Final Action On Neutrality Due Tonight

One Of President's Chief Recommendations Accepted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The senate voted today to repeal the embargo sale of arms to Europe's warring nations.

The vote was 67 for repeal to 22 against.

On 20th Day The action cleared the way for passage of the administration neutrality bill, which in addition to ending the embargo, also would set up a limited cash and carry system of commerce with belligerents.

The repeal vote, reached on the 20th day of the senate's history-making neutrality debate, came on a proposal by Senator Nye (D-N.D.) to discard the administration measure and substitute a bill, similar to that of the administration, except that it would maintain the existing ban on arms sales.

Repeal of the embargo was recommended by President Roosevelt when he called congress into special session last month. Although it was but one of his recommendations for revising the neutrality law, it immediately became the crux of the entire foreign policy fight in the senate.

All sides agreed the effect of repeal would be to give aid to England and France in their war with Germany, but many repeal proponents argued the present embargo is unneutral. Opponents of repeal, on the other hand, argued that action would be unneutral.

Administration leaders predicted final passage of the measure late in the day.

On the house side, it was learned that leaders last night tentatively agreed on procedure by which they hope to get final congressional action on the bill a week from tomorrow night.

Senator Barkley conferred with administration lieutenants last night and reported afterward that more than 65 of the 96 senators would vote for the neutrality bill.

The vote conceded defeat, but expressed hope the senate debate had stiffened opposition forces in the house, which will consider the bill next week.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.), a leading opponent of repeal, asserted the senate debate had made it "absolutely clear" that European countries could not expect the United States to participate again in a European conflict.

The senate was held in session eight hours yesterday in an attempt to clean up a score of amendments, but opponents objected to meeting after the dinner hour.

SAFETY CONFERENCE SCHEDULED MONDAY

Capt. J. C. Tappe and other members of the Texas Safety Council will confer with safety committees of various civic and service organizations here Monday, it was announced Friday.

The group, on a tour of this section of the state, is traveling in sound-equipped white, safety automobiles.

SEIZED VESSEL BEING SAILED TO GERMANY

U. S. Official Finally Given An Interview

Moscow Believed To Be Helping Nazis Get A Start

MOSCOW, Oct. 27 (AP)—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt finally succeeded late today in gaining an interview with a Russian foreign-office official in his quest for information on the American vessel City of Flint, after earlier attempts to get an appointment had failed.

No Information

There was no immediate announcement of the result of the interview.

The embassy had no information beyond that appearing in Soviet Russian newspapers—that the American freighter had been freed at the port of Murmansk where she had been taken, the captive of a German prize crew.

The embassy spent two days trying to telephone the master of the Flint, or some other officer, at Murmansk. One call got through to the port city but that as cut off a minute later without conversation between the embassy and any of the Americans.

There still was no official word that the City of Flint actually had departed but well informed quarters said last night that she had left, flying the American flag.

Unofficial British quarters expressed belief Russia was keeping silent to give the German prize crew "a running start" toward a German port. This was predicated on a belief that the German crew, released from internment, was back in control of the freighter.

Further international complications in the case were foreseen if the City of Flint was unable to get through the British blockade in the North sea.

It seemed probable that British warships would be lying in wait for her and just as likely that she would be under the guard of German submarines—assuming she is in German hands and headed for Germany.

The Soviet Russian announcement last night that the ship had been ordered out of Murmansk did not seem to contradict this.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—John H. Dean, Jr., of Lamesa, Texas, has entered a show herd of 18 purebred Herefords for the 1939 International Live Stock exposition to be held at the stock yards here December 2-9.

MR. ROOSEVELT GIVES DEFINITIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt, discussing political faiths last night in his speech to the New York Herald Tribune forum, said he was reminded of four definitions:

"A radical is a man with both feet firmly planted in the air. A conservative is a man with two perfectly good legs who, however, has never learned to walk. A reactionary is a somnambulist walking backwards. A liberal is a man who uses his legs and his hands at the behest of his head."

Pope Blames War On 'Denial Of God'; Pleads For Permanent Peace Solution

War Scare Is Fake, Says FD

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Strongly reaffirming American neutrality, President Roosevelt last night said critics of his foreign policy who have accused it of "American boys to shoulder arms abroad were guilty of one of the worst fakes in current history."

"It is a deliberate setting up of an imaginary bogey man," he added caustically.

The president spoke last night on the closing program of the ninth annual New York Herald-Tribune forum on current problems, after King Leopold III of Belgium declared it was vital for his country because of economic reasons to remain at peace but that Belgium was ready to fight, if necessary, to preserve its independence.

The heads of the two nations spoke from their respective capitals.

In sharp tones President Roosevelt rebuked "fanatics and commentators and others" in and out of congress who he said have been "beating their breasts and proclaiming against sending the boys of American mothers to fight on the battlefields of Europe."

"That, I do not hesitate to label as one of the worst fakes in current history," he declared.

"The simple truth is that no person in any responsible place in the national administration in Washington, or in any state government, or in any city government, or in any county government, has ever suggested in any shape, manner or form the remotest possibility of sending the boys of American mothers to fight on the battlefields of Europe."

"That is why I label that argument a shameless and dishonest fake."

Acknowledging it was impossible for Americans to be neutral in thought as well as in act, the president said:

"The fact of the international situation—the simple fact, without any bogey in it, without any appeal to prejudice—is that the United States, as I have said before, is neutral and does not intend to get involved in a war."

Dies Group's Action Is 'Sordid' To FDR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt branded as "sordid procedure" today publication by the Dies committee of the names of more than 500 government employees on the "membership and mailing list" of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

The committee charged that the league was a "front" for communist activity.

"Asked to comment on publication of the list this week, the president told a press conference he had not read enough of the details of that rather 'sordid procedure' to comment."

He agreed to a reporter's request that direct quotation of the phrase be permitted, a departure from the usual press conference procedure.

The Dies committee linked with national defense today its charge to the justice department that the league was guilty of a "flagrant violation" of federal law.

A committee letter to the department, bearing the signature of Chairman Dies (D-Tex.), said there was "ample evidence" that the league was an agency of the communist international in Moscow.

Therefore, the committee contended, the league was violating the law requiring agents of foreign principals to register with the state department.

Survivors include her husband, Howard V. Billings, and one daughter, Sylvia Sue, 3; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hair of Big Spring and Anderson; four brothers, J. F. Hair, Big Spring, J. J. Hair, Jr., Houston, M. B. Hair, Liberty, and G. D. Hair, LaPorte.

McDowell, Mrs. Greer, a Tyler woman, and party were en route to Carlsbad, N. M., when their car and one driven by McDowell collided. The suit was lodged in 70th district court.

'Courtesy Cars' For Midland Folk Urged

Confident that Big Spring would extend a rousing welcome to the Midland football fans who will ride a special train here at 7 p. m. today, the chamber of commerce renewed its appeal for more courtesy cars to take the visitors to Storer stadium for the Midland-Big Spring grid clash.

