Freedom of People is at Stake
 Albert Einstein's statement in London that modern life will not be worth living unless the liberty of the individual is preserved comes to us with special force just at this time.

Prof. Einstein points out that the powers which seek to suppress intellectual and personal freedom are stronger now than they have been in years.

Without such freedom, he reminds us, there would have been no Shakespeare, no Goethe, no Faraday, no Pasteur, no Lister; we would not have comfortable houses, or railway trains, or protection against disease, or books; most of us would live a dull life of slavery, just as under the ancient despots of Asia.

Now this assault against freedom is succeeding, not because the mass of mankind suddenly has become convinced that freedom is worthless, but because the terrific pressure of economic calamity has forced people out of the old groove.

In Russia, in Italy, and in Germany freedom has been discarded because it has seemed that only a ruthless despotism could straighten out the tangle of modern life and keep people from starving amidst plenty.

Fascist and Communist alike share that belief. They differ only in their ideas about who should be the despots.

And all of this becomes especially significant when viewed against the background of our present recovery program in the United States.

 By WALTER LIPPMANN
 THE PRESIDENT'S TASK
 III. Enterprise and the New Deal

At the point which the Administration has now reached, the difficulties of combining a quick Recovery with far-reaching Reconstruction are particularly acute and complex. This is in the effort to revive the capital expenditure, which alone can revive the heavy industries that account for perhaps three quarters of these now unemployed.

That the Administration ardently desires a revival of capital expenditure is known not only from the news reports of its intentions. It is evident from its actions. The Federal Reserve System, which is now under Administration control, has been steadily enlarging the basis of credit. Through its purchases of securities in the open market, supplying nothing less than that which is at stake today in our vast recovery program.

duce something at a profit. When they have this confidence they are eager to borrow capital to produce that something. Those who have capital are willing to lend it to them. But without the confidence that he can make a profit over and above what he needs to repay his debt, a sensible business man will not borrow and a prudent investor will not lend.

Thus far the Administration has gone to great lengths to make it possible to feed enterprise with capital funds. But as to enterprise itself, which is the active ingredient in the mixture, the Administration is clearly under the influence of divided and conflicting sentiments. It would like to see business as enterprising as it was about 1926, a time when business was good but the excesses of the boom had not yet developed. On the other hand, it is afraid of the evils of lively enterprise. It is committed to finding remedies for the social injustices of capitalist prosperity. It would like to produce the pleasant aspects of the Coolidge era without the sinister consequences. It is confronted with the fundamental problem of combining Recovery with Reconstruction.

Thus the Administration finds itself, on the one hand, making it technically possible to create a credit inflation surpassing anything known in the Coolidge era and, on the other hand, threatening those who use credit and direct its flow with dire penalties not only for misbehavior but for negligence, with drastic taxation of potential profits, with severe regulation of all kinds of corporate enterprise.

It has been encouraging the expansion of capital and discouraging the enterprise which would use that capital.

Now, it is easy enough to say that the Administration is on the horns of a dilemma and that it must make a decisive choice. There are those who would say that the obvious choice is to postpone, preferably to scrap, the ideal of Reconstruction, adopt the orthodox measures for restoring confidence among business men and investors, and let enterprise have its head. My own conviction is that those who take this view misjudge the temper of the people. It is true that the confidence of business men needs to be restored. But it is also true that another kind of confidence needs to be restored—the confidence of the mass of people in the justice, the efficiency, and the social responsibility of democratic institutions.

Mr. Roosevelt can not betray the hopes symbolized by the New Deal. To do that would be to sow dragon's teeth of disillusionment and cynicism for the future, once the business cycle had turned down again after a period of revival. For the power of men to control competitive acquisitiveness under a system of ordered liberty. Whatever the momentary temptation to abandon it, we must not.

Yet the opposite course which is to install the New Deal and let Recovery wait, is equally to be rejected. Those who in the back of their heads would like to do this also misjudge the temper of the people. They fail to see that inability to produce substantial evidences of Recovery will produce a reaction, not in favor of, but against the principles of the New Deal.

