Christmas Picture

"discoveries" of Frank Borzage, they have never worked together in a film until their recent co-acting in "The Princess and the Plumber," which comes to the Ritz theater today and tomorrow.

Farrell owes his fame to Borzage's selecting him for "7th Heaven" at a time when he was only a promising young actor, while Maureen was lifted bodily from her Irish home by the same director for the juvenile feminine lead in "Song O' My Heart."

"The Princess and the Plumber" is a charming romance of a lonely princess and an American engineer, with its setting laid in a mythical region of the Balkans, and with plenty of action and surprises and comedy to make it highly enjoyable.

H. B. Warner is also featured, while Joseph Castellani, Bert House, Eugene Pevan, Louise Chester, Hale and other screen and stage celebrities enact the supporting roles. Alexander Korda directed from Alice Beer Mitford's novel.

Rockne's Reaction to Doctor's Advice Awaited By His Friends

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Dec. 23. (Special Staff) The reaction of Knute Rockne to the doctor's advice of the physician to quit the football game is awaited by his friends.

That was the consensus of the famous Notre Dame football team's closest friends today after reading the advice of the physician to quit the football game.

Just how far Rockne would go to appease the wishes of the team's physician and friends was a matter of divided opinion. Many believed he would retire from active coaching and go to Europe, while others believed he would leave the coaching staff and go to Europe.

The doctor's advice was to quit the football game, and Rockne's reaction is awaited by his friends.

How Is Your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Ingo Galdston
for the New York Academy of Medicine

MEDICAL RESEARCH
The step-by-step study of medical research seldom is known to the public generally. Hence when a valid discovery in medicine has been made, it usually comes to the public as if "out of a clear sky."

Often enough, however, as in the instance of insulin, there is behind the discovery years, if not decades, of research.

That the public is entitled to know "what is going on" in medicine, not even the most retiring of research workers will deny, but that the publication of unfinished or unverified experimental work is extremely hazardous must be evident to everyone.

It is, therefore, as much to the interest of the public as to that of the physician, that the medical profession be non-too-hasty in the public circulation of preliminary reports of scientific ventures.

The history of medicine contains many cruel reminders of this hazard. A recent hasty and unwarranted publication of a piece of cancer research work raised the false hopes of speedy and certain cure for hundreds of cancer sufferers.

More classical examples of the danger of premature publication of so-called medical discoveries are Robert Koch's tuberculin, and Ehrlich's "606."

Koch thought that his tuberculin was a sure cure for tuberculosis—while Ehrlich believed that a single dose of his arsenic preparation would cure syphilis. Time proved both of these great scientists wrong.

However, there are encouraging signs about "interim" and "preliminary" reports of medical research is becoming more judicious and less liable to do harm.

Do We Like Dictators?

It is an ordinary thing for Americans to look somewhat scornfully on the present European addiction to dictatorships. A war to make the world safe for democracy was fought more than a decade ago, and ever since then we have seen a steady procession of parliamentary governments marching under the rule of dictators.

The Laborites proposal of a dictatorship for England is the latest move in the campaign. Germany is slipping into a semi-dictatorship. The French, troubled by a multiplicity of parties, are themselves dreaming vague dreams of the same thing. Nations like Italy, Spain, Poland and Russia openly boast of what dictatorship has done for them.

We in the United States, however, pat our democracy fondly and arch superior eyebrows at all of this business. We never lose a chance to assert that we will stick to representative government no matter what happens.

But do we really mean it? Or are we, by any chance, kidding ourselves?

When you stop to examine things critically, you will find that the sentiment for a dictatorship in this country is much stronger than any one ever admits.

What one thing is bothering the brains of big business today more than anything else? Isn't it the dreadful possibility that there may be an extra session of congress spring?

What institution is the ever-popular target for abuse in America? Isn't it congress—which is constantly being exhorted to shut up and go home?

If we are so fond of our representative government, why do we take that attitude? Congress consists of the representatives of the people. Under the constitution it is supposed to meet in Washington and do precisely what it is doing now.

It is not supposed to be a rubber stamp for any other branch of the government. It is not supposed to be a body that meets only when the republic enjoys fair weather. It has the constitutional duty of passing on public questions in time of crisis.

Why, then, are we so afraid of an extra session? Why are we always so eager to brand congress as a collection of numbskulls? Why do so many people take it for granted that congress is a public nuisance whenever it displays a will of its own?

Clearly, we are not half so afraid of a dictatorship as we let on.

Hollywood Sights

BY ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Influence of "foreign" versions on studio restaurants' menus.

You order something with a French name and that sounds elegant and the waitress serves eggs.

Lewis Ayres is having as much trouble retaining his rights as Charles Hockett is in retaining his rightful name.

Just as fans persist in their use of "Buddy" for the growing-up Rogers boy, they're calling Ayres "Lew," the diminutive by which he is known to those who know him when he was playing in a local orchestra.

