STORM REPORT

As Reported by . Stormie Meriwether, First Grade Student

Dear Friends, Vacation is fun! First we drove a very long way to "Man-a-tooth Springs" (Manitou). It's in Colorado. The mountains are beautiful! One very big mountain is Pikes Peak. You can't believe a train can go to the very top! At the top it is cold and a little windy. You can see the whole world from there. If you run on top of the mountain, it's a little bit hard to breathe. On the way up and down the mountain I looked for big sheep, mountain lions, bears and elk. I just saw ravens, marmots, chipmunks and flowers. The pink flowers were my favor-

A girl, named Whitney, had to get off the train and pull a big stick. It moved the track so we could pass another train. That was (Continued Page 5)

WILD BABIES

I'm not sure why it is, but when hoppers. Dad put some poison out most kids find a baby wild critter of any kind, they've just got to bring it home with them. I'm quite sure, most of you have done that also. As a kid, it never occurred to me that the wild animal or bird would've been better off, if I'd just left it alone. Most of the time, the young.

Dale Wofford, managed to raise a baby coon 'till it got grown. That's when the problems started. It got to getting into stuff around the house. The last straw was when his mom saw the coon coming out of the hen house, with egg on it's face. She made him take it down to the creek and turn it

La Veta Moore, had a pet coyote for about a year, or more. She'd found it before it's eyes were opened yet. It acted just like a dog and would run out to meet them when they came home after being gone for a while. Returning home from a basketball game one night, it ran out to meet them in the road and they accidentally ran

As for myself, I had a lot of different baby critters that I brought home. My best wild pets were two baby squirrels that I'd got out of a nest. They didn't even have their eyes open yet. We fed them milk with an eyedropper until they were big enough to eat solid food. They really liked peanuts, corn and pecans. I had them until the next year. Since they were full adults by then, I started letting them stay outside in the daytime and brought them in at night. One day it came a rain and hail storm. When it was over, I went outside and found the hail had killed one of them. The other one hung around for about a week, then left. I had pretty good luck raising two baby hawks. They were just little fuzzy chicks when I first got them. I mostly fed them grasshoppers and a few worms when I could find some. Things were going just fine and they were beginning to get their adult feathers. It wouldn't have been long before they'd be ready to fly. That year, we had an especially large number of grass-for them at the turnrows next to the pasture. I guess I must have caught some of them before the poison had time to kill'em. Anyway, I caught a few and fed them to my hawks that evening. The next morning....they were both critter doesn't survive if it's very One day while plowing, I caught a ground squirrel. That little critter fought and struggled, but I finally got him/her. I kept it for a day or two and it seemed to be taming down. So, I picked it up and held it for a little while. Since it wasn't struggling, I relaxed my hand somewhat. The little rascal had conned me into thinking it liked me! It took off running, with me chasing it. As I reached down to try and grab it, I accidentally stepped on it... So much for my ground squirrel!

> Last and probably least, was my baby skunk. As I was riding my horse down the road one day, we (my horse and I) startled a momma skunk that was crossing the road with her baby in her mouth. She dropped it in the road and ran away. It was about two inches long and it's eyes weren't even open yet. I took it to my house to proudly show my folks, but they weren't home. Trying to take good care of it, I used one of mom's towels to loosely wrap it up in. Then I laid it on the end of the couch and left to go play. When I came back, mom and dad had gotten home. He'd sat down on the towel that was on the couch and killed my skunk! Oh well, I probably didn't need a skunk for a pet anyway.

5 Hidden Signs

of Heat Stroke

this summer, so does your risk of heat stroke-a serious, and potentially fatal, medical condition that occurs when your body is unable to cool itself and overheats to temperatures up to 106 degrees Fahrenheit. Luckily, heat stroke can be prevented easily, especially if you know how to identify and treat its often unnoticed, early symptoms.

