Three West Texans Drowned After Auto Strikes Bridge

Services For Victims Are Held Today

Man, Two Women, All Of Nolan County, Perish In Flooded Creek

SWEETWATER, May 4 (AP)—Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for three Nolan county residents who were drowned in the sudden flooding of creeks near Albany Saturday night, when the car in which they were riding crashed into a bridge.

The dead were Claude Hartgraves, 30, of Maryneal; Mrs. Mary E. Carter, 19, of Sweetwater, and Miss Wardene Rains, 20, of Sweetwater. Hartgraves was a brother of Mrs. Temple Rogers of Big Spring.

Rites Today
Rites for Hartgraves were to be held at 4 o'clock at Maryneal, with Rev. W. S. Garnett, pastor of the Fourth Street Baptist church of Big Spring, officiating. Miss Rains was interred here following funeral services at 4 p. m. Mrs. Carter was to be buried in a Roscoe cemetery following rites at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Carter was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Jones. Miss Rains was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rains.

A three to five-inch rain had flooded the creek into which their car plunged after striking the bridge.

En Route To Fort Worth
The trio had left Sweetwater at 8:30 p. m. Saturday to take Mrs. Carter to Fort Worth, where she was to join her husband, Alfred W. Carter. Carter had obtained a job in a Fort Worth bakery and had sent for his wife.

The accident was discovered about 8 a. m. Sunday when a state highway patrolman noticed a pillar had been broken from a bridge that crosses Shalum creek, three miles east of Albany on Highway No. 1.

A watch found on Hartgraves, whose body was found about a quarter of a mile downstream, stopped at 1:45. The bodies of Mrs. Carter and Miss Rains were found in the automobile about 50 feet from the bridge. The machine was badly damaged.

Socialists In France Win

Leftist Groups Victorious In Sunday Balloting Over Nation

PARIS, May 4 (AP)—Socialist government for France was in prospect today as a result of yesterday's preliminary election. Leon Blum, socialist and leader of his party, announced he was ready to take over power. The People's Front party, socialists, radicals, socialists and communists swept Sunday's election.

Votes flowed to the Leftists despite Rightist campaign warnings that a Leftist victory might lead to inflation or other financial experiments which would result in depreciation or devaluation of the franc.

Leftists, however, campaigned on a gold standard platform and financiers were counting on the conservative senate to serve as a parliamentary check on any innovations.

Unofficial returns for the 575 seats filled in the first and second ballots, last Saturday and yesterday, gave Leftist parties 351 seats out of 618 in the new chamber, but some radical socialists' hostile to the "Peoples' Front" were included.

These returns gave: Communists, 67; dissident Communists, 18; socialists, 136; dissident Socialists, 30; radical Socialists, 71.

The Center's 129 votes were divided as follows—Independent Democrats, 30; left Republicans, 78; Popular Democrats, 21.

Rightist Republican and Conservative parties had 82 seats.

Two prominent right wing politicians were toppled from their seats. Former War Minister Jean Fabry lost his place to Lucien Bodemout, the "Lindbergh of France," representing the Leftists. Flery Henry Franklin Bouillon was beaten by a communist opponent.

CALIFORNIA PRIMARY TESTS DEMOCRATIC EPIC FACTION; HOOVER MEN FIGHT LONDON

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 4 (AP)—Comparative strength of the new deal and the Hoover drive for uninstruacted convention delegations will be illustrated Tuesday when California voters record their choice of presidential nominees.

The primary contest, after weeks of maneuvering had eliminated all but five tickets, is divided into clear-cut issues.

Democrats have three choices, President Roosevelt, Upton Sinclair and Rep. John Steven McGroarty. Republicans have to choose between Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and an uninstruacted delegation, headed by Earl Warren, chairman of the state central committee.

The primary will determine which delegations will represent California at the national conventions next month.

Two Roosevelt Tickets
Although three groups of delegates appeared on the democratic ballot, two of them were regarded as Roosevelt tickets. Sinclair, author and former socialist who organized the EPIC movement two years ago, said that if his delegation won the primary, he would release its votes to Roosevelt after one complimentary ballot for himself. The president, therefore, has little to worry about so far as California's democrats are concerned, since a victory for either the McAdoo or Sinclair slates means 44 votes for Mr. Roosevelt at the convention. Observers expected the McGroarty ticket to run third.

