Award Based On Record As 4-H Club Member

Girl Is Clothing Demonstrator For Amherst Group

Pauline Nix who lives 5 1-2 miles northwest of Amherst has been selected as one of the 100 girls in Texas to receive the Gold Star award that will be made at College Station during Short Course, August 16 to 19.

This award is based on Pauline's record as a 4-H club member for 1936. During that time she refinished a piece of old furniture, made a wool comfort, helped to refinish the house, grew 1525 feet of green leafy and yellow vegetables, canned 55 containers of vegetables alone, and helped her mother complete her canning budget. The previous year she was bedroom demonstrator and she won first place in the county contest. Pauline is the clothing demonstrator for the Amherst 4-H club.

The announcement of the award was received by the home demonstration agent June 2.

Graduates Presented With Flowers With Diplomas At Canyon

Canyon, June 8.—W. J. Wooten, Canyon business man, believes that flowers can be used effectively to express congratulations especially Cape Jasmine, which do not grow nearer than a distance of 600 miles from Canyon, but Mr. Wooten secured enough to give each of the 103 members of the Spring graduating class of the West Texas State Teachers College a button-hole bouquet as they left the stage after receiving their degrees and diplomas. Several members of the class had never seen a Cape Jasmine, and many of them had never before been close to the blossoms to know their distinctive fragrance.

Mahon Asks Funds For Additional ROTC Unit At Texas Tech

Washington, D. C.—Congressman George Mahon appeared last week before the Senate Appropriations Committee urging that funds and officers for an additional ROTC unit at Texas Technological College be provided. The item would be included in the War Department appropriation bill which is under consideration by the Senate Committee at this time. He had previously presented the matter to Major General E. T. Conley, Adjutant General of the Army.

Texas Tech was given a Senior Engineering ROTC unit last year, and the work which has already been accomplished has received high recognition by War Department officials. The report of the ROTC Inspector from Fort Sam Houston, headquarters for the Eight Corps Area, made March 1 this year, recommended that an additional unit be established at the College, preferably a Field Artillery unit. This type of unit would make the training available to about 1200 students at the College who are ineligible for training in the existing Engineering unit which is open to engineering students.

The outcome of the matter will depend upon the disposition by the House and Senate of the proposed appropriation item for funds and personnel. The War Department advised Mr. Mahon that the Texas Tech application for such a unit was in excellent standing.

Eastern Lamb County Is 'Hot Spot'; Oil Leasing

Eastern Lamb county, near Fieldton, north and east of Littlefield, has become the center of a "hot spot" of oil leasing, with the Stanolind Oil & Gas Co., presumed to have secured a large block of land near that community.

Included in the acreage was 15,000 acres said to be a straight 10-year commercial lease. E. W. English, Midland, was reported to have made the lease.

Humble company it was said, had taken a block of leases in the same area, and other large concerns also were interested and making contracts. W. M. Blevins, Midland operator, was said to have taken a block.

Oil Discovered On Old Site Of Village Of Dowell

Rotan, Tex., June 8.—(UP)—If citizens hadn't decided to change the site of Dowell, pioneer village of Fisher county, Texas, in 1906, it now would be one of the towns famous for having a pool of oil under it.

Dowell was established 50 years ago, a cow country village with a population of only a few dozen. In 1936, the location was moved two miles and the name changed to Rotan. Where old Dowell stood, cotton was planted.

Last month, Southern Oil company of Dallas brought in a gusher oil well, Joe Robinson No. 1, on the very spot that the town once occupied. High gravity oil was found and major companies rushed into the area to lease the lands for mineral development. First estimates on production at the new well gave it 3,000 barrels a day without treatment.

Royalties jumped to more than $150 an acre. The Fisher county clerk's office, accustomed to handling routine farm and ranch transactions, was swamped with business. Because of the fire hazard, operators have prohibited the public from the vicinity of the new producer.

Joe Robinson No. 1 came in as a surprise to operators. Drillers expected to go 3,700 feet into Fisher pay. Instead, the well blew in at 3,505 feet in producing sand that

Inch And Half Of Rain Falls In Littlefield

Considerable Damage Reported At Muleshoe And Ropesville

The South Plains was visited Monday afternoon by a driving hailstorm, the worst in several years, which wrought damage to crops in some sections, as well as battering automobile tops, killing poultry, and damaging roofs of buildings, and other damage.