((1. Muscle cramps (Heat cramps, a precursor leading up to heat stroke, can be a first sign that the body is struggling to maintain its temperature. Heat cramps are severe, sometimes disabling muscle cramps that begin suddenly in the hands, calves, or feet. If you're engaging in physical activity and sud denly experience shooting pain in these areas, be sure to hydrate and get to shade immediately. Your cramps are likely being caused by its temperature, not your exercise! ((2.

Feeling faint, light-headed or dizzy (Heat exhaustion is another, less severe condition that can lead to heat stroke. One of its main symptoms is feeling faint or light-headed. If you are feeling dizzy or confused after a day in the sun, take preventative measures - such as staying in cool, shaded areas and wearing loose-fitting cotton clothes-to avoid progressing into the more-serious heat stroke condition. People who suffer from diabetes, high blood pressure, heart disease, or other medical conditions that make it difficult to cool off need to be especially careful and proactive if they begin to feel faint in the heat. ((3. Headache (Though most people attribute headaches to stress or a cold, they can also be caused by dehydration. In fact, headache is a commonly ignored symptom of heat exhaustion, which left untreated, can evolve into heat stroke. If you're in a warm environment and you feel a headache, make sure to hydrate and cool down immediately. Avoid drinking beverages with alcohol or caffeine when it's hot out, too, as these drinks contain a chemical that causes you to retain less water, leading you to dehydrate more easily. ((4. Overall fatigue and weakness (Fatigue is usually a wet towel over your shoulders will also help you cool down. (

(5. Sweating accompanied by cold, clammy skin (Sweating is your body's natural way of cooling off-which is why staying hydrated is so important. As sweat evaporates from the surface of your skin, your skin cools and lowers your temperature. But if you don't have enough water in your system, there isn't any to sweat out and bring your temperature back down. Though a person experiencing heat stroke will usually have dry, flushed, and warm skin (because sweating has ceased), an earlier sign is sweat accompanied by cold or clammy skin. Staying out of the humidity will also help, as it's harder for your sweat to evaporate when the surrounding air is damp. It's one of your body's last-ditch attempts to get you to cool off, so make sure you lis-

We were out of town when the fire broke out east of Wheeler and were very relieved to hear that our house and barn were saved. Our ROW-Larry Taylor, et ux to daughter, Marcie, and son-in-law Travis Cook were in Wheeler watching the firefighters, county employees, Forest Service and helicopter in action and were very impressed with their response and ability to control the fire. We are all very fortunate to have these dedicated people in the Sweetwater Creek Firefighter Association respond and work so hard to extinguish fires and help McCormick to Unit Petroleum save property. We greatly appreciate all of these people.

Thank you very much. Mike and Sharon Miles

Dad was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease 10 years ago. Recently, he started suffering from arthritis in his knees, extreme shaking and stiffness. The problem wasn't that he couldn't move, it was that his movement was too small to get anything done. That's when I talked to him about getting treatment from Accolade Homecare.

Just a couple of weeks into the program and his muscles feel stronger. He's taking bigger steps, walking up and down the stairs and getting into bed without any problems. He can even bend over to pick up the remote. Thanks to the help from Accolade, everything in his life is much better.

fires in the West Texas region can fires. apply for financial assistance through the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) for range deferment of all livestock grazing throughout the growing season, plant health concerns, and cross fencing assistance.

EQIP is a continuous sign-up program and NRCS will be accepting applications for current funding assistance through July 29, 2011. In order to apply, landowners must visit the local NRCS office in the USDA Service Center in their county to fill out an application. Applications will be ranked and those approved for funding will be offered an EQIP contract. Mickey Black, NRCS assistant state conservationist said, "NRCS is prepared to assist landowners with prescribed grazing for deferment to rejuvenate plant health and prevent soil erosion due to Landowners affected by wild- drought and the effects from wild-

"We want to provide assistance that will enable landowners and livestock producers to accelerate the recovery of the health and vigor of affected grazing land," he said. Black suggests landowners consult with their local NRCS district conservationist to develop a conservation plan, which can be an effective strategy for pasture and rangeland recovery and mitigating the effects of the dry conditions that Texas is experiencing. Wildlife habitat also can be impacted by wildfires and NRCS can provide technical and financial assistance in re-establishing the habitats for desired species.