"This is GAS AND OIL MONEY — BELIEVE IT OR NOT!"

Sally: "Really? Tell me about it, Helen." Helen: "Well, as I use the car most of the time these days and actually buy the oil and gas, Dick thought it a good plan to turn the car budget over to me entirely." Sally: "How does that give you extra money?" Helen: "I have more time than Dick and have learned some surprising things about the cost of car operation. Dick thought all gas and oil sold at approximately the same price were of equal value. When the motor broke down, he considered it just hard luck and paid the repair bill." Sally: "Isn't it?" Helen: "No! It is poor motor protection. More than half the entire motor wear occurs during the few minutes of starting when the motor is cold. Only one brand of oil—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—penetrates the metal so that a portion of it, nearly a quart, stays up in your motor, greatly reducing the wear. So checking back on

22 Years Ago in Brown Bottles Now... in Enzyme Control

SCHLITZ introduced the famous Brown Bottle 22 years ago—and told the world that beer in white bottles exposed to sunlight for three minutes took on a skunky taste and became undrinkable.

Other brewers hooted and stormed but continued with their white bottles and—continued to lose sales to SCHLITZ.

Now, many prominent brewers have adopted the Brown Bottle—thus admitting the scientific truth and compelling force of SCHLITZ statements—which had made such an indelible impression on the public.

BUT—as sensational as the Brown Bottle advertisements were, they are dwarfed by the latest announcement of SCHLITZ that they have solved a problem which has puzzled the industry for years—and that is Enzyme Control in the brewing processes.

Enzymes digest malt, hops and yeast into solution. Unless the enzymatic activities are controlled skillfully—the result is a rank, indigestible beer.

SCHLITZ is brewed to a split second under a secret enzyme control—it is fully fermented at the brewery. It cannot ferment in your stomach to cause indigestion, flatulency, or discomfort otherwise. Try it today!

DICK TURNED OVER THE CAR BUDGET TO ME — THEN I GOT GAS THAT GAVE ME MOST MILES AND STARTED QUICKEST

AND FOUND THAT HIDDEN QUART OIL SAVED ON REPAIR BILLS

THE SAVINGS AND BETTER OPERATION OPENED UP BUCKS EYES—AND GAVE ME MORE TO SPEND ON OTHER THINGS

repair bills that were paid before I changed to Conoco, we've saved a lot of money this last year." Sally: "What about gasoline?" Helen: "To me that choice depended on a quick starting—Dick used to choke the car until he was wild. It wasted so much gasoline in cold weather—ran the battery down and the nerves, too. With Conoco Bronze, the motor starts at the first turn and has power galore—goes further on each gallon and is anti-knock also. So you see how I did it?" Sally: "I certainly do, Helen—and I think you're a very clever girl!"

Full motor protection, especially in cold motor starting, can be found only in Conoco Germ Processed (Paraffin Base) Motor Oil because the penetrative oiliness, called "The Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away.

Instant Starting and Lightening Pick-up can best be obtained with Conoco Bronze Gasoline, and without sacrifice of Long Mileage, Greater Power and Anti-Knock advantages. For cold weather starting it cannot be equalled.

For The Love of Eve

by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXXVII

Dick wrote glowingly of his new work and life in the mountain camp. Fall had definitely arrived now. Eve could picture the brilliant crimson, golds and russets of the mountain sides. She could almost hear the rustle of the fallen leaves as the men tramped through the woods and smell the invigorating fragrance of the evergreens.

Dick was no poet but each letter was a spell over Eve. He was a man of the outdoors and delighted in his new surroundings. Eve could picture him, throwing back his shoulders and scanning the blue September sky through the tree tops. Oh, yes, she knew he was enjoying the new job!

He had laid out the work soon after his arrival. Foundations of the buildings were already being built on both sides. Dick's office was a crude shack, hastily put together. Later it would be weather stripped and equipped with a big coal burning stove as protection against the severe winter to come. Already the nights were cold.

