LINDA GLISAN AND WALTER CROW EXCHANGE WEDDING VOWS

Background decorations included an archway decorated with green foliage, trimmed with pink and silver bows. Pink tapers in candelabra and baskets of pink carnations, pink and silver bows marked the aisle.

Candles were lighted by Charles Crow of Paxton, Nebraska and Donald Jackson of Dalhart.

Miss Carolyn Uphaus, Kansas City was Maid of Honor and Mrs. G. W. Steen of Wichita Falls, Texas was Matron of Honor. Bride maids were Barbara Ferguson of Perryton and Mrs. W. E. Harrison of Canyon. The attendants wore identical dresses of pink crystalline styled on princess lines, with bolero jackets accented with a bow at the midriff. They wore white picture hats, trimmed in white satin and net and carried arm bouquets of long stemmed pink carnations, accented with net and silver bows.

Lace sleeves tapered to a point at the wrists. The bouffant skirt of tiers of crystal pleated tulle ruffles were high-lighted with a front and back panel of chantilly lace and a court train. The Mantilla type veil of French illusion cascaded from a tiara of seed pearl and rhinestones, and the bride carried a cascade of white carnations atop a white Bible.

A reception was given, following the ceremony, in Fellowship Hall, by the bride's parents. The serving table was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of pink and silver. The cloth was white net over pink; the net caught up in silver bows accented by pink rosebuds. Mrs. Lee Kiker, Mrs. Ray Brown and Mrs. David Kiker presided. Mrs. J. W. Laney furnished the music.

Blakley Story Is Typically Texan

The typical American story is of the poor boy who made good through his own efforts. This is the story of Bill Blakley, born in a covered wagon while his parents were on their way to homestead in Oklahoma territory. He has come a long way in 59 years. Said the Austin American-Statesman, when William A. Blakley announced for the Senate: "He was a top-hand cowboy; he was a crackerjack bank clerk; he was an exceptionally good accountant and lawyer. We have an idea that he is going to be a refreshing, able political candidate. He would make a great United States Senator."

A LETTER TO THE VOTERS

I would like to have visited every one of you in Wheeler County during my campaign for County Judge, but due to physical and financial difficulties I have been unable to do so. Please do not be offended if I have missed you in my rounds, for I have tried in several ways to reach every one.

I entered the campaign for several reasons.

1. I am in need of a job and I felt I was fully qualified to fill the office of County Judge. I am also prepared to devote my full time to this job, not having any other outside interests.
  2. I feel that my educational background can be of help in keeping our county in good financial condition.
  3. I am interested in the young people in our county, and will do all I can to help them in their problems.
  4. I am also interested in the "young people" 65 and over, and will do all I can to help them.
- I will appreciate your consideration.

New Senate Hand Aided Democrats

When William A. Blakley was appointed to the U. S. Senate in 1957, he was a political unknown in Texas. But Washington awaited his arrival with great interest. So close was the party balance in the Senate that Blakley's vote was the difference between Democratic and Republican control.

True to his Democratic tradition, Bill Blakley voted with his fellow Democrats. They have been in control ever since.

Now Bill Blakley seeks his first elective term in the U. S. Senate. A vote for Blakley is a vote for sound, Democratic government.

Monroe Page, ace moundsman for the league leading Marshalls, hurled a no-hitter at the weak hitting Texas Rangers and struck out Green with the bases loaded to end a slow 14-7 contest. Ranger hurriers, too were stingy with the hits as Jolly gave up a single to Gaines, double to Hefley, and triple to Page and Green, working in relief of Jolly, gave up singles to Callan and Hefley for a total of five hits for the winners. The win kept the Marshalls one game ahead of the Giants and mathematically eliminated the Rangers from winning the pennant themselves, however, they could cause trouble for the other two teams.

The hits were even at five each but the Marshalls put together seven runs against five for the Giants in taking an important game from the pennant contenders 7-5. Miller connected for three singles and Ruff had a single and double to account for five of the ten hits for the two teams. Levitt, making his first appearance for the Marshalls, hit a double his first time at bat and drove in two runs. John Haddox was also recently acquired by the Marshalls while the Giants now have Billy Overcast and David Hefley.

