Morton CCC Camp Under Construction

Construction will start about July 15 on the Civilian Conservation Corps Camp at Morton, it was reported this week.

Thirteen carloads of lumber were delivered at Lehman last Thursday, and taken to Morton for the construction of the buildings. Lumber has been shipped from Anniston, Ala., by rail, from an abandoned CCC camp.

It is understood that the CCC workers from the Littlefield camp will be moved to Morton, but this report is not official. However, the local camp will be abandoned, and unofficial reports are that the buildings will remain here, and a caretaker will be employed.

Whether the personnel of the local camp will be moved to Morton or to some other camp, is not known here.

However, several members of the personnel of the Soil Conservation Service will be moved, when soil conservation districts are established. A. B. Chapman will be moved to Muleshoe, W. S. Patrick and Joe Krizek will go to Brownfield, and H. B. Wallia will be moved to Turkey.

Free Programs To Be presented In All Communities

Dramatic Poem To Be Presented Directed By Miss Elizabeth Luce

A meeting of the Lamb County Savings Bond Committee was called Monday evening to discuss plans for increasing Defense Bond sales in this county.

Postmaster W. D. T. Storey, presided at the meeting.

Pat Boone, County Chairman, was unable to be present due to the serious illness of his sister at Rowell.

J. C. Hilburn, F. A. Hemphill, F. O. Boles and J. C. Elms made talks, offering suggestions for the promotion and sale of defense bonds.

It was decided to present a free public program in each county, at which time the bond sales would be boosted.

Supt. F. A. Hemphill was named Chairman of a committee to work up these Community programs, and Tuesday announced that this group had already started working up a cast to present Stephen Vincent Benet's Dramatic poem — "Listen to the People."

The plan is to present this program in all the cities of the County within the next six months.

Miss Elizabeth Luce daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Luce of Littlefield, will direct the performance. "Listen to the People" was written by one of America's great poets and is especially timely because it deals with the theme of Democracy vs. Totalitarianism.

It is expected to present this program in the local football field in about three weeks.

Attending the meeting Monday night were: Postmaster W. D. T. Storey, Supt. F. A. Hemphill, F. O. Boles, Mayor Homer Hall, J. C. Hilburn, J. C. Elms, and Arbie Joplin of Littlefield; W. C. White of Spring Lake; Simon D. Hay and J. C. Hutchinson of Sudan, and Allen White of Amherst.

HOT WEATHER IMPROVES CONDITIONS OVER SOUTH PLAINS SECTION

As reported by J. Sam Lewis of the Avianche-Journal, in Sunday's edition of that newspaper.

"Improved conditions for cotton farmers were reported during the past week, in spite of scattered heavy rains which did damage to wheat in certain areas and in other sections wiped out cotton and feed crops; hot weather for several days greatly brightened prospects as cotton planted the previous week and earlier this week germinated.

"Cotton was being planted generally over the entire South Plains; some farmers having finished their planting and others will do so in a day or two. This week will see the acreage all planted, unless of course, there comes another crop-destroying rain.

"Ninety per cent, or better, of the acreage that will be put in ground is already in the ground between 70 and 80 percent of this is germinated, possibly a little more than that. Seed is germinating fast as the ground warms up.

"Condition is rated fair to good generally, most of the crop is estimated at from one and two to as much as four weeks late. Stands are fair, as a rule, with farmers in the southern part of the territory beginning to clean out weeds and heavier plantings by hand.

"K. N. Clapp estimates the crop abandonment of this territory will be five per cent of the total. In the Lamesa area no abandonment is reported, up to five per cent from Lubbock to Tahoka; in the Lockney and Plainview areas, as much as 20 per cent.

"Several county farm agents the past week reported on planting conditions in their counties. V. F. Jones of Lamb County said virtually all in his county was in the ground and that a good stand was being reported. D. W. Sherrill of Hoodley county said most farmers have finished there, some planting as much as five times. Crosby's acreage is about finished, Ralph Howa said.

"Hale county has a better stand than expected, according to C. B. Martin, with considerable abandonment. Lynn prospects were brighter than had been expected, said Don Turner.