With three or four of the others working on the job—the timekeeper, carpenter foreman and another engineer—Dick boarded at the home of a Mrs. Williams who lived in Pine Forest, a village four miles from their work. They drove back and forth from the village on a main highway that was excellently paved, though hilly.

Once Dick asked Eve to send him a red sweater to wear in the woods when he went hunting. The game season would soon be open and there was a lodge available for week-ends.

If Dick missed Eve he did not say so in his letters. He sent her his love always and assurance that she was the dearest wife in the world.

There were times when Eve felt that she had everything in the world a girl could want. She had an excellent job and seemed on the road to professional success. She had a fine husband and she was sure that through her stock market ventures she would soon achieve wealth. What more was to be desired?

Thus she summarized her assets and gave herself a mental pat on the back on the morning she received Dick's letter asking her to send the sweater.

Eve dropped the letter into her purse and a little later went to the men's sportswear department to buy the sweater. While she was completing the purchase a telephone call came for her. Miss Gilday, the switchboard operator, told her in a swift, low voice that the Sloan and Stanford Company had been trying to locate her.

Eve felt a premonition of disaster. Her mouth went dry and she looked about quickly. There were clerks and customers near, so she told Miss Gilday she would call from another telephone. Upstairs in the ladies' lounge there were booths and direct line telephones. Eve went into one of these booths and put through the call.

"Atlas Coupler has been receding rapidly, Mrs. Rader," said the young man in the brokerage office. "I'm sorry but if you wish to protect your interests it will be necessary for you to deposit a substantial sum at once."

"I see," gulped Eve. "How much will I need?"

"Why, I'd say about $400 or $500," the young man told her crisply. "It's likely that will be an adequate safeguard."

"The market never goes down more than 25 points before advancing, does it?" she asked naively.

"It doesn't usually, but of course we can't tell for certain what will happen," he answered.

"I see. I'll bring you a check, Eve promised.

She felt she had no alternative, even though she might be violating a trust. Dick had deposited $500 in a joint account before leaving Lake City. He had impressed upon her the importance of having such an emergency fund.

"If anything should happen you could draw on it, Eve," he had said. "You might be taken sick and there would be no one to take care of you. I'd want you to go to a hospital and have the best of care instead of lying here alone. And hospitals cost money!"

Now Eve drew $400 from that fund. The balance she left in the bank to ease her conscience.

If she had been disappointed by the calm appearance of the brokerage office in normal times the impression was forever erased from her mind by the picture which greeted her that autumn day in 1928. Pandemonium reigned. The Sloan and Stanford clientele had lost its air of reserve. Excitement increased as dozens showed each other to watch the ticker returns being chalked on the board. Telephone bells rang constantly and uniformed messenger boys dashed in and out of the office.

Eve was not the only one who had been margining; she could see plainly. In the confused frenzy of that noon hour many persons were making out checks to prevent their holdings from being swept away.

Prisoner Freed

Sentenced To Life

Kathryn Kelly, wife of George Machine Gun Kelly, with her husband was sentenced to life imprisonment following her conviction in Oklahoma City for participation in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping. (Associated Press Photo)

The customary privacy granted a client was absent and no one seemed to mind. Eve parted with her $400 without ceremony. So hastily was it swept from her that she felt a physical sense of shock.

She returned to the office, utterly unable to concentrate on her work. Fortunately Barnes was away most of the afternoon and the newspaper had been supplied with corrected copy for the next day.

The stock edition showed that Atlas Coupler had closed 15 points below yesterday's final. Eve was agitated and slept very little that night.

The morning newspaper featured the activities of the stock market and Eve digested every word. She felt at a loss to know what to do—had no idea where to seek advice.

Barnes was extremely irritable that morning. Ariens, with notebook and pencil, came from his office, scowling fiercely. "The old grouch!" she said. "You'd think he'd lost a million and a quarter on the stock exchange yesterday."