The Yankees, strengthened by Ruby Barton who accounted for four runs plus some fine defensive work at short, squeezed by the Cardinals 13-12 in the seventh game of their nine game series. The Yanks now lead 4-3 and need only one more win to be the new Champions. Douthit and Chamman worked the mound for the Yanks with Douthit being the winner. Bradshaw sustained the loss and was relieved by Pond. The girls will not play a game next week but will meet again Tuesday, July 29.

A 21-2 trampling of the Thunderbirds over the Sheriffs, moved the Birds back into first place and dropped the idle Sox into second. D. Hutchison and Vannool were the only Sheriffs allowed to cross the plate as the Thunderbirds ran wild with J. Hutchison and Goad making four runs each. The Sox and Birds meet Thursday night and will be battling for first place as only one half game separates them at present.

1st BASE
By *George Sisler***
From the book "How to Play"
published by The Sporting News

PLAYING THE BAG

Shifting from left to right, of course, means doing just the opposite.

Since shifting is extremely important, much practice is necessary in order to perfect the player in this maneuver. Get someone to throw balls to the right and left of the bag so that you can shift right or left, as the case may be, in order to catch them. In time, this will enable you to make these shifts in a natural and easy manner.

C—In taking up the next division, covering the bag, we come to another highly important phase of playing first base in a proper manner. The different positions a first baseman must take on particular plays may be described as follows:

1—Playing off the bag. A first baseman should take a position only far enough from the bag so that, taking his speed into consideration, he will be able to cover the bag correctly when a ball is hit. In a case of this kind, he must start as quickly as possible for the bag, place his left foot on it and then turn to watch the course of the ball and to make any shift that is necessary. If the first baseman plays his maximum distance from the bag, he has no time to straddle the bag in order to take throws from the infield. I have found this manner of covering the position to be the best on plays of this kind.

2—First baseman's position when holding a runner on first. When holding a runner on first, the first baseman's position must be directly facing the pitcher, with his right foot a little to the left of the inside corner of the bag. The left foot should be to the left of the inside corner of the bag. This position not only allows the first baseman to catch throws to his left or to his right, from the pitcher, but also enables him to touch the foot of the runner sliding back into the bag by quickly turning to the right and placing his glove in the proper position. This is the natural and proper position for the first baseman to take when holding runners on the bag.

3—The first baseman now takes his position off the bag that he normally assumes when there is no runner on first. He is supposed to receive a throw from the catcher in attempting to pick the runner off the bag. As the pitcher starts to deliver the ball on a possible pitchout play, the first baseman starts towards the bag and takes his position so he can easily turn to his right in order to tag the base runner after receiving the throw from the catcher. Note that I said turn to the right. This keeps the base runner, as well as the entire infield, under the vision of the first baseman. Should the first baseman turn to the left, he not only loses view of the other positions in the infield, but also of the base runner he is endeavoring to retire.

4—With runners on first and second and a sacrifice in order, the first baseman must take the position which is approximately ten feet to the right of the bag and two or three feet toward home plate. This is the correct position when such a play is in order. When the infield drawn in, and a possible play at the plate in order, the first baseman takes position of facing the pitcher with his right heel at the right corner of the base. This will enable him to field the ball, if within his reach, and throw to the plate ahead of the runner coming in from third. If there are runners on first and third, none or one out, and a sacrifice, or squeeze play, is due, the first baseman must take the position on the baseline to the right of the base, which will enable him to start quickly on a bunted ball.

D—Fielding bunts. Ability to field bunts will quickly reveal most of the time, whether a first baseman is playing his position correctly. In fielding a bunt, a left-handed first baseman naturally has a decided advantage. On plays where a sacrifice is in order, a first baseman must rush in fast in order to make a possible play at second or third.

LAUNCH INDUSTRIAL PROGRAM—Governor Price Daniel, left, and E. B. Germany, chairman of the Texas Industrial Commission, hold a copy of "A Plan of Action to Win New Industry for Your Community." This guide book to assist cities and communities of Texas in developing and presenting an industrial program has been mailed by the Commission to all chambers of commerce, mayors, county judges and newspapers of the state.

