Two Families Engage In Dispute

Shoot It Out Across Road; Man Charged In Connection With Slaying

WASHINGTON (AP)—The second victim in the purported gasoline service station feud died Tuesday.

IRA Ferguson died shortly after Jim Bryant was charged with murder in connection with slaying of Clint Ferguson, who, with Ira and others, were shot as they stood in Clint Ferguson's filling station, across the highway from Bryant's station Monday night.

Deputy Sheriff Ross Parker said the shotgun fire came from a gasoline station across the road and he blamed a feud between two families.

Says 'I Did It All' The deputy sheriff said that a few minutes after the shooting Jim Bryant, owner of the station across the road, walked to the sheriff's office and surrendered.

Witnesses said that lights in Bryant's station were put out much earlier than usual and that the shooting started soon after the lights went out.

It was nothing less than slaughter, said Mrs. J. J. Hawkins as she was rushed to a hospital here.

Parker said Bryant had taken his gun home before he surrendered.

Officers said there had been a feud between the Ferguson and Bryant families for over a year.

Clint Ferguson, shot just behind the left ear, was given no chance to recover, and his mother, Mrs. H. M. Ferguson, who was shot in the neck and leg, was considered in a critical condition.

Revaluation Task Finished By Ehrenborg

New Records Turned Over To City Of Big Spring And School District

George Ehrenborg Tuesday turned over new records to the city and Big Spring Independent School district as the equalization survey was completed for those two agencies.

While it was unofficially stated that a majority of residential property was equalized downward, the total valuation for both the city and school district was said to be up somewhat. Exact figures were not available Tuesday morning.

One effect produced by the equalization survey is the listing of property never before appearing on the tax rolls. A few business concerns which had heretofore escaped taxation were listed in the new roll.

Both the city and the school tax office were furnished with a large, complete map of the city which officials said was the most complete seen.

Ehrenborg and his group of workers will start work on an equalization survey in Sweetwater Wednesday morning. He did this work for the city of Sweetwater and the city school district in 1928 and was called to repeat Monday evening by the commission.

Local men, Thomas Joe Williamson and J. C. Pickle, will continue with the Ehrenborg staff in Sweetwater.

DR. TUGWELL SUGGESTS A "THIRD ECONOMY"

New ways of looking at the unemployment problem are rare. Rexford Tugwell seems to have provided one the other day in his speech at Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Tugwell's point is simple. In addition to depression unemployment, we have ecological unemployment—men displaced from their jobs by improvement in productive technique rather than by hard times.

Such projects would include the Civilian Conservation Corps, a gigantic slum-clearance program, reclamation of soil erosion, provision of sanitary and recreational facilities that are now lacking.

And that is just another way of saying that there is work enough in America to keep us all busy for generations to come.

Until every American family occupies a modern, up-to-date home, until every region is served by broad smooth highways, until every river has been harnessed and controlled and every farming region has been freed from threat of flood and wind, until our marvelous productive plant has given an abundance of necessities to every citizen—until that day comes, it is silly for us to say that there is no work for the jobless.

Mr. Tugwell's idea calls our attention to this fact: The work is waiting to be done, and we have millions of men who ask nothing but the chance to do it.

Blanton Gets His Chance Under Arcs

Angels Score Another Win

NEW YORK (Sp.)—When the national league voted last winter to introduce night baseball to the major league for the first time, it practically assured Darrell "Cy" Blanton, brilliant young right hander of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a place in the major leagues.

The 28-year-old speedball artist came up to the big show with a brilliant record under the arcs but with only mediocre success under natural light. Blanton, however, in his first start shut out the world champion St. Louis Cardinals with one hit and proved he has something without the aid of calcium glare.

He was almost equally impressive in his second start, stopping Cincinnati with six hits and whiffing 11.

Possessor of a deceptive drop curve and a world of speed, Blanton has been practically unbeatable under the shadows of artificially lighted parks. With St. Joseph in the Western league in 1933 he scored 21 victories against 7 defeats, striking out 284 batters in 256 innings as he led the Saints to the championship.

Moving up to faster company in the International league in 1934 Blanton won 11 against 8 defeats with the fourth place Albany Senators. A resume of some of the games he pitched last year produces some startling facts.

Blanton struck out a total of 185 men to lead the International loop in that respect. He struck out 13 men in three games, 10 in a 7-inning night-cap of a double header, and then began to warm up to his job.

On the night of September 1 he struck out 20 batters against Syracuse and on his next turn on the mound, September 5, struck out 18 of the Baltimore Orioles.

BEATS HICKS 1 UP: Haywood Sturdivant defended his No. 4 position on the Sand Belt golf team Monday afternoon, defeating Theron Hicks 1 up.

