It's fun these days to hold a modern barbecue but not so in the old days. Smoky kitchens were taken for granted. Cooking was done in huge pots mounted on swing arms that hung right over the hot wood coals. Cooking was a hard job with complete concentration required for good results. Today, of course, Reddy Kilowatt and the modern electric range take away the kitchen smoke, the guesswork and the hard labor. All you do is prepare your recipes, set the controls and let Reddy and the modern electric range take over. No worries, no hard work and perfect results every time . . . the accuracy of electric cooking gives you this assurance.

For taking care of the nose, it is important to keep it out of the sun. It is a pretentious part of the body, but by solid objects it doesn't hold up any other rugged part of the face.

The nose begins there between your eyebrows, at the tip of the nose. The end of the nose, of course, and from the root to the so-called dorsum of the nose below the level of the bridge and on the two little fluted sides called the ala nasal and the wings of the nose, the nostrils or nares and the piece between the holes is part of the septum, the dividing column inside the nose.

From the root of the nose to the bridge, if you stripped the skin aside and took a look at the bone structure, are two bones which meet in the middle, on top of the nose, and end at the bridge. They are separate from the bone that makes up the forehead, so that you have enough "play" between the forehead bone and the face to raise your brows you can feel the pull there at the nose between the eyes.

This bridge is actually tissue which connects the two top bones to the rest of the nose. Below the bridge you have a bone connected to that septum inside the nose, a

Lamb County Soil Conservation Notes

L. T. Green is planning to experiment with a well on the side of a lake bed on his farm west of Hart Camp. An effort will be made to drain the lake and recharge the underground water. A filter will allow the water to drain into the irrigation well or to be pumped direct into underground tile and distributed over the farm.

F. L. Shelby who lives west of Earth is planning to apply 100 lbs of raw rock phosphate on part of his alfalfa land and 400 lbs per acre of superphosphate on another part of the alfalfa. This way he will be able to tell whether or not the raw rock phosphate is a paying proposition in this district.

Robert O'Hair who lives northwest of Earth has completed 60 acres of bench levelling. He plans to plant the benched area to alfalfa this fall.

The men's club of the Pep Community had a representative of the soil conservation district at their Sunday afternoon meeting. The representative discussed basic soil information and problems of the soils in the Pep area. One of the items discussed was the need and benefits of level closed-end terraces for the area.

Most authorities recognize that March is the time to over-seed small grains with hubam clovers.

J. E. Johnson and Bill Roper of Littlefield have completed 40 acres of bench levelling and installed 6,300 feet of underground tile.

Many farmers are realizing benefits from phosphate fertilizers applied to young alfalfa. District officials recommend starting application now.

In the fiscal year 1949, 188,317 immigrants were admitted to the United States.

Coach Willie Taylor recommended the dismissal of the two boys to the athletic committee, which voted unanimously for the dismissal.

The coach stated that he disliked very much to have this happen, but in upholding the ethical standards of basketball, it could not be helped.

Seeing Double Is A Pleasure

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP)—Patients at the U. S. Army's 10th Field Hospital here never complain when they see double—it's a pleasure.

Marjorie and Natalie Hall of Melrose, Mass., are responsible. The two young second lieutenants are identical twins in the Army Nurse Corps.

"We joined the Army last year," says Natalie—she said she was Natalie—and finished our training at Camp Chaffee, Ark. The Army has kept us together. We have the same duty hours and share a double room."

wing-like sort of bone, and below that on each side of the lower nose you have separate pieces of cartilage, tied to the rest of the structure by stringlike stuff called fibrous tissue.

So you can see that there is plenty of leeway in the nose for it to get shoved around a bit—but only so far and only so hard. When you look at pictures of the nose upside down, they look like horns of plenty, the cornucopias that represent abundant provisions. So don't let curiosity or anger mess up your source of plentiful supplies.

