McDowell Deep Test May Be Brought In Saturday

Plugs Drilled Out Thursday, Hole Flushed

Crew Rigging Up Bailing Apparatus, Master Valve Ready

Interest in the John I. Moore No. 1 McDowell, Glasscock county deep test 20 miles southwest of here, continued unabated here Friday as time neared for bringing in the well.

Predictions that the test would be brought in sometime Thursday night or Friday the fate of the wildcat deep test would be known.

Plugs were drilled out about 10 p. m. Thursday and the hole was flushed out.

Drill stem was pulled out during the night.

The crew was working Friday afternoon on a bailing outfit to use Saturday morning and was preparing to put on a master gate on top of the string of 7 5/8 inch casing.

Total depth of the test is 9520 feet. Whether it is drilled deeper depends largely upon the showing of the well when it is bailed out.

Thursday afternoon hundreds of people thronged around the well to watch the rotary drill bear down on plugs.

Although the crowd dwindled down after nightfall, a continuous stream of cars lined the roads to the well most of the night.

These close to the operations of the well remained extremely high in their confidence that it would make a producer when brought in, probably Saturday.

Ipswich Jail "Bombed"

Federal agents said Friday that arrests of 3 men here and two in Big Spring smashed a counterfeit ring which has flooded Fort Worth and nearby cities with spurious $5 bills.

A. H. Rebenish, Dallas agent, seized 107 $5 notes from a 28 year old Decatur man and his father and a 34 year old Fort Worth man.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Wolf Thursday arrested A. W. Phillips, 33, and Jack Potter, Big Spring, was taken into custody here Friday in connection with the passing of a counterfeit note.

J. M. Penney, United States secret service agent, took the two men into custody here Friday shortly before noon and assertedly left for Abilene to arraign them. At 3 p. m. the United States commissioner at Abilene had not reported their arrival.

Potter told local officers that Phillips had passed the bill into his possession. He said that he unknowingly attempted to pass it in giving change.

The bill in question was of the $10 denomination, unlike the $5 notes found on the person of a Decatur man in Fort Worth Friday.

Case of W. R. Hildreth, given the death penalty here, has been filed on appeal with the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin. Charles Sullivan, who was appointed with J. B. Litterer by the court to defend Hildreth, said the court had fixed April 10 as the date of hearing. Hildreth was convicted here on a plea of guilty for the ice pick murder of his wife, Docia Hildreth.

Some of the sapphires were two inches in diameter and so hard they would cut glass. The slide was 2,000 feet long, 400 wide and 40 deep. Investigation was begun to determine commercial possibilities of the find.

Heroes Didn't Get Medals NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UP)—In New Bedford's ancient customs house, recently, were found seven bronze medals that were struck nearly 60 years ago but never presented to the heroes of the sea for whom they were intended. Research revealed that the third mate and 10 seamen of the New Bedford whaler Young Phoenix rescued survivors of the Scottish vessel Strathmore when the latter craft was wrecked on the Crozet Islands in 1875.

Harvard Man 50 Years CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—John Skahan, 72, has been at Harvard University for 50 years — but he never expects to get a degree. He is the gate watchman at the entrance to Harvard Yard. Celebrating his golden anniversary, he said he had no idea of retiring.

Ipswich Jail "Bombed" IPSWICH, Mass. (UP)—Essex county jail, home of the first shoe shop in a United States prison, was "bombed" by ERA workers recently. There was no confusion following the blast as there were no inmates housed there. The building, more than 100 years old, was razed because of the lack of repairs.

Three Vacancies Occur In School Board Personnel

The Herald erred in saying Thursday that only two vacancies occur in the Big Spring Independent School district board of trustees this year.

There are three vacancies to be filled in the April 8 election. Trustees whose terms expire are H. E. Faw, Dr. M. H. Bennett and J. B. Collins.

Persons wishing to have their names placed on the official ballot must file their application in writing with Mrs. W. J. McAdams, board secretary, at least 10 days prior to the date of election. Persons wishing to enter the name of a candidate must file written application with Mrs. McAdams at least 30 days before the election date, and accompany same with written consent of the candidate.

Mrs. McAdams said that these regulations would not only apply to the April 8 trustee election, but to succeeding elections. Trustees elected will be installed for three year terms.

News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

WASHINGTON By George Durno

Crash—

Organized minorities, several of which have nothing particular in common, are welded into a temporary bloc here that has upset the entire White House legislative program. As a result, much of it promises to go overboard for the session.