Littlefield and section received an inch and a half of moisture which fell within half an hour, and which was accompanied by high wind and hail, some of which were large, fending all the automobiles to shelter, and rendering some damage to growing crops.

Highway No. 7 at the foot of Main Street was overflowing with water Monday afternoon, but by Tuesday morning was drained off.

Hail "like bricks" at Ropesville tore telephone lines down, battered roofs, broke windows in five residences and stores. Hail stones were estimated to be as large as 7 inches in diameter.

Heavy hail also fell at Muleshoe with one-half inch of rain. Houses were damaged, windows broken, and the highway flooded for some distance. A salesman stopping at Littlefield enroute from Muleshoe to Lubbock stated Monday afternoon that he was in Muleshoe during the storm, and that the roof on the new house he was in at the time was going to have to be reroofed. The top of his automobile was literally full of holes.

Hail was reported from Levelland to Lubbock, Meadow, and Lamesa.

Reports from nearby communities and cities were as follows: Bula no rain or hail, Spade 2 inches of rain with not much hail, Olton barely a sprinkle of rain, Sudan 2 inches of rain and hail damaging about 50 per cent of the crops, Amherst about 1 1-2 inches of rain with hail falling four miles south and west. Anton two inches of rain, with not much hail, Enochs and Morton reported no rain.

Appearance of the sun Tuesday afternoon followed an onrush into the fields over the area, for replanting, or immediate cultivation to keep land from baking and to keep weeds down, it was said.

Conditions are compared to those of 1926, when heavy rains fell. Moisture stored now may be valuable in July, but sunshine is needed to allow replanting of crops in the next week.

Pumphrey Crew Take Over Contract To Paint Ten Room House And Barn

Anyone hereabouts who has a painting or decorating job to do, in case none of the local painters are available, might do well to investigate the Pumphrey crew, a new trio of young painters.

H. C. Jr., aged 17; Odell, 15, usually known as "Cheese," and Paul, 13, who goes by the name of "Boso" are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pumphrey, who live on the R. L. Gattis farm 2 1-2 miles east of town. H. C. acts as foreman on the job, and really knows his stuff when it comes to spreading on the paint and directing the other boys.

In the course of improving the property, Mr. Pumphrey, purchased $147 worth of paint and contracted with the trio at $1 and "four bits" a day to do the job, which consists of painting the exterior of a ten room house 38x52 feet, garage, chicken house, brooder house and hog house. The roofs of the buildings are being painted a tobacco brown, sides yellow, with white trim.

about a week ago, and despite the inclement weather, satisfactory progress is being made; in fact even on rainy days every hour possible is put in on the job. The roofs on all the buildings and the garage are now completed.

When Mr. Pumphrey returned home one evening recently from the office after a rainy day he told the boys they were going to owe him for their other rainy day he was greeted with the exclamation, "well Dad, we put in three hours today."

H. C. Jr. graduated from the Littlefield high school with the 1937 class, and received a $145 scholarship from S. M. U., Dallas.

Local Shoeman Selected To Attend Scholl School At Denver, June 14-18

Announcement has just received from Chicago that Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the eminent authority on foot relief and scientific shoe fitting, has selected Robert Armstrong of the J. H. Ware Dry Goods of this city to attend a special session of the Scholl Training School of Master Shoe Fitting to be held June 14 to 18 at Denver, Colo.

Mr. Armstrong was selected because of the efficient manner in which he has been rendering Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Service to the people of this community. This four day session of master shoe fitters will be attended by a carefully selected group of alert and progressive shoe men. The attendance is limited. Therefore, the selection of this local man is indeed a tribute to him.

He said that he welcomes this opportunity to obtain all the knowledge which it is possible for him to obtain relative to the scientific fitting of footwear and to the relief of foot troubles, because he states from observation that seven out of every ten people entering his store have foot troubles and most people have an unusual type of foot, which cannot be comfortably fitted with ordinary methods.

This progressive shoe man said that the course will comprise a thorough training in foot anatomy, the proper fitting of individualized arch supports and the intelligent recommendation of the proper remedy for every common foot ailment. The latest methods of fitting shoes scientifically will be thoroughly demonstrated.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT IS TOPIC OF ADDRESS AT ROTARY CLUB LUNCHEON

Bringing the Social Security Act to the people affected by it, Gordon James, field representative from the Dallas office of the Social Security Board, in an address at the luncheon of the Littlefield Rotary club last Thursday, explained benefits of the law and discussed responsibilities of employers and employees under the plan of Federal old age benefits.