J. H. Green, chamber of commerce manager, said that approximately 50 cars had been pledged to carry the 400 Midland fans to the game, but that an equal number was still needed to make sure that all would have transportation to the game.

Plans are to have the cars pick up visitors at the east side of the courthouse at 7:30 p. m. and carry them to Storer stadium. A special parking place has been provided on the east side of the stadium near the southeast entrance for courtesy cars and those who carry visitors to the game were urged to use this reserved space.

Those who will list their cars for courtesy purposes are asked to call the chamber of commerce. Courtesy car stickers may be obtained there.

Issues First Encyclical

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today condemned governments which assume "that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the supreme maker" and offered consolation to "those who are suffering."

In the first encyclical of his reign the pontiff, after recounting the failure of his efforts for peace, also pleaded for settlements at the end of the present European war which would avoid the errors of past treaties which failed to bring lasting peace.

He blamed denial of "the authority of god and the sway of his law" for the rise of governments which make the state "the last end of life."

The war, he said, would fail to impose a decisive change in conditions unless followed by treaties of peace "animated by justice and by equity toward all."

He warned "there is danger lest settlements be born in such conditions as 'sacrifices and sufferings.'"

At the same time, he said, respect for treaties was indispensable to peace.

"As we write these lines," the pope said, "the terrible news comes to us that the dread tempest of war is already raging in spite of all our efforts to avert it."

He said "new errors" added to the "doctrinal aberrations of the past" have pushed these "to extremes which lead inevitably to a drift toward chaos."

"Once the authority of God and the sway of His law are denied in this way," Pope Pius declared in his letter of more than 11,000 words to all Catholic bishops, "civil authority as an inevitable result tends toward chaos."

The federal debt was $16,026,087,087, or an average of $129 a person, on Dec. 31, 1930, but since then has risen almost month by month to its present record level, which equals about $311 a person.

the entire symphony of all FIVE records. The Cesar Franck Symphony in D Minor, on account of its great length, is divided into two units, each unit consisting of three double-faced 12-inch records, and the cost of each unit is $1.49, the same as for any other three-record group.

MISS LANCIOUS NOTES

Remember when the crank on the front of a car was a sign of the latest things in automobiles and windows were side curtains that worked with snaps?

With the advent of the 1940 models, it seems almost funny to remember when you saw a bump in the road, the driver called a warning and everyone held on to keep from hitting heads on the roof.

When it rained or snowed, the driver wiped the windshield with his hand or a cloth that he kept handy. Then, too, if you wanted to hear the radio you went home to turn it on, if you were lucky enough to own a set with or without earphones.

The top in style was expressed in a black shiny number because only movie actors or race track gamblers let themselves go when it came to buying a car. Now you can practically match your favorite shade of nail polish in your gasoline buggy.

Back in those days, going for a drive on Sunday took the whole family and their combined cooperation to whip out forty miles and back and the mother of the group usually packed a lunch and the neighbors came out to wave goodbye. It was an expedition and there were some who weren't sure that the touring ones would ever come back alive.

But now, with the new streamlined machines, you don't feel surprised at anything and if things keep going like this there may come a time when you can push a button, name your destination, and grab a novel or the newspaper and arrive intact without any effort. It's hard to wait and see what next can be done.

Mrs. La Velle Wins Honors At Art Exhibit At Dallas Fair

Always when a chance came to show her paintings in public exhibitions, Mrs. Edith La Velle, 1006 Saurry, backed down and waited for she felt she wanted to have "something particularly wonderful" before competing.

But some few months ago, she made a present of a picture, "Blue Fields," to her sister-in-law, a resident of Dallas. When the state fair in Dallas opened, this sister-in-law, experiencing none of the hopes and fears of the artist, proudly sent in the picture, and it brought home the red ribbon, second place in the professional class.

Out of a field of 684 paintings sent in, the judges chose Mrs. La Velle's painting of the bluebonnets in a spot near Mexia, and said about it that "the blue is the most gorgeous blue" that they had ever seen and stated, according to the sister-in-law, "the perspective is fine."

A New Type Of Strike

An odd sort of work stoppage exists in the Chrysler automobile plants in Detroit. Fifty-seven thousand men are idle in what company officials call a strike and what labor union officials assert is a lockout. The shutdown was preceded, it is fairly clear, by a "slow-down" strike on the part of certain key workers which reduced the assembly-line speed to a point which the company declared unprofitable and hence caused it to suspend operations.

The point at issue in renewal of the annual contract between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers, which expired September 30, is evidently the determination of the rate at which the production line shall run in various plants. This is something which production officials insist must remain in their hands, though in this and some other industries there have been persistent complaints against the "speed-up" as a condition affecting the worker's well-being as directly as wages or hours of employment.

The situation in Detroit illustrates in one sense the vulnerability of highly mechanized assembly-line manufacturing methods to subtle and surreptitious types of worker resistance, since 20 or more men may be delayed because one man bungles his job. From the labor point of view, it underscores a necessity that working conditions shall be sufficiently congenial to keep virtually all workers satisfied. Or from the management point of view it emphasizes the importance of the employer's having control over hiring, rather than that the selection of his personnel shall be in the hands of an union agent.

The slow-down brought production to a standstill considerably ahead of the formalities of a strike vote which would sooner have brought the machinery of the Michigan labor mediation board into operation. This statute was passed after the wave of sit-down strikes a few years ago which public opinion so plainly disapproved. It may be that the slow-down is not a first cousin to the sit-down. Speeding-up monotonous, repetitious work to a point beyond reasonable worker endurance may be of vital consequence to the public interest. But it would seem that such a case could safely be submitted to public tribunals.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—Although the Messrs. Kaufman and Hart swear that all characters in their newest comedy are purely fictional, and that any resemblance to living persons is strictly coincidental, they do so with an elastic conscience, as the central figure in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is a prankish, thinly disguised caricature of their pal, Alexander Woolcott.

The play is the screwball adventures of a lecturer, who breaks his leg and is compelled to remain for six weeks in the home of a small town host, who has invited him to dinner.

Mr. Woolcott himself is a lecturer, a town crier, an actor, an author, and, perhaps more important than all, an accomplished busybody. The play makes capital use of these virtues, but they omit one cardinal facet in the Woolcott make-up...the time and the effort he has spent in helping deserving people get ahead. Most of all, he likes to introduce people to each other and then sit back and watch them get acquainted. He is a match-maker. He is a chat-artist, a raconteur, and a literary gossip.

Pretty soon now he departs on this extensive lecture tour, and one of the reasons he is making it is because there are parts of the country he doesn't know. He has never been to New Orleans, for instance, which is rather strange for someone who knows Tokyo and Moscow. One of the stipulations of this tour is that sufficient lectures be booked in Texas, so that he will have an honest opportunity to get to know the country.