Reading from left to right—and the expression is used advisedly—are Long, Coughlin & Co., spearheading the whole anti-administration drive the Townsend Plan and EPIC backers, the inflationists; the American Federation of Labor, which feels it has been "sold down the river"; the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, demanding cash bonus; the American Bankers' Association and the American Liberty League, opposing bank reform legislation, and the power lobby, which very much doesn't want the Wheeler-Rayburn bill abolishing holding companies passed.

Add to this, where it doesn't naturally synchronize, the Republican minority has been giving aid and comfort to the extent of normally unexplainable votes. And then toss in the Progressives, who have now decided to go their own way.

Freedom—

The 40 left-wing liberals who organized into a bloc in the House under guidance of Reps. Paul Kvale (F-L), Minn., Gerald Boleau (P), Wis., and Merlin Hull (P), Wis., are indicative of the new political order—although this group concedes it won't be able to do much but make noise. Existing House gag rules will limit that.

Where Boleau finally produces a statement of policy, he being in charge of that, it will bear a preamble allowing any bloc member to dissent from legislation generally endorsed therein.

Those who are for everything else will not stomach the Frazer-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill. A few will not go along for still more public works. There may be some defections on the proposition of government ownership of all natural resources and monopolies vested with public interest.

Lincoln—

The House malcontents do think they have an outside chance to soften the stringent discharge rule so that 146 members, instead of 218 majority, may again force legislation.

AUSTIN, (Sp.)—That the Texas Relays are essentially a "civic movement" is not a commercial undertaking like most college athletic contests, is the substance of an announcement made by university athletic officials this week.

The primary purpose in holding the annual spring track and field meet is to give Texans an opportunity to see the great stars of the nation in action and to bring as many Texas people as possible to Austin and the University of Texas campus.

MILING THROUGH

THE STORY OF GLENN CUNNINGHAM

III. He Makes The Olympic Team

By CHARLES GRUMICH (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The year 1932 was a big one in the life of Glenn Cunningham, for not only was he starting his varsity career at Kansas but he hoped also to win a place on the United States Olympic team.

Having been a football and basketball star at the Elkhardt high school, he had ambitions to compete in these sports, but he was immediately called into running.

Coach Brutus Hamilton and others decided not to let Glenn's talents stray to gridiron or court because any kind of injury might thwart their plans to bring him along as a great middle distance ace.

Their calculations proved fortuitous, for it came to pass that he reached his peak at a time when the world had more expert competitors at the middle distances than ever before.

Special Training Schedule Hamilton laid out a training schedule taking into account special requirements to compensate for the fact his runner didn't have normal circulation in his legs or normal muscular protection on the surface of leg bones.

Glenn was not delicate in the usual sense, but he had to be handled carefully.

Cunningham cleaned up all the college competition in sight, from the 880 to the two-mile.

He performed feats of strength of which a 200-pounder would be proud. Weighing only about 163 and standing 5' 1-2", he could take care of himself in boxing and wrestling bouts with much bigger men.

In the qualifying test for the 1,500-meter job on the Olympic team Glenn scored the first of his long series of triumphs over Gene Venke. However, some of the critics thought his victory a fluke.

"Better Luck Next Time" Hamilton convinced Lawson Robertson, head coach of the Olympic trackmen and also of the University of Pennsylvania, that Cunningham had fairly earned his nomination.

In the final at Los Angeles Cunningham was the first American to finish, placing fourth in the race won by Luigi Beccali of Italy in the then world record time of 3:51.2.

If there was any legitimate alibi for that defeat it was never offered in public. Glenn accepted his beating with the satisfaction of knowing he'd still be young enough in 1936 to try again for an Olympic title. (Though probably not even he foresaw the Olympian heights he has scaled in the years between.)

However, there was plenty of work to be done against domestic opposition, and records to be lowered. Cunningham returned to Kansas, where the track coaching was taken over upon Hamilton's departure for the California job by H. W. "Bill" Hargis.

Glenn and Bill began experimental workouts, not secret, but not public. They simply wished to tamper quietly with the theory of running eight furlongs. Their findings were noted, revised, studied and kept in mind.

(Tomorrow Glenn makes good on the Metropolitan boards.)

Bristow Resigns As CC President

J. Gordon "Obie" Bristow tendered his resignation as president of the local Country Club in the form of a telegram to other officials of the club Thursday.