Result of the Roosevelt-Sinclair contest, however, is expected to show the comparative strength of regular and EPIC democrats in California. Sinclair's main purpose in entering the race is to further the aims of his followers and attempt to carry the "production for use" plan to the convention, with the idea of placing it in the party platform.

Sponsor of Townsend Plan
McGroarty, who introduced the Townsend pension plan in congress, relies upon Townsend followers for his support. It is admitted that if all Townsend democrats in California vote for him, he would be an important factor in the primary fight.

The republican race, which for weeks had threatened to become a complicated free-for-all, simmered down to a two-sided affair which split the party as wide as the Sinclair-McAdoo feud divided the democrats.

Named as active pillars are Ira Thurman, George Bond, Dewey Martin, Jas. A. Davis, Les Massey and W. Tom Bolt.

Payment represented the school's share of April collections by the county. It was divided as follows: current taxes, local fund $725.25; interest and sinking fund $297.42; delinquent taxes local fund $32.25; interest and sinking fund $32.54.

Fines were assessed against five persons Monday by J. H. Heffley, justice of the peace, on complaints filed by officers over the week-end. Four were fined for drunkenness and one for fighting. All defendants entered guilty pleas.

Woman Freed Of Charge In Poison Death

Mrs. Patterson Yet Faces Accusation Of Killing Second Child

GREENVILLE, May 4 (AP)—Mrs. Velma Patterson was freed today, free from a charge that she killed her 12-year-old daughter, Dorothy McCasland, by poisoning.

The 34-year-old brunet widow was acquitted by a district court jury here yesterday. She shouted with joy when the verdict was returned at 3 p. m.

Second Charge
The jury of 12 farmers freed her of the charge of killing Dorothy after deliberating almost 24 hours. She faces another murder charge in the death of a second daughter, Billie Mae McCasland.

Mrs. Patterson has been in jail here since the bodies of the two children were disinterred from the Pleasant Grove cemetery near Commerce last month. The children died early this year.

Death certificates of both Billie Mae and Dorothy stated that they died of intestinal influenza, but Dr. Landon C. Moore of Dallas, state witness, testified that he had found poison in the viscera of both children after the bodies were exhumed on recommendation of the grand jury.

Defense countered with witnesses who testified that deep love existed between the mother and the daughter she was accused of slaying.

The state also offered testimony that the comely Mrs. Patterson was in love, and wanted her children out of the way so that she might marry again.

Hagood Asks To Be Retired From Command

WASHINGTON, May 4 (AP)—Major General Johnson Hagood today requested immediate retirement after serving only one full day as commander of the army corps area centering at Chicago.

Hagood, relieved of his command of the Eight Corps area at San Antonio after criticizing WPA funds as "stage money," announced he expected to write a book showing how "the United States can get much better national defense at very much less cost to the taxpayer."

His resignation move indicated his belief that one day of service "vindicated him."

President Roosevelt, after several conferences with Hagood, restored him to active duty, giving him the Chicago command, after a seven-day military exile. The dismissal order ousting Hagood from the San Antonio command aroused a storm of protest in congressional and other quarters.

Methodist Church Merger Favored By A Big Majority

City's Financial Position, Harmony Among Personnel Lauded By Auditor

Praise in terms not usually found in an auditor's report was tendered the city's financial operations and its personnel operation, in the annual report made public last week after its submission by the O. S. Burkett audit company of Abilene.

Burkett said in his letter to the mayor and city commissioners "you are to be commended for your set up of record and the manner in which it is maintained," made only three recommendations.

Of the governmental setup, he wrote: "The city manager form of government meets the requirement, in our opinion, of present day need and finance. You are fortunate in having a city manager who is a producer, putting into action conservative measures with diplomacy and dispatch."

Another tribute paid the city's operations was the following: "It is noted that the personnel in your employ work together in harmony, the like of which it has not heretofore been our experience to observe."

