MAK ARTHUR TRUMAN

The people of Czechoslovakia have been stunned by the death of Jan Masaryk unlike they were stunned by Russian seizure of the government.

That there could be such a close attachment of this people to a man, who had been dealt with harshly by western friends and press and who had been accused of being a turncost, may seem odd. Yet, it should be understood that the name of Masaryk is one of the most honored in all Czechoslovakia. Thomas G. Masaryk it was who teamed with Edward Benes in fathering

The elder Masaryk was a highly intelligent man-a professor whose passion for knowledge was exceeded only by a burning purpose for freedom. More than anyone else, he shaped the nation of the Czechs and Slavs after World War I and nursed it through to the threshold of the Hitleran rape of his country.

Although he was not possessed of the aggressiveness and fiery spirit of his father, Jan Masaryk was nevertheless a brilliant man, for whom government came naturally. He carried on his duties in the cabinet when he and Benes were able to go back to the country after its liberation from the Nazis. With the Russian bear breathing down his back every moment, his was not an easy task. Perhaps it was an impossible one.

The fact he did not leave the cabinet when the communists moved in made him the target for reproach. Perhaps he may have thought he could somehow hold body and soul of the nation together until another day of liberation. But when the Soviet controlled press began to quote violently passionate Red messages which were attributed to him, perhaps Jan Masaryk concluded that a dead Masaryk at least could not be made to speak. Maybe this is too liberal a treatment of him, but it is difficult to believe that Jan Masaryk betrayed the cause of freedom.

Time For Repealing A Protective Tarriff

This week in Washington, committee hearings are underway on bills which propose to reduce or do away with taxes on maragrine.

If there was ever a tax in need of repeal, it is the federal margarine tax. Not only is the tax an out and out internal protective tariff, but it is the only one of its kind in the nation.

Whatever else may be said, the real reason that margarine has been burdened with taxes, both federal and state, is that the butter industry feared and still fears competition from it. This is why the uncolored margarine carries a 1/4-cent tax per pound and colored has a 10-cent per pound tax. Manufacturers of either have to pay $600 per year and if a hospital or hotel colors its own margarine, it is subject to the license and the per pound tax. Whole-salers of colored margarine must pay $480 per year, those of uncolored $200; retailers of colored maragrine $48 per year and uncolored $6 per year.

Butter bears none of these fees, which are even higher because the above figures are only federal requirements. Moreover, butter generally is artificially colored and no questions asked.

As for the nutritive value, there is little if anything to choose between the two. Butter is an animal fat product, margarine vegetable fat. Vitamin content is apt to favor margarine because it is constant.

There is hope a bill will get out of committee this time, so if you want to help reduce the tax on margarine-in case you use it-then write your congressman about

What Was Masaryk's Death Motive?

Jan Masaryk's death has thrown much light on a question which had been puzzling a lot of us, namely, just how he appraised the situation growing out of the communist seizure of power in Czechoslovakia.

Several days after the Red coup he gave a flat endorsement of close cooperation with Russia. However, he coupled this with the dramatic declaration to the army and his "Czech and Slovak brothers": "I am with you." It was an enigmatic statement. Some observers thought it indicated that Masaryk had embarked on a highly dangerous double game. Others felt he was trying to steer a middle course to bring Moscow and the western democracies together in peace. Well, it now seems probably that in the long and lonely hours of Tuesday night he came to the fateful decision that he was playing a futile role—that his usefulness was finished. What tipped the balance may have been his realization that his continued presence in the communist government as foreign minister was giving the Reds a chance to traffie on the public's worship of his father-founder of the republic. The magic name of Masaryk was an invaluable asset to the communists in their efforts to solidify the country behind the totalitarian government. Jan Masaryk may even have felt (to use the language of British Prime Minister Attlee) that "he could not endure to live in the suffocating atmosphere of totalitarianism." Indeed, it would be strange if the foreign minister weren't in a state of near despair.

Still, I'm inclined to believe that fought it out, if he hadn't felt that it was better for his country if he "withdrew."

I'm trying to look at the thing objectively, and perhaps it would be easier if I hadn't known Jan Masaryk and his father and other members of the family. I haven't yet met anybody who knew the Masaryk family who didn't have a high regard for it. No more doughty fighter ever came out of central Europe than Thomas Masaryk, the rebel who became father of his country. There is no reason to doubt that Jan was a chip off the old block.

so far as bravery is concerned. So it isn't unreasonable to conclude that Jan Masaryk figured it was for the good of Czechoslovakia if he disap-

Look At Bureau Of Standards

WASHINGTON UP - Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, will be in the news a while.

The bureau is an important government agency which doesn't get into the news much itself. This tells what the bureau does. But first here's a little on Condon's present problem.

Two weeks ago the House Un-American Activities committee accused him of associating, knowingly or unknowingly, with an alleged Russian spy. The bureau does a lot of secret work. Some of it deals with atomic energy. The committee said he is one of the "weakest links" in the nation's atomic safety. Condon replied that his is "absolutely reliable." His bureau is part of the commerce depart-

The loyalty board of that department said February 24 it has found no reasonable grounds to consider Condon disloyal.