Bristow said that business matters would make it impossible for him to be here enough of the time to serve efficiently.

Bordagary, a Hack Wilsonian type in build but a redoubtable on the bases, batted .727 as an American league pinch-hitter.

The other two youngsters flurrying in Casey's plans are John McCarthy, Chicago sandlot product who couldn't hit hard enough to displace Sam Leslie at first base; and Gordon "Babe" Phelps, huge pitcher obtained from the Cubs to give hard-working Al Lopes an occasional breathing spell.

With his infield held over intact—Leslie, Tony Cucinella, Linus Frey and Joe Stripp—and Van Mungo bulwarking a right-handed hurling staff including Emil Leonard, Ray Henne and John Babich, it is obvious Stengel will not spend much time stumpling over rookies this spring.

BROOKLYN STAYS IN LEAGUE WITH ABOUT THE SAME CAST AS SPILLED GIANTS IN '34

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—The team good enough to convince Bill Terry it was still too much in the National league on the last two days of 1934 probably will start the 1935 campaign for Brooklyn with little change in personnel.

Two southpaw pitchers, one of both of whom may fill the Dodgers' most crying need, a reserve outfielder, reserve infielder and reserve catcher constitute the cream of Casey Stengel's rookie crop this season, with scant prospect that any 1934 regulars will be ousted to make room for incoming talent.

Lefthanders Lamanke and Logan, both midwestern products of similar build and winning records in 1934, appear to be two of Stengel's choicest finds.

Frank Lamanke came back last year with Davenport in the Western league following a year and a half of retirement—dating from July 1, 1932—and hung up a mark of 24 wins against 7 defeats. Furthermore he won both games of a doubleheader during a 17-game winning streak, and hurled his team to three victories in the league play-off series!

Log Logan graduated from high school into the Nebraska State league in 1930 and worked up to Indianapolis in the American association, where he won 20 games last year.

Stanley "Frenchy" Bordagary, who came from Sacramento of the Coast league and went back there after playing with the Chicago White Sox a while last season, has the edge over two green rival outfield rookies, Nick Tremark of Brooklyn and Mike Partotto of Dayton, O., for the one outfield reserve spot. Len Koencke, Ralph Boyle and Danny Taylor will continue to be the regular gardeners.

Where and When Disasters Occur And Types Which Hit Most Often

Decade's Records of Red Cross Answer Vital Queries on Hazards of Storm, Flood and Fire.

WHAT months of the year present the greatest hazard to American life through disaster? What types of disaster are most prevalent? Are some types of catastrophe peculiar to certain sections of our country?

For the first time, a scientific answer to these queries can be given. Based on records of the American Red Cross relief work in 824 disasters in a period of ten years, ending June 30, 1933, many interesting facts have come to light.

The month of May with 134 disasters in 1933 ranked first as the month in which the greatest number of disasters occurred. The months of March, April, May and June showed each year the greatest prevalence, and are therefore the season during which the Red Cross anticipates the greatest number of calls for relief.

Hurricanes, tornadoes and windstorms are the types of catastrophe which occur most often. The record shows 393 of this type in ten years. Floods, numbering 170 ranked second, and 154 fires ranked third. In the ten year period mine disasters numbered 26; forest fires, 31; epdemies, and quarantines, 29, and earthquakes, 2. Tornadoes and windstorms occurred most often in May in the west central states; floods occurred most often in March in central and Atlantic states; fires occurred most often in January, and predominated in middle Atlantic and New England states. The central and Atlantic states suffered the greatest number of disasters—chiefly tornadoes, windstorms and floods—and accounted for 73 per cent of all disasters during the ten year period. RAYBURN GIVES LESSON ON FORGETTING, FORGIVING

When Dr. James Rayburn speaks tonight on "Three Lads and What They Said," he will be delivering what he terms one of the most important messages of the entire union revival now nearing completion its second week of progress here.

A quartet furnished an especially enjoyable feature Thursday evening in the number, "Have You Forgotten God?"

Saturday Dr. Rayburn will speak on "The Anchor of the Soul."

Tonight is church night and all churches have been urged to have good representations from their memberships.

The Thursday sermon in part follows:

Scripture: Deut. 6:4-12 8:6-20.

Text: "Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day."

"This seventh verse of the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy is one of God's warnings, of which the Bible contains many. There are some things in life that ought to be forgotten. Life is made no happier by retaining them. For instance, our disappointments, which sometimes test our faith very much, should not be remembered. We ought to forget our failures as far as possible.