At the moment he is reclining as gracefully as possible for Mr. Woolcott in the comfort of his Vermont retreat, Nesbotes Island, in the middle of Lake Bomoseen. This retreat used to be a sort of club run by ten notables of arts and letters. The idea was for each to pay so much down and thereafter so much per day for each guest brought to the island. Woolcott spent so much time there, it was less expensive for him to build his own home, a beautiful place where he remains, even in winter, driving across the lake in his car over "lake" roads which are ice three feet thick.

This is the favorite gathering place for Woolcott's friends, but instead of having them sign a guest book, he takes motion pictures of them. Thus is it the routine of the evening to see motion pictures of, say, Katharine Cornell skating on the lake in a white winter's sports suit...Harpo Marx clowning through the Vermont hills...Alfred Lund and Lynn Fontanne reacting in the backwoods scenes from "Reunion in Vienna"...Cornelia Otis Skinner, Ruth Gordon and perhaps everybody whom Woolcott admires and fraternizes with.

When the Alexander goes forth around the middle of November for his lecture tour he will speak on such subjects as "The Confession of a Dying Newspaperman," which no doubt relates off-angle bits of the news rooms; "The Invisible Newspaper," describing his experiences as a broadcaster; "The Seeing Eye," which is one of his favorite topics, and "Reunion in Vienna," those supposedly true tales of a mind she's got.

Chapter 18
LETTER FROM CHICAGO

"I will forgive you for keeping this mystery from me," Tuck solemnly told Michael's father, "on condition that you use your keen and agile brain in solving my little private mystery. Michael can't. He's too dumb. I can't. It has a mechanical bent that is quite beyond my poor feminine mind. Bunny can't. I asked her. So it's up to you."

"Certainly," John Forrester agreed. "And what is it then, my dear?"

"It's my necklace," Tuck said. "Where is it? It's gone."

"Gone?"

"Gone. Disappeared. Michael says the insides of the pipes are smooth. And even I can see that if you drop a small and slippery thing down the inside of a large pipe it would have a tendency to land at the bottom. But it didn't."

Her father-in-law surveyed her from beneath bushy brows. "You are not talking to Michael, he reminded her, 'whose mind works in a scatter-brained fashion. I am a bit slow and ponderous, perhaps, but I feel that I could do with a wee little more detail."

"It's not in the pipe? In the basement?"

"No."

"Nor yet in the furnace?"

"No."

"Well, then," he said, and settled comfortably back in his chair, "it must be somewhere in between."

"Very simple indeed," said Michael.

Tuck sighed. "I suppose it's gone forever," she said. "I can't quite see us pulling the house to pieces for a string of corals. It will break my heart to lose it. She looked sideways at her father-in-law. "I thought perhaps it had found out where the diamonds were hidden and gone to keep them company," she said.

"Tump! Diamonds?"

"Diamonds," she repeated firmly. "You may all laugh if you wish, but I am more and more firmly convinced that the diamonds—Professor Murchison's diamonds, are hidden somewhere in this house, and that someone knows it and is looking for them. Higgins, probably. Although, even though he and his five thousand dollars sound very very suspicious, I don't think he has sense enough to hang pots and pans on the doors. It's too bright an idea for Higgins. Somebody else, Father Forrester."

"Mrs. Murchison," Bunny murmured. Tuck seized upon the idea instantly.

"Mrs. Murchison sounds reasonable," she said. "I wouldn't believe anything she said anyway. I'm sure she's a double-crosser, or whatever you call people like that. And I think she read 'The Bartered Bride' herself. It shows the kind of a mind she's got."

"If we were sure it was murder," Tuck went on after a reflective silence, "if we were positive he was murdered, it would be simple."

"Very," Bunny agreed drily. "We'd just stand the whole camp in a row and say 'Benny Meenie. Any of those people there at Deane's might be guilty. Any of them."

"Oh, Bunny, not Mrs. Deane. Not Mrs. Deane. Bunnies. Just a mistake."

"No, Not Mrs. Deane. Unless she did it with an electric toaster or a sewing machine. From the looks of her she has one or the other in her hand all the time."

"I bet he's the kind of husband that simply makes a dreadful fuss about a button being off."

Michael looked at Tuck. She put her chin in the air, and averted her face. "You seem to be maligning me," he said bitterly. "I said almost nothing about my blue shirt. Nothing."

"I wasn't even thinking of you, Michael Forrester. I was thinking about Mr. Deane and those awful squinty eyes that you can't see, and the sarcastic things he says to you when you play the wrong card. And didn't you see that he didn't even have the same salad that we did? She had to fix something very special for him."

"We had lobster, and he had fruit," Bunny contributed.

Michael groaned. "Just because a poor man wears glasses and has a weak stomach...I tremble to think of you two being on the police force. I suppose you'd hang all the cross-eyed men just because."

"Well, of course," said Tuck with one of her lightning changes. "We aren't sure. Maybe some of them are. Maybe it's somebody else."

"And maybe it isn't anybody at all," Michael added.

"Michael, such nonsense. What about the diamonds?"

"Poof," said Michael. "There aren't any diamonds."

"It's so nice," said Bunny with sweetness. "To know that there's no mystery. No diamonds, just a mistake. The Professor has merely stepped out. Madam, and will be back in half an hour. Let's learn to knit, Tuck."

"No suggestive remarks, please, Bunny," said Tuck severely. Michael grinned.

"You could sew the button on my blue shirt," he mentioned. "Or is that what you'd call a suggestive remark, too?"

Tuck smiled. "I am firmly convinced," she said, "that the Professor has been foully murdered—done to death in his own study, preferably by his wife, who then cleared away, pawned the diamonds and moved out. All we have to do is to find the diamonds, find a body, and hide the lady's mascara so a self-respecting jury can hang her without any qualms."

"What'd I like to know," said Bunny. "Is there does the brother come in?"

"Does he have to come in, Bunny? Michael asked plaintively. Bunny colored faintly. "Something is bothering him."

"What about the pipe I found?" Tuck wanted to know.

Michael rubbed his forehead. "I'm not just so sure about that," he said slowly. "What would you think, Tuck, supposing you—well, supposing you were afraid that I had gone off on a trip with another woman and left you. You had been told that. And then, suddenly, someone comes along with my pipe, that I am never without. You know that nothing short of a cataclysm would make me give up my pipe. Yet here, apparently, I have forgotten it. Wouldn't you get something of a jolt just for a minute? Wouldn't you wonder—or perhaps, wouldn't it hurt just for a moment?"

"Well, perhaps, just a very little," Tuck agreed.

Bunny was looking at Michael awfully. "This display of wisdom and general deducing is very effective," she said. "Particularly the last bit of appeal to our womanly sympathies. But before you read our hearts any further, would you mind telling us quite frankly where you get this woman idea?"

Michael sighed. "Life is cruel," he murmured. Then with a gesture of resignation he said, "Well, if I must. The Commissioner got a letter."

"A letter?"

"Um."

"Who wrote it?"

"The Missing Professor."

"Even so, my children."

"Where is he?"

"He didn't state his present address."