Cross Currents

By Mrs. Osie Wilson

THRILLS: THE SHAMROCK TEXAN picked up my story on Wheeler County's School Superintendent Jesse J. Dyer! A story has to be pretty good when a neighboring newspaper picks it up and runs it a second time. Of course, nobody can write a good story without a good subject! If you haven't read Mr. Dyer's story, look for your back copy of the WHEELER TIMES and read it! The other thrill comes from Berger Norman Coffee of that town sent me a check for a RAWHIDE TREE! We haven't sold any here during the summer months.

Don Earney and I have a little deal, whereby he sells RAWHIDE TREES, and I swap-out with him by writing for his paper. We think this was a good deal for both of us. As I told you before, our RAWHIDE TREE is a good book about Grandma Reynolds who learned to be a bronco-buster back on the 101 Ranch in the 1920's and she's still going strong! This book won a Texas Press Award and a Golden Scroll for me in April of this year. It ought to be in the Wheeler High School Library and in the Wheeler Public Library. Buy it from Don.

Parallel thought: I used to wonder why cooks bragged on their own cooking. During World War II, I stopped wondering about this. For I had to cook for farm-hands.

Some of you may remember how short we were on rations at that time. During one week twice a-day I served pinto beans and gumpkin, sugared to taste a little like sweet potatoes. Another time a hired hand's wife and I pressure-cooked some old roosters and hashed them into a bowl of jello with spices and other mis-leading flavors. Belle and I told the men that this concoction was called "Planked-filet-mignon!" The guys ate it good for two meals. And that made about twenty-four times we'd served them chicken! We'd put the food on the table and we ourselves would brag about how good it was! Truth, we did not have another thing to serve. Our boarders had loaned out their ration tickets to Grandma, Aunt Molly, or Mamma and the young-uns!

There's many-a-tale I could tell you about Ye Old Doc Wilson Ranch. Wallace Locke and Partners now run it. Wallace lives out there in summer in the little white house. He keeps his telephone equipped car parked by his window. A bunch of children are out there all the time riding horses, fishing, and going on picnics. There was in the old days too!

But to return to cookery, a Mr. Glen Shelton with the Wichita Falls Record News writes a column called THE HIRED HAND. In this he goes into great melancholia because the hausfrau no longer makes her own biscuits but gets them canned at the grocery store. The biscuits he used to eat at home were "super". Remember those old hard, baking powder biscuits we used to make when we ran out of milk? And before we'd learned to make soda biscuits, they were as yellow as gold and tasted like soda. My memory of home-made biscuits are not the same as Mr. Shelton's. In making for the farm hands, I finally decided that the quality of the milk (fresh clabber is best) had a good deal to do with the kind of biscuits that I turned out. This factor, and all the others, can be controlled by the commercial biscuit makers; and so the poor biscuit-maker can buy them ready-made and can count on an acceptable product.

This reminds me of what an Amarillo account executive once said to me when I asked him if he was going to a picnic dinner in an Amarillo park. "No," he said. "What wants to eat old store bought cakes? Now, if you were inviting me to a church dinner in Miami, I'd go!" George was roly-poly, and I had to admit that he had something there! Miami cooks are wonderful!

Editorial for the Day: In a column for THE WEATHERFOLD NEWS retiring Governor of Oklahoma Raymond Gary says: "Most people who enter the political arena are idealists. Those who remain temper their idealism by seeking practical solutions to daily problems. Progress comes a step at a time. Radical change and cure-alls are for theorists who don't have to face the public each day. People are suspicious of change. They must be led gradually to new ideas. The official who tries to put the (sweeping change) theory into practice will meet with howls of protest."

"Most people are agreed that the federal government is getting too big and unwieldy. Yet every effort made in recent years to reduce or eliminate federal programs has met with violent protest."

"The people also favor lower taxes. Seekers after public office constantly talk about lower taxes. When elected, they discover the reductions they talked and dreamed about usually can't be made. The public wants more government services, not less, so tax cuts just don't materialize."