Differentiating between old-age assistance and old-age benefits, Mr. James pointed out that old-age assistance is administered by the state, payments are based on need as determined by the state, only persons 65 years old or older are eligible to apply for this aid, and the grants are made from state funds matched by federal money.

"Federal old-age benefits, on the other hand, are administered directly to the individual by the federal government," Mr. James said. "Benefits are based solely on wages received from commercial and industrial employment. Benefits are payable from the federal treasury. Monthly retirement payments will begin in January, 1942, to qualified individuals. Lump-sum payments started January, 1937, to persons who meet some, but not all, of the eligibility requirements for monthly benefits. Benefits will be available to all qualified workers in the United States, regardless of their state of residence. The purpose of federal old-age benefits is to prevent dependency in old age among wage earners; whereas, old-age assistance is designed for relief of dependency in old age and this assistance is available only in states which make provision for their needy old people."

Responsibilities of Employers
Describing responsibilities of employers, Mr. James said the first duty of every included firm is to file an application for an identification number on Form SS-4. These forms are obtainable from any post office or from the nearest field office of the Social Security Board and should be returned to the Wage Records Division, Social Security Board, Baltimore, Maryland.

If an employee fails to file his application for an account number, his employer, under Treasury regulations, is required to file an application for him. The employer should never file an application on the employee's behalf, however, except when the employee has failed to do so before (1) leaving the service of the employer; (2) attaining age 65; (3) he dies before attaining age 65;

W. T. C. C. HEAD IS FOR FIESTA

"We are enthusiastically for the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta," Judge Milburn McCarty of Eastland, new president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is telling Mrs. James F. Pollock, wife of the Frontier Fiesta general manager, at the recent Fiesta dinner in Fort Worth attended by 350 civic leaders of the state, largely from West Texas. The W. T. C. C. Building at the Fort Worth exposition, opening June 26, will feature the exhibits of 180 West Texas cities.

These forms are to be returned with the tax payment before the end of the month following that for which it is made.

In order to discharge their responsibilities in connection with the old-age benefits plan, Mr. James said, employees should: (1) file applications for account numbers on Form SS-5 within 30 days after becoming an employee, as defined by the act; (2) contact the postmaster if an account number is lost or not received; (3) never file a second application form, except when directed to do so by the postmaster; (4) keep one account number card safely, and record the number, lest the card be lost; (5) show one number promptly to each present or future employer; (6) if more than one account number card has been received, take all cards to the postmaster, who will return the proper cards and void all others.

Confers With Business Men
Mr. James spent a part of his time while in Littlefield at City Hall, explaining various phases of the Social Security Act to business men who called to confer with him. Mr. James was introduced at the Rotary Club luncheon by W. D. T.

Storey, Littlefield postmaster. The program for the luncheon was in charge of Pryor Hammon. A very pleasing talk was made by Mrs. R. T. Badger, who frequently accompanies her husband to the Rotary luncheons.

ALL STEEL and TWO YARDS WIDE

There's a lot more in this picture than meets the eye, though the eye has plenty to sparkle about in the stunning style of this spirited Buick car.

What you don't see here is the lift that's yours when you touch off the flashing power of Buick's valve-in-head straight-eight engine and go streaming off across the map.

What you don't see is the solid, steady feel of Buick—the firm stability that holds you on the line without weave or sway or wander on straightaways or on the curves.

What you don't see is the assurance you'll know once you step on Buick's tiptoe brakes and see how surely and safely they make you master of its power.

We can't picture here the security that's yours in a body of steel-fused-to-steel—with floor, roof, side panels, cowl all welded into one stout unit of protective metal.

And only time can tell you how big is your money's worth in Buick—all steel and two yards wide, a big package that's your one best bet of the field when you add the superb action that gives its metals life.

All we can do is show you how a Buick looks—and handsome as this gallant traveler is, remind you that its good looks are literally the least of what it has to offer. Go try a Buick now!

LITTLEFIELD ON VERGE OF GREAT GROWTH

Indications are that Littlefield and the South Plains, are on the verge of a great growth.

Two interesting figures, which have been brought out in a recent study by the Chamber of Commerce of this city, more than prove this statement.