"What made him write to the Commissioner?"

"He didn't write to the Commissioner. To his wife."

"To his wife?"

"Listen, don't say things over after me like that. It makes me dizzy."

"Well, tell us then, Michael! This suspense is awful."

"He wrote to his wife, and said he was sorry, that he didn't love her any longer, and that he had gone away never to return. And she took the letter to the Commissioner."

"Oh, she did, did she?"

"Yes, verily."

"Michael Forrester, I bet you're still trying to play hide and seek with us. Was it in his very own handwriting?"

"It was."

"Dated—six weeks after he left. Tuck stared at him in silence for a long minute. Then, "Michael—was it in the envelope?"

"It was."

"And the postmark?"

"The postmark? Oh—" Michael grinned at her suspense. "Perfectly straight and correct, my love. Chicago. And kindly don't make any remarks about machine guns or gangsters, Bunny," he finished sternly as he saw a remark trembling on her lips.

Bunny frowned. "Chicago? Chicago, Michael?"

"Yes."

Tuck sank back into the couch. "Isn't that simply awful," she said miserably. "It's just like a balloon with a pin stuck in it, she reflected. "It can't be in his own handwriting," she said.

"The District Attorney looked at her. 'It's in his own handwriting.' 'Is that certain?'"

"As certain as the best expert we know can make it."

Tuck sighed. "We're sort of stopped, aren't we? Although...you can't tell me that all this sneaking around and crawling into people's houses and hanging pots and pans on people's doors, and getting the pots and pans away again before anybody can get a look at them, and turning pale and holding their breaths is imagination. I refuse to believe it. There's something in the woodpile."

Michael still paced the floor.

"There's many a good man," said the District Attorney to the sergeant, "hung on circumstantial evidence."

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—Washington doesn't often nose out New York or Hollywood in getting a world premiere view of a new motion picture but since it had first go at "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" it has had some uneasy hours.

Early off-hand views were that it would be a "money picture" for several reasons, first because it is as timely as a war thriller, and second because Frank Capra directed it. Further it is a stirring piece, with more than an average quota of good acting and laugh lines. Photographically it picks out the capital's principal monumental attractions, such as the capitol, the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial and takes them to the scene-hungry public in a dress more gorgeous than any we've seen.

MOVIE NEWSPEAPERMEN
 But for all the precautions taken to have it truly reflect the way of life in Washington, it will help to perpetuate a pair of faulty ideas about what goes on here.

Hollywood seems to have a stylized view of how newspapermen look and act, and will go to its grave holding to that view, regardless. The idea evidently persists that a news man can snatch a story out of thin air about as readily as he can reach in his vest pocket and pull out a quart bottle of bourbon, with fix water and glasses.

However, nobody should become perturbed about that. What might be viewed with a more critical eye is the plot in the picture in which a whole state's newspapers, the radio and 85 members of the senate combine to preserve the integrity of graft and to block the efforts of a boyish hero to have the right prevail.

Except to an experienced Washingtonian's eye the thing looks too darned real. The senate may be the world's most exclusive club but the most cynical would be surprised to see the whole senate walk out on one of its members brazen enough to raise the cry of graft.

With a presidential election coming up—as the picture relates—the opposition party at least would stick in its seats to the last man to gather in the dirt being spilled on the other side.

"VERY FEW SENATORS"
 In real fact the senate is fanatically jealous of its reputation. It was only a few years ago that the senate pilloried one of its employes who wrote a magazine article in which he said, in a thoughtless moment, that "very few senators take graft." Washington probably won't say yes or no to whatever the credulous wish to believe, but it would be a fine state of affairs if the funny impression got around that the senate would walk out in a body to avoid hearing a hint of foul dealing.

Yet these are only lesser matters. More serious is the implication that one fist-swinging country boy could take on the whole National Press club, two to ten at a time, and lay them cold in the aisle. Doubtless the Press club is mightier with the pen than with the sword; but gad, sir, we can't let it get abroad that the lads can be spread around like marmalade.

However, the picture gallops freely and does a right smart job of dramatizing a piece of government that mostly is fairly sluggish business.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

"Babes In Arms" Screenplay by Jack McGowan and Kay Van Ripper from play by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. Directed by Busby Berkeley. Cast: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Charles Winnager, Guy Kibbee, June Preisler, Grace Hayes, Betty Jaynes, Douglas McPhall, Rand Brooks, Lou Lynn, John Sheffield, Henry Hull, Barnett Parker, Ann Shoemaker, Margaret Hamilton, Joseph Crohan.

HOLLYWOOD—Youth takes a tuncful march to the rescue of its faltering parents and gives us "Babes in Arms," a snappy, bright and spirited musical with a heavy load of Mickey Rooney and all his tricks.

The story is about the financial and heart woes of ex-headliners in vaudeville and what their youngsters do to save them from the doldrums. As a story it isn't a knockout for novelty, but it serves as a clothesline on which Metro can and does hang its brightest specimens of the youth movement.

Rooney clown's a lot, emotes a little, dances, sings after a fashion, has one of his by-now standardized scenes as romantic caller on a rich girl with style, and does impersonations of Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable and President Roosevelt. The picture offers also Judy Garland, attractive and sweet in personality and singing, the talented singers Betty Jaynes and Douglas McPhall (who are Mr. and Mrs. in real life), and a sugary gem of caricature (by June Preisler) of a baby movie star grown up. The Preisler girl, cute and blonde, gives only a little of her stage specialty, which is dancing.

Berkeley's direction weaves in the spectacle number—"Babes in Arms"—very pleasantly, and keeps the thing moving with few let-downs to the finale, which is an old-time Berkeley splash with mountains of steps and people and a patriotic note to the effect that the U.S.A. is "God's Country" and aren't-we-glad? Clever lyrics, though.

Winnager and Hull contribute a fine scene, but it's Mickey who takes the screen for a Rooney holiday. The kid even appears, in the introductory montages, as he was some years ago—as a flip as now.

"The Roaring Twenties" Screenplay by Jerry Wald, Richard Macaulay, Robert Rossen from story by Mark Hellinger. Cast: James Cagney, Frieda Lane, Humphrey Bogart, Gladys George, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh, Paul Kelly, Elizabeth Eadsen, Ed Keane, Joe Sawyer. Narration by John Deering.

It's a condensed version of America's prohibition decade, cheating a little on both ends and covering the period roughly from 1918 to 1933—with songs and speeches, bootleggers and bullets, nightclubs and nightmares of a decadent decade.

Cagney is the ex-doughboy who can't get a job, turns to the new and easy business of bathtub gin, "rises" to power as a bootleg king. Lane is the chorine he falls for, establishes as a nightclub star in the chump-joint of Gladys George, who plays a Tex Gullana-ish character. Jimmy winds up outside the money, double-crossed by partner Bogart, while his girl has been abandoned at the end, he puts in his last bullet on the side of decency.