Pointing out in the report on bonded indebtedness that the city during the past fiscal year, in addition to the payment of all due and accrued interest, paid $40,000 of bonds and $6,500 of warrants, $26,000 of which bonds being paid before they were due, the auditor wrote "you are to be commended for the record, as many city officials are constantly signing refunding warrants that have no place in sound finance."

The recommendations made by Burkett included one that an intensive effort be made to collect delinquent taxes; that yearly inventories be made; and that police records be altered.

Envoy Sends Out Message Asking Help Of British

Says First Raid Repulsed With No Loss Of American Life, But Situation Getting Worse; City Is In Ruins

WASHINGTON, May 4. (AP)—Six hours after embattled Americans beat off marauding bandits at the Addis Ababa legation, United States Minister to Ethiopia Cornelius Van Engert wired the state department here that two native servants had been seriously wounded, and that the "situation is getting worse."

He appealed for British assistance to protect America's legation, after proudly reporting how a handful of nationals and servants had repulsed crazed Ethiopians looting and pillaging the capital after the hasty departure of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Because Americans and British were separated in Addis Ababa, Engert's appeal went to Washington and was relayed to London, which point was attempting to establish communication with Britons in Addis Ababa.

President Roosevelt was keeping in close touch with the situation.

The British government asked its legation in Addis Ababa to do everything possible to relieve the embattled United States legation.

No Americans Killed
Engert earlier, in telling of repulsing the attack, said that Americans, fighting for their lives, drove off the bandits after a brisk exchange of shots. No Americans were killed or wounded.

The natives made a surprise attack, pouring heavy rifle fire into the legation compound, bullets striking dangerously close to Engert's wife and another American.

The Americans, Engert reported, along with native servants, rushed to the defenses with pistols, shotguns, spears and swords, finally driving off the attackers, one of whom was believed killed or wounded.

Fascists Near City
Wild tribesmen continued their burning, looting and killing elsewhere in the capital, leaving the city in ruins.

Italian columns, nearing the lofty city, redoubled their pace in an attempt to reach it and relieve thousands of foreigners virtually besieged in various legations.

The spearhead of the Italian advance was reported to be only a few miles from the capital by the American minister in a wireless message to the state department. He said the fascists were expected to enter today.

Selassie in Djibouti
Emperor Haile Selassie and his family were safe in Djibouti, French Somaliland, but he was an exile since his proclamation of the 22nd of February, 1936, to the march of European colonization.

Ending his dramatic flight by train, the Negus reached Djibouti, he spent the night in the governor's palace and was reported planning to board a British destroyer today and go to England.

Corpses were strewn about the streets of Addis Ababa. A stray bullet pierced the roof of the American Adventist Mission and killed Mrs. N. A. Stadin, wife of an American missionary physician. Tribesmen were determined to destroy the city before the Italian armies arrived. Already the retail center, the palace and other important buildings were in ruins. There was no government—no officials. All had fled.

COURT HEARS GUILTY PLEAS

Two-Year Sentences Assessed In Each Of Two Cases

Sentences were assessed on two pleas of guilty Monday, as two criminal cases were heard in 70th district court before civil matters on the docket were called.

A two-year prison term was meted out to Paul Vasquez, who entered a plea of guilty to a burglary charge. The term was made to run concurrently with a two-year term assessed Saturday in a similar case, which Vasquez had contested. That conviction, in turn, automatically imposed a five-year sentence which had been suspended when he was convicted in 1932 in Ector county.

A two-year term was assessed against Lawrence Thackston, who pleaded guilty to a forgery charge. Default judgments for plaintiffs were entered Monday morning in three suits on notes. They were the cases of Mrs. F. F. Gary vs. Jim Pardue, West Texas National bank vs. Jim Robertson, and West Texas vs. National bank vs. Lawrence McCoy.

Agreed judgments in several civil matters were expected to be entered this afternoon.

An idea of how popular will be the city's new natatorium at the municipal park this summer is indicated in figures on patronage for the week-end. The pool was well filled Sunday, the summer day bringing out bathers from several other West Texas points as well as from Big Spring.