Hicks holds No. 6 place, but according to a new rule any player may challenge.

On the night of September 1 he struck out 20 batters against Syracuse and on his next turn on the mound, September 5, struck out 18 of the Baltimore Orioles.

AMBLING ROUND IN THE lobby of the Settles last night and stumbled into a good argument. The writer was merely an interested spectator, but quite interested, however, since two participants in the friendly tiff carried the reputation of world champs. One was Scotty Farrell, the other H. P. Schafer.

HERMAN FURBER, THE LOCAL wrestling promoter, who has known both Farrell and Schafer for the past twelve years, was talking a winning game. Scotty took the argument lightly for some time and then offered to put up a ten spot against ten week ties and spot Herman fifty-nine.

SCOTTIE IS THE KIND OF fellow who tells you he's good and then proves it. He can make some of the most amazing shots imaginable. You missed a good show if you failed to see him last night. He's due for another exhibition this evening with the Otter's club boys in the Settles.

THE DENVER POST WE NOTICE, is again making plans for a gigantic baseball tournament, to be staged August 1-13 inclusive.

LOOKING OVER THE LIST OF former winners we found that Lubbock won first place in 1923 and took away $2,757.18 in prize money. A team from Amarillo was fourth that year and collected $689.30.

LAMESA SENT A TEAM TO Denver in '26 and won second place also $3,136.27.

WEST TEXAS WAS AGAIN represented in the win column in 1927 when Midland won $960.82 for third place.

TEXON'S LAST CLUB SLITLIERED through to the championship in '28, and the purse amounted to $3,267.48.

NOT UNTIL 1928 DID ANOTHER Texas club get near the top. Berger took third place that year, and $1,305.05 in cash.

THE HUMBLE OILERS FROM Overton won fifth place last year.

ACCORDING TO A UNITED Press dispatch, Max Baer and his manager foresee a take of about $125,000 for defending the title against James J. Braddock June 12. If the fight nets only $200,000, their end will be $85,000, or 42 1-2 per cent.

Now an INS STORY SAYS that judging by the top prices they have put on their tickets, Madison Square Garden and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, which are promoting the four big boxing shows, believe prosperity has already turned the corner.

Public Tested in Texas by Texans HUMBLE MOTOR FUEL You, too, can make this test Humble Motor Fuel was first introduced to the motorists of Texas without exaggerated advertising claims. We simply asked Texas motorists to find out for themselves what it would do by testing it in their own automobiles. Its success was immediate. Public-testing demonstrated that Humble Motor Fuel definitely delivers smoother performance. Since then, Humble Motor Fuel has been changed and improved to keep pace with the changes and improvements in automotive design. This is in keeping with Humble's policy to give Texas motorists the right product at the right price. And to confirm our own laboratory results, we have from time to time continued to invite our customers to make a public-test of Humble Motor Fuel in their own automobiles. The results are recorded on thousands of check cards in our files: these say, Humble Motor Fuel is second to none, that it fills a definite public need. With confidence that you, too, will like the performance of Humble Motor Fuel, we invite you to test a tankful in your car and to compare performance with any gasoline sold for regular price you have ever used. Test it in traffic, test it on the highway, test its pick-up and the way it starts. Public-testing is a more powerful argument than any we could use. ## H. D. Council Of County Club Meets

Hears Talk On Parliamen- tary Law And On County Government

Mrs. W. J. McAdams was the chief speaker at the meeting of the Howard County Demonstration Council Saturday afternoon when it met at the Settles for its monthly business meeting. She talked on "Parliamentary Law and Organization."

County Agent Griffin also spoke on the AAA. The women held a short program on County Government and its expenditures in Texas with Mrs. Carlington in charge.

At the business meeting it was decided that each club would have an all day meeting with a covered dish luncheon. Each member was told to bring scissors and material for a foundation pattern.

The invitation from Midland county to visit their Council on May 17 was accepted. The meeting begins at 9:30 a. m.

It was announced that a clothing contest would be held June 28th. Each club member must prepare for the contest a foundation slip, a dress, tailored, sheer or house-wear, and a suitable slip for entry.

DOG COLLAR ADDS CHIC TO SIMPLE CREPE GOWN

To give that startling effect which sometimes contributes so much to smartness, many designers are adding massive jewelry to the extremely feminine frocks this spring. The "dog collar" and bracelets, so effective with this simple black crepe gown, have the appearance of being made of nuggets of beaten gold although they are gilded leather. Designs by Schloparelli.

Little Mexicans To Crown May Queen Tonight At The Municipal Auditorium; Americans Invited

May will be welcomed in tonight at the city auditorium by a schoolful of dusky little señoritas and seniors crowning their May queen and doing a lot of American dances at the Kate Morrison school for Mexican children. The program is at 7:45.

