TALL BUT SHAKY - H. C. Johnson looks over the damaged remains of his Geronimo Elevator Co., elevator in Eads. The structure, located a block east of Main adjacent to the Missouri-Pacific tracks, was rocked by an explosion at 9 p.m., Thursday. Johnson's son, Steve, was severely burned in the mishap.

Elevator Explosion Injures Former Wheeler Resident

undergoing treatment for second and third-degree burns about his face and head, and isolated first and second-degree burns on both legs in the Wichita Falls hospital after having miraculously survived an explosion of an elevator in Eads, Colo.

The explosion occured Nov. 11 when the Geronimo Elevator exploded while Johnson was elevating a load of milo onto a truck for delivery to Amarillo. Exactly what detonated the dust explosion and blaze had not been determined. The mishap occurred at approximately 9 p.m.

Damage to the 50,000bushel, 75-foot-high trilevel structure was estimated at between $20,000 and $25,000. The structure, according to H.C. Johnson, owner, and his brother, Robert, manager, was totalled.

Both the senior Johnsons agree that Steve's escape was nothing short of miraculous and both his father and mother attribute his survival to his athletic

A skilled acrobatic diver, both his parents said Steve's immediate reaction undoubtedly saved his life. They said that Steve sommersaulted through the gaping hole made in the south side of the loading runway by the blast. This automatic reaction, they feel, extinguished the flames which enveloped Steve at the Force of the blast was terrific as evidenced by the gaping hole blown through the north side of the woodframed metal-covered structure. Milo was piled some 10 feet high over the Missouri-Pacific spur adjoining the elevator

Additional evidence of the explosion's violence was to be seen to the south of the old building where the east-west south wall of the loading runway was utterly demolished.

Johnson purchased the elevator, believed to have been built in the late 1920's or early 1030's from the McNell Grain Co., of Thomas Okla., just prior to the 1970 wheat harvest.

It is one of four elevators in the Geronimo Elevator Co., chain owned by Johnson. Others are located at Galatea, Colo., Wichita Falls, Tex., and Geronimo, Okla. The Wichita Falls facility is a huge, concrete, many-tubed grain-handling operation.

The entire frame work of the Eads structure was sprung and the roof at the 75-foot level was blown loose from its anchor. Both H.C. and Robert Johnson said restoration was not feasible.

Steve was first admitted to the Eads hospital and then transferred on Nov. 17 to the Wichita Falls hosat sundown these November days the scouts took part in the final campfire of the Comanche District which was put on by the Order of the Arrow, the Brotherhood of Honor Campers under the direction of Dan Tom Range of Shamrock, Chapter Chief of the Comanche

Dr. E. Byron Range of Shamrock welcomed the 90 scouts, and scouters and urged that scouts and leaders alike demonstrate their loyalty and enthusiasm to the end that Scouting can continue to carry out it's goal of making this largest boys program available to all boys who want to become members

Dave Agnew of Shamrock, District Scout Executive announced that effective Jan. 1, 1972, Memphis, Hedley and Clarendon would become a part of the Santa Fe District served out of the Pampa office. Wheeler and all communities in Wheeler county as well as all in Collingsworth county will play an important part in the formation of a new district which will also include, Hemphill, Lips comb and Ochiltree counties.

The Scouters of this newly created district brought about by a consolidation plan of the Council will choose a new name befitting the territory and traditions. Sunday morning arising in cold and dw in cold and dew the Scouts and Scouters alike built good fires to cook breakfast and keep warm. Devotional services were held by the Rev. Milton Jochitz of the United Methodist Church of Clarendon

The Award ceremonies were held and Patrol rib bons awarded to the various patrols recognizing their total competition. The scouts from Troop 72 were awarded a Blue ribbon for amassing a score of 36 points. Allen Estlack of Clarendon, a member of the District Committee in making the presentations complimented the scouts on the good sportsmanship and energy displayed through out the weekend. The scoring between all eight patrols was from 32 to 42 points he pointed out. In commenting on the Camporee, Agnew pointed out achieve ment of Troops like those

Dear America

Today with the growing problem of lawlessness in our country, we should be behind our law enforcement agencies 100%. We should back our local law officials as well as our state and federal authorities, and all who are working to keep the peace in our country.

Our law enforcement agency is one of our main lines of defense in preventing the overthrow of our nation from within.

They are here to protect the public, the public in return should help to protect them. If it were not for our law enforcement officers working to keep the peace, think what our nation would be like today

Over 100 years ago, Lord Macaulay, the noted British historian, made this prediction concerning America in the 20th Century.

'Your republic will be

"Turned On" Wedding

"I do," solemnly spoken by bride and groom, is usually enough to make a legally valid marriage. But suppose one or both of the parties is "turned on." either by drugs or by alcohol. This may create a situation once described as follows by Euripides: "The tongue hath sworn, but the mind is unsworn."

