R. E. Blackerby stopped for lunch in Wheeler, and became the town's first physician. Back in 1906 when Wheeler was about the smallest of small towns, a traveler stopped at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Morton, who lived where Mrs. Mattie Womac now lives. There was no cafe or hotel in town at that time so he remained at the Morton's for lunch.

The late T. P. Morton was his first patient. He was ill that day with the beginning of a severe case of typhoid. Previous to this time Dr.
Redding of Mobeetie had supplied medical aid to Wheeler and occasionally made a trip here. Dr.
Blackerby remained here from 1906 to 1917 when he moved to Colorado. Dr. William I. Joss was Wheeler's second doctor. He didn't come as a doctor, but to settle on his ranch east of Wheeler and regain his health. When his health was restored, he moved to town and engaged in a full time practice.

Wheeler County Soil Conservation District News

Results of flood damage studies made by the Soil Conservation Service of the recent disastrous Lampasas flood show that the approximate four million dollars damage would have been reduced to approximately seventy thousand dollars if the flood prevention plan on Sulphur Creek watershed recently completed had been installed. In addition to the loss of at least 5 lives, major damage was done to crops, pastures, fences, roads, railroads, bridges, homes & businesses.

Paul H. Walser, Acting State Conservationist for Texas reports that ten days prior to the Lampasas flood his office transmitted a flood prevention plan on this watershed to Washington for approval. The total estimated cost of installing the plan to the local people and the Federal Government is approximately 1 1/4 million dollars. This plan when installed will provide for land treatment and 5 floodwater retarding structures, all lying above the City of Lampasas. Approximately 63 percent of the drainage area above the City of Lampasas will have to pass through these structures. He further stated that even though farmers, ranchers, homeowners & businessmen of the watershed have suffered tremendous direct loss, the people had previously recognized their opportunity under the small watershed act passed by Congress in 1954 and amended in 1956 and when their plans are put into effect it will prevent the recurrence of such damages. The people of the Sulphur Creek Watershed made application for assistance through their Hill Country Soil Conservation District. Following approval of the application by the State Soil Conservation Board the people and the Soil Conservation Service have been working together in the development of their upstream plan for flood prevention.

Jiddah:

Port Of Mecca

On the west coast of Saudi Arabia, a short distance from the holy city of Mecca, lies Jiddah—a city with a long history and a prosperous future. Throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Jiddah had served as the port of entry for millions of Moslem pilgrims making the annual pilgrimage to Mecca, and as a transit point for Indian and African merchandise bound for Egypt and northern markets. But the harbor city never experienced "boom town" prosperity until the discovery of oil on the eastern coast of Saudi Arabia in the twentieth century.

The discovery of rich oil deposits in 1938 created a new demand for imports and banking facilities which brought overnight wealth to the port. Merchants and artisans from all over the Arab World flocked to the city and, with the exception of the war years, business flourished. In addition, a new wave of immigrants arrived in 1948 after Saudi Arabia opened its doors to the Palestine refugees.

The twentieth-century Jiddah is a far cry from the town described by a seventeenth-century traveler as a place "accursed by nature and debarred of heaven's blessing." The climate has not changed, but a new water system, electrical power and such conveniences as air conditioning and refrigeration made life in the city as pleasant as many other cities in the Middle East. Lush gardens now decorate modern sections of the city and new buildings are rising everywhere.

During the past six years the population of Jiddah has more than doubled and the historic Great Wall which once surrounded the ancient town has been torn down. This wall was built originally to protect the port from sea-launched invasions.

Today the old Jiddah is fast disappearing and a new city of modern outlook is rising in its place. Venerable high coral block structures with latticed balconies and delicately carved door doors are being abandoned in favor of modern stucco villas and streamlined office buildings, many of Egyptian design.

Recent population growth has put a strain on existing public utilities and buildings, but construction proceeds at a rapid pace. Jiddah now boasts a new port, complete with a two-berth steamer pier; a new airport with a modern terminal building and spacious hangars and adjoining the airport, the city's first completely air-conditioned hotel.

Miss Peggy Jo Weeks of Hereford and Sammie Joe Allen of Independence, Mo., were united in marriage Sunday, May 26, at 3 p.m., in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. L. K. Field. George Weems officiated in the double ring ceremony, before baskets of white daisies.

The bride is the daughter of Ernestine Guetersloegh of Hereford and Hosea Weeks, of Midland. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Allen, of Independence, Mo.

Mrs. Ida Mae Goad read "How Do I Love Thee" and sang "I Love You Truly."

Mrs. O. G. Johnson of Rayton, Mo., sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Shirley and Gwendolyn Newberry, of French Morocco, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Johnson wore a blue dress styled with a bouffant skirt, which was decorated with ile embroidery. They each wore a corsage of white carnations.

It was princess style with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Her elbowlength veil of French illusion fell from a halo decorated with white flowers. She carried a white Bible topped with red sweetheart roses. The bride carried out the tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue, with a penny in each shoe.

Following the ceremony, a reception honored the couple in the Field home. The table was covered with a crocheted cloth underlaid with red. Mrs. L. B. Hill, Higgins, aunt of the bride, served the cake, while Mrs. Jean McQuigg of Pampa, cousin of the bride, presided at the punch.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a red and white candy-striped princess style dress with white accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Allen graduated from Texaco High School, N. M., with the class of 1957. The bridegroom graduated from Branson High in Branson, Mo., in 1954 and has just completed three years in the U. S. Marine Corp.