The May Day program put on annually by these 200 pupils has almost usurped the Cinco de Mayo celebration of Mexican town and has become one of the big events of the year. Americans who have gone across the tracks to see it on other years have pronounced it unusually colorful and melodious. Their praise has helped bring it to the city auditorium, said John R. Hutto, principal.

Another reason for using the auditorium is to raise money for a sewing machine that the school needs. The school is a community center in a decided sense, therefore it modestly hopes that admission prices of ten and fifteen cents will not be enough above their auditorium expenses to purchase the kind of machine they want.

There will be group singing, a health parade composed of fruit fairies and Mexican vegetables, several songs, such as "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," "Home on the Range," "The Big Brown Bear," "Rooster Parade," "Counting Daisy Petals," "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," "School Days," "The Drum," and "Whistling Joe."

Those taking part in crowning the queen will be: Flower Girl, Mary Roman. Crown Bearer, Mike Hinojosa. Queen, Evangelina Valdez. Queen's Attendant, Eusevio Martinez.

The Flowers: Esperanza Puga, Josephine Hernandez, Jenusta Moncada, Antonia Cruz, Margarita Carrillo, Delfina Garcia, Juana Moreno, Manuela Garza, Lola Gonzalez, Gregoria Salazar, Estela Vega, Sarah Salas, Magdalena Parades, Pula Mendoza, Olivia Subia, Juanita Cerda, Emma Farra, Juanita Pando, Josefa Garza, Ignacia Roldan.

Chapter 25
EXPLOSION

"What's the matter?" Yes, Jane's morning dress was really cut out for a woman of an orphan's home—and God help the orphan! You know, Miss Julia, that James Stinson isn't a cloth-hopper or a human machine like that Northrup outfit. He's sensitive and delicate like a harp and has to be handled like a harp and not like a trained pig.

The Lord-a-Mighty didn't make James orderly and he didn't make James practical, but Jane thinks she can. I was over there last night and James dropped some cigar ash on the floor like any man would in his own home and you should have seen the look she gave him.

"She told him there was an ash tray at his elbow, in the same tone she would have told a stray dog to take his dirty bone out of her parlor."

"What did James do?"

"He didn't do anything but shut up and never act natural again all evening. I'd like to be married to Jane myself for about a week so that I could tell her what I think of her—it would take just about that long. I was so mad I went home and didn't sleep a wink."

Miss Julia tried to stand up for her young friend, but the Judge was in no mood to listen.

"You want to keep your eyes shut to the truth or you would not talk that drivel. It's plain enough to anyone who wants to see it. The trouble is that Jane is a born old maid with the mothering instinct gone to seed."

"She acts as if her husband were a naughty little boy Fate or the Devil had wished on her to bring up and who hasn't sense enough or judgment enough to wipe his own nose or wash behind his ears."

"Why, I was over to the Millards for dinner last week along with James and Jane and when Bill Millard asked James whether he would have his roast beef rare or well done, Jane snapped out before James could get his mouth open, that he liked it well done. James never said a word and at what was given him, although I happen to know that he likes his beef rare."

"It's a flow in him. As it is I'm worried—worried sick."

"Oh, please," said Miss Julia. "You're talking pure nonsense." She sent her old friend home somewhat comforted, but she remained worried and uncomfortable herself.

James meanwhile was asking himself a dozen times daily just what had happened to him and Jane. Things had gone so well for a while after their trip East. He had plunged into his work expecting soon to make another five thousand dollars and take Jane on another wonderful trip.

But he hadn't made the five thousand or in fact much more than usual and in a few weeks Jane began again to appear restless and bored; later to complain of her health; or worse still to maintain queer sulky silences in his presence; to look at him as if she wished he were not there.

During the next year what little love there had been left between them seemed to die a rapid and natural death. Their relations went from bad to worse. They had come to the point where James dreaded to be alone with his wife—as he realized one warm Spring evening with peculiar poignancy as he hesitated at his front door, hating to fit his key in the lock and open it.

"Do you know that—er—is it just...?"

"I know he hasn't any grounds to divorce his wife."

"He must have or he would not be consulting a lawyer. You don't know a single thing about Mrs. Preston. She may be a perfectly terrible person. You might at least find out. Why it's the opportunity of a lifetime. Did you refuse it definitely? Just what did you say to him?"

"I told him I was not a divorce lawyer."

"But you got Sally Mitchell's divorce, didn't you? You can take a washwoman's case. I fail to see the fine distinction that keeps you from taking Mr. Preston's. Perhaps it was because Sally was just a lap or two ahead of the poor house and couldn't pay you a cent, while Mr. Preston would be sure to be good for two or three thousand dollars—perhaps more."