To remember them causes us to be unhappy and suspicious. Then we ought to forget slights and slurs. You are not always going to receive the treatment you deserve to receive. Some one will be malicious, thoughtless or careless, but O, forget it. Jesus was lied on, spit on, reviled on, but he reviled not again. It takes much character and prayer to live up to Christ's standards.

Paul said, "When I became a man I put away childish things." Even after his Lord had warned him that he would do so, Peter denied Jesus three times. Did you ever hear of Jesus asking for an apology?

"Then we ought to forget our successes sometimes. The question is not what have you done, but are you doing your best. Are you doing all you can, not are you doing more than anyone else.

"But most things should not be forgotten. Moses knew that the days of prosperity would come, so he said, 'beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God.' What are some of the causes that make men forget God? The very one that Moses mentioned is the first one that we have today: prosperity. The more God pours out his abundance and blessings, the more people forget him. Wealth is the most dangerous thing that ever came to a man, or an institution. That is what is the matter with Harvard, with Yale, with Chicago. If you want to ruin a Christian institution, just load it up with endowment until it does not have to depend upon God.

"Another cause of forgetfulness is just the reverse of prosperity—depression. I am glad that God told us about Job. He lost his family, his property, and his health, but he could still say, 'Though he slay me, yet will I trust him.' A thing that makes me sad is that this depression is not humbling people, it is hardening them.

"And another thing is over-occupation. Every man and woman ought to be occupied, but nobody has any business being over-occupied. Some people can never do anything because they are so busy. I have never seen anybody too busy to go to their own funeral some day.

"And then raise teachers cause people to forget God.

"How do we know when people are forgetting God? By their works. A man once said to me, 'When I see the wonders around me, I would be a fool to say there is no God.' Yet there are people who never see the works of God in the moral world; and when a man never sees the works of God, he never sees God.

"People are forgetting God when they are forgetting his word. Here is God's great love letter to the world, and yet people never read it. Those who never open the Bible are forgetting the One who wrote it.

"There are those who forget his house. Why do people go to church? Most people go there to worship. Some say, 'You can worship anywhere.' Yes, but you don't. Can you say honestly, 'I was glad when they said unto me, let us go unto the house of the Lord?' or do you just go because you think it best? Show me people who are forgetting the house of the Lord, and I will show you people who are forgetting the Lord of the house. There are thirteen million American children not in any Sunday School. Church, our work is not done.

"What are the consequences of forgetting? There are two consequences the effect that it has upon the man who forgets and the effect it has upon the God who is forgotten. In Romans I Paul says, 'When they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened; professing themselves to be wise, they became fools.' God gave them up to a reprobate mind. 'Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness... For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections.' God gave them up not because he did not love them, but because they had hardened their hearts and stubborn their wills.

"And what is the effect upon God? 'I will bring an everlasting reproach upon you.' Just keep on forgetting God and he will forget you. How good God has been to us. He has given us the Sabbath, which comes every week. He has given us ministers, the church, the Bible, revivals, the Lord's supper, all to help us remember him. Yet of some men it can be said, 'And God was not in all his thoughts.' That verse describes a dog, but it was written about a man. God never intended that a man should live on the same spiritual plane with his cattle. 'What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?' (Here Dr. Rayburn told the story of the engineer who forgot his order just four minutes, but his forgetting cost thousands of dollars and many lives. He also told the story of the young mother who forgot the carbolic acid and killed her baby.)

"Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day." It is a fatal blunder when the soul forgets its maker.

Lost in Flight

John W. Stornaby of Austin secured adoption of an amendment to provide that, if levied, it should be paid from the state general fund.

Sen. K. M. Regan of Pecos county, author of the amendment, urged that the university making money on both surface and mineral leases, should not oppose the payment of about $2,000 a year for support of schools.

Ralph C. Goeth, president of the ex-students association; Fred Adams of Austin and Albert S. Johnson of Dallas spoke against the tax plan. W. L. McGill, Leo C. Haynes and others were present in the university group. Head Coach Jack Chevigny was in the senate while the group appeared against this bill, but did not address the committee.

Officials of the Rankin school district of Upton county said the university leases its land for grazing purposes at 10 cents an acre and the leases sub-lease the same land for 30 cents. Sen. Regan said the sub-leases were only made in good years, and after considerable improvements by those securing large tracts. Railroad lands lease for 3 cents an acre, in many instances, he said.