Briscoe county, with a small acreage, is the hardest hit, said Marvin Wilson, Farm Security supervisor, who visited that section last week. Rains did a great deal of damage to wheat as well as to growing crops. Swisher prospects are better than in Briscoe.

"Wilson predicted that Lamb county would lead the area in cotton production, based on present conditions. Rains earlier in the week had set back cotton in parts of Bailey county.

"C. C. Jobson, Lubbock farm agent and Walter Johnson, FSA supervisor, said this county was in good shape, with nearly all cotton planted and most of it up to a good stand.

"Rains delayed wheat harvesting in Crosby, Hale and Floyd counties. County Agent Howa said many reports of 20 to 25 bushels and more had come from Crosby county farmers. Some cuttings have gone as high as 30 bushels, he added.

"Lamb county wheat yields are disappointing according to County Agent Jones. Bailey county has had its first car of 1941 wheat. The harvesting has been delayed by rains.

"Potatoes are being harvested in some sections of Lubbock county. No reports of yields has been made available. Harvesting is starting in Hale and Floyd counties.

"Other grain crops besides wheat are being cut; oats will average 80 bushels and barley 40 bushels to the acre. Swisher county has 10,000 acres of oats and 30,000 of barley. Floyd's barley acreage is large.

Farmers are now turning their attention to planting of feed crops. Mid-July will see this job finished.

The ROAD to BAGDAD

by GEORGE GIBBS

CHAPTER VII

SYNOPSIS
 Charming Camilla Dean reaches Littlefield on a pleasure tour with a party of other Americans. On the voyage she has many admirers, among them the wealthy Syrian, Joseph Assad, who, as Camilla learns, is in reality Hassan Isar, a leader of fanatical Arabs in Palestine. On the boat too, she meets Ronald Barker, a half American educated in England, known as El Kerak, mysterious master of tricks opposed to Hassan Isar. Camilla accepts the attentions of Joseph Assad in order to obtain information helpful in her search for the treasure of the Pyramids by moonlight. She goes out on the rocks with Assad. There Ronald Barker appears in the costume of a native driver. He tells her he is going to Jerusalem where he hopes to see her. The next day Camilla and Slim go to the dump. Visit the ancient city owned by Mahmoud Debut, one of Assad's enemies.

When she mentioned the name of Ali Afdal his face broke into a hundred wrinkles and became what he intended to be a smile.

The most fascinating city in the world, the object of her Eastern pilgrimage, was now unimportant to Camilla beside the impulse to get to Jerusalem and Ronald Barker at the earliest moment. She packed her bag and waited in the lobby for the time when they would take the afternoon train to Jerusalem. Slim found her and ordered a coffee instead of a cocktail because Camilla ordered one and they sat watching the people come and go like the pictures of Peacock Alley, keeping an eye for the returning tourists from the Green Mosque. Three persons entered the hotel in earnest conversation—Assad, Kitty Trimble and Mahmoud. Without seeing Camilla and Slim, they went into the lobby. Slim watched them suspiciously as they disappeared behind a screen.

For this she was thankful, taking coffee with Slim and hurrying off in a taxi after making sure they were not observed or followed. At David's Tower Slim and Camilla dismissed the taxi and went on foot into a narrow street little more than an alley, a dark street of shadows striped with sunlight, with narrow archways leading into dark passages, others leading to little courtyards with glimpses of palms and bright sunlight beyond the gloom.

On the right down the hill was a pool of bright sunlight where Camilla saw a pile of oranges spread for customers. This was the place, she was sure. She laid restraining fingers on Slim's arm, asking him to wait in a tobacconist's shop while she went forward. An old Jew sat in the mouth of the stall, a Jew in a skullcap thumbing the pages of a book. He looked up as she stopped before him and spoke the name "Amaziah" as he uncrooked his back and then crooked it again in a courteous bow.

When she mentioned the name of Ali Afdal his face broke into a hundred wrinkles and became what he intended to be a smile. And then he made a gesture. "Ali Afdal—yes," pointing to a door beside him, an ancient wooden door letting into a wall that seemed to protect a garden.