A. J. Bradshaw of Weatherford, Oklahoma is an honest and observing man. He says there are three baby kittens at his house, fathered by a bob-tailed tom cat that lives up the street. . . . and two of the three kittens have bob-tails.

According to The Vegetable Growers Assn. watermelons date back as far as the Egyptians of biblical times. In their native Africa, they're one of the most important crops grown. They are used as a source of water, as feed for animals and as a staple food. The seeds are roasted and salted and served as a delicacy. In Southern Russia, watermelon juice is brewed into a beer. American have been eating watermelons since 1629. Today watermelons are a 50 million dollar crop in our country.

In Wellington a porcupine strayed into town and found a comfortable spot in a flower bed at the I. G. Vaden home on Park Street. Mr. Vaden kept the animal around but it got out. It is still in town though, for the Vaden dog came home Tuesday with porcupine quills sticking in his face. Now Mr. Vaden is looking for his lost porcupine. It is of Mexican variety, the only kind seen in this part of the country except in zoos.

'KELLY' TO APPEAR AT PAMFA RODEO

Top of Texas Rodeo officials announced this week that contracts have signed for the appearance of KELLY, Hollywood's Wonder Dog who will be featured nightly at this year's show. Kelly made himself famous by starring in the motion picture, "Kelly and Me", a recent Cinemascope, Technicolor, production by Universal-International Studios. Kelly's trainer, Ernie Smith will appear with him in his routine of canine, almost human tricks.

Something new has been added at the Top of Texas Rodeo in that the calf roping and bull dogging events will originate from the north end of the arena, thus giving spectators in the grand stand a better view of the action in these events.

At a meeting of all committee chairmen this week, the various divisions of the show were pronounced ready for action. The all new lighting system, which will increase the light in the arena by some five times, has been completed.

Five car loads of gaily bedecked cowgirls distributed one thousand window placards in the Top of Texas area Thursday of this week.

On July 28th Rodeo Headquarters will open in the lobby of the Pampa Hotel, at which time advance sale of reserve seats will begin and all entries will be taken.

The Ruby Name Band of Oklahoma City will be on hand to cue the show each night and Leon McAuliffe and his Cameron Boys of Tulsa, Oklahoma will be playing for dancing nightly.

FAREWELL PARTY

A farewell party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thomas, was held Monday night July 7 at the Methodist Church. The party was given by the Young Adult Class of the Methodist Church. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are moving to Jayton.

Home-made ice cream and cake was served and table games were enjoyed by all.

Number Three

Moscow, Russia . . . James Verden has become a well-known berry-picker . . . Harold Kenady sure is a friendly cuss . . . Helen Franklin has been doing a top-notch job as secretary-treasurer of the swimming pool fund . . . Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Nicholson and Nicky will return from their vacation today . . . Robert Denson has been making a top hand at the Clay Food Store this summer . . .

We all make footprints in the sands of time; some leave the imprint of a great soul others, just the mark of a heel.

This is C. L. Parsley's philosophy on life: "Since there is six times as much water as dry land on earth, any fool can plainly see the good Lord meant for men to fish six times as much as he works."

The reasons why some people get lost in thought is because it is unfamiliar territory to them.

Ray Johnson tells of a friend of his over in Gray County who was married to a terribly jealous woman who would subject her poor husband to a regular inspection every evening. The slightest hair on his coat would lead to a frightful scene.

One night, finding nothing at all, she burst into tears and wept: "Even bald women, now!"

The bride wore a white linen street-length sheath dress designed with a low scooped neckline and feathered vertical rows of embroidered daisies alternating with small tucks. Her half-hat was fashioned of a double row of daisies, with a veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of white carnations in a nest of maline and love-knotted streamers atop a Bible, a gift of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue linen dress accented with a band of white. The mother of the bridegroom chose a dress of black and white checks with white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

The wedding was attended by members of the immediate families of the bride and bride groom.

Those present were the parents of the couple; Mrs. S. Gaines, Mrs. Ted Crowder, and Connie Richardson, sisters of the groom; Jim Tom Neely, brother of the bride; and Mrs. Anna Neely, aunt of the bride.