For further assistance in evaluating your land and planning practices to address concerns following a wildfire, contact your local NRCS office or Soil and Water

Texas NRCS Receives Funding For Panhandle Water Conservation

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has announced additional funding in the Panhandle and South Plains regions to enhance natural resources on Texas agricultural working lands. Additional funds are now available through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) to address water conservation concerns through the Agricultural Water Enhancement Program (AWEP) and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative.

'AWEP and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative are both voluntary programs and provide financial and technical assistance to farmers and ranchers to improve water conditions on their agricultural land," said Salvador Salinas, NRCS state conservationist for Texas. "With water supplies at an all time low, this is just one more way agriculture can help conserve AWEP and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative promote ground and surface water conservation by RELEASE OF LIEN-United helping farmers and ranchers implement agricultural water enhancement activities. Projects address water quantity resource concerns in the 49 Panhandle and South Plains counties within the Aguifer area.

Types of water enhancement activities include water quantity or water conservation plan development; irrigation system improvements and irrigation efficiency enhancements; water conservation

Producers are encouraged to work with NRCS on conservation planning assistance to develop a conservation plan as a primary tool for long-term management of their natural resources. "Benefits of a conservation plan go a long way in helping producers protect and improve their land," said Jon Weddle, NRCS program manager in Lubbock. "The plan will help producers qualify for NRCS financial assistance to implement the conservation practices to make the changes on their farms or ranches. It will also serve as a planning tool, and can be modified as they change their objectives and goals throughout the EQIP is a continuous sign-up program. NRCS will be accepting applications through July 29, 2011 for current funding. NRCS implements the programs by entering into EQIP contracts directly with agricultural producers.

Visit your local USDA Service Center and talk to the NRCS office staff about the details for AWEP, and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative, conservation planning, and other programs to help protect your farm. Shawn began playing banjo at age 15 while living in Oceanside, California. From 1980-1982, Shawn attended South Plains College in Levelland, TX., where he earned an Associate's degree in Bluegrass Music. His banjo playing style is heavily influenced by Earl Scruggs, Don Reno and Alan Munde. Shawn has been a part of several bluegrass bands from the Austin area where he lives with his wife and two sons.

(from Page 1) That night Donald Ford came to see us. He is a nice man. He saw me when I was just a baby.

Now I'm growing up, I know him. We went to the beautifullest waterfall I've ever seen! It had lights on it, even pink! The waterfall museum was in a cave. It told us about the history and how it was built.

It was a very long-good day.

The next day we went to see the cliff dwellings. That is where some people lived a long time ago. They builded their their houses in the rocks on the mountain. Now they are dead. Some of the skeletons are in the museum. One skull had bad cavities 'cause they didn't brush their teeth. The people called Basket Weavers had very flat heads. That's acause the mothers tied the babies to a board forever till they were big. I would not do that to my baby!

It was fun to climb on the ladders and look out the windows. I imagined that a little girl very long ago looked out the same window and saw the beautiful mountains.

It was almost time to leave "Man-a-tooth". We drove through Garden of the Gods. I never did see the gods, but I saw big beautiful orange rocks. I think the gods have to be in your 'magination.

We drove another very long way to more mountains. I was so excited. Finally I'm going fishing! 'Cept it's too late and I have to wait one more day!

Don Hudgins is cool! I love that guy! He found river shoes and vest just my size. He was so sweet to teach me about fly fishing. You throw it back and let it go very softly. It was a great day on the river with Don! We went rafting all day. My dad did almost all the fishing. Don rowed the boat. I fished some and my mom

Ray says of himself "I'm just an old West Texas Hippie who loves to pick and sing." When asked to play at Mobeetie with Max Zimmet there was no hesitation from Ray. He and his parents were founding members of the Panhandle Bluegrass & Old Tyme Music Association.