There were olive trees in the garden and stone pedestals of what had once been a temple. As she entered a figure rose from a bench and greeted her—an Arab, she thought, and was about to ask him where Ali Afdal was when the Arab behind his stains and robes was suddenly Ronald Barker himself.

He embraced her eagerly, explaining that he had remained in native costume since she had seen him last, for he had heard in Cairo that there were other Arabs in Jerusalem determined to destroy him.

"It's worse than I thought," he muttered, shaking his head. "Assad's crowd has been too clever for me. But at least I can now move with my eyes open. Did Assad ask you any questions about me?"

"Yes, lots. But he didn't get the right answers."
 "Where is Assad now?" he asked.
 "I don't know. He disappeared from the railway station in a taxi. I haven't seen him since."

"Who brought you here?"
 "Slim."
 "Where is he now?"
 "Just a few steps away in the tobacconist's, watching. He's been a real friend to you and to me."

They had been talking in lowered tones, but as she sat beside him he now spoke almost in a whisper. "Camilla, I'm going into a situation of considerable difficulty. I think it's safer for you not to be connected with me in any way. If I had my wish I'd prefer to send you by train down to Haifa."

"Nonsense, Ronnie. I'm perfectly capable of protecting myself."
 "I'm not sure of that. I could provide you with a police escort wherever you go, but the sight of our constabulary stirs up trouble."
 She was awake now to the seriousness of his tone and manner. "What makes you think something will happen to our party?"

"Many things. Since the British took charge, the Arabs dislike Americans, too. The French Foreign Legion doesn't interfere with them so long as they break no laws. Camilla, you've got to understand that Syria isn't Egypt or even Palestine. Syria has a French mandate. The French are rather jittery since that flare-up down at Beirut. They're not anxious to stir up trouble with a powerful sheik like Arif—or his son, Hassan. Arif has great influence with the desert people. The French want to keep his friendship."
 "But what difference will that make so long as I keep the friendship of Hassan?" she asked significantly.

Ronald Barker paced the flagstones, aware of a note of defiance in Camilla's voice. He glanced up at her with an expression she had not seen on his face.

 "I thoroughly believe," he said with great deliberation, "that your affair with Hassan gives you a great deal of pleasure, as well as excitement that his attention flatters you, that danger intrigues you."
 "Really?"
 "It's true. You like being near the edge of disaster. In the United States girls are accustomed to having their own way, to ruling their men by flattery, and they play the game to win. But in Turkish countries it's not the same thing. A woman is less than a man. A girl can't play with men in Moslem countries as she does in the United States." I can't permit you to go any further in this affair with Hassan.

She frowned angrily. "Permit! I don't like that word, Ronnie Barker. You don't want my friendship with Hassan Isar. Well—she shrugged—"I do want it. Even if I'd never met you I'd want it. I'm very fond of Hassan. He's always kind and considerate. I began by trying to do you a service. Now I intend to cultivate Hassan's friendship whether I do you a service or not."

"Camilla!"
 He paused abruptly and she never learned what he was going to say. For sounds of commotion came through the door of Amaziah's fruit stall, voices raised in anger and the sounds of blows.

Ronald ran to the door and peered out at a scene of wreckage and turmoil where Arabs, Jews and blacks surged around the tall figure of Slim McManus who, bareheaded, was pushing and striking right and left at the antagonists, one of whom had clambered on his back in the hope of pulling him to the ground. Finally, as Ronald Barker rushed past the frightened Amaziah and his scattered oranges, a momentary diversion took place as two British constables in neat blue uniforms came hurrying down the steps. By this time Slim was wiping the blood from his face, ready to aim a blow at the figure who rushed out of Amaziah's doorway toward him.

"Steady on there, Slim," came Ali Afdal's voice in English. "I'm Ronald Barker." Slim was so astonished at this familiar voice emerging from a native costume that he stood staring, unable to say a word.