Sen. Ben O'Neal, in questioning speakers, brought out that the university gets about $64 per section on surface rentals, but the proposed tax would take $27 of that revenue.

Proposed Measure To Tax Texas U. Land Is Defeated

AUSTIN, (Sp.)—A proposed constitutional amendment to let counties and school districts tax lands of the University of Texas was voted down by the senate constitutional amendments committee, but notice of a minority report indicated an effort to get it on the calendar for attention of the entire senate. Vote was 5 to 2 against the amendment.

They invited school officials of the 19 West Texas counties sponsoring the amendment, to levy taxes on the untaxed grazing and oil leases held by individuals and firms on university lands, saying such assessments would afford revenues needed to conduct schools in districts made up largely of university-owned lands.

Judge R. L. Batts of Austin, former chairman of the university board, told the committee that the amendment would permit taxing the campus in Austin, the Brackenridge tract on Lake Austin, and the grounds of the medical college at Galveston.

As drawn, the amendment would have taken the taxes out of the university available fund, but Sen.

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

Chapter 41 JUAN-SILVA'S DREAM

"But I shall not stay here in the Valley of the Dead until my life ends," Juan-Silva added. "All of this—all of these years—they are spent for a purpose," the Kid asked. "What purpose, senior?" the Kid asked. "I shall open my heart to you," croaked Juan-Silva. "I shall tell you that I am barely forty thousand pesos from my goal! And then I may leave the Valley of the Dead—I may sail over the sea—I may go again to Old Spain! "When I was a boy I was a shepherd in Old Castile. The land of castles! You understand what I say? People make the shepherds sing songs. But all that I heard from my companions was cursing. But always there was something above us! "He pointed upward. Heaven? wondered the Kid. "The old man continued: "There was always the castle on its rock. The trail wound up to it. But the castle was empty, and still we were all there. And as I walked with my sheep I used to look up. And I saw the castle and said myself that I would one day come to have a million pesos, and then I would buy that castle. "You think, my friend, that these years in the Valley of the Dead have been a torment. But in the hot summer day I think of the castle looking its head among the blowing clouds. And in the winter I think of how my hall will be in Spain, and the great fire of logs burning on the hearth. "He actually extended his hands before him and rubbed them together as though at this moment a winter chill struck through him with the memory. "And Montana said, bluntly, "Will you have long with your carter?" "Ah," grinned Juan-Silva, "you look at the body and you see that it is like old leather, ready to crack apart with a little bending. But the place to look is in the eyes of a man. Men have lived twenty years past a hundred. Considering them, I still have a third of my years to spend, and they shall be spent in my Spain, in my valley, in my castle on the rock. "Is the strange company of Juan-Silva, the days might have gone swiftly enough for the Kid, but behind his mind there was the constant anxiety about Rubriz, about the friar. "When he felt that he had gained some foothold in the thought of the old man, he spoke to him one day when they were in Juan-Silva's carriage. "He took the Kid with him every day for a drive of inspection; and at last Montana said: "Senior, there are two friends of mine in the valley. Be kind, and let me see them. "The friar?" said Juan-Silva.

