Evidently the world did not end last Friday, December 21, Otherwise you would not be reading this.

- cwe -

We decided on Wednesday to get the paper ready to print on Thursday and ready to mail so we did not have to leave on Christmas day and return to Wheeler if weather was bad that day.

- cwe -Hope you had a Merry Christmas and all are well.

- cwe --

Part of Wednesday was really nice. It was a cool winter morning with sunshine later in the day. But in the afternoon the dirt storm moved in from the north. - cwe --

I hope you managed to make the rounds in Wheeler to see the lights. Some of our residents went all out.

- cwe -We extend to each of you a Happy New Year! - cwe

Local Women Obtain Grant For Printing Of Book On Red River War, 1874-1875

Ada Lou Lester of Mobeetie TX, Board Member of the Texas Plains Trail Region, discovered while working on the Quanah Parker Trail Project, that this beautiful "Red River War-1874-1875-Clash of Cultures" brochure had been research and put together for the Texas Panhandle by the archeology department at The Texas Historical Commission in Austin Texas. There had been 12 years of research and field study and 4 years of putting the brochure together only to find there were no funds to print it. The brochure tell the story of the Comanche, Kiowa and Cheyenne Indians final conflict that occurred in our region. Knowing that with a will there is a way, Ada and Bobbye Hill of Wheeler TX painstakingly wrote a lished. grant application and the Texas Plains Trail received funding through the Amarillo Area Foundation and the Sybil B. Harrington Foundation the amount of $16,000.00. Thanks to their help and gen-

WHO NEEDS INSTRUCTIONS?

probably empathize, and maybe even sympathize, with the situahave small kids, it seems to fall Dad's lot, being Santa's helper on Christmas-eve. Of course, you can't get started assembling things very early, so you start out with a limited amount of time before Santa starts "breathing down your neck." You can't have him showing up before you're finished. Fortunately, I've done stuff like this before, and I'm also pretty "mechanically-minded." I don't have the time, or the need, to sit around reading instructions; that's for novice dads. After an hour or so of

All of us who have children, can suffering, it's apparent that I'm going to have to give up and take a short peek at the instructions. tion I'm about to describe. If you By golly, that parts list seems like a good idea; tells exactly what's in the plastic bag that comes with that little red wagon, or tricycle! Well, it looks like there's a bolt missing. Oh well, I've probably got one in the garage. Also, the good folks in China gave me a list of tools needed to do the job. What the heck is a "spanner?" I finally had to look it up in the dictionary. Turns out, it's just a "crescent wrench." The Chinese person, who translated the tool list, used the British version, instead of Texan, I guess. Anybody know what an "acorn nut" is? They go on the end of the axles on little wagons and tricycles, to hold the wheels on. The axles don't have threads but the nuts have little, sharp grippers inside them and you just tap them over the end of the axle with a hammer. I wonder where this leftover part is supposed to go? Darn, looks like it goes on the axle, right next to the wheel. Well, I just stripped the acorn nut, getting it back off. My first thought, was to weld a washer on the end of the axle and throw that acorn nut away, but decided Santa wouldn't want his good name connected with a "cobbled up" job like that. I'll just use some of this "gorilla glue." It should be dry by the time he gets here.

Maybe, next year, Santa won't need me to help assemble anything, and I'll just be responsible for the cookies and milk.