Meanwhile a larger crowd had gathered again at the right of the constables, peering from every window and doorway, voices and hands raised in angry protest.
 "Let me go," whispered Ali Afdal to the constable in English and added something that made the man comply at once.

"My oranges!" wailed Amaziah. Slim grinned. "Keep your shirt on, Toots," he said, taking out his wallet. "I'll buy your oranges, if you'll stop making a noise." He handed the man a pound note and the wailing ceased.

"You're American?" the constable asked. "What are you doing here?"
 "Just seeing the sights."
 "What started the trouble?"
 "Well, you might say it was a young man in a white linen suit and a tarboosh. He tried to get familiar with the young lady I was with and I may have jostled him a bit."

"Where is he now?"
 Slim peered over the heads of the crowd. "Seems to have gone."
 "Do you know who he was?"
 "Never saw him before. But I can't have any one insult my girl friend. You wouldn't stand for that, now would you, constable?"
 The constable pulled at his small mustache and agreed that he wouldn't. "Well, you'd better take your girl friend back to the hotel and we'll forget it."

"Thanks, old man. I'll do the same for you some day." Slim looked around for Ali Afdal but he, also, had disappeared.

Cream Producers Improve Quality And Gain Higher Market Price

Cream is selling at the best price that it has in years,—higher butter prices will make for higher prices being paid for cream.

The Department of Agriculture has recently put on a campaign of informative advertising urging farmers and cream producers to cooperate on account of recent drastic laws concerning cream the way it should be handled.

Inferior cream is regarded as adulterated cream—therefore it is of essential importance that farmers bring in only fresh, clean, quality cream. Anything less is prohibited from being used—likewise higher prices are being paid for superior cream which will be a decided boon to the farmers.

Legislation Guarantees Farmers 85 % Parity Price

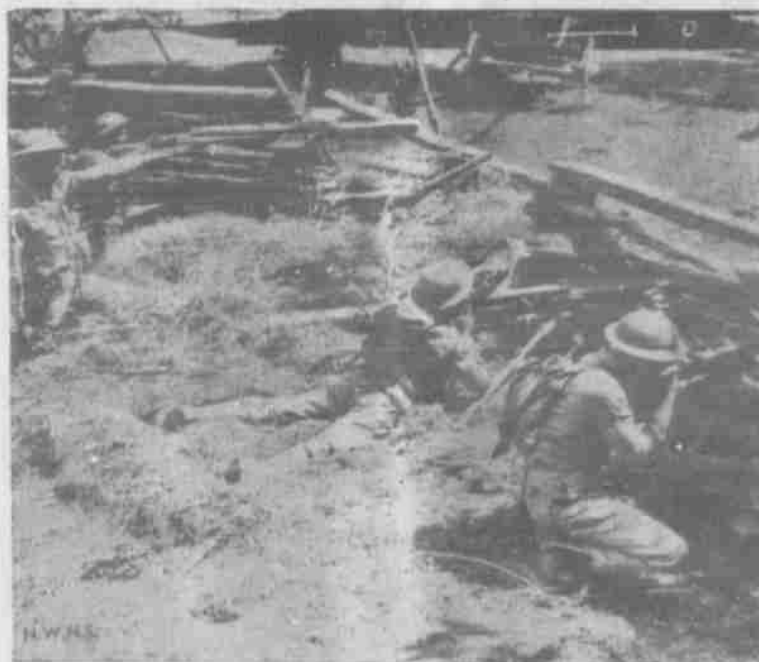

Farmers in Lamb County who produce commodities classified as "non-basic" will be guaranteed 85 percent of parity price for expanding production of any crop at the encouragement of the Secretary of Agriculture during the present war emergency as a result of legislation sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation, it has been announced by W. E. Bentley, chairman of the Lamb County Farm Bureau.

This legislation, known as the Steagall Bill (H. R. 4972), he said, was approved by the house recently and was passed by the Senate June 30. It not only places a floor under the market prices of crops which the Secretary of Agriculture may ask an expanded production, but also extends the life of the Credit Commodity Corporation and increases its borrowings power from $1,400,000,000 to $2,650,000,000. Money for government loans on cotton, rice, wheat, corn, and tobacco comes from the CCC, Mr. Bentley pointed out, and the Steagall Bill will favorably affect all producers of these five commodities, which are classified as "basic", in Lamb County.