"He's one." "My lad, think of the good he is doing!" He gave his hoarse, croaking laugh. "And the Kid, looking down at his gripped hands, fiercely restrained the impulse to throttle the old fiend at once. "But then you have a second friend, El Keed?" "Rubriz." "Ha! Rubriz! But ask me for something I can give! The friar is a jewel to the other poor devils, and Rubriz is a jewel to me!" "Well," said the Kid, slowly, "I don't ask you to set him free, I ask to see him, only." "To see him? To talk with him, you mean?" "Yes." "Ah, my son," said Juan-Silva, "why do you make me say no to you so often when I have nothing in my heart but a sense of kindness and even of gratitude to you? This much I know—that not while I live will a man escape alive from the valley. But perhaps—three men together are a great strength!—perhaps you and your friends might work the miracle. They might pass the guard at the gate of the valley. They might pass even beyond the reach of those." Here he paused, and pointed towards the wall of the valley. Along that wall three Indians were trotting their ponies. They looked clumsy, unwieldy, but the Kid knew that, once roused to action, man and horse would become as one savage beast to pursue an enemy. "And behind that trio the dust rose from the hooves of another set of three, and behind them still another appeared. "The Kid closed his eyes. And he began to think, not for the first time, of Rosita, far out there in the hills—but not far enough, because she would keep herself always close enough to one high point so that she could see what was happening in the Valley of the Dead. Or had she given up her watch before this? Had she retired towards the land of the living? She might find enough of the sun-starved grasses to serve as fodder for the horses, but how did her own food last? Or what traps had she contrived for the lean jack rabbits, since she dared not shoot for fear the noise might reach some distant ear? He had lost his count of days. But time was like a hand pulling at him constantly, and the tension grew little by little until he knew that a breaking-point was near. How he could help his friends—that was the chiefest of the miracles now. But he could see no step of his way towards it. He opened his eyes, in addition, wondering anxiously what that "great good" might be which Juan-Silva expected to draw from him. And then he learned. "The master wants you," she said. She remained there, standing back to let him pass through the door, and as he went by her she spoke: "Your hands are free. Why don't you use them? Why do you wait to die like a poor blind sheep?" He could not answer this. He walked on before her into the patio of Juan-Silva, and as he stepped out into the blinding strength of the sun he saw the carriage and the four white horses already harnessed and waiting, though it was hardly time for the master to below-green face of Jack Lascar, peak-faced Major Alvarez, and above all the swinish jowls of General Ignacio Estrada. All hands turned towards him as he stood there, made helpless by the hands that were fastened on his arms. "And Juan-Silva said: "Well, take your hands away from him. Even a great man like El Keed needs weapons. With his bare fists he can't do very much!" So the Kid, made free, walked slowly on towards the table. Behind him, the guards were retiring from the room. Only old Maria remained to serve the guests, who already had before them little glasses of that fine, green-tasting fire, tequila. "It seemed to the Kid that he was advancing into an ethereal region, an atmosphere of pure hate. They were all smiling at him—Lascar, and the governor, and the major, and Juan-Silva. Jack Lascar rose from his place and bowed to him stiffly. "Your pleasure, Montana," he said, "ain't half as great as mine." "You're sitting in at a big game, Jack," answered Montana. "If you've got the cards, d'you think that you've got the stakes?" "We're three with one thought, partner," said Lascar. "That thought is about you!" "Sit down, my son," said Juan-Silva. The Kid took a place at the end of the table, and old Maria poured out a glass of tequila for him. "You, my general," said the old man, "should be the first one to speak." (To be continued)

tion out of committee for a vote. Veteran observers doubt they will get to first base.

Rep. Kvale, as bloc chairman, points out for instance that he personally is opposed to the Townsend old age pension plan. Yet he feels it should be met squarely and voted down by the House because of the widespread following it has enticed with its Utopian formula.

Primarily, the "Mavericks"—as the new group is called with a Texas Democrat of that famous name who is a member—plan to establish closer liaison with Senate Progressive. Senator Norris of Neb., LaFollette of Wis., Cutting of N. Mex., Shipstead of Minn., and others are said to have encouraged the bloc's inception.

For months the country watched New Deal make some of the largest bedfalls in political history. Now, by the same token, it is witnessing the end of some beautiful friendships.

Witness the verbal battle between Senator Bill Borah and Chief Coordinator Don Rieberg over the future of NRA. This pair of former liberals who saw eye to eye for years have gone to the mat like a couple of grudge lighters.

Ever since Borah came roaring out of the West to belabor trusts do a thorough job of mobilizing objectors to the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Wall Street gets a chuckle from the protests of several state public service commissions—including those of Connecticut and Georgia—on the ground that the pending legislation infringes on states' rights. Insiders understand that the most effective protests—though they have not appeared in that capacity publicly—are the life insurance companies. They don't agree at all with the Federal trade commission that the general extermination of holding companies wouldn't hurt them.

Ironically there's one class of security holders who would like to see the holding company death sentence carried out. They are the people who sold small operating properties to the big groups and were paid in stock. The stock isn't worth much now—but the properties might be if they could get them back. But there are too few of them to make a dent politically and their chances are slim.

While the Wheeler-Rayburn bill as written is dead New York acouts report enough anti-utility sentiment still alive in Washington to make some legislation probable. The best-informed sources believe it will shape toward the compromise which would convert the holding companies into investment trusts. If this goes through they will continue to exist and receive dividends from their operating properties but will be practically stripped of management rights. Moderates among utility leaders are not at all averse to this solution.