A report to the city from Charles Akay Monday showed that 232 people had been admitted to the pool since it opened Sunday. There were in addition 102 tickets sold for nine-hole golf play at the muni golf course. The day's revenues for golfing and swimming was $90.70.

The swimming pool-golf revenues for the month ending Saturday totaled $465, and the natatorium was open for only one week of this time.

City officials said they had received several inquiries re to natatorium opening hours, admission prices, etc., from persons in other towns.

Outpost Test Standing 700 Feet In Oil

The test, located 400 feet out of the northwest corner of section 7, block 32, T-28S, is one-fourth mile south of other producers on the Eason land, just inside the Glasscock county line.

At 2,447 feet in lime a strong oil show was encountered late Sunday night. The test remained bottomed there, in the meantime filling, by early Monday, 800 feet in oil. The level had risen another 100 feet later in the day, it was reported here. Operations were suspended awaiting orders.

TEXAS RESOURCES

One of the most interesting exhibits now being gathered for the Texas Centennial exposition is that which will show the diversity and abundance of Texas natural resources. The Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas, the State School of Mines, which is also a branch of the university, and other institutions are co-operating in gathering exhibits. A number of the leading industries—cement, sulphur, lumber, gypsum, alkali, petroleum, clay products—will have interesting displays. The railroads are co-operating in gathering and shipping the materials to Dallas.

It is the purpose of the Natural Resources Committee of the Centennial, headed by J. M. Spellman, to build an interesting and instructive exhibit for the millions of visitors to the Centennial, and to maintain it as a permanent display in the future. Such a collection would serve many purposes, such as educating the people of Texas to an appreciation of their own natural wealth and giving visitors from other States an opportunity to grasp quickly the extent of Texas' natural wealth without extensive touring of the State. The visiting industrialist with money to invest would find such an exhibit a valuable introduction and guide to those things in which he was interested.

The first purpose of the Texas Centennial is the observance of 100 years of freedom and the honoring of those who went before us to make our land of progress and prosperity what it is today. The second purpose should be the lending of force to future development, so that posterity may look backward to our generation as made up of men and women who continued to think and act intelligently for the happiness of those who will come after us. In doing this, an intelligent consideration of our natural resources is necessary. The exhibit of the resources of Texas will be one of the most important on the exposition grounds.

★ Man About Manhattan ★

NEW YORK—"Get me a good book on medieval torture," requested the comic strip artist to an agent who deals in rare and costly volumes.

That's how it all began. Twenty-four hours later the agent reappeared with a curious volume abounding with ingenious devices for driving victims mad. The only trouble was that its text was in Latin. . . "It'll be $35," the agent advised him.

"You'd better leave it there overnight and I'll look at it," the client suggested, "my Latin is limited to about four words, but I might be able to get something out of it."

It was, then, with some amazement the artist let a clamoring fellow into his studio before breakfast next day. His eyes were wild, his breath came in stabs.

"The book—the book, where is it!" he gasped.

"Oh, that torture thing—"

"Don't tell me something's happened to it," the agent yelled.

"Nothing's happened to it," he assured him, "what's the excitement?"

"Nothing," answered the agent weakly. "Only the man who let me have it made a mistake. That book is a first edition printed in Latin and is over 300 years old. It's worth $4,000!"

Not all writers make pilgrimages to foreign lands and return to write books about them. . . Naomi Lane Babson, for instance, is an American girl who went to China and taught school there. . . But her new novel is about the reincarnation of men and women of an old Massachusetts family who were buried in one of those isolated family graveyards. . . Miss Babson's husband is a member of the faculty of Montana State College.

Speaking of reincarnations—they've revived that early season hit, "Parnell," which, in this deputy's opinion, was one of the finest things Broadway saw all year. . . Here is one of those sweet plays—sweet not in the sugar sense but in writing, acting, and presentation—a theme that strikes deeply in New York because it concerns one of the great romances of Irish history and was an incident upon which, for a while, the fate of the Irish nation actually hung.

Not the least reason why its producers decided to revive "Parnell" was the availability of Dennis King, who will play the difficult role and who is very, very good at that sort of thing.