"Maybe he did lose," nodded Eve. "I feel panicky myself. Not only Atlas Coupler but everything else has taken such a toboggan slide I don't know what to make of it! I couldn't stand it to lose all the money I've invested. Why—I won't know what I'd do!"

But Eve had to stand it. Later in the day she received another telephone call from Sloan and Stanford for more money to cover her holdings. She told them it was impossible for her to raise more, then she went limp.

"Ariens," she gasped, "I'm wiped out! Completely. All my money and all I borrowed from my mother and Esther and nearly all that Dick left in our emergency fund!"

"Don't take it so hard," comforted Ariens. "I know how you feel. She was thinking of the little flyer she had taken into the financial world some months before. There was, of course, no upward reaction at all. Eve was to come out of the stock crash of 1929 dry-eyed and white-lipped but much wiser than she had been before.

There were others, she knew, whose losses were far more serious than her own. Eve felt a great compassion for her fellow sufferers as she puzzled over the frailty of the investor's position in the nation's financial structure.

She resolved to begin repaying her mother and Esther for their loans. She could send a little money each pay day. And somehow she would have to save $400 to return to Dick's emergency fund.

For weeks she was nervous after the market crash.

On the following Saturday Mona Allen asked Eve to take dinner with her. "Mrs. Hall is an excellent cook," she said, "and there is an interesting group of people at the boarding house."

Eve thought rapidly. Mona would be likely to take a refusal as an affront. And Mona, offended, was altogether too skillful at finding means of retaliation. There were many opportunities for the younger girl to cause unpleasantness if not actual harm to Eve, working together as they did.

So Eve accepted the invitation

Sheriff's Fees Properly Reported, Says Auditor In Filing Report Here

Announcements

The Ski Hi Night Club will meet this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lee, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The Council of the First Christian Church will meet Thursday of this week instead of Monday. Mrs. E. W. Potter will be the hostess. The business will be the election of officers for the year.

The Big Spring W.C.T.U. will meet at the First Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Members and friends are cordially invited.

Pythians To Meet Tuesday Evening

All Pythians are reminded that important meeting is scheduled for Tuesday evening at W. O. W. Hall. There will be rank work in Esquire on several pages. Some important business end announcement regarding the joint meeting with Abilene in near future will be made. Lodge will convene at 7:30 instead of 8 as heretofore.

she actually looked forward to the approaching Saturday evening. She missed Dick more than she cared to admit to herself. Sometimes she thought she had made a mistake in keeping the apartment after he left and wondered if it would not be preferable to live in a boarding house. But the familiar rooms seemed to bring Dick nearer and so Eve stayed on. Often she sat in the big chair that was his favorite and sobbed herself to sleep.

Since her loss on the market Eve had been overwhelmed by a sense of failure. "There's just one thing my remaining pride hangs on," she told herself. "That's my job! I must make good at Bixby's. And making good means only one thing to me—getting the managanship when Barnes leaves!"

Thus it seemed imperative to keep the good will of Mona Allen. (To Be Continued)

Comparison of the annual fee report filed by the sheriff of Howard county for 1932 with his fee book indicated that all recorded fees had been properly reported, said the review of the examination of the office by F. G. Rodgers and Company, certified public accountants, who recently finished an audit and filed their report with the Commissioners Court. Jess Slaughter is sheriff of the county.

The review said: "An analysis of the records indicated that during the period under review the sheriff made collections of money belonging to the county and disposed of same as follows (period of review was July 1, 1932 to August 31, 1933):

Fines	$761.00
Trial fees	235.00
Jury fees	5.00
Total	$991.00
Disposition:
Commissioners
County clerk	$37.95
Sheriff	37.95
County Attorney	75.90
Remitted to county treasurer	830.20
Total	$982.00
Balance due county August 31, 1933	$ 9.00

"The balance of $9.00 being due the county at August 31, 1933 was paid over to the county treasurer during September.

"The sheriff's 1932 annual fee report revealed excess fees of office due the county in the amount of $189.15, which amount we find to have been properly remitted. The items comprising this amount represented fees earned but uncollected during the year of 1931 which were collected in 1932.