So the Un-American Activities committee is now planning hearings on Condon's case. Now for the bureau itself.

It has about 2,500 employes, 1,000 of them scientists. The bureau covers 671/2 acres of ground here at Washington. It was created in 1901.

Besides its work on atomic energy and other secrets, the bureau sets up standards in weights, measurements, and other things, and does research work, too.

For example: the government buys light bulbs. The bureau tests them, say so many from each

If a manufacturer, say, wants to check the true length of some measuring device he makes to sell, he can get a test for it at the bureau.

For example: the U. S. standard of measurement is the meter. A meter is 39 4-10 inches long, or just a little more than a yard. The bureau has a standard meter against which any other measuring device can be checked for accuracy.

The bureau's meter is made of hard metal which, over a long period of time, won't change. Then there's the problem of weight. The U.S. standard of weight is the kilogram, which equals 2 2-10 pounds. The bureau's standard kilogram is also made of hard metal. If a manufacturer or research laboratory wants to test the true weight of something it has produced, it can get the test made against the bureau's standard kilogram nials of Sen. J. Howard McGrath that he has felt like resigning as chairman of the democratic national committee, McGrath several times has been near the boiling point. One occurred only last week and took the form of a hot feud with none other than Secretary tional Defense Forrestal. Just one week ago today-March 5-Forrestal phoned Mc-Grath that he was appointing Russell J. Hopley of Omaha, president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company, as director of civilian defense. Under direct orders from the White House, every cabinet member is required to clear all job appointments with the chairman of the national committee. This has been a rule of both democratic and republican administrations for years. It is supposed to prevent political enemies from being taken to the bosom of the fam-

Washington Merry-Go-Round—Drew Pearson

Checking on Hopley, McGrath informed Forrestal that he was flatly opposed to the appointment. Not only was Hopley a republican, but a big-business republican who had bitterly fought labor up and down the state of Nebraska.

In a war job, Hopley's appointment might be O. K., McGrath argued. But to put a labor-baiter in charge of civil defense, where labor is involved, was another matter. So he asked Forrestal to hold up the appointment until it could be taken up with President Truman, then still in Flor-

Forrestal agreed. Whereupon, with McGrath's back turned, the story of Hopley's appointment mysteriously leaked to the press-following which Forrestal brusquely informed McGrath he would have to make the appointment anyway since it had now been published. -That was one reason why the discouraged McGrath has felt like resigning. Here is another. BOILING POINT Just one week before, Forrestal had appointed as his deputy on atomic matters, Donald F. Carpenter, president of the Remington Arms company, a Du Pont subsidiary. Mr. Carpenter is a member of the same Du Pont-Carpenter family which poured money into republican campaigns against Truman and Roosevelt as if it were water. He is also a member of the Du Pont-Carpenter family which organized the Liberty league to defeat Roosevelt. Naturally McGrath received this news with no thrill

But even more significant is a tie-up McGrath may not have known about. Back in 1928. Secretary Forrestal's Wall Street arms for the purpose of waging war against Paraguay. This money was used, among other things, to hire Capt. Ernst Roehm as military adviser to the Bolivian government, and it was in Bolivia that Roehm first developed his idea of storm troopers. Later he organized the same thing for Immediately after Forrestal loaned this money to Bolivia, Remington Arms company, which Donald Carpenter heads, stepped in to profit by it. Remington got a juicy contract for 7.65-mm. and 9-mm. cartridges, and the files of the senate munitions investigation contain revealing testimony on this sale.

So Forrestal, the man who made the munitions loan which helped foment war in Latin America, now hires as his deputy the head of the company which profited from that loan by selling arms to Latin America. No wonder top democrats despair of re-electing Truman! Note-In the 1940 campaign the Du Pont-Carpenter family contributed a cool $186,780 to the republican campaign to defeat Roosevelt.

LAW CONNECTION When hard-hitting Senator Ferfuson of Michigan begins his probe of the Civil Aeronautics board he is expected, among other things, to take more than passing notice of a certain Washington law firm.

That firm is Gambrell and White, attorneys for Eastern airlines. A member of that firm from 1941 up until a few weeks ago was Josn E. Branch, son of charming Commissioner Harllee Branch of the Civil Aeronautics board.

Senator Ferguson's committee is also expected to delve into any interesting reasons which may lie behind the fact that the same Barllee Branch voted against giving Colonial airlines the right to fly between New York and Washington-which, of course, would be in direct competition with Eastern airlines, which his son represents.

Colonial has an air-safety record of no fatalities in 18 years, was recommended by the CAB examiner to operate the New York-Washington route. Harliee Branch's vote swung the decision against Colonial, to National Airlines - even though its pilots are out on strike.