In 1920, Lamb, Hockley, Bailey, Cochran, and Castro Counties had only 3,844 people. In 1930, these counties had a total of 38,619 people with 11,655 living in towns. Even though the depression has been on, practically all this area has seen a steady growth in population since 1930.

The second figure brought to light reveals that only one half of the tillable land in these five counties has been put in cultivation. Therefore, it would seem logical for the farm population to double in the next ten years. The amount the towns grow depends of course upon the productivity of the land that is put in cultivation and that already plowed up.

It is pointed out in Chamber of Commerce circles that this part of the state was credited during the depression by "Nation's Business" as having as good or better business than any other section of the United States. With business getting better elsewhere, the development of this part of West Texas should be both rapid and sound.

This study shows that while other cities of Texas were at a stand still during the depression, there were established in Littlefield a hatchery, canning plant, city hall, depot, creamery, cotton oil mill, county fair, floral shop, hospital, clinic, broom corn plant, broom factory, 30 acre park, certified seed office, cotton seed delinier, 30 business buildings, ice plant, cotton warehouse, meat and poultry show, football stadium, fire truck, automobile agencies and accessory stores, water system and streets improved, State Highway No. 7 paved through the county, several miles of lateral roads built, soil erosion camp and project established, and the school purchased 17 new buses.

The development of an oil field to the Southwest adds to the possibility of growth. But even though no oil could develop, with what has been accomplished during the depression for a background, Littlefield and surrounding territory has a good chance for much sound development.

HELPING

The Farm Chemurgic Council, which holds its third annual conference at Dearborn the last week in May, looks out more promise for "farm relief" than do many of the politically-geared proposals to "do something for the farmer." The scientists and technical men who report annually at Dearborn on the progress of the tie between agriculture and industry are really doing something of great importance for the farmer and so for the whole people. They are devising and developing ways by which the farmer can get more money for the product of his farm, and industry can get a larger and better supply of materials.

Very definite practical results have already come from this organized attempt to bring industry and agriculture into closer cooperation. This year's program will include reports on such important developments as the production of paper from pine, flax from hemp, of new uses from corn, new and wider industrial uses for vegetables, growing sweet potatoes for starch, and a great many of other new things in which industry must look to agriculture for its needs, and agriculture can look to industry for a direct and larger share of its profits.

This is all in accord with the progressive spirit of our times. Farming, except as a means of subsistence, is going to be less and less a hit-or-miss business, but is going to be specialized as to products but also as to markets for those products. Millions of acres are being planted to crops contracted for in advance to sugar refineries, etc. The day is approaching when the farmer who looks for a material cash income for himself, beyond mere family subsistence, will engage in one or another of the new classes of products which industry needs, under definite arrangements where a profitable market is assured. When that time comes, there will be more of an integral part of our whole economic system than it has been since we ceased to be a purely agricultural country. The Chemurgic Council's aim is to make it possible for the farmer to "do something" for himself.

Surveys Underway On SCS Project At Clovis, N. M.

Clovis, N. M., June 3rd—Rapid progress is being made in the preliminary work necessary prior to beginning of actual operations on the new Soil Conservation Service project at Clovis on July 1.

A farm management and economic survey already is under way and will be completed early in June. This survey will provide an inventory of the status of each farmer in the approximately 42,000 acres included in the project area, detailing equipment, livestock and farm practices that have been followed in the past.

The purpose of this survey is to determine a basis for planning a land erosion control program, and to obtain a basis for comparison of progress being made toward placing each farm on a more substantial basis.

Plans for a conservation survey to be made before the beginning of actual project operations on July 1, already are under way. This will determine the amount of erosion in the area, land uses, degree of slopes, and soil groups.

The farm management and economic survey was started after a meeting held in Clovis on May 22, for the purpose of explaining the features of a coordinated soil conservation program. The meeting was attended by a representative group of about forty farmers of the project area, and was held in cooperation with C. J. Todd, Extension Service county agent, K. C. Lea, secretary of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, and H. B. Pingrey, of State College, N. M. The Soil Conservation Service of Region Six, of which the Clovis project is a unit, was represented by C. Luker, G. E. McCrimmon and J. A. Jackson of the erosion control practices division of the Amarillo office.