Iglesias' Prize Awarded

BARCELONA, Spain, (UP)—Millas Raurell was awarded the Ignacio Iglesias' prize of 5,000 pesetas for the best play turned out in Catalonia this year and entered in the Iglesias' competition. The drama was entitled "The World We Live In." Second place went to Tubio Tuduri and third to Senorita Carmen Monturiol.

Four Ewes Born

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UP)—Roger Van Evers, Scott county farmer, casually went to his barn, all in the day's work. When he saw his favorite sheep, his eyes bulged. She had given birth to four ewes. Van Evers explained that the birth of ewes in fours was about as rare as the birth of quintuplets among humans.

"What did James do?"

"He didn't do anything but shut up and never act natural again all evening. I'd like to be married to Jane myself for about a week so that I could tell her what I think of her—it would take just about that long. I was so mad I went home and didn't sleep a wink."

Miss Julia tried to stand up for her young friend, but the Judge was in no mood to listen.

"You want to keep your eyes shut to the truth or you would not talk that drivel. It's plain enough to anyone who wants to see it. The trouble is that Jane is a born old maid with the mothering instinct gone to seed."

"She acts as if her husband were a naughty little boy Fate or the Devil had wished on her to bring up and who hasn't sense enough or judgment enough to wipe his own nose or wash behind his ears."

"Why, I was over to the Millards for dinner last week along with James and Jane and when Bill Millard asked James whether he would have his roast beef rare or well done, Jane snapped out before James could get his mouth open, that he liked it well done. James never said a word and at what was given him, although I happen to know that he likes his beef rare."

"Seems to me that James better learn to stand on his own feet occasionally instead of letting Jane do all the leading. She probably doesn't realize just how such things sound."

"There's just one way to manage a woman like Jane Northrup and that's with a club," growled the Judge rudely. "I never said James was perfect—he isn't. But if he added wife-beating to his other qualifications I wouldn't be able to..."

The house was still Jane's and Jane's alone and he never felt completely at ease in it. His long ago dream—the dream of his early married life—of some day moving back to the Mansion, he had never so much as dared mention to his wife, although she had long since begun to complain of feeling cramped up in the Tyler House and longed to remodel it or to buy a large place where she could more fittingly entertain.

The Mansion was large and spacious, but any mention of it or even of past Stinson glories was almost certain to provoke Jane into a succession of caustically sarcastic remarks that James dreaded more than anything else.

James indeed made heroic efforts to remember just what subjects did or did not irritate Jane. Much of the time he was unsuccessful. He sighed wearily as he turned the lock, hoping that this evening would not be one of those times.

Jane proved somewhat sulky and tired and had little to say as they ate their dinner and James, after an attempt or two at conversation, ate silently and r. p. d. y. as was his wont. Afterward they sat together on the front porch, still silent, and it was a relief to both of them when Mr. Northrup's large bulk loomed darkly before them at the foot of the steps.

Jane jumped up and kissed her father affectionately. James drew forward the largest, most comfortable porch rocker, almost ran into the house to get his choice cigars, and said "Thank you. Thank you very much," said Mr. Northrup benevolently, biting off the end of the cigar and lighting it. "I am afraid I am putting you to a great deal of trouble—I am afraid so indeed. I just dropped in for a moment to offer James my congratulations. Your mother assured me that evening would do an well, but I felt I would sleep better if I told you both of the certification, the extreme gratification, Mr. Preston's offer has given me."

"Mr. Preston's offer! Offer of what?" asked Jane quickly. "I haven't heard anything about it."

"That surprises me, surprises me..."

very much. But I was told by Ellison on the way home that Mr. J. H. Preston of Kansas City had himself informed him that he intended to engage James as counsel after hearing him argue that er—Mitchel woman's case. I think it was that, it was indeed chance, one in a thousand, Ellison assured me that took Mr. Preston into the court room. Opportunity at last has come knocking on James' door. I should call it Providential myself—quite 'Providential'."

"Why, James, that's splendid," said Jane warmly. "You ought to get a big fee out of it. The Ellisons say that Mr. Preston is worth a cool five millions. But why on earth didn't you tell me about it?"

"Nothing to tell me about it!" "You mean he hasn't yet offered to engage you?"

"Ye-es, he offered to, but it wasn't a case I could touch with a ten-foot pole. As far as I could find out he is trying to get rid of his wife and has nothing to base his case on except that she is old and fat and hasn't been able to adjust herself as rapidly as he to their life from nothing to five millions. Personally, I believe there is another woman in the background egging him on."

reopen those properties that have been shut down for many years. This proposition doesn't coincide altogether with inflationary silver plans. One danger is that the mandatory purchase price of silver will force the Treasury eventually to revalue the lesser monetary metals—thus possibly giving to existing government stocks a price of $2-1875, which would increase paper holdings of Uncle Sam by nearly two billion dollars. On this basis the Treasury would not have to go much further before it had enough silver to match 25 per cent against gold 75 per cent.