Enactment of the Steagall measure, according to Mr. Bentley, means that whenever the federal government asks producers of any commodity, such as vegetables, fruits, poultry, or dairy products, to expand their production that the request will carry an automatic guarantees that farmers will receive a minimum price in the market place of 85 percent of parity. In this way, he explained, adequate protection will be offered to farmers who are willing to expand production in excess of normal demands. "The 85 percent of parity loan program for cotton, wheat, rice, corn, and tobacco producers and the 85 percent of parity guarantee of producers of non-basic crops, sponsored and vigorously supported by the Farm Bureau Federation, means that farmers will not be called upon to produce huge quantities of food and fiber at below cost of production prices and thereby make all of the sacrifices during the present war emergency," Mr. Bentley said. "It means that farmers are going to have adequate protection and will not be the victims of requested over-expansions like they were during the last World War, when Agriculture was sent through an economic wringer."

J. Walter Hammond of Tye, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation, has spent much of this year in Washington cooperating with the Farm Bureau leaders from other states in an effort to have legislation enacted that would bring about a "declared parity policy" by Congress and give farmers the protection that obviously is needed. In commenting recently upon the House passage of the Steagall Bill, Mr. Hammond said: "The Commodity Credit Corporation is truly the heart of our farm program, for without it we would have no loan program, huge surpluses would flood the markets, and prices would drop to ruinous levels. Farmers are particularly grateful that Congress has recognized that a need for a declared policy for parity on the purchase and sale of farm products by the CCC and the Surplus Marketing Administration."

Farmers Overplanting Cotton Allotment To Pay Penalty

Assessment To Be 1-2 Basic Loan Rate On Excess Acreage

Amendment Increases Penalty Beyond The 3c Previously Set By AAA

Cotton farmers of Lamb County who are issued red marketing cards because they have overplanted their 1941 cotton acreage allotment will be required to pay a penalty on the excess cotton they market equivalent to one-half the basic loan rate for cotton, Aubrey W. Bingham, secretary of the Lamb County ACA has announced.

The penalty on cotton for the 19-41-42 marketing year had been set at 3 cents per pound but a recent amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act has increased this penalty.

The exact amount of the penalty cannot be determined at this time, Mr. Bingham continued, since the basic loan rate for cotton has not been set for Texas, but it probably will be about 7 cents per pound.

"The state AAA office at College Station has notified us of this new AAA amendment and also will advise us as to the exact amount of penalty per pound when the basic loan rate is received", the ACA official continued.

AMHERST METHODIST CHURCH

Figures have just been released showing the following conditions of church membership. The article is headed: CHURCH MEMBERSHIP INCREASES. With 49 percent of the nation's population enrolled in some church in the United States the increase in former years has been maintained. There were 64,504,594 members of the Church in 1940, 250 denominations, and 244,319 Churches. The Protestant leads with 36,103,984 members while the Roman Catholic Church has a membership of 21,284,445. Among the Protestant Churches the Methodist leads with 7,377,487, while the Northern and Southern Baptists have an enrollment of 4,949,174. Others than these included the Protestant or Roman Catholic Churches are the Jewish 4,641,184, Old Catholic 25,909, Eastern Orthodox Catholic 735,440, and all other bodies 1,710,622.

While encouraged by these increased figures for membership, we must face a rapidly growing danger and embarrassment in this day of union and unification of Churches with common ideals and purposes the number of new denominations and Churches is gaining. In 1934 there were reported only 334 religious bodies, but this number has increased to 250 in 1940. The many of these are small groups, it is a trend which cannot be ignored. It must show our churches that there are many people in our nation who have not been reached by our worship services and our Church Appeals. A Christianity (or Church-unity) divided into 250 separate groups in the United States is weaker than it would be if there were fewer in number.