Episodic, the gaps covered by narration in the manner of the documentary films, "The Roaring Twenties" almost attains its objective as a dramatic fiction-history, fails principally because no one movie could capture the full essence of those incredible years.

Frieda Lane (getting plumper) sings "I'm Just Wild About Harry," "Melancholy Baby" and "It Had To Be You," all of which help.

Speaking of war taxes, certain official communitiques are decidedly a tax on credibility.

HUMAN VALUES PROTECTED BY LIFE INSURANCE, SPEAKER TELLS BUSINESS CLUB

Life insurance guarantees the worth of human values against destruction by death, disability or old age, thereby maintaining the democratic ideal which sets these values above all others, Walter P. Wilson said in a speech, made as part of the local observance of the 1939 Annual Message of Life Insurance, before the American Business Club at the noon meeting Friday.

"It is correct, I believe, to say that the chief value of democracy lies in its recognition of the importance of human values as the key to all the other benefits of a civilization such as ours, human values are primarily dependent upon the earning power of the individual.

"This ability to work and earn is one that can be completely destroyed by death, disability or old age. Life insurance is the economic instrument we have devised to underwrite and replace these human values. It offers to all an opportunity to save and make provision for the future; to shield one's dependents as well as oneself from the hardships that follow destruction of earning power.

"The importance of life insurance to the economic hopes of individuals is seen in the fact that eight out of every ten estates left by men today are made up exclusively of life insurance proceeds; that 64,000,000 of us own 125,000,000 policies worth $110,000,000,000.

"Whatever it means to individuals, life insurance, just as any working democracy, is of great importance to the community.

"In 1938 living policyholders and beneficiaries received from life insurance two billion, six hundred million dollars. In the period 1933 through 1938, life insurance has paid out nearly three billion dollars more than was necessary for federal relief in the same period.

"Nearly a billion dollars was paid in 1938 to the beneficiaries of alight more than a million policies, providing the money for food, clothing and shelter to families that had lost their breadwinner.

"More than 60 per cent of the two and a half billions went to living policyholders in the form of endowments, retirement incomes, cashed-in policies, dividends, etc., providing money more secure. In every instance it served a necessary purpose and did a great deal to relieve the community of caring for people who otherwise might very well have become dependent upon private or public charity.

"Through their cooperation in life insurance, Americans make another community contribution that can't be measured in dollars and cents, but is nevertheless just as real. Throughout all of history man

Herd Seeks Third District Win Tonight Against Midland Yearlings Lose To Lubbock, 16-7

THE SPORTS PARADE

BY HANK HART

Sharing the lead in District 3-AA with Sweetwater Pat Murphy's Big Spring Steers tonight face the most difficult hurdle of their league schedule to date in meeting Midland in a colorful game that should attract a near capacity crowd at the Highland Park stadium.

The Bulldogs are better than the Odessa Broncs, according to all reports. But the Bovines have improved since that time, too.

The Dogs' main line of strength lies in the center of the forward wall, where Paul Klatt, J. E. Wallace and Bob Eidson are active, and in the secondary.

The Bovines' backfield ranks on a par with that of the invaders, they're stronger on the left wing where Bobby Savage is anchored, can hold their own on the right side of the line if Hal Battle, watch fob guard, goes 60 minutes.

The Dogs weren't prepared to go 60 minutes against Sweetwater but played three quarters of excellent ball. They should be by now.

The Dogs were idle last week and go into tonight's fracas in excellent shape. The Bovines are troubled with bruises and have been weakened at tackle but will be in fair condition.

The outcome looks like a tossup with Midland's deadly over-the-line passes spelling the difference by a touchdown.

On other fronts in district play: SWEETWATER should explode the San Angelo myth and become established for once and for all the powerhouse of the circuit. The Ponies almost waited too long against Midland.

ABILENE should prove just strong enough to hobble Lamesa.

On the college front: ALABAMA will have plenty of trouble with Mississippi State.

GEORGIA TECH, which didn't show anything sensational against Vandy, can throttle Auburn.

ARKANSAS can give the Philly fans a great show in their collision with Villanova.

TEXAS A&M always finds Baylor tough in College Station but should win. The Aggies haven't beaten the Bruins on Kyle Field since 1934.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN will stop Centenary.

Our special is RICE over Texas. The Longhorns' Jack Crain will find it difficult to break loose in this one.

UCLA is picked to nose-out Oregon which, after a great start, lost to Gonzaga last week.

BROWN is capable of clipping Princeton.

SOUTHERN CAL is in for trouble with California.

NOTRE DAME may be upset by Carnegie Tech which has been planning for this one since John Getchell called his famous "fourth down" play last year and figured in the Skibbets 7-0 licking.

HOLY CROSS looks capable of handling Colgate.

Columbia will have to wait a week to win their first game of the season in meeting VMI.

OHIO STATE must play their best brand of ball to stop Cornell, holders of impressive wins over Syracuse, Princeton and Penn State.

DUKE is in for a busy afternoon with Wake Forest.

DARTMOUTH looks the better in her bet with Harvard.

NORTHWESTERN will add to

HERE TONIGHT

Miss Edna Earl Lineberry, high-stepping, baton-swinging, swinging drum major of the Midland high school band, will be seen in action between the halves of the Midland-Big Spring football game this evening. Miss Lineberry, who attended a school for drum majorettes at Long Beach, Calif., during the past summer, was recently admitted to membership in the All-American Association of Drum-Majors.

McMURRY LOSES

AUSTIN, Oct. 27 (AP)—Touchdowns by Reynolds and Woehl and a 13-yard field goal by Nace Formaga brought St. Edwards university a 15-0 victory over McMurry college here last night.

Reynolds made his counter with a six-yard plunge and Woehl sprinted 35 yards after breaking over tackle.

TEXAS AGGIES MAY HAVE HARD TIME IN CONQUERING BAYLOR

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT

DALLAS, Oct. 27 (AP)—Jinxes and the drag of an unbeaten record again tag along with the Texas Aggies tomorrow when they meet "the good old Baylor line," a group of gent's who would just as soon give you their right arm as a first down.

Hardly over last weekend's wrecking of the Texas Christian hex, the Aggies now face the mental mountain of beating Baylor for the first time since 1934.

The College Station collision shares billing with the Rice-Texas tilt at Austin, only other conference game.

On foreign fields Arkansas engages Villanova at Philadelphia while Texas Christian and Centenary clash at Shreveport in a private little affair between two teams still hunting a 1939 victory.

Southern Methodist is idle.

The hammering Aggie backfield that has racked up 785 yards on rushing plays to lead the conference ground offensives, runs smack into a Baylor line that owns the league's best defensive record.

Only 24 yards have been gained by running against Baylor in four games.

But—the Aggies, in five games, have been shaken for only 236 yards—second to Baylor's performance.

Rice Underdog

Folks will storm Austin for two or three reasons. First, of course, is to see Cowboy Jack Crain, a sophomore who runs for touchdowns in a very colossal way.

Second, Texas axes will be looking for the first Longhorn win over Rice since 1933.