Magnate
 Consolidated Gas has been remarkably popular in the stock market lately for a company supposedly under heavy fire. Neither the possibility of federal regulation nor municipal agitation for lower rates has dampened the zeal of purchasers. The price of the common stock has snapped back about ten points from the low and has repeatedly registered new highs for the year. The rise has been accompanied by a marked increase in trading activity.

The mystery appears to deepen when you delve into the sources of the buying. Many of the purchase orders have come through two important, well-posted banking houses. Moreover there's evidence that political backstagers who seldom play the markets are taking a lively interest in Con Gas as an investment. There's no trace of manipulation either. It's just a case where many people who are in a position to know what's what have decided to lay their dough on a horse which outsiders would appraise as a probable laggard in the recovery race.

Here's the answer to the riddle. Certain influential interests are privately trying to induce Floyd Carlisle to retire from the chairmanship of Con Gas and to persuade Al Smith to take his place. Nothing definite has been decided—but keep your eye on it. Those behind the move figure it would be a ten-strike from the viewpoint of public relations to get Al as front man for one of the most important and most unpopular utility groups. It would probably mean the end of Smith's chances for a political comeback but it would pay well—and Al could use more money. Some of the boys can hardly wait to see him strutting his stuff as a power magnate.

Plenty
 A modest increase of 50 per cent in New York City's water rates has been put into effect almost unnoticed except by landlords. Even they had hardly given it a thought until they received their April bills which—in addition to the higher rate—are being rendered for eight and a half months instead of the customary two and a half.

The rates were admittedly too low before—but observers remark that Con Gas and other utilities combatting rate reductions were certainly asleep at the switch when they overlooked featuring this item in their publicity. It's such a lovely argument—whether pertinent or not—against the benefits of municipal ownership to consumers.

It's predicted that Al Smith will have plenty to say about this if he ties up with Con Gas. The city will undoubtedly pass the buck to the " nefarious bankers" for exacting their pound of flesh if it's forced on the defensive. The bankers are resigned to that in advance.

Dark
 Utmost satisfaction with the administration's apparent retreat on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill is sharp-up tempered by the latest reports of their Washington scouts. It now looks as if the government had given on ground in one direction only to step up on them from another with a different but equally deadly weapon. It's understood that the plan for a lethal tax on the dividends paid to holding companies will be actively revived.

Such a tax—if it stood up in the courts—could be just as sure a death sentence for the holding groups as the measure they have apparently beaten.

A New York power leader says: "It's like fighting a gang of unknown size in the dark. You no sooner get one opponent down than another socks you from behind when you aren't looking. The New Dealers who want to annihilate us seem to have an inexhaustible supply of tricks up their sleeves."

Facts
 Trading on the Stock Exchange is in process of fundamental change. Analysis of commission books orders shows that 75 per cent of their business is coming from out of town. Fifteen years ago three-quarters of it came from New York City. The proportion of investment buying to speculative purchases has enormously increased. Margin rules are far less important than they used to be. More than 50 per cent of current transactions are for cash.

Odd lot dealers also report that a great deal of stock is being taken out of the market in small quantities by the public to put away in strong boxes.

Brokers find that the new generation of buyers is hungry for facts and unreasonable to tips. A number of leading houses—despite prolonged losses sustained through dull markets—are spending money to build up their statistical departments in order to satisfy present-day customers' craving for knowledge.

Stimulus
 If Mussolini goes through with his Abyssinian expedition he will give a boost to a few American products—but not many.

Experts agree that wheat and wool should benefit most. Steel activity should also be stimulated—but not as much as it would have been if Belgium hadn't abandoned gold. You might think that the acute cotton problem would be helped—but not so. Italy can get the cotton she needs cheaper elsewhere.

Service
 The Fifth Avenue Association is making progress in its campaign to protect its members from the paralyzing effects of parades. This year it has succeeded in making arrangements with the leaders of the Communist and Socialist groups—no less—as well as with police officials to keep the May Day parades out of the midtown shopping district. Observers call that service with a capital S.

Besieged
 Charles R. Gay—president-elect of the New York Stock Exchange—is learning that high office has its penalties. The informed understand he has been besieged by hordes of publicity and advertising experts who have sure-fire formulas for putting Wall Street in right with Main Street. Also—perhaps because of his social service background—large numbers of parents seem to think he should be able to find jobs for their sons.

 'Is Depicted in Film, 'Chasing Yesterday'

That success and material comforts are no substitute for love, even in the waning days of life, is the theme dramatically developed in "Chasing Yesterday," the attraction with Anne Shirley in the starring role at the Ritz Tuesday and Wednesday.