Six men now are in the field making the farm management and economic survey. These are G. E. McCrimmon, associate soil conservationist; Alfred H. Epperson, junior soil conservationist detailed to the Clovis project from the Liberal, Kansas, project; H. M. Pevehouse and T. A. Neubauer, of the research division, and Wayne Miles and Elmer Betz farm management student aides.

The Clovis project, which was approved by the Soil Conservation Service on April 30, is the twenty-

The area, located in the extreme eastern part of the state near the Texas line, has been subject to severe wind erosion within recent years. Individual farmers within the area previously have shown active interest in erosion control work by organizing a local Soil Conservation Association.

Erosion control methods to be used will include contour listing and contour tillage, utilization of crop residue, cover crops, grazing control, strip cropping, tree planting, pasture improvement, removal of wind-blown deposits from fence rows and farm buildings, and other measures that can be adapted to conditions in the area.

Guns—

"I didn't think yuh the nerve to butt in, Dillon," observed Spud sturdily. "I knowin' all the time, course, that yo're signin' yore warrant."

"Yuh thinkin' is plumb, outa er," observed Spud sturdily. "I scare worth a whoop. From on, what I told Sarg an' Leo Dango goes for their whole dang-outfit. None of yuh are wanted in this saloon. Next of yuh to show here, I meet with a sawed-off man. Now rattle yore hocks."

Alton shrugged, then sauntered to the door and out. Without backward look, he crossed the street, swung into his saddle and rode off. Spud Dillon replaced his weapon on shelf behind the bar. "Gimme his guns, Dakota," drawled Spud.

"I wanta keep 'em as souvenirs—souvenirs of the time fat, ole Spud Dillon got the best of one of the wickedest gun-slingers in this neck of the woods."

Dakota nodded gravely and was about to pick the weapons up, when Jigger Starbuck stepped into the place. His cold eyes flickered around and saw Alton's guns.

"Yuh fellers seem to be rushin' the Half Diamond B boys around pretty heavy," he observed. "What's this I hear about yuh pluggin' Dango Deale last night, Loyale?"

"News to me," answered Slim. "I ain't seen Rango Deale since I got home, An'," he added pointedly, "I ain't shot a gun, either. Yuh notice I ain't even packin' any. Yet Cinder Alton flipped his guns just now with the intention of killin' me. He would have, too, except that Spud discouraged him."

"Now lemme tell yuh somethin', Starbuck. I got my eyes open at inst. Certain folks railroaded me to prison for somethin' I never done. An' me, gettin' a parole they never figgered on, arrived back home before they thought I would. For some reason they seem damned anxious to put me outa the way."

"Last night they tried it; only it happened that Roy O'Brien was wearin' this hat an' ridin' my gray boss. Rango Deale tackled Roy, thinkin' it was me. When he found out it wasn't, he was so sore he took a shot at Roy, pluggin' a hole in his hat. Roy beat him to the next."

Slim's face had grown cold, and his eyes flinty. There was the set of unalterable decision about his lips. "I'm carryin' my guns all the time from now on, Starbuck. I'm carryin' 'em to use, savvy? No more do I run around like a fool, unable to defend myself an' lettin' good men take over my scrap."

"The first son-of-a-goat who makes a pass at his gun in front of me, I'm rockin' off. An' if yuh come after me for defendin' my own life, I rock yuh off. To hell with yuh an' yore crooked law that works only one way! I'm through playin' the goat."

Dakota nodded quietly to this. "I been advisin' Slim to steer clear of trouble, Starbuck," he put in. "But what hapened just now shows me that he's up again a pack of yellow polecats who are willin' to shoot him even if he is unarmed. What he just said goes for me, too. I'm backin' Slim's play every turn of the trail."

"There's five more boys out at the Circle L who are gonna back it the same way. Less'n yuh see that Slim gets the protection he's entitled to, this country is gonna bury a sheriff. That's plain talk, but every word of it is gospel."

For some time Starbuck was silent, his face unreadable. "I could arrest both of yuh for that kind of talk," he observed presently.

Dakota laughed sarcastically. "Try it, an' yuh go outa here on a board. Funny yo're allus talkin' about arrestin' Slim or me. Why don't yuh exert some of yore precious authority on that Brockwell gang? Why don't yuh trail along after Cinder Alton an' throw him in the jug for a time? He tried to start the argument in here."

"Yuh can't tell me my business," spanned Starbuck.