Communication: "This must be old because it's too good to be new. Nevertheless I ran across this sign in a restaurant and thought you'd like to know about it: 'Use one lump of sugar in your coffee and stir like the dickens. We don't mind the noise!'"

After seeing that one I quit work for the day.

By DEWE FEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The directors of the U. S. chamber of commerce pulled a fast one last week on "Uncle Dan" Roper.

The secretary of commerce, after some energetic wire pulling, finally wangled an invitation to address the convention despite the original plan of the directors not to invite a new deal spokesman.

Roper devoted much time and labor to his speech. As finally drafted, his big feature was a 10-point program by means of which business men could aid in solving the unemployment problem. The formula was to be Roper's answer to the chamber's challenge that the administration fail industry how it could re-employ more men.

No. 1 plank in Roper's program was a proposal that business men themselves make a thorough survey of industry for the purpose of exploring the possibilities of adding men to payrolls. Such a study, Roper's manuscript declared, would be a great deal more valuable than a mere "head count" of the unemployed by the government—as demanded by business.

Roper planned to spring this proposal as a surprise. But he made one serious slip.

Several days before he was to make his speech, he sent an advance copy to the chamber bigwigs. When they spotted his proposal they got excited. They did not wish being put in the spot where they would either have to follow his advice or be charged with turning down a reasonable suggestion for the solution of the unemployment problem.

To get out of this dilemma, the chamber master minds decided to jump the gun on "Uncle Dan." The night before he made his speech the directors, with a great fanfare of ballyhoo, announced that the chamber would launch a nationwide survey of reemployment. This was precisely the proposal Roper planned for the next day.

Although privately deeply chagrined by this maneuver, Roper took the thumping in silence. He stuck to the original text of his speech and put forth his proposal just as if the chamber never had heard of it before.

Wife-To-Wife
The dignity surrounding a senate seat does not prevent Mrs. Huey Long from sending wifely advice to the women of Louisiana.

Recently she received a complaint from a negro woman, Mrs. Jennie Manuel of New Orleans, stating that her husband was receiving only half pay on a WPA project.

Mrs. Long investigated, found that Manuel was receiving his pay in full. Then her wifely instincts came into play. She wrote a letter to Jennie, saying: "The records show that from Nov. 21, 1935, until March 27, 1936, your husband received 10 checks, each for the full amount to which he was entitled."

"What you had better do is check up and see how your husband is spending the money he does get from the government."

United Opposition
The night before the final reading of the tax bill in the house, the republicans held a secret caucus. Afterwards Republican Floor Leader Bertrand Snell told newspapermen:

"Boys, we decided on a united opposition against this iniquitous bill. There will be plenty of fireworks tomorrow."

But when the last reading of the tax measure began next day, there were only 10 republicans in their seats. The fight on "united opposition" promised by the militant Mr. Snell simmered down to the meaningless gesture of a motion to recommit the bill to committee. Even on this no attempt was made to stage a battle.

Real showdown on the republican caucus was this: Little time was devoted to the tax bill. Most of it was spent listening to Representatives John Taber and Robert L. Bacon of New York repeat what Harry Hopkins had told the appropriations committee in confidence about relief expenditures and administration.

New Jersey Relief
What is worrying new deal executives about the relief strike in New Jersey is the possibility that it may spread to other parts of the U. S.

The example of relief workers putting their feet on the desks of legislators is disconcerting even to senators and congressmen who believe in the legislative system of the United States.

Some of them were here not so very long ago when the bonus army occupied the mud flats along the banks of the Potomac and routed Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then chief of staff, to lift the drawbridges across the river to prevent an invasion of the District of Columbia.

Sen. Harry Moore, twice governor of New Jersey, claims that Governor Hoffman of New Jersey is dodging the issue.

"He could have cleared out the legislative chamber in no time without using any force," says the ex-governor. "Governor Hoffman could have offered them the army next door, where there are beds and blankets and a place to cook."

"But instead he has let them desecrate the halls of the legislature, has made the people of New Jersey ashamed of their state—one of the original 13 colonies."