Next Sunday morning Rev. Jess Mitchell of Muleshoe will preach at the Methodist church. He has engagements in New Mexico to hold several meetings this summer. He has been out of the active ministry for sometime but is going back to those churches where he formerly preached and is to hold their annual meetings this season.

We want to remind our people of our Benevolent cause and the financial calls being made for the Church and the work of the Kingdom. Our Annual Conference meets this year earlier than ever before and this will make a difference. With the delayed crop, and no crop this is going to make greater demand on us.

Our services for the week are the

Induction Of Men 28 Years Old Is Deferred

General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, today announced that all Texas local boards have been instructed to defer induction of men who, on July 1, 1941, had reached the age of twenty-eight years. General Page said that National Selective Service Headquarters has been assured by Congressional leaders that the age provisions of the bill to defer men who had attained the age of twenty-eight years on or before July 1, 1941, will be passed in substantially their present form since there is no difference of opinion as to the merits of these provisions of the bill. As the bill is now written, General Page pointed out, such men will be subject to discharge if inducted on or after July 1, 1941. "Based on the statements of Congressional leaders and the provisions making the bill retroactive to July 1, 1941, for discharge, Texas' local boards have today been informed by State Headquarters that the induction of all men who had attained the age of twenty-eight years on or before July 1, 1941, shall be postponed for a period of thirty days pending final action on the bill." "Of course, in the event the bill is not passed," General Page added, "such men will be subject to induction in the normal manner upon the expiration of the period of postponement." In Texas, it is estimated, approximately 400,000 of the 825,429 men Littlefield people, will do the preaching. Forbes Melroe, of Idalou, will direct the singing.

Bro. Dunn is a very able speaker, and will be welcomed back to Littlefield by a large number of the Church of Christ congregation, as well as others of this city.

Close Drygoods Store - And Go On Ten Days Vacation

It isn't anything new for business people to go on a vacation—they are doing that every day in Littlefield. . . but when a business man closes his business for 10 days to take his family on a vacation—that don't happen in Littlefield every day. Mr. and Mrs. H. Fink and son Bill closed Fink's Dry Goods recently for 10 days, and went on a vacation to Dallas and Houston. At Houston they attended the wedding of a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fink, Paul Finkelstein, who married Miss Alena Louis June 15 at Houston. The ceremony was performed at the Lamar Hotel, following which the bridal couple took a trip. After visiting relatives in Dallas the Fink family returned home. They report a splendid time. Mrs. Fink reports that her granddaughter, Josephine Ashner, who has visited many times in Littlefield, and has a number of friends here, recently underwent an appendicitis operation, and is getting along fine.

Peyton Have 2300 Head Cattle Feeding

There are approximately 2,300 head of cattle in the pens of the Peyton Packing Co. here, the cattle having been shipped in during May and early June. All of the more than 6,000 head that were put on feed last year have been shipped to El Paso for processing. It is not expected the cattle now here will be finished until early winter. Ensilage is used in feeding. No orders are expected to buy green feed for trench silos until late in the summer. Capacity of the half dozen silos here is 30,000 tons, two of them holding 10,000 tons each.

The SNOOPER SAYS...

... And what did you do on July the Fourth?

After spending most of the day Saturday checking up on just what the people in Littlefield did... we find that the majority of people in this town slept.

Yes... they relaxed in the comforts of their own homes, and were thankful they can live peaceful lives in Littlefield, Lamb County, Texas, USA. However many of these people enjoyed having their lunches in parks, or their own back yards, climaxing their day of rest.

And—I would be willing to bet that there were fewer people in Littlefield who were tired, sunburned, and had headaches last Friday night, than any town in this entire area.

But—there were some people who enjoyed rodeos, all day picnics, and reunions, who live here. Most of those who attended a rodeo went to Levelland.

And—we had fun. It wasn't exactly like the unbelievable Stamford reunion, where 60,000 people were reported to have gathered. But there were automobiles in that up-and-coming oil and agricultural metropolis from almost everywhere. The spirit of cooperation prevailed, and every citizen in Levelland was eager to see that the visitors had a good time.