On each side of the nose, in the face, are the arteries which send little feeder lines out to the nose to carry blood and all its essential ingredients. And running right along beside them are the veins which carry the waste products away from the inner layers of the nose, taking them back to the heart and lungs for reprocessing.

The lymph channels, the system of ducts which is so alert to fight infection, also have nasal connections which drain into filtering pools below the ear or below the jaw. Such eye nerves as those which raise and lower the eyelids are distributed into areas under the domain of the nose.

Those are all parts of the nose and as a whole the nose requires little care, aside from workouts by such simple exercise as breathing through it. Hot, dry air is kind of hard on the mucosa that tries so hard to keep the inside of the nose moist, so for that reason water pans on radiators or heaters should be used when the heat in a room gets up over 70 degrees or so. Those who have to be around dust or fumes probably should have face masks of some sort if the exhaust system or ventilation isn't effective enough to draw off most of the dust or fumes.

When the nose is congested during a cold, it should be blown gently without holding it closed. For health's sake it is often better, some physicians believe, to pull the nasal secretions into the throat and spit them into a disposable tissue before blowing the nose.

Any medication to the nose should be used only upon a doctor's advice. Many of the practices of spraying or dropping stuff into the nose may be quite harmful. Let your doctor look the situation over and advise you before you undertake to clear up your own nose. He usually can tell the whole story of where and what is wrong with your nose from a simple direct examination of the nose, plus an examination with the mirror on a stick that he pokes into the back of your mouth to get a good look uphill into the nasal cavity.

Call out the Reserves with a touch of your toe!

Most cars lead a double life. A good part of the time, they're running errands, taking children to school, taking women to stores, taking men to work, taking family and friends to clubs and social functions. It doesn't call for a very great output of horsepower for duties like these. But there are times when you want a car that can do vastly more, and these are the times when you'll want what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

Beneath its proud hood, there's a Fireball 8 Engine—a valve-in-head that can let loose 170 lively horsepower when needed.

And—alongside this engine—there's also an Airpower carburetor which thriftily feeds fuel and air through two smaller-than-usual barrels for normal driving—which means that you now use less gas at 40 than you'd formerly use at 30.

But there are two barrels in reserve—waiting for you to call them into action—and they let loose a soaring rush of power that sinks your shoulders back into the seat cushion, swoops you past a truck—out of a tight spot—up a hill—sets your speedometer needle to registering added miles more than twice as fast as your watch can tick off the seconds.

This is an experience you certainly should know firsthand. You should also know how Buick's Power Steering* provides a helping hand in slow-motion maneuvers—lets you keep the "feel" of the car in straightaway driving.

And just for good measure, this '52 ROADMASTER also has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick—the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders—a warning light that glows when the parking brake is set—and to top it all, the smartest interior fabrics that Buick has ever offered.

When are you coming in to look this distinguished performer over? We urge you to make it soon.

Gourmet Shop Presents Rare Food, Rare Prices

By CHARLES E. LYONS AP Newfeatures Writer NEW YORK—If you'd like to go on a gastronomic binge, or maybe just spruce up your diet a bit, there's a shop just off fashionable Fifth Avenue that can supply almost any food item you've ever heard of and many you've seen only in your dreams. The shop has touches of the old-fashioned country store of granddad's time, what with a potbellied stove in one corner and a cracker barrel and coffee grinder gracing the scene. But this place, capitalized at $200,000, is spotless furnished, and it has a terra cotta Bristol blue and white color scheme. Granddad's stock in trade was never like this—nor were his prices. If you want to do it up a la Mexico, you might try their fried agave worms, a delicacy at better cocktail parties below the border. (A 14 oz. tin costs 85 cents.) Or you might surprise your spouse with a roughage item like cactus pieces for salads. This treat sells for 39 cents apiece. Caviar at $32 a Pound Of course it goes without saying there is plenty of fresh caviar around at $32.50 a pound. For the rough-and-ready type, boar meat (12 oz. for $2) from France might be used to replace steak on your menu. Such a meal should be started with alligator