"It's dangerous business," concluded ex-Governor Harry Moore.

British To Develop Fight Pension Scheme
LONDON, May 4 (UP)—A plan is being developed in the British boxing world to provide some form of pension scheme for fighters, especially those who grow "punch-drunk" from acting as chopping blocks.

An effort is being made to get the bosses, managers and promoters to co-operate in the plan, and

See Approval For Naval Bill

Appropriation Measure Is OK'd By House, Sent To The Senate

WASHINGTON, May 4 (UP)—Advocates of the biggest peace-time appropriation for the navy jubilantly looked today for quick senate approval after their victory in the house last week.

The measure, bearing $531,068,707 and a conditional authorization it is believed that many of the 600 members of the boxers' union favor the idea.

A plan is envisaged whereby boxers would make small but compulsory contributions to an insurance fund, and special arrangements would be made for medical care of special rates.

ROWDY GUESTS

"Please talk to me," said Alan at that moment, abandoning Georgia to her treasure-trove.

"About what, my lord? Art, literature, big game hunting, or what a darling grandmother you have? I could be particularly enthusiastic about that. Your grandmother's so like people at home she makes me want to spend the evening with her holding her hand."

He smiled. "Granny—Granny's a survival of a past age. Everything she ever cared for is gone, except my mother and me, and I wasn't even the favorite grandson or my mother's favorite daughter, and mother's usually in Europe. Granny doesn't like my ideas of life, you know. She likes 'em earnest-minded and civic."

Georgia, from the other side, thrust her arm through his.

"Angel," she said, "listen—this place is going to be full of the gang in about two minutes. Tell the butler to hunt up all the cushions in the house. And the table has to be cleared for the punch and stuff. You ought to have a movable bar, everybody else has." She kissed him.

"I wish I could depend on you, Allan."

They laughed together. "I do know. Uncle Will is awfully civic. If they elected a man out of an idiot asylum to be present or even governor, Uncle Will would be respectful and loyal until his term was up. They're rather wonderful, don't you think?"

"Yes—but it can't be an amusing life," said Allan. "Your brother, there, looks like the same sort of person. I hear he's a sort of American Captain Molyneux."

Iris hoped it wasn't indiscreet to tell him; he was so gentle and sympathetic. "Yes, that's part of the loyalty. He hates designing, thinks it's effeminate. He's made an architect, studying nights, but he does this because Phina did so much for him, so many years. I think he's too loyal. I think people should practice the professions they want and marry the people they like, don't you?"

She leaned to him, unconsciously glowing and sparkling over the simple words. He looked at her as if he were warming himself in her shining personality.

"I wonder if you know what an incredible zeal for life you have, Iris, or how unusual it is. Promise me you won't let anybody turn it into synthetic pep and jazz. It's too much the way it is. He laughed as he finished. "Be nice to Granny. If you pass (I am betraying Granny, but never mind), your aunt can have the Woodlands; if not, not. And as it's the only place to be leased in the whole of our rather watertight community—"

Iris shrugged his shoulders.

Iris was aghast. "Why does it depend on me?"

"Granny has stern ideas about the class of tenants—sterner yet as to the manners of the young. The place is also rather sacred to her because it belonged to Aunt Louise and her son, my cousin, whom she shamelessly preferred to my mother and me, and who are both dead. Madame Phina is taking it only for your sake, as I understand."

"No, that's a mistake, I think," Iris shook her head.

He smiled. "I suppose you know the house's story. It belonged to my mother's sister's husband, an old-style captain of industry out of a story book, dynamo in tweeds that sort. He came to a violent end—so, later, did his son, my cousin Jim, it was said, because blighted by a lady."

His voice was mocking, and intentionally clear. Iris remembered something Dicky had said. Georgia was the girl who had been engaged to Allan's cousin.

"You would be nasty," said Georgia sharply.

"No, not nasty," he murmured, smiling under half-closed lids as

Big Spring Pupils Win Honors At Piano-Playing Guild Tournament

Big Spring pupils made an excellent showing at the national Piano-Playing Guild tournament held in Abilene Friday and Saturday. One of the judges said that, at the present rate, Big Spring would become the musical center of West Texas.