Marriage is a contract-a special kind, to be sure, but a contract nonetheless. The key to a contract is mutual assent, a meeting of the minds. And a mind not competent to assent is not competent to make a contract, no matter what the tongue says.

How clear must the mind be? The law's test is whether the person is able to understand the nature of a marriage contract at the moment he says "I do." If he s not, the marriage may be an-

But intoxication short of that vill usually be overlooked. Since the law gives matrimony the benefit of the doubt, courts generally will not grant an annulment merely because the bride or the groom was a little high. Furthermore, even if one of the parties was indeed "out of it" at the time of the wedding, the marriage may become valid because of what happens afterward, Take this case: A man married a girl he scarcely knew, as the climax of a protracted drinking party. Seeking an annulment later, he pleaded in court that he had been in an alcoholic stupor at the time of the wedding.

But the girl pointed out that he had continued to cohabit with her for several days after he had sobered up. Result: annulment denied, because the marriage had been "ratified" by subsequent What if one of the parties, although in good shape at the wedding itself, had concealed the fact that he was an alcoholic or a dope addict? Under these circumstances, most courts will grant an annulment to the spouse who has been deceived. Thus, a bride won an annul-nent when she discovered after the nuptials that her bridegroom vas a heroin addict. The court said this was the kind of vital information that, in all fairness, any bride had a right to know.

area. So, you should allow air to circulate around the surface of the meat, and keep it in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

When you prepare meat on the cutting board, wash the board before preparing anything else on it. Also, wash your hands after preparing meat, and before preparing anything else.

As you know there are two methods of meat cookery: the dry method for tender cuts, and the moist method for less tender cuts. No matter which method is used. a moderate heat should be used for preparing meat (300°- 350°). Slightly higher temperatures can be used in deep fat frying to avoid excessive absorbing of fat, and of course broiling is at a higher temperature. The reason for the moderate temperature is to allow the center of the meat to become done. At a high temperature the outside may appear done, or even burned, before the center is done.

Tender cuts of meat are most accurately tested by the use of a meat thermometer. Recommended final temperature in the center of the cut of beef are: rare (140°F), medium (160°F) and well done (170 oF). Lamb is medium at 175°F. Poultry is done when the interior of the thigh muscle is 185°F. Fresh pork is heated to well done, 185°F. to ensure safety from a bacteria that especially attacks pork. Cured pork is required by federal law to be treated in a manner that will destroy this bacteria, so all government inspected hams should be safe. Tenderized hams are partially heated and ready to eat hams are heated to doneness during processing. All hams may be heated to a temperature of your liking, but an internal temperature of 165-170°F should be used for hams that have not been heated during processing. Timetables are a helpful guide in planning how long a piece of meat will take to become done. Variations in time, due to differences in oven temperature, amount of bone, amount of fat, and amount of aging, make the use of a thermometer necessary for palatable meat.

Moist heat methods (braising, boiling or stewing) will produce well done meats 1 all the time. Less tender cuts prepared by a moist method, are done when a fork may be inserted and removed from the meat easily. It is not necessary to use a thermometer in these cuts.

If you have any questions about preparing meat, or would like to have a chart showing approximate times to allow for cooking meat, let me know.

Here's a recipe I received from Judy Morris of Wheeler. can cherry pie filling 1 small can crushed pine-

2 cup sugar Mix together and let stand overnight in refrig-

apple with juice

Add and mix in:

1 cup minature marshmellows cup crushed nuts 2 large bananas, sliced thin Chill till ready to serve.

Read this the other day and thought it was amusing: Some minds are like concrete, all mixed up and permanently set.

you informed as the project progresses.

Withdrawal time for the growth promoting hormone had previously been 48

The extension of the withdrawal time stems from recent findings of DES residues in beef liver sam ples. However, no residues have been found in muscle tissue from these cattle.

The feedlot in Wheeler uses DES in its rations. Joe Weatherly said that if feed lots were prohibited from using DES, the price of beef to the housewife would be raised at least a third. Cattle gain at least a half pound a day more when DES is used, he said.

The use of DES is regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration. DES residues are prohibited by law in meat for human consumption.

The hormone is used in many young animals to stimulate growth and is used as a feed additivd in most feedlot operations. Feedlots have come under close scrutiny recently regarding the use of DES. Feedlot managers shipping cattle to slaughter must now certify that the animals have been withdrawn from DES for the prescribed length of time.

Violations of this directive can result in legal action against beef cattle producers.

Some bugs make their own anti-freeze. That's why cold weather can't kill many bothersome pests. When temperature rise, they're ready to start giving you frouble again.

Although sub-freezing temperatures slow down insect activity, nature provides many pests with ways of beating the cold. Some manufacture their own glycerol, an effective antifreeze similar to the product made by man for the same purpose.

When temperatures drop below feeezing, these insects -- by some process not yet fully understoodgradually adjust to it. The glycerol they manufacture gives them the hardiness to with stand all but the most extreme cole weather. Among the insects that can make their own anti-freeze are certain species of ants, beetles, aphids, cutworms