Third, there are some looking for a Rice "upset," a peculiar angle when you stop to think that only a month ago the Owls were picked to win the flag.

Things have happened in that month. Specifically, Rice has lost three of its four games, one to Sam Houston Teachers, and Texas, padded with sophomores, has won three of four. Crain, a lad with a

Loyola Underdog In Cowboy Clash

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—Unde-feated but once tied Hardin-Simmons from Abilene, Tex., favored to make it three in a row, renews grid hostilities tonight with Loyola University's Lions.

Boasting an air minded array of backs and a spectacular defensive man in Bulldog Turner, 220-pound center, the Cowboys present much the same outfit which humbled Loyola in 1937 and 1938.

Duel Of Bethell And Francis Headlines Encounter

By HANK HART

Midland's Bulldogs, seeking to roll after a sputtering start against Sweetwater two weeks ago, invade the stamping grounds of the Big Spring Steers this evening to try and give a concrete explanation of just why they should still be considered threats for the District 3-AA grid title.

The determined Bovines, already one of the surprise packages in West Texas football, have had their machine clicking on all cylinders since their unexpected 7-0 triumph over Odessa three weeks ago and were operating expertly against Lamesa last Friday but now the contraction starts uphill.

Whether it develops as a powerful unit in its stiffer assignments against Sweetwater, Abilene and San Angelo depends largely on the improvement it shows against the respected Bulldogs.

Bed Taylor's invading eleven, slipped by the brilliant Jay Francis and manned by some tough linebacks, has lost but one game thus far and in all its important assignments has exhibited a brilliant offense that has never been quieted.

Even against the rugged defenses of the Wink and Sweetwater clubs threw at the Dogs, they refused to wilt. With Francis' feet beating a merry tattoo, the Taylor-men scouted the Wink ship and the Wildcats crashed to their first defeat in three years.

Against Sweetwater the Dogs bolted from the barrier in championship style to hold a lead for three quarters before finally giving way to superior man power.

Other Stars

Francis, a 165-pound climax runner who has been making grid history around the Midland sector for three seasons, is the big noise in Taylor's secondary but he isn't the only threat.

A youngster by the name of Dell Truelove gives assistance. Dell can do more things than

Francis. He can do more things than

FORAN RULES AS FAVORITE OVER COAHOMA BULLDOGS

Scribe Picks Cornell Over Buckeyes

By HERB BARKEE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—A quick trip around the football circuit and into the doghouse.

Carne's Notre Dame: Almost never has this corner taken a Ivy league school against major Big Ten competition. But this time we'll take Cornell.

Navy-Clemson: Navy will get a look at one of the great backs of the year in this one, Banks McFadden of Clemson. On a toss-up the coin says Clemson.

Tulane-Mississippi: We'll take one long flier on Mississippi.

Penn-North Carolina: Very close. Out of a thick fog, Penn.

New York University-Georgia: Possible pitfall here. Still N.Y.U.

Columbia-Virginia Military: Another one lurks in this game. Both Prithard and Paul Shu make the Citadel dangerous. A faint nod to Columbia.

Villanova-Arkansas: Villanova's last tussle with Southwest football ended in disaster. Maybe the Wildcats have learned something.

A shaky vote for Villanova.

Santa Clara-Purdue: Sheer guess. Purdue.

Fordham-Pitt: This usual natural unbeaten teams is plain snake-eyes this time. Out of the well-worn hat, Pitt.

Harvard-Dartmouth: Very little to choose. Dartmouth.

Holy Cross-Colgate: Possible surprise but must take Holy Cross.

Northwestern-Illinois: A timorous vote for Northwestern.

Wisconsin-Iowa: Iowa.

Kansas State-Nebraska: The Huskers get better right along. Nebraska.

Vanderbilt-Louisiana State: Looks as if L.S.U.

Georgia Tech-Auburn: Not easy but like Georgia Tech's scoring punch.

Alabama-Mississippi State: Probably close but taking Alabama.

Duke-Wake Forest: McAfee vs. Gallovinc, Duke, after a battle.

Texas A. and M.-Baylor: Off the records can't pick anybody but Texas A. and M.

Texas-Rice: Disappointing Rice is long overdue but we'll string along with Jack Crain and Texas.

Oklahoma-Oklahoma A. and M.: Might be a ball game but taking Oklahoma.

California-Southern California: The Trojans seem to have too much power for California. Southern California.

Washington-Stanford: Washington can't get going. Stanford.

U.C.L.A.-Oregon: Possibly the best game on the west coast. A puzzled vote for U.C.L.A.

Oregon State-Washington State: Oregon State.

Temple-Bucknell: Temple, narrowly.

Duquesne-Texas Tech: Even-Stephen, Duquesne.

Syracuse-Penn State: Shot in the dark. Syracuse.

Princeton-Brown: Princeton.

Iowa State-Missouri: Missouri.

Skippling over the chalklines otherwise: Drake over St. Louis; Army over Ursinus; Boston College over St. Anselm; Marquette over Arizona; Washington University (St. Louis) over Butler; Michigan State over Xavier; Tennessee over Mercer; Richmond over Citadel; Virginia over William & Mary; Furman over Davidson; Texas Christian over Centenary; Tulsa over Detroit; Georgetown over George Washington; Rutgers over Lehigh; Gettysburg over Lafayette; Utah over Denver; Colorado over Wyoming; Brigham Young over Greeley State; Utah State over Colorado State; Colorado Mines over Colorado College.

Teams Clash In Local Stadium Saturday Night

Foran's Buffaloes ramble against the Coahoma Bulldogs in Highland Park stadium Saturday night in a rejuvenated effort to stay in the running for the District 12 six-man grid title.

The Buffs, who lost their first start in two years to the Westbrook club two weeks ago, are not in top shape for the nocturnal battle but will be slightly favored over the last improving Bulldogs who only last week smashed the Garner Hill Billies, 61-13.

Foran's hopes will be pinned on the flying-foot Tommy McDonald, 150-pound speedster.

Coahoma's most dangerous threat is J. C. Tonn who counted three touchdowns against Garner last week. Tonn is one of the fastest players in the league.

Brady Nix, Foran mentor, must find a replacement for Garrett Tenneson, his best defensive player, but fortunately has plenty of reserves.

Admission prices for the 8:15 o'clock battle have been established at 10 and 25 cents.

Hill Billies Are Underdogs In Game Today

GARNER, Oct. 27—T. J. Turner's Garner Hill Billies ruled as decided underdogs in their clash with the mighty Westbrook Wolves as the two teams lined up for their District-12 six-man grid duel this afternoon.

The Wolves' secondary of Claxton, Davenport and Oglesby apparently had too many guns for the light Garner team.

Westbrook bowled over the Billies in their previous meeting.

Midway Wins, 12-3

COAHOMA, Oct. 27—Midway junior boys' basketball team trampled the Coahoma juniors, 12-3, in a practice game at Coahoma Thursday afternoon.