Note-Young Branch was retained by Eastern Airlines' law firm in 1941 shortly after he graduated from law school. Then, as the fight between Eastern and Colonial reached a climax, he was made a partner in 1945. With his father's resignation from the CAB a few weeks ago, young

When 46-year-old John C. Stennis, successor to the late Senator Bilbo of Mississippi, delivered his maiden speech against the Truman civil-rights program, one of the first to congratulate him was New York's young republican, Irving Ives, who vigorously for civil rights.

"I like the way you handled that hot potato," said Ives. "you showed great restraint. I congratulate you, even though I thoroughly disagree with you." "I don't think I understand your position," responded Stennis, not quite sure how to take Ives' compliment. 'No. I don't guess you do, any more than I understand yours.' remarked the New Yorker, who is sponsoring the Fair Employment Practices bill. "But I'm sure we're both sincere in our convictions. I know I'm not grinding any political axes. I'm plugging for my Fair Employment bill even though I lost Harlem and every other Negro district

"There's not a vote in a carload in this for me," continued Ives, "I'm doing it because I think I'm right."

"No one can deny you that privilege, senator," grinned Stennis. "I guess we're both in the same boat, rowing in opposite directions.'

HOLLYWOOD (A-Having conquered almost every kind of acting role, Ingrid Bergmas is now eyeing comedy. She is letting it be known that after her film with Alfred Hitchcock in England, she wants a light role. Her only previous approach to comedy was her hilarious boxing scene in "The Bells of St. Mary's."

U. S. Going Back To Farm?

After pondering some facts of development and predictions of this is a ich were advanc. at a meeting in Stanton some 18 days ago, I'm beginning to suspect that a return-to-thefarm movement is just around the corner as far as America is concerned.

Wouldn't it be something to behold if people should start flocking to the farms at the rate they infiltrated the urban centers during the war ! ! In some part of the country where farms are confined to small land areas. it would be only a short time before the rural sections would be literally crowded.

However, it doesn't tax my imagination to foresee such a development after considering several factors in view of predictions made at the above-mentioned session in Stanton.

Aldie B. Cannon, home economist for the Cap Rock REA, presented the idea in a discussion of "The Farmstead of 1960." She described a farm home filled to the brim with gadgets and appliances, one of the more interesting of which was a "heating pump" designed to keep temperature at the same level the year round. This machine, she explained, would expel warm air when the temperature dropped below the desired level, but it would switch automatically to cold air any time the mercury moved too far up the scale But the gadgets and appliances alone will be no particular incentive to return to the farm. Many of them already are available, and as others reach the market urban dwellers may purchase them just as easily as persons on the farms. However, the changes in architecture which may arrive simultaneously with new appliances could do the The Cap Rock home enconomist said home builders of the future will not prepare plans and specifications for houses as those of today. They will have plans, of course, but they will be blue prints for location of appliances and gadgets instead of for walls, windows, doors, etc. Then, when all of the aids for better living have been placed, carpenters will be called in to construct walls around them.

Again the imagination doesn't have to work overtime to envision ultimate floor plans which might resemble Howard County commissioner precinct boundaries or the corporate limit boundaries of the City of Big Spring. And how, you aks, could this change in architecture lead to increased popularity of farm homes? Well, if the appliances and gadgets multiply as expected, it will be virtually impossible to arrange them on a city lot 50 feet or 60 feet wide.-WACIL McNAIR.

Broadway-Jack O'Brian in New York by two to one in the Plenty On The Platter

NEW YORK-I wondered why Duke Ellington had become a disc jockey. So I asked him.

Why, I asked the big fellow, did he bother to find the time for a disc proalready was up to his keyboard in such chores as leading his fine band, taking it on nation-wide tours, arranging, composing, running a music publishing firm? "The answer is simple," the Duke replied, sitting back and chatting for intervals of three and a half minutes each, which is about the time it takes for each recording.

"Music, in any form, spells enjoyment for me. With a disc program of my own I can play and hear any records that appeal to me. That means a chance to promote the careers of composers and performing musicians who might not ordinarly get a hearing. Not because they lack talent, but simply because they aren't considered sufficiently well known or perhaps are considered too difficult for the public to digest.

"I've tried a few innovations myself during the years, and I'm convinced the public generally can sift the good from the bad. Music, like anything else serving a useful function, must change and improve with the times. The way music was played 20-even 10-years ago, was wonderful for its time. But conditions and moods are different today and men with fresh ideas should be encouraged. And the listener soon decides which ideas have lasting merit."

The Duke put on a Benny Goodman recording and leaned back again. He said that, paradoxically, not enough OLD

So-called semiclassical or symphonic items, he suggested, are more stimulating and rewarding than many of the modern mishaps being

"ONE more thing," he said as I started putting on my coat. "I've always believed the enjoyment of the listener can be increased by a brief explanation of the 'whys' and 'hows' of what is being attempted by a recording artists or composer. Call it verbal program notes if you like. It's an accepted procedure in opera and symphony fields, and has helped popularize serious music. It's too seldom employed in platter playing. 'So these are just a few of the things I've tried to put over, They may not be sensational or revolutionary. Call them just educational, without academic irritation. And it's sure fun having the chance to try them