Chaos

General Ballata—not President Mendicta—is the real power behind the existing Cuban government. New York sharps say he can keep the whip hand as long as his army obeys orders. The test will come when the soldiers are ordered to fire into a mob. Killing of friends and relatives is likely to breed disaffection. And if a single regiment lays down its arms or deserts to the rebels it will be like touching a match to a cellpoid solar.

Insiders understand that ex-president Grau San Martin has more to do with the current disturbance than is generally known.

New York investors in Cuban properties see a complete and final washout ahead—especially in the utility field. Sugar investments may be an exception. Confiscation of sugar properties might close the American market to Cuban sugar—and even the bitterest leaders of anti-Yankee sentiment realize that would be suicide. Informer circles predict chaos in Cuba for months to come—ending in domination by left wing extremists and devastating losses to foreign capital.

Wages

Insiders say that nobody but Uncle Sam has paid prevailing wages in the construction field for the past four years. They add that there would have been no private construction at all if the theoretical wage scales had been enforced.

The Federation of Labor—for all its bold words on the subject—has privately acquiesced in this chiding. It had no choice if it wanted to keep its membership in the building trades alive. Carpenters and bricklayers have much preferred to accept pay below the union scale rather than hold fast and starve.

Forgotten

A New York banker with excellent Washington contacts predicts that Title I of the Bank Reform bill—involving changes in the permanent deposit insurance law—will be passed at this session. He phrases further that Title II—amending the Federal Reserve System—will be conveniently forgotten in the shuffle. If it works this way smiles for bankers will be back in fashion.

Sensitive

Wall Street used to jump like a nervous kitten at every faint breeze from Washington—but no more. Comment runs that nobody short of the president of the supreme court can draw any response now—and they're only good for half a day. A disgruntled broker complains that the markets are about as sensitive as a stevedore under ether.

Shared

New Yorkers are intrigued to note that Huey Long evidently believes in sharing expense as well as wealth. They observe that his best brand of propaganda goes out over his congressional frank—and they wonder what Jim Farley thinks of that.

Sidelights

A Stock Exchange seat was recently sold for a net loss of almost $400,000 from the purchase price. New York sharps can't figure congress going home before mid-June at the earliest. Bad news from their viewpoint. $800,000 private refinancing is in sight now that Swift and Pacific Gas have set the pace.

'Sucker Money' Fallacy Recurs To Embarrass Centennial Support

By DAYMOND BROOKS
 AUSTIN—One of the fallacies that recurs to embarrass the sponsors of the Texas Centennial is this:

The Centennial is to honor Texas heroes and glorify Texas history and materially help present-day Texas' economic condition.

Its advocates, in an extremity of finding money, committed themselves to the theory of making the people of other states pay for the Centennial. That is, Texas should benefit from outsiders' spending, and Texas heroes should be commemorated out of the pockets of those not feeling the patriotic zeal, naturally, which Texans feel.

They haven't been able to get away from the idea, and have been forced to equivocate whenever appropriation measures come, between the frank position that the Centennial is great enough for Texas to pay its cost, and the position that Texas can profit from "sucker money," and honor its heroes with monuments built of Indiana or Maine dollars.

The Centennial is worthy to stand on its own feet. Holding the greatest possible exposition will involve only an infinitesimal degree of the sacrifice that marked the efforts of the early Texans. The exertion now will be repaid to those who make it; the sacrifices and labors of the early Texans were glorified only in the rewards that came to others later.

It is rather a shameful proposal that "we know the visitors will feel none of the patriotic response we share in honoring the creators of Texas; but just the same, we propose to make them pay for the celebration; and we hope to have a financial profit at once, and the economic benefit of an influx of permanent people and capital as well."

The citizenship making up Centennial leaders would have been in a fairer position if they had said: "Texas is a state of twelve billion dollars worth. The Centennial at most will cost twelve million dollars. The direct outlay of Texas, aside from business interests concerned for profit, will be about six million dollars. That represents one dollar out of every $2,000, or one-twentieth of one per cent. If Texas isn't willing to make that much of an outlay, it is unworthy a Centennial, big or little."

Cattlemen Choose Amarillo As Site For Convention

HOUSTON—Amarillo today was chosen as the next convention city of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association Thursday.

Amarillo was chosen over Fort Worth by a vote of 67 to 63. Corpus Christi trailed with 47 votes. Each city was allowed 30 minutes in which representatives could urge reasons for the selection.