In a part reminiscent of the characterization which brought her success in "Anne of Green Gables," the youthful Miss Shirley is the vital force which transforms the life of Sylvester Bonnard, noted savant and member of the French Academy, portrayed by G. P. Hegge, who was "Matthew" in "Anne of Green Gables." Helen Westley, another central figure of the "Green Gables" cast, has an important role in the new production.

Air-Conditioned Trains Make New Vogue In Dresses Likely

Like a garden party on wheels, the cars and coaches no matter what the temperature outdoors. A comfortable temperature, however, is not the only reason for clothes of bright colors. Air conditioning systems keep out dust, dirt and all atmospheric impurities.

"No wonder, then, that we are looking forward to an increased demand for light printed silk dresses and washable batiste frocks by our customers when planning to travel by rail. They no longer depend upon dark wool dresses for railroad trips. Air conditioning means that a woman can step off the train at the end of her journey confident that she looks as fresh and immaculately smart as when she started."

The style authority then showed a number of printed silk frocks with the new designs, including daisies, field flowers and shadow prints. Any one of these, perhaps with a white pigskin hat, gloves and bag, comprise a smart ensemble for Midway when vacation bound on one of the new stream-line trains, declared this expert.

Tips on CONTRACT

FOLLOW THE SIGNPOSTS
 By TOM O'NEIL

Often it is futile for a defender to make an unorthodox or deceiving lead against a slam contract. He must make the lead or lead that will best indicate to his partner the possibility of getting the hand.

With tough contracts, in many such cases, the declarer will succeed if he but acts on the indications given by the leads. For example:

Lewis Osborn, director of the Algonquin Club, New York, was in a six-heart contract, the bidding having gone: one club; one diamond; one heart; three hearts; six hearts.

West, a super expert, led the ace of diamonds, and shifted to the jack of clubs. Why? asked Lewis to himself. Answer: West must hold four trumps to the queen and hope to make one of them by shortening the North hand with the ruff of a club.

And so Osborn won the second trick in the South hand, played the ace of hearts and finessed West successfully for the queen.

Here's a hand on which seven hearts was made by a squeeze after the opening lead earmarked a finesse:

Henry Enoch at Bridge House, New York, South, had to make seven hearts, the bidding going: one heart, three diamonds, three hearts, seven hearts.

West led the fourth best diamond, East's jack falling on North's queen. Assuming that West held originally five diamonds, Enoch could see that he was sure of one spade trick, five heart tricks, four diamonds and two club, a total of 12.

A squeeze afforded a possibility for the extra trick, so Enoch dropped his diamond nine on the first trick. The ace and jack of hearts were played, the jack being covered by the queen. The king of hearts dropped the last adverse trump. The diamond seven was finessed and the king and ace of diamonds were played. South discarded a spade and a club. Enoch returned to his hand with the club king and played the last two hearts. With one trump left to play the situation was:

ROMANCE OF EXILED ROYAL HOUSES UNITES SPANISH AND SICILIAN LINE S

Infante Juan, heir to the vanished Spanish throne, and Marie de las Mercedes de Bourbon Orleans, whose ancestry traces to the extinct kingdom of Sicily and, by marriage, to the toppled thrones of France and Portugal.

By ANNLAIDE KERR
 PARIS, (AP)—A romance of vanished thrones has linked two royal exiles—one a princess who descends from Sicilian kings, the other heir of the former king of Spain.

The engagement, pairing Princess Marie de las Mercedes de Bourbon Orleans and the Infante Juan, youngest living son of Alfonso XIII, unites a princely pair whose family branches run into at least four countries which have banished their kings.

Royal Lines Interlaced
 The dour-eyed, dark-haired princess, who lives with her parents here, is the daughter of the Infante Carlos de Bourbon, son of the Prince and Princess of Casters de Bourbon deux Siciles. He descends from the kings of the Mediterranean sea and until Garibaldi broke things up and the people voted to be annexed to Italy.

Her father first married the sister of former King Alfonso XIII (who is her prospective father-in-law) and with that marriage was created Infante of Spain.

After her death he married the young bride's mother, Princess Louise of Orleans, who is a sister of the Duchesse de Guise, wife of the pretender to the throne of France, and of former Queen Amelie of Portugal, mother of the late dethroned King Manuel.

A Convent-Bred Princess
 The princess was born in Madrid, December 23, 1910, and in the convents of the Spanish capital and Seville learned to sew, do her sums and speak the various languages which are taught every European princess. When the Spanish revolution sent monarchists flying into exile, her family came to Paris. She loves to swim, play golf and tennis and is interested in art.

