Rev. Carlton Thomson, paster of the Wheeler Methodist Church, brings the message of the week in the sixth of a series of commentaries by ministers of the area, and presented on this page through the cooperation of the firms and individuals listed below.

MORE BLESSED TO GIVE

"It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts 20:35.

I have heard it said that the only thing that is more blessed to give than receive is a punch in the nose. The world operates on this theory in most cases today. Most of us operate on that theory more than we would care to admit. We say, "Yes, it is more blessed to give than to receive - - the Bible says so doesn't it?" But then we turn from that and live as if the opposite were true. So we say deep within our hearts that it is more blessed to receive than to give. But Jesus said, "No." He is the Master of life and we must reckon with what He has said.

There is in Palestine a natural example of the truth of this statement. The Sea of Galilee empties its waters into the Jordan River and by this means they find their way to the Dead Sea. The Sea of Galilee is filled with fresh water in which life abounds. Around its shores plant life grows in profusion. The water comes from the mountain snow, and as it melts in the spring time the lake gives up its waters to the Jordan. The Sea of Galilee gives as it has received and its waters are fresh and alive. At the other end of the Jordan the scene changes. The Dead Sea is aptly named. There is no life in it or around its shores. The water it receives; it keeps. So through the centuries it has received but never given and all things in it and around it have died.

This is true of the human s ul. It cannot only receive and live. If you would have life abundant within you and around you, there must be an open channel through which the blessings of God can

The gestion then arises - - what can I give? You can, of course, give only that which you receive. What then does God give to all that in order to receive it must be given to others

1. A sense of worth.

God gives this sense of worth to us in that we are called His children. But this cannot be received unless it is given to others. Tolstoy was once asked by a beggar for a coin. "I have no money, brother," he replied. "That's all right," said the beggar. "You have given me more than money, you called me brother." If we refuse to call men brother, we cannot call God, Father. We are of value in God's sight only if all men are of value in God's sight. A very good question for us is found in I John 4:20; "He that loveth not his brother whom he has seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen?" A sense of worth is something which cannot be received unless it is also given.

II. We can give love.

Someone has observed that "the whole world is dying for a little bit of love." What a difference it makes in the lives of men when they know that God loves them. The only way most people will ever learn of this love is as those who have received it, give it away. Love never grows smaller by the giving. The capacity to love and be loving is increased only as love is given to others.

It is truly more blessed to give than to receive when we give to others those things which we need for ourselves. For it is in giving to others that the things of greatest value become our own.