Many teachers took pupils to the tournament who did not win the honors they strived for. All Big Spring pupils won what they went after.

The awarding of class honors is a very complicated affair and difficult to explain, except to music teachers. The classes are arranged according to the number of selections in the pupils' repertoire. Those trying for national honors are supposed to be able to play ten compositions making a grade of 85 or over; if they fail they go into the next class. Those trying for state honors play seven to nine selections; for district, four to six.

Pupils were given stars for learning more than the required amount and were rated according to their musical proficiency.

Sixteen pupils from Mrs. E. F. Houser's class were entered, all striving for national honors and all making them. In the group were:

La Ferne Dehlinger, Marie Dunham, Jacqueline Faw, Jane Houser, Eyrdine Labyer, Genevieve Labyer, Mary Evelyn Lawrence, Loveta Ludlam, Modena Murphy, Dauphine Reese, Wanda Don Reese, Flora Bell Squyres, Roselle Stephens, Celia Westerman, Betty Carol Wood and Sanford ("Sandy") Edwards.

Miss Roberta Gay entered nine pupils, all of whom won what they sought.

National honors went to Mary Helen Lomax, Louise Ann Bennett, Jess Nabors, Kathleen Beutler, Ed-dye Rae Lee. State honors were won by Eva Jane Darby and Janet Robb; district honors by Virginia Lee Alexander and Castle-Berry Campbell.

Ogden's Pupils

Miss Virginia Lois Ogden took a pupil in each class who brought back the honor sought, Dicky Kennedy was on the national honor roll; Mildred Murgrove of Coahoma on the state; June Co on the dis-

Black-Draught Relief Is Prompt and Refreshing It's a good idea that so many people have — to keep Black-Draught handy so they can take a dose for prompt relief at the first sign of constipation. I have used Black-Draught a long time, about as long as I can remember, and have a package on my shelf now," writes Mr. Sherman Sneed, of Evansville, Tenn. "I take Black-Draught for constipation which causes headache, a bad tired feeling and for biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and sluggish feeling. Black-Draught, taken about two nights, clears up this trouble and I get all right." Black-Draught is made of 27 medicinal herbs, dried and finely ground, but no other change in their natural condition. It is a laxative that men and women like so well because of the refreshing relief it brings in constipation troubles.—adv.

NEW COMPILATION OF STATE'S ELECTION LAWS COMPLETED BY ATTORNEY-GENERAL

AUSTIN, May 4.—First of its kind since 1923, a compilation of the Texas election laws, made and printed by Attorney General William McCraw, came from the press Saturday on the eve of the 1936 campaign. Copies will be mailed to various state officials, county judges, election officers and executive committeemen. In addition to drawing upon previous compilations of the election laws, McCraw has included all laws enacted since the 1923 compilation with one exception—the voluminous statute authorizing the use of voting machines in Texas which, so far as could be ascertained here, has never been invoked. Court Decisions Court decisions, constructions of the law made by the Attorney General's Department, and related statutes, such as those set up for liquor elections under the Texas liquor control statute, are included. In a foreword, McCraw asserted that the importance of election laws—not only to officials, but to all voters, "can never be overstated."

"The soul of America finds its highest expression, its greatest security, in the purity of the ballot box and the safeguards provided by wise and progressive laws. These truisms are old friends, hoary with age, but they are just as true today as when first uttered," McCraw wrote. For New Voters In addition to the election laws, one section of the volume is directed to those voting for the first time. Every act is described, every necessary prohibition set forth for the inexperienced voter. Who can vote, who must pay a poll tax, who is exempt from a poll tax, when it must be paid, where and how it is paid, what you do if your poll tax receipt is lost—these are detailed for guidance of the inexperienced or young voter. An instance of these instructions: "You vote by marking out all the names for whom you do not desire to vote. The name of the president of the election will be printed on the opposite side of the ballot. Fold your ballot so that his name will be visible. "Do not carry with you to the polling place any marked, sample or dummy ballot. If you need any assistance it must be given by the election judges. "Do not forget to carry your poll tax receipt or exemption certificate with you. If you have lost it, you may make affidavit to that effect."