But—more people might have gone to Levelland from Littlefield if the highway had been paved. The average person, after 15 years, tires of those loopy-to-loop roads, and they are not only hard on the car but on one's nerves.

However, more Littlefield people will attend the big rodeo at Olton next Monday and Tuesday, because that pavement which leads to our county seat will be easy to ride on. I'll be seeing you there!

Guess it rained again on Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hopping's farm in the Fieldton community.

Reports are that it has rained there everytime this year that a cloud gathered in the sky.

Jake cooperated with the soil conservation service, built terraces and contoured his land on the hillsides, in previous years. And he had some good terraces out there, which held the water and soil fairly well for about the first 12 floods. (Floods because it doesn't rain in that vicinity unless it can rain at least five inches. That's the limit.)

But the 13th flood took the terraces, the soil, and Jake believes that he doesn't even have any mineral rights left on that farm of his.

He has 500 acres in cultivation, and the last time he reported, he had planted no less than 1,800 acres on those 500 acres since January 1, and he had already spent as much money for gasoline as he spent the entire year last year. He still doesn't have a crop. He has a huge lake out there, where many people enjoy fishing, but now he believes all the fish have drowned! The other day he decided to walk across the lake to get to the pasture, instead of driving six miles around the road to get only one mile. He took off his boots and started wading. He made it fine until he stepped in a hole, and the water came to his shoulders. The boots? They are gone with the tide, instead of the wind. Hence, he is wearing shoes, but he's still looking for those boots!

During a recent flood (and anything more than five inches in West Texas is a flood) he feared some sows and little pigs would drown if left in their small houses on the hillside, so he turned them out. They swam across the lake, just like they had been used to such big water all of their lives. Mr. Hopping says all of his livestock are good swimmers.

The tornado that hit in the Spade community several weeks ago managed to make a clean sweep of all the barns and out-houses at the Hopping farm. It left the dwelling, along with at least $1,000 worth of damage.

We hope the jinx will leave that farm. Surely it will soon, so that some hegin and cane can be planted before it is too late.

MARGIE

GOOD STAND OF COTTON AND FEED REPORTED OVER LAMB COUNTY

Although the majority of Lamb County farmers planted their cotton as many as three times due to the heavy rains during the past planting season, yet it is the opinion of those in position to know, that at least 85 percent acreage planted shows a good stand.

It is also the opinion of some, barring accidents, that a bumper crop will be harvested in the Littlefield section this year.

J. I. Bowling of five miles north east of town said Saturday that he planted his cotton three times, but had a better stand than last year, and figures that with the wonderful moisture in the ground that his crop will be earlier than last year. It is his opinion that considerable of the cotton crop might be earlier this year, saying he remembered a strip extending from Spring Lake to Anton was hailed out on June 11 last year, and replanted after that date. Feed is also looking good, according to Mr. Bowling. "There can be as good a crop as last year. The crop will make out moisture on account of the previous rains; we have more moisture in the ground than we have had years. Feed will make with a few showers", stated Mr. Bowling.

J. M. Griffin of 6 miles east of Littlefield said that he has a perfect stand of both cotton and feed. He also planted several times.

Although it has been a hardship on the farmers planting their crop several times, yet there is one advantage as pointed out by farmers of this section, and that is in replanting, the weeds are turned under, hence somewhat eliminated, the land is not so hard to keep clean as that planted only one time.

Under THE DOME At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Tex., July 8.—(UP)—The result of the recent election of a short-term United States Senator demonstrated that the race for the place in the summer of 1942 will be one of the hottest political campaigns in Texas' history.

In 1942 the Democratic candidates will be subject to the provisions of the Terrell Election Law requiring a majority nomination. A plurality will not be enough to determine the election as in last Saturday's special election.

Whether the campaign will force a long-needed revision of election laws to reduce spending in elections is doubtful.

Immediately after the elections, for many years, there has been a public protest against obvious over-spending but by the time the Legislature gets into session, the pressure has died down. Like the weather, everyone complains, but nothing is done about it.