"Okay," shrugged Dakota. "An' yuh can't tell Slim an' me ours. We've kept faith with yuh, so far, but yuh ain't returned the compliment. From here on out, the Circle L rides its own trail in its own way. 'No trespassing' signs are hangin' on every one of us, C'mon, Slim; I just saw that law-shark go past the door. Reckon he's haided for his office."

Slim nodded to Spud and Joe Rooney, but walked past Jigger Starbuck as though he did not exist. Dakota followed suit to the letter. "But my dear man," expostulated

THE CLASSIFIED SECTION BUY AND SELL HERE

George Arthur, rubbing his thin hands together, as he paced back and forth across the narrow width of his office. "Don't you understand that I cannot transfer the mortgage on Miss Hall's property to you without her consent? It would not be regular—not at all regular. Besides, I wish to hold that mortgage myself."

"Oh yeah?" drawled Slim. "That's kinda funny, if yo're so satisfied to hold the mortgage, why in hell are yuh pressin' Miss Hall for the money? Can it be that what yuh want is the ranch an' not the money?"

The lawyer's pale eye narrowed. "My affairs are my own," he snapped. "Definitely and finally, that mortgage is not for sale. Good day, gentlemen." He went to the door and held it open.

Slim laughed coldly as he stepped out. "Yo're deludin' yoreself, Arthur. Yo're shore draggin' your rope if yuh figger to steal the Dot H Dot Ranch. Yuh'll never do it. An' the next time yuh hit Miss Hall up for the money, she'll surprise yuh by handin' it over, C'mon, Dakota. I'm sick of talkin' to side-winders an' polecats. Let's ride an' get some fresh air."

George Arthur watched them until they had disappeared, jogging easily out of town. His thin lips were writhing with anathema, his long, pointed nose quivering, his hands clenching and unclenching. He saw Jigger Starbuck slouching across to his office and hailed him. (Continued Next Issue)

MY OWN SUCCESS STORY

*Giving people
more mileage*

I like people to know that I'm not just hired at my station. I'm the proprietor, making my living, all on my own. Naturally I'm choosy about anything I recommend, so no matter how close you might check whatever I say about mileage and performance, I can always look you square in the eye. And that goes double for my Conoco Germ Processed oil. It is the only kind that can Oil-Plate your engine. The patent Germ Process, you might say, gives this oil a real strong "yen" for metal. The oil actually joins up with every working part, always leaving a durable, slippery Oil-Plating that cannot run down, whether your car is stopped or hitting it up. Then you can start up a thousand times a day, or streak along from morning till night. But Oil-Plating will still be there, heading off wear, and letting you skip a lot of stops you used to make for oil. You'll be back here saying even more than me, about all your mileage and performance from Conoco Germ Processed oil.

Employers Failing To Make Returns May Pay Penalty

Employers of eight or more who have failed to make returns in accordance with the provisions of Title IX of the Social Security Act, which imposes an excise tax on employers, commonly known as the unemployment compensation tax, were today warned by Collector of Internal Revenue, W. A. Thomas, that they faced delinquent penalties ranging from 5 per cent to 25 per cent of the tax their pay rolls call for. The returns are to be made on Internal Revenue form 940 and were due on April 1, last.

Collector Thomas referred to Article 502 of Regulations 90, which provide that "failure to file a return when due causes to accrue, under the provisions of section 406 of the Revenue Act of 1935, a penalty of from 5 per cent to 25 per cent of the amount of the tax, depending upon the period of delinquency." Employers were granted an extension of time for the filing of returns and paying of the tax until April 1 by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering.

The Social Security Act, Mr. Thomas explained, calls for a pay roll tax of one per cent on the 1936 pay roll containing eight or more persons on each of some twenty days during the taxable year, each day being in a different calendar week. Each employer is entitled to a credit of ninety per cent of his federal tax, provided he has contributed at least this amount to unemployment compensation funds established by the states in conjunction with the Federal Social Security Law in which he has employees.

Collector Thomas said that recognition of the following facts by all employers would remove a great deal of the confusion that apparently exists as to the provisions of Title IX of the Social Security Act:

1. The employer's excise tax, provided for under Title IX of the Social Security Act is separate and apart from the employer's excise tax and the employee's income tax provided for under Title VIII of the same act. Participation in one does not exempt an employer from participation in the other.

2. Officers or corporations are considered employees for taxable purposes.

3. No federal credit is allowed an employer for a state contribution unless the said state contribution is paid prior to the due date of the federal return.