His studio is heading and Lew is now his official billing.

HEARTLESS WRITERS

One Hollywood writer who in a novel several years ago relieved himself of all his sour notes against the film colony, now is wondering how any one could be so heartless as to have authored the latest nostalgic outburst on movie people. It's rather funny.

Things will be "looking up" in Hollywood earlier than usual, this year.

Annually, around the Christmas season, the studios settle into holiday merriment, their year's labor done, and there is little or no activity outside of the executive offices where plans for the new year's work are being drafted.

This, however, production will pick up before Christmas, and even Warners, which in the past has waited until after New Year's to resume work, will be in full swing.

That's especially bright news for the extras, who except for a couple of outdoor epics have had little to comfort them.

MIMS 'EM ALL

A certain executive connected with the movie industry unconsciously has developed a knack for mimicry to such an extent that he frequently is embarrassed to find himself mimicking business associates to their faces.

He is quick to pick up any accent or gesture, and it's purely subconscious with him.

The excitement about the various "wide film" processes seems to have died completely.

One movie company is so afraid that fans will discover it is offering a musical film that it not only is advertising it as purely a "great love story," but it omitting the names of the stars—probably because these names are associated only with the musical comedy stage.

Fifteen Years Of Constipation Are Finally Relieved

Fort Worth Matron Attributes Wonderful Health to Argotane

"I had suffered fifteen years from constipation before I found relief at last in Argotane," was the amazing statement made to the Argotane representative at Fort Worth by Mrs. Jennie F. Moore, of 3414 Fitzhugh avenue that city.

"My condition," continued Mrs. Moore "made me so nervous that I could not rest well at night. Then, too, I had lost my appetite I would feel hungry, but as soon as I sat down to the table my appetite left me and I would just have to force myself to eat. And sometimes sick headaches would come upon me and cause me much suffering. No doubt all this was caused by a sluggish liver.

"I heard so many people talking about Argotane that I decided to try this medicine myself. I am mighty glad now that I did.

"So far, I have taken four bottles and it surely has helped me wonderfully. I am no longer troubled with the sick headaches I used to have. My liver seems to be acting perfectly.

"Argotane certainly has given me wonderful relief. My son is taking it, too, now. I will always recommend this medicine to my friends and to anyone for that matter."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Big Spring at the Collins Bros. Drug Company.—(Adv.)

Letters to Santa

Big Spring, Texas, Dec. 21, 1930. My Dear Santa: I am a little boy and I have two little brothers and one sister. I want fruits, candy, soap, pistol, French harp, horn, fire crackers, checkered and paper. Don't forget little sister and little brother and Bony. Yours truly Berlin Holt.

Big Spring, Texas, Dec. 21, 1930. My Dear Santa Claus: Please bring me a Dolly Ann Kitchen set, a little electric cook stove, a cedar chest, and some doll clothes for my doll you gave me last year. I have tried to be a good girl and will appreciate very much the things you bring me. Remember the poor lit

Johnson, "A Story," "Three Little Bears," "First Christmas," Song Reading, by Clara Turner. The room was decorated and the candles on the Christmas tree lighted and Santa appeared to give the little folks their presents.

Mr. B. D. Smith, teacher of the seventh and eighth grades, had a short program. Some of the pupils gave readings, for which Mr. Smith gave them two points on their English grades. They then had a Christmas box. Several presents were present in all rooms. Professor Whittington's room only had a Christmas box. Their time was all taken up with their examinations. The older pupils are especially learning how hard it is to try to do nine months work in five and the Good Grocery store seven months. The pupils were turned out for a week's holiday.

supper at the school house Wednesday evening for the benefit of the church. The program was music by Tom Castle, D. G. Hart, W. E. Turner and two men from Big Spring. A quartet, W. B. Pusey and C. C. Vance of Big Spring and Tom Castle and Mrs. J. C. Spalding was heard. W. B. Pusey and Col. Smith of Big Spring, auctioned off the boxes. Miss Opal Cawley got the box of candy in the pretty girls' contest. W. H. Pursar gave especially learning how hard it is to try to do nine months work in five and the Good Grocery store seven months. firmation. The essence of the plan is that it makes the administrative officers directly accountable to the governor, and subject to replacement for inefficiency or other causes.

Probably the underlying importance of the whole plan is that it makes a single executive responsible for the success, efficiency and proper running of the state government, and gives him power to exercise the responsibility.

At present the governor is called the chief executive. He is surrounded by a group of officials, some of whom are elected, others appointed, and none removable except thru difficult court proceedings or legislative impeachment.

Gov. Moody said the governor of Maine recently has commended him about the plan, advising that Maine is trying to adopt it.

Many of the progressive, up-to-date states have the plan in one form or another, he commented.

"I told the Main governor," he added, "that I found in Texas many of the progressive officers opposed the plan, and with the help of their friends, to set up a serious road block to its adoption."

The short-term plan which he has advocated will be one of the most likely developments, that he will