All officers, including honorary vice presidents and directors, were re-elected after Jay Taylor of Amarillo, president of the Panhandle Livestock association, made a brief talk for that action. Taylor said the officers had so much to do last year, co-operating with the AAA and fighting to better conditions in the cattle industry, that re-election was due them.

The officers are: W. T. Coble of Amarillo, president; J. C. McClill of Alice, first vice president; J. T. Sneed of Amarillo, second vice president; W. E. Connell of Fort Worth, treasurer, and E. B. Spiller of Fort Worth, secretary.

Resolutions adopted included: Recommending adoption of Texas House bill No. 724 to raising the truck load limit from 7,000 to 10,500 pounds.
 Branding proposed amendments to put processing tax on cattle for the benefit of the corn growers as unfair, unethical and unjustified by existing conditions.
 Opposing all bills now pending which might in any way hamper the free and unrestricted marketing of livestock.
 Urging a larger appropriation for the A. & M. college.
 Reaffirming support of the 2-1-2 per cent retail sales tax.
 Congressman Richard M. Kleberg outlined legislation affecting the cattle industry, either proposed or about to be passed.

Half Of Town Has Smallpox

Border Patrol Acts To Prevent Crossing Of International Line

EL PASO, (AP)—Half of the population of Ojo Caliente, Chihuahua, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Indian Hot Springs, Hudspeth county, Texas, Thursday were discovered to be ill, two seriously, from smallpox.

Energetic action by El Paso and Hudspeth county, and Jaurez Mexico, health officers in vaccinating everyone within a radius of ten miles was believed to have prevented spread of the epidemic.

U. S. border patrolmen have been placed on guard to prevent anyone crossing the Rio Grande from the affected area, while U. S. public health service aides are assisting in vaccinating everyone on the American side who might have been exposed. Most of those ill are small children, or young boys and girls. The town's population is 44, of whom 21 are stricken.

Sen. Tom DeBerry of Bogata, Red River county, has defined the distinction between the "common people" and the "Spivins Boys" to whom he frequently refers in senate debate.

The Rev. Jasper N. Reed of Texarkana, minister-member of the House, was one of a small group that voted "no" on the state's latest $3,000,000 relief bonds. Then he asked that his vote be changed to "aye."

A vote can be changed, after announcement of the result, only by unanimous consent. Some members withheld consent until Reed promised he would not ask reconsideration of the vote. Only members shown voting aye can do that.

He explained that his opposition is not to the charitable purpose of the measure. He objected to the Senate's treatment of it. Senators had struck out a House provision that made 25 per cent available for work-relief. Reed insisted that should remain.

"It's still in the air," he said, "if Congress will carry out the President's plan to have the federal government care for all employables."

A membership on the Senate Finance committee or the House appropriations committee is a highly cherished legislative assignment. These committees get many pleasant trips during a session. They are invited by entertaining communities to visit the places where state institutions or schools are situated and see for themselves the need of appropriations. One or the other already have visited Galveston, Denton and Brownsville this session.

Governor Allred at nearly every newspaper conference he has held since taking office. Daily some correspondent has inquired: "How about a highway commissioner?" They arranged turns at asking the question. Finally Governor Allred took over the assignment himself. "I'll ask myself every day," he said, "and I'll tell you when the answer is ready."

In the middle of the night Dorothy Vaughn, 9, of Seattle, awoke to find a burglar robbing her room. She sat up in bed and shouted "Boo", and the burglar took to his heels.

The House committee ok'ed a wing for the psychopathic hospital at Galveston to cost $120,000, which Senators omitted. The Senate favored $171,000 building and improvement expenditures at the Wichita Falls State Hospital and the House allowed $147,000 there. Both committee recommendations were about the same for building purposes at Abilene, Terrell, Carlsbad and San Antonio hospitals.

At Rusk, the House favored a $54,000 building for living quarters, the Senate a $50,000 building for tuberculosis and $47,000 for employ housing. The chief increase in the House was on the amounts for supplies and maintenance. The Senate held them approximately to figures in the State Board of Control's budget.

Governors of most states will visit Texas in the centennial year, 1936. Governor Allred has been assured. Many acceptances have come to his embellished invitation sent to other governors. Italy is the first foreign country to evince interest. Ambassador Augusto Rosso, from the land of Garibaldi, informed Governor Allred that he will call the Texas Centennial to the attention of his government and that, personally, he will visit the proposed exposition.