4. Employers alone pay the tax levied under Title IX.

Leashed Guns of Circle L by Perry Westbrook

SIXTH INSTALLMENT
SYNOPSIS: Slim Loyale is paroled from prison after serving 18 months for a crime he did not commit. He returns to his Circle L ranch to father dead and sinister forces at work, trying to make him violate his parole so that he can be railroaded to prison. The Brockwells and their gang are plotting to gain possession of Circle L ranch and the property of Mona Hall, a neighbor and life-long friend of Slim Loyale. Slim discovers that Sheriff Starbuck has joined the plot against him. With the help of Dakota Blue and his cowboys, Slim Loyale defies the land-grabbers to do their worst.

 "Oh, nothin' in particular," grunted Spud, " 'ceptin they're gonna open that government land along the Kicapoo River up north. The paper here says the final date of openin' ain't been quite decided on yet, but that it'll probably be the fifteenth of next month."
 "Shore, there's gonna be a wild scramble over it. There's a lot of powerful good range up there an' humans are funny about free land. Go just as crazy over it as though it was gold. Here's a long article about it by George Arthur. Reckon if the editor of this newspaper up at Vasco knew Arthur like we folks know him, he'd never have printed it."
 "Arthur claims it'll shore boom this range. Says a lot of cattlemen down in the Big Bend country are gonna pull stakes an' bring their herds up through here to the new range. Understand that sheep interests have got 'em just about licked down in the Big Bend. Sounds good; but me, I don't take much stock in what George Arthur says. He kin lie faster'n a cool hoss can run."
 Slim nodded, rather absently. The proposed opening of the government lands along the Kicapoo River had been a much discussed item for several years that he knew of. It was a subject that had grown cold to him. And besides, just now he was wondering what angle of approach to use on George Arthur about that mortgage.
 Dakota Blue, however, with a sudden gleam in his eyes, pulled the paper to him and began reading it carefully. Slim rolled a cigarette, in it, then went over to the pool table and began idly punching the balls about.
 Presently came the thud of hoofs and a lone puncher rode down the street, stopping before Jigger Starbuck's office. He dismounted and went in, to reappear about five minutes after and cross to the saloon.
 He was a diminutive, shriveled-up crooked-legged fellow, with a pair of flaring bat-wing chaps so enormous as to make him appear almost square. He had a pair of beady, button, black eyes, set in a wrinkled, mahogany-brown visage. Half hidden by the flare of his chaps, a pair of big, black Colt guns dragged at his waist.
 As the newcomer stepped into the room, Dakota Blue turned to half face him, his eyes wary, his right hand dropping until his thumb was hooked in his belt. The newcomer grinned crookedly.
 Go on with yore readin', Blue," he remarked in a thin, whispery voice. "All I'm after is a shot of liquor, providin' Dillon will sell it to me. I understand he told my boss an' Leo that their money wasn't any good. How about it, Dillon? Does that apply to the whole Half Diamond B outfit?"
 "Not if they mind their business, Cinder," growled Dillon. "What'll it be?"
 "Bourbon," announced the puncher, rocking up to the bar. "Blue, will yuh an' Loyale have ons with me?"
 Dakota shook his head. "Thanks

We just turned Spud down on the same offer."
 Cinder Alton shrugged. "Okay! Lots of fellers don't care for liquor before noon. Me, I'm different. Any time is drink time to me." And again he smiled that crooked, twisted smile.
 When Alton finished his drink he turned, leaning his shoulders against the bar, hooking a negligent heel over the bar rail. As he rolled and licked a cigarette, his eyes rested steadily upon Slim. "Don't know where the Half Diamond B could pick up a new foreman, do yuh, Loyale?" he asked. "We lost Rango Deale last night."
 "Naw!" exploded Spud Dillon before Slim could answer. "Yuh don't mean it? How'd it happen, Cinder?"
 "Stopped a slug. It broke Rango's neck, clean as a whistle."
 Dakota smiled thinly. "That's tough. Some fellers seem born to stop lead. Yuh'd thought Deale would have learned that, long time ago."
 "Yeah," agreed Alton. "yuh would at that. How'd yuh get the hole in yore hat, Loyale?"
 A subtle change came into Alton's voice at this question. It grew flat and toneless to a degree. His hands had dropped to his hips with the words and his eyes were hard as obsidian. Suddenly Slim knew he was looking straight into the eyes of death, but he did not quail. He squinted carefully along his cue, made the shot and dropped the six ball into a corner pocket.
 "Rango Deale put it there with a .45, Alton," he drawled. "It was rotten shootin'."
 "Yeah," agreed Alton coldly. "it was. Me, I allus could out-shoot Rango. Don't move, Blue, or I'll spatter yuh against that bar like a rotten tomato."
 By some uncanny legerdemain Alton had slipped one of his guns free and now held it bearing directly upon Dakota's belt buckle. He flicked out the other and couched it at his hip, the muzzle looking Slim directly in the eye.
 "Rango should have put his slug just about four inches lower," he observed with a chill laugh. "That's where I aim to put mine." He flared into sudden fury. His thin lips peeling back over his teeth in a grimace of hate.
 "Damn yuh!" he whispered. "Yuh killed Rango—killed my pal. Did yuh think I'd let yuh get away with anything 'like that? Not by a jugful. I'll give yuh now, in about ten seconds, what yuh gave to him."