Geudany and C. Tonn had two field goals each to lead the scoring.

The largest copper smelter in the world is at Anaconda, Montana.

JAMES WEBB IN SCORING DASH FOR LOCALS

LUBBOCK, Oct. 27—The Lubbock Junior high school gridlers demolished Howard Schwarzenbach's Big Spring Yearlings, 16-7, here Thursday afternoon.

The Cowhands scored one touchdown in the first period and another six-pointer and a safety in the second but were held at bay thereafter.

The Big Springers tallied in the second quarter when James Webb intercepted a Lubbock pass and raced 45 yards to the end zone.

Webb starred in the Yearling battle along with Junior Moore and W. Buckner.

Bowie Scores 58-0 Victory

By the Associated Press

Corianna meets Waco and Sweetwater tangles with San Angelo in top games of a schedule of 30 conference tilts in Texas school-boy football tonight.

These games are considered the championship battles of Central Texas and the Permian Basin district respectively.

Only three games are on the schedule tomorrow, two of them counting in the title race.

Three tilts were staged last night. Milby defeated Davis 9-0 in a Houston district conference game. Bowie (El Paso) smashed Cathedral (El Paso) 58-0 and Brownville downed Pharr-San Juan-Alamo 39-0 in non-conference engagements.

TEXAS WESLEYAN DEFEATS AUSTIN

SHERMAN, Oct. 27 (AP)—A thrilling aerial game that brought three touchdowns paved the way for Texas Wesleyan to defeat Austin college 25-13 here last night.

Hunter passed to Cooper for the first Ram touchdown. Sterley pitched one to Hillery for the second, then Sterley repeated to Hillery for the third. Manriquez scored the final Ram counter with an end run.

A 53-yard dash by Ringgold and a pass from Ellis to Haralson rang up the Austin college touchdowns.

The Golden Text is: "Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" (Ezekiel 18:31). Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "If thou, Lord, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand? But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared" (Psalm 130:3, 4). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us remember that the eternal law of right, though it can never annul the law which makes sin its own executioner, exempts man from all penalties but those due for wrong-doing" (page 385).

26 COUNTERFEITING EQUIPMENT SEIZED SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Edward Tyrell, chief of the San Antonio office of the secret service, said today counterfeiting equipment used to turn Mexican pesos into United States quarters and half dollars had been seized at Reynosa, Mexico.

Tyrell said the equipment was taken by Mexican officials co-operating with the secret service office and that three Mexican suspects were arrested. Appearance of the counterfeited coins at McAllen and Laredo led to the investigation, Tyrell said.

27 No Place For 'Glamor Girls' At A Rodeo, Says Texas 17-Year-Old By BILL WHITE, Oct. 27 (AP)—The cute little girl who almost took the rodeo at Madison Square Garden off the sports pages and put it in the society section doesn't think glamour and sports are a very good mixture.

The 17-year-old Canadian, Texas, cowboy, ranch-operator and sweetheart of the 14th annual world championship rodeo (as it's modestly billed) is pretty Sydney Yockey. After she got through pitching a calf on its mutton chops she parked herself in the press box and offered a few caustic comments. To wit: "The eight girls brought here to add 'glamour' to the show are all adorable girls and they can all pre-aside beautifully over a tea party, but they haven't any business in a rodeo," she said.

"And they feel the same way. Beauty and this business" majestically indicating the Garden and its queer mixture of low-legged cowhorns and pop-eyed spectators "don't mix. I think it is silly to try."

She referred to the eight girls, daughters of first rank Texas families, who give an exhibition of horsemanship every night and who get more advance publicity than the champion riders.

That seemed a little odd coming from the girl who has been dined, headlined and feted and who for 25 days has almost made New York forget its football. But she sounded sincere. Those pretty eyes had picked out some other flaws, too.

"The men? I like Southwestern men much better than New Yorkers," she said. "These easterners are too artificial."

She is pretty certain that rodeo shows, where the smell of liniment is almost as strong as the smell of leather, needs some new ideas, but pretty girls, even if she is one of them, aren't the answer.

Just out of Canadian, Texas, high school, Sydney leaves here Sunday and will enroll at Texas Christian university the second semester. She's going to study animal husbandry.

So New Yorkers next fall may not have glamour in the Garden, or any faint whisper of perfume.

OIL EXPORTS FROM MEXICO REDUCED

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27 (AP)—Seizure by the British of two European-bound tankers laden with Mexican oil emphasized today the difficulty Mexico is experiencing in finding ocean transport for its export petroleum.

Although informed circles said the seizure represented no loss to the government, as it has operated since the war on a cash-and-carry basis, all exports having declined sharply.

September shipments were about 50 per cent of those for August, and figures today indicated October shipments would be about the same as those for September. The Mexican government has accumulated at a Houston, Tex., refinery more than $1,000,000 worth of refined petroleum for which it is seeking transportation to Europe.

FUGITIVE TAKEN

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27 (AP)—Police Captain Henry Clark reported the arrest last night of Ben H. Pulliam, 52, alias J. E. Williams of Port Arthur, Tex., as a fugitive from justice.

Captain Clark said Port Arthur authorities informed him by telephone Pulliam was wanted to face indictments charging embezzlement of about $6,000 from a firm for which he formerly was bookkeeper.

Pulliam denied guilt and refused to waive extradition proceedings.

RAIDERS KILLED

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27 (AP)—Dispatches reaching here today from Valle de Bravo, state of Mexico, reported that five men members of a group of agrarian raiders were killed in a clash with federal troops yesterday. Fourteen other raiders were captured.

NEW MARX LAUGH HIT AT RITZ

In the wildest, craziest and most uproarious comedy of their careers, the Marx Bros. return to the screen after a year's absence in "Marx Bros. at the Circus," playing today and Saturday at the Ritz theatre. This time the Mad Marzes invade the world of the Big Top for their riot of merriment and are assisted by the strangest aggregation ever assembled for a carnival of comedy. They include a gorilla, an Upside-Down-Girl, a midget, the Strongest Man in the World, a trained seal, a symphony orchestra adrift on the ocean, a herd of elephants, African lions and beautiful ballets that sing and dance atop of horses. "Marx Bros. at the Circus" is the story of two circus roustabouts, Harpo and Chico, who engage a jobless lawyer, Groucho, to save Kenny Baker, circus owner, from losing his show. Through a series of typically Marxian hysterical sequences, the show is saved, Baker wins the love of Florence Rice and Groucho fades out in the arms of Margaret Dumont.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE British Premier Chamberlain has accepted German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop's challenge of war to a finish, and Berlin has indicated that bombs will begin to crash soon.

Well and good, if they like it that way, but neither of these gentlemen told us what sort of finish to expect, and it's mighty obscure.

However, it wouldn't be rash to make a small bet that the war won't die with its boots on, but that some day it will just turn its face to the wall and pass out, because of lack of will to carry on.

One can't escape the haunting belief that the end will come from a crack of public morale somewhere—a breakdown due to want of sufficient inspiration to struggle on indefinitely under the burden of privation and death.