Also included is a list of more important political dates. In the near future are these: First Saturday in May, precinct presidential primary convention; the following Tuesday, county presidential conventions; fourth Tuesday in May, state presidential convention. These are in presidential election years. First Monday in June, last day for candidates to get names on ballot. Second Monday in June, meeting of state executive committee. Third Monday in June, county committees meet to determine the order of names on ballot. The ballot is prepared the following Monday.

California (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Opposing the organized drive for Landon are old guard members of the state central committee and younger republicans alike who insist the California delegation should be unpledged, free to vote for the best available candidate at the convention. Hoover Support Shown The unstructured group, organized along the lines advocated by former President Herbert Hoover, has the support of many influential republicans who backed Mr. Hoover four years ago. It also has the approval of the republican assembly, a state-wide organization of younger party members, and is headed by Earl Warren, chairman of the state central committee. Landon workers refer to the unstructured slate as the "Hoover-Warren" ticket, while Warren's crowd call the opposition as the "Heart-Merriman-Landon" faction. Gov. Frank F. Merriam withdrew in favor of the Kansas after the state central committee had declined to name him as the favorite son head of the "official" party delegation. Although taking no active part in Landon's campaign, he released his own supporters who placed the Merriam machine at the disposal of the Landon organization. Borah Not In Contest Sen. William E. Borah's decision to stay out of the California fight halted an anticipated triangular contest which would have widened the party rift. The distinct issues at stake and abandoning his "last stand" plan, was accepted in all interested quarters as marking the real end of the war. Italian authorities have said repeatedly, however, it might take even several years to pacify completely the vast, diverse, slightly-governed empire. The league of nations and Great Britain were put in an embarrassing position. It seemed inevitable that Italy, indicted as an aggressor and subjected to sanctions by 52 nations, would dictate her own peace terms. Premier Mussolini may put a puppet emperor on the throne but he will be the real ruler. The league council is expected to consider the situation when it meets in regular session May 11.

Native Guards Mutiny, Turn On French Legation PARIS, May 4 (AP)—Paul Bodard, French minister to Ethiopia, today reported Ethiopians assigned to guard his legation had mutinied and turned their guns on the building. He said there was still no word from the advancing Italian troops. Shortly afterward, Bodard reported an Italian airplane had fallen in Addis Ababa at noon.

AIRPORT GROUP TO MEET ON THURSDAY Stock and bond holders of the Big Spring Airport corporation have been called to meet at 8 o'clock Thursday night, at the Bettles hotel, to discuss matters of importance to the organization, and a full attendance is urged. It was assumed the security holders would discuss prospects involved in the proposed transfer of their airport holdings to the city, in event municipal purchase of the port is authorized in an election called for May 18. Stock and bond holders have agreed to surrender their holdings, in which they originally put more than $72,000, for $36,000.

33,000 Join NYA Program

AUSTIN, May 4.—Thirty-three thousand Texas youths have availed themselves of the opportunities offered by the National Youth Administration since it went into operation in September, 1935, Lyndon B. Johnson, state director of the youth administration has announced. A summary of major Texas activities reveals that the student aid program leads with 16,935 high school and college students holding part-time jobs. Of this number 11,030 were employed in 124 high schools and 5,905 in Texas colleges. High school student jobs pay $6 per month and college students are paid an average of $15 per month. Under the works projects program, 12,011 Texas out-of-school youths—7,414 boys and 4,597 girls—have part-time jobs. NYA projects are sponsored locally and adapted to the needs of individual communities. The Texas NYA has 20 freshmen college centers in operation with a total enrollment of approximately 900 students and with 24 teachers employed. The centers offer college work of the first year level to students unable to enroll in regular colleges and universities. Under the vocational guidance and job training program of the NYA, a junior employment service has been established at Fort Worth. In 60 days of operation, 2,119 boys and 1,155 girls have been interviewed. A total of 33 firms have been visited and 22 youths have been placed in marginal jobs in private industry.