Cowboy Reunion At Stamford July 1-2-3

Stamford, June 1—Breakdown tunes reminiscent of frolics of frontier days will be played by aged musicians competing in the annual old fiddlers' contest in connection with the Texas Cowboy Reunion here July 1, 2 and 3. The contest is the biggest free entertainment on the Reunion program.

The fiddlers' contest will be held in the City Auditorium on the last day of the Reunion, Saturday, July

Max, Gentle Bull-Of-All-Work

SEATTLE, Wash., June 1—Max, an amiable three-year-old bull on the farm of George Oakes near here, will plow, haul hay or wood, and pull stumps out of the ground. Mr. Oakes, who is driving Max, says that hard work is a sure way to keep the fight out of a young bull.

3, starting at 8:30 a. m., and continuing probably until noon. Professional musicians are barred and fiddlers must be 50 years of age or over to be eligible. No entry fee is charged. Prizes totalling $32.50 will be awarded the winners, first prize being $15, second $10, third $5 and fourth $2.50.

Each contestant is allowed to play two tunes of his own selection, the only restriction being that breakdown tunes must be used. The fiddler may play alone or select a second, but only one accompanist is allowed. Jim Stell of Stamford is chairman of the committee in charge of the contest.

Winners in last year's contest were: First prize, J. C. Lane, Tahoka; second, Jack Sitton, Stamford; third, C. A. Ward, Weinert; fourth, J. E. Meadow, Lueders.

Another feature of the Reunion designed to keep alive pastimes of the early day cattle country is the square dance held at the Cowboy Bunkhouse at the Reunion grounds each night. Judge C. E. Coombes, prominent West Texan, who is a former cowhand, presides over these dances in which many of the pioneer cowmen, present day cowboys and visitors participate.

Contouring Saves Hundreds Of Bushels Of Cottonseed

Contoured rows saved hundreds of bushels of cottonseed for farmers of Lamb county during the recent rains of May, in addition to storing a large quantity of water in the soil. Cotton planted on rows that were not contoured was subject to an enormous amount of washing and in most every instance had to be planted over, since the young plants were either washed up, or completely covered with the washing soil.

Terrace and contour lines were run on 25,000 acres of land since January 1, 1937, under the supervision of the county agent. Farmers are highly praising their contoured and terraced fields, since the recent heavy rains.

Five Mile Terrace Completed at Hartley

Channing, Texas, May 31st — Construction of what is believed to be one of the longest terraces in the entire country has just been completed on the farm of Mrs. Jessie, Herring Johnson, six miles east of Hartley.

The terrace, which is five miles long, is part of a system of six terraces surrounding two lake beds on four of the seventeen sections of land owned by Mrs. Johnson.

The work, which is a part of the soil and water conservation program being carried out on this farm, has been done under supervision of Claude Lovett, soil conservationist for the Hartley County Wind Erosion Conservation District, cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service.

The five-mile terrace completely encircles the two lake beds, and has only one opening, this having been made as a safety precaution against a possible break during heavy rains. The other five terraces of the system grew shorter as they approach the other limits of the system. The outer and shortest terrace is two and a quarter miles in length.

The two north sections of the four included in the terrace system have been blowing this season, according to Asa Willis, who is farming the land. Two and a half of these four sections have been drilled to Sudan grass in an effort to stabilize the land.