"A comparison of the annual fee report filed by the Sheriff for 1932 with fee book indicated that all recorded fees had been properly reported. The fees earned and collected in 1932 were not sufficiently large in amount to result in any excess fees of office."

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Bedichek are spending several days in Austin, the guests of Mrs. Bedichek's relatives.

habit that they all tend to produce. Any teaching of temperance to the school that falls short of total abstinence is worse than no teaching at all. If the impression is to be made upon the young that they may indulge in intoxicating liquors but that it must be done "temperately" the brewers, distillers, "crusaders" and "the other defenders of the liquor traffic will join in a loud chorus of approval. They know that moderate drinking is the inevitable road to habit and appetite, and they are already advocating "the education of the young" in the matter of forming an appetite and taste for alcoholic liquors. If the subject of alcohol as a beverage is to be taught in our schools, let it be done by teachers who can intelligently show the poisonous effect of all intoxicating liquors and who teach the pupils that total abstinence is the only safe course and who as teachers themselves practice it.

Mrs. W. H. Remele Teaches Lesson At Birdie Bailey M. S.

The members of the Birdie Bailey Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at the church to study "The Never Failing Life," with Mrs. W. H. Remele as teacher. Mrs. Talley gave the opening devotional. Mrs. Remele first reviewed the book and life of the author, James H. Franklin, summarized the chapters and told why Christians should reflect Christ. Her main theme was that the light is still shining even through all the darkness and has never been put out. This was illustrated by the different talks made by Mrs. Hugh Duncan, Mrs. C. C. Carter, Mrs. C. T. Watson, and Mrs. M. Wentz. The outstanding features of these talks was that in China, Africa, or any foreign field Christianity is still active, even though at times it may seem doomed in estimation of the outside world. Each woman illustrated her talk with lives of such people as the Livingstones, Stanleys, Dr. Jones and other prominent missionaries.

Advance! Not Retreat!

NO DRINKING TEMPERANCE

To The Dallas News: There is springing up from various quarters a suggestion of "teaching temperance" to the youth of the land. This "temperance instruction" is alike agitated by brewers, "crusaders," teachers, politicians and especially by all who are antiprohibitionists. There is no such thing as temperance in the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage any more than there is "temperance" in the use of morphine, cocaine or any other narcotic drug. Total abstinence is the only safe course. "Drink temperately" has made more drunkards than any other false notion put into the minds of the young. "Take a drink and be man enough not to take too much" is the advice to the young man given by the advocates of liquor. Down that road ninety-nine out of every 100 men started who have landed in delirium tremens and the drunkard's grave.

The only safe and sane teaching in our schools, in Sunday schools, churches, our homes, Y.M.C.A.s, Y.W.C.A.s and all other young people's groups is that all intoxicating liquors as a beverage are injurious to the body, mind and morals of the individual, as they are narcotic poisons and are to be absolutely avoided because of the dangerous

"When Strangers Marry" The Strangest Of Film Romances At Queen Wednesday, Thursday

Manager J. Y. Robb announces that new sound equipment, which workmen have been busily engaged in installing at the Queen theater here, will be in readiness for the play "When Strangers Marry," Wednesday evening beginning promptly at 7 o'clock. The picture is scheduled for two days' showing at the Queen.

When Rand returns to the wilderness, alone, Marian turns to Hinkle to discover that he has plotted the death of her husband. Realizing her mistake, she put all her energy into frustrating Hinkle's well laid plans. Just how successful she is, she furnishes "When Strangers Marry" with a surprise climax that is a real screen treat.

Why Uncle George needs MORE LIGHT than Billy...

Notice how much smaller the pupil of Uncle George's eye is than Billy's. But then, Uncle is sixty-two years old, while Billy just turned twelve. It only goes to prove that as people get older the pupils of their eyes shrink in size... and so they need better light than they did before. But Billy's eyes shouldn't be neglected either, because he's in the growing stage and studying and playing in poor light now may mean poor sight later.