In the special election of a United States Senator the spending sights are two and a half times higher than is permissible in a Democratic primary election to name the nominee for the same position. In the 1942 election of U. S. Senator there will be a $10,000 limit for first and second primaries together. In last Saturday's special election the limit was $25,000.

The election marked the passing of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel as the glamour boy of Texas politics. His vote was trimmed down to a size-comparable with other contenders, something that had not been done in the two previous races which he won by clear majorities.

How much the totals were affected by the failure of persons to mark ballots correctly probably will be disputed for a long time. Reports are general that large numbers of ballots were rejected because the voters left more than one name unscratched.

Most of the errors of this sort were due to voters marking out all but one name in the Democratic column and then failing to scratch the Republican and Communist candidates.

Probably all of the candidates suffered losses due to this cause. Which suffered most never will be known as it is inconceivable there should be a contest that would go to the extent of recounting all the votes.

O'Daniel supporters say he suffered heavily in this respect because many of the old folks found the type of ballot an unfamiliar one and failed to mark it correctly.

Political polls held a strong interest during the race for U. S. Senator. There is another poll that seems to indicate that villages and towns are not keeping pace with the cities in the drive to reduce automobile accidents and fatalities.

The poll, made by the State Department of Public Safety, reveals that for the first five months of this year the death and accident rate decreased in cities in comparison with the record for the first five months of 1940, but increased in rate in towns.

There were five percent fewer accidents in cities and 11 percent fewer deaths. In towns there were 83 per cent more accidents and 70 per cent more deaths.

Dallas continued to hold the record of larger cities for fewer deaths per 100,000 population, with Houston, San Antonio and Fort Worth following in that order.

Wet weather that has prevailed this year may have had something to do with the country roads decreasing their death and accident rate while the state highways were experiencing an increase in both.

Traffic on some country roads has been stopped or forced to slow speeds by mud, while rains made the highways slicker and increased the travel hazard for them without reducing the number or speed of cars.

Senators had lots of fun this week when a bill was offered appropriating $30,000 for inspection of materials used in second hand mattresses.

"This is the bill that says a man can't sleep on but one side of a mattress at a time," laughingly explained Lt. Governor Coke Stevenson to an inquiring Senator.

"It does not prohibit sleeping on a pallet", Stevenson added for the information of others.

Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris then explained that the bill merely puts in $30,000 a year which the State Health Department left out of its budget when the department was called upon to itemize $286,000 of proposed expenditures.

"Did they use up all of the $886,000 with their other items," asked a senator. "Yes", said Aiken, but they claim that this is money that is collected in fees and they didn't know they had to include it.

After considerable razzing for the department and its mattress inspecting the Senate approved the appropriation.

The public Welfare Department was subject of senatorial jest when senators reported that in the department's draft of the new law to regulate old age assistance the department had inadvertently eliminated itself.

Legislators believe they have found an effective way to cut down the cost of "government on wheels" which was the source of considerable protest in former years.

A sliding scale has been adopted for travel allowance to employees who use their own vehicles on state business.

For the first 1,000 miles traveled in a calendar month, the employe may receive five cents a mile. For the second 1,000 miles he is paid three cents a mile but if he travels farther than 3,000 miles in a month he receives but two cents a mile for the distance in excess of 3,000 miles.

Usual restrictions against the use of state-owned automobiles in political campaign have been retained in the appropriations of the 47th Legislature.

Employees who violate this provision are subject to fine of $50 to $200 and if the head of the department or institution knows of the unlawful use he, too, is subject to fine of not more than $200. The charges can be filed in any county where the automobile is used illegally.

The Senate calendar of business on the last Monday of the 47th Legislature's session listed 119 Senate bills and resolutions that waited the senate's attention.

Two of the waiting bills had been introduced at the opening of the session on last Jan. 14.

Only bill of the 119 that was finally passed that day by the Senate was the very last one on the calendar. It was S. B. 504 by Sen. T. C. Chadick of Mirbala to retain the seniority employment rights of persons who enter military service.