Little Men Borrow Dad's Work Clothes

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Fashion Editor Little boys between the ages of 1 and 6 are getting a lot of attention from manufacturers and retailers these days. The reason is that somebody recently came up with the news that there are 8½ million of these small customers in the United States right now, and their number is increasing steadily. So stylists are giving as much attention to correct haberdashery for the youngest male contingent as for their hard-working dads, who probably can't afford more than one suit a year anyway. From toddlers on up, small boys are being dressed with more care and imagination these days than ever before. Their Sunday suits are as carefully tailored as Dad's, their sports shirts and swim suits have the same he-man dash, and now they have play clothes modeled after Pop's work clothes. These, in sizes to 3 6, reproduce faithfully the standard work clothes of such sturdy characters as engineers, mechanics, farmers and even GI's.

do anything officially about the matter. There was nothing done officially out of the local executive committee," Kay said.

Kidd said Olton Supt. J. T. Jones testified the quarterback club objected to one of the officials chosen for the football game with Dimmitt last fall, paid him off at the last minute, and secured another official in his place.

John Blaine of Dimmitt said, "Before the season we agreed upon the officials for the Dimmitt-Olton game. Two or three weeks before the game, the superintendent and coach of Olton came to our school and were not quite satisfied with one of the officials chosen."

"A third official was obtained. We didn't have any disagreeable misunderstanding. It's true one of the officials was turned down, but we (Dimmitt school authorities) had no objection to the use of the official," Blaine said.

Kidd said the president of the Olton school board, George Redinger, was also a member of the Quarterback Club. Both Redinger and Supt. Jones were in Austin late last night and could not be reached.

Although Olton has been placed on probation, it is understood that the Mustangs will be able to compete in football, baseball and basketball district play for the next two seasons, but will be under close scrutiny by the Texas Interscholastic League.

Farmers Pledge

has been set by PMA this year, and it was also reported that a new variety of castor bean seed has been developed, named Baker No. 1 Dwarf well adapted to irrigated land production. Castor bean production requires more irrigation than does cotton, with preparation and planting labor costs about the same.

It requires about 15 pounds per acre, and the seed costs 5c per pound.

A special type combine, and a special huller are required for harvest. It is not necessary for the farmer to purchase these, as the huller can be rented for one-cent per pound, and the combine at $8 per acre. These are owned and rented by the Commodity Credit Corp., in counties where a minimum of 1,000 acres is planted.

Plantings are in rows spaced 38 inches apart.

Farmers can get full information at their county PMA offices.

R. H. Nelson heads this phase of the CCC program for this area, and attended the meetings.

Assisting Nelson in the explanation of the program were: S. C. Odem, machinery foreman of CCC; Dr. W. E. Domingo, director of domestic production of the Baker Castor Oil Co.; B. M. Beard, regional director of the Baker Castor Bean Co.; Paul Wilds, assistant regional director of the company; and Virgil Dodson, area manager of the Hereford area.

Sellers Of Cottonseed Feed Products May Add Transportation Costs

The Office of Price Stabilization today moved to relieve the critical livestock feed situation in the southwestern and western part of the United States, according to H. R. Gholson, Lubbock district OPS director.

Under a revised regulation, effective March 3, processors, distributors and other sellers of cottonseed feed products who bring in feed from surplus areas are permitted to add base period transportation costs and their customary dollars-and-cents margins to the prices they pay their suppliers when they buy the products f.o.b. their supplier's place of business.

The change is contained in Revision 2 to Supplementary Regulation 31 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation to alleviate local shortage in supplies of cottonseed meal, hulls, slab and sized cake, and pellets.

Local feed supplies have dwindled to dangerously low levels in portions of the Southwest and West due to the earlier feeding of record numbers of livestock made necessary by extreme drought and insect conditions.

Because of the shortage, feed sellers in critical areas have had turning to Littlefield Monday night.