BEETLE BAILEY

by MORT WALKER

CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS

The battle of the budget continues. Big guns were brought into play by the Administration to pressure Congress into restoring many of the cuts already made and to stop several cuts in appropriation bills not yet voted on. Cabinet officers have reversed their earlier positions that the record-high, peacetime budget could and should be measurably reduced. It now appears these cabinet officers were not clearly understood. What they meant to convey was that expenditures in all departments except their own should be cut. Hence, their advice is not of much value. To follow it would be to spare each division of the government separately from the economic paring knife with the result that there would be no reductions.

The No. 1 big gun has been fired twice in this battle by the President of the United States. His first appearance did not generate much feeling among the people to underwrite the expenditures of 72 billion dollars to run the country. (The lack of response to this first appeal no doubt prompted the powers that be to insist upon a repeat performance by the President.) His second try is producing much better results.

Mr. Eisenhower is in a rather unpleasant situation. He is thoroughly convinced that the expenditures listed in his budget request are absolutely essential for the preservation of this government. He is deeply and devotedly sincere in his appeals to the American people to support his expenditure program, especially foreign aid. However, there are many others in high government circles who are as sincere in their feeling that the foreign aid program has not been effective as it has been advertised. When one looks at the expenditures over the years in this particular program, many questions arise. For instance, the foreign aid records reflect that between July 1, 1940 and June 30, 1945, net grant foreign aid amounted to 40 billion 255 million 660 thousand dollars. In 1945 the population was 139 million 928 thousand. This meant that foreign aid amounted to $287.69 for each person in this country. From July 1, 1955 to June 30, 1956, net grant foreign aid amounted to 47 billion 448 million 997 thousand dollars. In 1956 the population had increased to 1468 million 174 thousand. This meant the net grant foreign aid on the 1956 population base amounted to $2382.14 for each person in this country.

In addition to this type of aid, there was the loan which amounted to a net figure of 12 billion 710 million 946 thousand dollars between July 1, 1940 and June 30, 1956, or a per capita figure of $75.58. For the fiscal year 1956, that is, from July 1, 1955 through June 30, 1956, net aid under the program amounted to 4 billion 648 million 358 thousand dollars. On July 1, 1956, authorized and appropriated aid available amounted to 13 billion 800 million dollars.

A recapitulation of all of these figures reflects that from 1940 through July 1, 1956, the foreign aid program, in expenditures and available funds, had cost this country 116 billion 485 million 564 thousand dollars or $692.65 per person on the basis of the 1956 population. I know that all of these figures are most confusing, so we will try to apply them to one or two of the countries in the 18th Congressional District and see what we come up with, using the 1950 population census and the pro rata share per citizen on a nation wide basis. The records reflect that my home county of Gray has spent 21 million 389 thousand 225 dollars in foreign aid between 1940 and 1957. The people in the City of Pampa, my home town, have spent 14 million 343 thousand dollars during that time. In 1956 foreign aid cost Gray County 859 thousand 51 dollars. The people of Pampa were charged with 576 thousand 93 dollars.

Applying these figures to Childress County we find the people of that county have spent 10 million 486 thousand 153 dollars between 1940 and 1957 on the foreign aid program. In 1956, 421 thousand 153 dollars was the pro rata share of the foreign aid program for Childress County. The part chargeable to the City of Childress would be 6 million 590 thousand 283 dollars for the entire foreign aid program, or 264 thousand 684 dollars for the year 1956. Potter County, on a population basis of 1950, shows to have contributed 63 million 460 thousand 123 dollars since 1940; the City of Amarillo proper, 58 million 624 thousand 19 dollars. The 1956 program reflects 2 million 548 thousand 735 dollars for Potter County and 2 million 354 thousand 504 dollars for the City of Amarillo. If any of you would like the figures for your own county, please write me and I will try to get them for you.

The stunch proponents of foreign aid argue that these expenditures have been necessary to hold the line against communism, and that without it, the entire continent of Europe would have passed out of the free world into the realm of communism. Opponents of the measure argue that these expenditures would be well spent if they provide an effective weapon against communism. But, they point out the many gains which have been made by the communist countries in many places around the world where much of our foreign aid has been spent; they point out the growing unrest in the Middle East as a result of foreign aid grants by this country to France and England; they point out the growing jealousies in countries not receiving these grants; and they point out the criticisms which are continually heard from many of the countries receiving the aid. Their argument is to the effect that the foreign aid program has not proven an effective weapon against the spread of communism and that these funds should be dedicated to a purpose that will have a telling effect on this growing menace.

"Here are 4 BIG REASONS I LIKE ELECTRIC COOKING!"
says, MRS. GEORGE C. KUHNER, of ROSWELL, NEW MEXICO.

"Christy likes the push buttons. I like them, too, because they are out of reach of the smaller children. Besides electric is the cleanest kind of cooking."

"Shelley likes the big oven and I agree. The automatic timer is very handy. Also it is nice to be gone for an afternoon and have your dinner all cooked and ready to serve when you get home."

"Kathy likes cooking with her fudge set and the fast surface units are certainly our answer when working on a tight schedule."

"Laurie likes it because it cooks good chicken and when we cook chicken, or anything else, it doesn't heat the kitchen — just the food."