Her dashing fiancé is the "apple" of Spanish royalists' eyes. He is the youngest living son of Alfonso XIII of Spain, but the marriage of his two elder brothers to women not of royal rank, caused them to relinquish their rights of succession and left him heir to the throne.

The Infante, born June 20, 1912, is two and a half years younger than his prospective bride.

Visitors in the Senate galleries are expected to rise during the morning prayer that opens a session. Many fail to do so and are tapped on the shoulder by an attendant.

Mrs. Dudley Woodward, Austin, and Mrs. Noah P. Sanderson, Texarkana, have succeeded on the Governor's Mansion Board by Mrs. Ross Sterling, La Porte, and Miss Ima Hogg, Houston, wife and daughter of former governors.

Serving with them as a hold-over member is Mrs. Dan Moody. The board oversees repairs to the ancient house occupied by Governor. It was created when Mrs. Moody was "first lady."

Needs required papering and the board of control let the job to the lowest bidder. Mrs. Moody then was invited to come down and select the paper pattern. The mansion board avoids such difficulties.

Success for the rural rehabilitation plan is seen by V. R. Smitham, head of the rural division of the Texas Relief commission.

The fact that persons who have been placed on maintenance plots are beginning to pay back their loans before due, is what makes Smitham so happy and optimistic.

Although the persons on the projects can repay the advances in work, more than $2,000 in cash has been received by Texas Rural Communities, Inc., the organization formed to handle this phase of relief.

Farmers are paying back loans for feed and seed before crops are produced, Smitham said. The money comes from garden crops, dairy and poultry products.

There will be no further state bond issue for relief.

Two or three substitutes, as the emergency relief problem broadens out into permanent policy, are possible in sight.

1. Social security, old-age pension plan, to match federal money under the act just passed by congress.

2. A constitutional amendment allowing cities and counties, and the state to levy taxes directly for unemployables for relief rolls, when the federal government shifts this phase of the load back to local agencies.

3. The broad substitution of other methods for direct relief: Work-relief projects financed by the federal government, a very extensive rural rehabilitation program, including the return of many farms; and the gradual restoration of jobs through governmental aid in extending the great public works program and the housing programs.

These, together leave for decision what the state will do toward

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN (UP)—Cupid is one commitment of the legislature who cannot complain that the present session has ignored his claims.

The Senate's most eligible bachelor and the pretty secretary of the State Treasury will step off into matrimony Saturday. The assistant chief clerk of the House and handsome, dark-eyed Rep. Traylor Russell of Mt. Pleasant were married earlier in the session.

Another marriage will follow soon after the marriage of Sen. Welly K. Hopkins of Gonzales and Mrs. Alice Isaacs Wyatt of Waco. It will unite Rep. Howard Hartzog of Fort Lavaca and Miss Anna Paul Allen of Marlin.

O'Brien Stevens, former district attorney in Harris county, accepts modestly the complimentary remarks of Sen. Clay Cotten of Palestine on Stevens' record as a prosecutor. Cotten believes that present Texas laws are adequate for a good prosecutor. He cited Stevens' record of 825 cases with 95 acquittals. But Stevens says that doesn't mean much. "When you take into consideration that many of the cases had pleas of guilty and that numerous cases may be based on one transaction," Stevens said, "A record of many convictions is easy to make."

Rep. Pat Jefferson, San Antonio, received the arborial award at Sen. T. H. McGregor's barbecue for legislators. Pat attended in cowboy boots, white duck pants and a pale blue polo shirt. Many mistook him for a screen celebrity.

Sen. Tom DeBerry of Bogata admitted to the Senate that he was appearing in a novel role when he sought to bring the House and Senate together on a Centennial bill. "I know that I generally throw bricks," DeBerry said, "but this time I am extending the olive branch."

The Senator's non-combative role soon deserted him. He warned the Senate not to give him any instructions as a conferee on a bill unless they expected him to stick by that instruction regardless of whether it disrupted the conference. "When the Senate tells me to carry the ball, I'm going to carry it," DeBerry announced.

Sen. Weaver Moore, Houston, serving his first term in the Senate after a term in the House, occasionally forgets that he has been "promoted."

Rising in the Senate he calmly moved that the "HOUSE" adjourn, and then wondered why fellow Sen-matching the federal government in the care of able-bodied jobs, willing to work but unable to find work, and not suited for return to the farms. The solution of that may be that when the state, and its local agencies, assume the burden of caring for the unemployables, the federal service will take the full load of the employables' direct relief.

The present $30,000,000 bond issue will have been spent by winter. No other bond issue has been proposed at the legislative session, and it is apparent that none could now be voted.

John T. Smith, Austin tax expert, beat a senate committee by about three months to formulation of an economic principle of far-reaching importance to Texas. It was the proposal to levy a sales tax to retire all the local city, county and district bonds, and thereafter give the state control of such local issues. Its importance was not in the sales tax plan, but in the principle of universal assumption, and chiefly in the principle of future state control.

Defeated this time because the legislature will not authorize a sales tax, this assumption and control program has for precedent the old highway bond issue proposals that were defeated, yet whose purpose was achieved within a short time. . . . What at first sounded remote and impossible was made a fact within a short time.

So even while the sales tax may not be used as the vehicle, the principle of allowing the state to regulate the debt and tax levies of its subdivisions, along with the temporary relief of paying off the staggering load of $800,000,000 of such present indebtedness, may be adopted as part of the political economy of Texas in relatively a short term of years.

ADVANCE NOT RETREAT

LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND EMPLOYMENT

Always a warm friend of the workingman, England's former chancellor of the exchequer, the Honorable Philip Snowden, out of his knowledge and experience as leader of the Labor Party, has had the following to say on the relationship of labor and liquor:

"I have marvelled at the indifference of the commercial and business classes, and especially of the shopkeeping class, to this expenditure on drink. . . . It is sometimes said that the liquor traffic provides employment. The more people there are employed in the drink traffic the stronger is the indictment against it, because it is the diversion of labor that ought to be usefully employed in the production of wealth and not in the production of a commodity which injures the health of the people and reduces their physical efficiency.

"If the labor employed in the manufacture of alcohol and in its distribution were employed in other channels, it would be adding to the real work of the community. There would be the demand for that labor by reason of the increased demand by other industries owing to the increasing purchasing power devoted to these trades."

There are still a goodly number of people who believe prohibition more successful repealed; and many others, who believe we should have tried it when we had it.

Reservations For Kiwanis Convention

Are Exceeding Those Of Previous Years

Alex Thomas, general chairman of the Kiwanis International convention in San Antonio in May recently outlined the developments in the convention plans at a meeting of the twenty special committee chairmen appointed to handle the details of the extensive program.

Reservations up to the present time exceed the record for the past three years Thomas said. More than 100 were received in the mail previous to the meeting which is the greatest influx at one time so far.

Twenty-four special trains have been arranged bringing delegates from the various districts of the United States and Canada. All special will arrive in San Antonio between 7 a. m. and 7:50 p. m. Sunday, May 19. During the same day motor caravans from Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas, as well as Oklahoma and Texas, will bring hundreds into the city.

A local committee will provide transportation to the various meetings and entertainments not held at the hotel during the five convention days for all delegates and their families who come by train.

San Antonio's large and beautiful municipal auditorium will be headquarters for the delegates and all registrations. Information and business sessions will be centered there, in addition to the impressive program for all-Kiwanis night, May 20. The opening session of the convention will be held in the Sunken Garden Theatre in Brackenridge Park, one of the two finest outdoor theatres in the United States.

Musical groups which various clubs are bringing include the National Championship High School band of 36 members from Oklahoma City, while Glee Clubs from Texas, Okla., and El Paso and other southwestern cities have announced that their quartettes will be in attendance. The Mexican Tipica orchestra from Mexico City will come to San Antonio for the convention and the Memphis, Tenn., club has announced the intention of bringing Angelo Cortesi, internationally famous harpist of the United States and Europe.

An international chorus of 500 voices representing every state in the union and every province in Canada will sing in the Brackenridge Park Sunken Garden Theatre and in other meetings during the convention.

WAGES CLAIM 39 CENTS OF EVERY AIR LINE DOLLAR

CHICAGO—Wages and salaries represent by far the greatest single fixed expenditure of commercial air lines in the United States, according to figures made public here today by C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines.

Citing his company's preliminary financial statement for the period from May 13, 1934 (when American Airlines began operations) to February 28, 1935, Smith said wages and salaries accounted for $1,763,822.20 of the total $4,488,750.32 expended or 39.3 cents of every dollar.

Of this amount, $582,814.04, or 13 cents of each dollar, went to flying personnel, pilots, co-pilots and stewardesses. Other employees received in wages, $1,129,213.71 (25.1 cents).

While this report covered only one of the major commercial air lines, Smith said comparable figures could be obtained by analyzing current statements of other air transportation firms.

Second in importance, he said, are costs of equipment replacements which, in this period, amounted to $1,010,707.08, or 22.5 cents of each dollar. Parts, supplies and services accounted for $681,360.49 (15.2 cents) while another $473,677.28 (10.5 cents) was spent for gasoline and oil.

The remainder included $368,160.64 (8.2 cents) for insurance, rents and taxes; $111,992.28 (2.5 cents) for advertising, and $79,230.49 (1.8 cents) for telephone and telegraph tolls.