The allies are using all their wiles to bring this to pass in Germany. And from the Mead front lines loudspeakers blare out across no-man's land:—"Frenchmen, lay down your arms and shake hands. The Germans don't want to fight!"

The trouble with this unwanted war is that it lacks both oomph and soul.

It has neither a Paris battling for his Helen of Troy, nor yet a Sir Galahad riding for the Holy Grail.

GERM WATCH

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27 (AP)—ports from Manzanillo, the western Pacific port, said the American freighter Havelland had taken on fuel oil and supplies, but that its plans were unknown.

The U. S. gunboat Erie anchored in Manzanillo bay a short time after the Havelland arrived this week, apparently to keep it under surveillance.

The Havelland left Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, last week. It has a cargo of sugar, coconut oil and other products from the Philippines, destined for Gulf and Atlantic ports. Its engines are reported in bad condition, and the ship's officers advised port officials they were attempting to forward the cargo aboard another vessel. Why it took on fuel was not explained.

The war department announced it had granted permission to the Havelland to remain in Mexican waters for refuge.

AUSTRALIAN WILL SPEAK SUNDAY AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

Colin Smith, a native of Bream Creek, Tasmania, Australia, will speak at the Church of Christ, 14th and Main street, Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Smith is now in America studying in Abilene Christian college, and will return to work with the Church of Christ in Australia sometime this year. The United States army in the Mexican war numbered only 100,000 men.

Pope

to attribute to itself that absolute autonomy which belongs exclusively to the Supreme Maker. It puts itself in the place of the Almighty and elevates the state or group into the last end of life, the supreme criterion of moral and juridical order, and therefore forbids every appeal to the principles of natural reason and Christian conscience.

"Fortunately, false principles do not always exercise their full influence, especially when the age-old Christian traditions on which peoples have been nurtured remain still deeply, even if unconsciously, rooted in their hearts," the pope declared.

This was interpreted as a reference to such devoutly Catholic peoples as the Poles.

Poland, the pontiff said, "has the right to generous brotherly sympathy of the whole world while it awaits... the hour of resurrection in harmony with principles of justice and true peace."

Pope Pius described his "expectation and conviction" that each party will respect its pledged word in treaties as an indispensable condition of peace.

He said peace could not be achieved until "both sides are ready to enter into discussion and avoid recourse to force or threats of force in case of delays, hindrances, changes or disputes."

The pope acknowledged that treaties might become outdated with the passing of time. In such cases, he said, "recourse should be had to frank discussion with a view to modifying the treaty or making another in its stead."

"But to consider treaties on principle as ephemeral," he declared, "and tacitly to assume the authority of rescinding them unilaterally when they no longer are to one's advantage would be to abolish all mutual trust among states."

Siezed Ship

not clarify whether she was in control of a prize crew of 15 or her American crew.

Whether she still carried her cargo of tractors, grain and other shipments consigned to British likewise was in doubt. (The Danish radio, announcing the release of the ship, said the cargo first had been taken off.)

Name Changed, Ship Under Danish Flag

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 27 (AP)—James McConnochie, radio operator of the American freighter City of Flint, declared today the ship's German prize crew took her through ice-strewn waters with explosives planted in the engine room while they flew the Danish flag and repainted the ship's name to "Alf." McConnochie, a Scot, gave the German captors the slip when they stopped at Tromsø, Norway, to unload survivors of the British ship Stonegate, sunk by the raider that took the Flint captive.

Mixing with the British sailors, he managed to get ashore undetected and came to Bergen with them.

He said the City of Flint sighted a foreign warship October 9 which at first was assumed to be British or French but proved to be the German pocket battleship Deutchland.

The raider halted the freighter, placed the survivors of the torpedoed British ship aboard and then proceeded to check the cargo, finding "a considerable quantity of oil."

Declaring this was serious, the German commander said he would not sink the ship, McConnochie related, but placed 18 Germans on board to take possession.

The Scottish operator said the City of Flint thereupon began a slow, "unpleasant" trip northward through "terribly cold" seas.

En route, he continued, the German crewmen planted a heavy charge of explosives in the engine room, prepared to blow up the ship if they encountered trouble.

Later they entered an area of floating ice and the Germans painted out the freighter's name, substituting "Alf" for "City of Flint" and painting the Danish flag on the side.

McConnochie said it was untrue there was anything wrong either with the engines or navigation facilities of the City of Flint.

McConnochie said a water shortage developed at the closing of the port of Tromsø. There the British survivors were permitted to land. The radio operator said that because of his manner of speech he was able to mix with them and land successfully.

Odessans Here To Boost Grid Program For Next Week

Thirty-five Odessa business men, advertising a bumper weekend of football in their city a week hence, made a luncheon stop here Friday.

Traveling in a bus, the group was making stops at every town to boost a grid menu consisting of games between Odessa and San Angelo and Hardin-Simmons and Arizona State. They pointed out that the H-SU famed Cowboy band would be on hand for the latter event.

The party included E. L. Farmer, Odessa mayor; Murry Fly, school superintendent; Jerry Debenport, chamber of commerce manager, and other leading Odessa citizens.

Following luncheon here, the trippers pushed on to San Angelo where they will witness the San Angelo-Sweetwater game and spend the night. Saturday they return to Odessa by way of Mertzon, Big Lake, Texon, Rankin, McCamey and Crane.

THIRD TERM QUESTIONS NOT NEWS, FD TELLS PRESS MEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt not third term questions today with a smile and a suggestion that his press conference should confine itself to news.

The conferees were the first since Secretary Wallace had remarked in San Francisco that the European war would make a third term desirable and Stephen Early, White House press secretary, had commented stinging that Wallace should have consulted the president before he talked on that subject.

A newsmen recalled that Secretary Ickes had suggested a third term at various times in the past and wanted to know whether Early's words applied with equal force to him. The president smiled and said the conference should confine itself to news.

Another reporter said that kind of reply defeated him but he would ask his question anyway.

A columnist, he said, had written that Vice President Garner was riding high and going straight and was headed for the White House gate. He wanted to know in which direction the president thought Garner was going.

Mr. Roosevelt laughed.

Success Is Forecast In Fund Drive

Encouraged by reports at the "victory dinner" Thursday evening at the Settles hotel, Carl Strom, district finances chairman, Friday predicted that the Boy Scout campaign would reach its goal of $5,000 for the year.

At the meeting business classification chairmen reported only about half of the prospects contacted, yet more than half the amount sought had been reached. This placed the goal within sight, said Strom.

A total of 34 new sustaining members have been added to the current list of members who carry their pledges over from year to year. Thus far, 101 new contributors have been added in the list of 169 subscribing to the movement. Strom urged chairmen to complete their contact work by Monday.

Jack Penrose, field scout executive, and Sam Atkins, assisting in office work, have been cooperating with businessmen chairmen in the drive.

At the conclusion of the discussions on finances Thursday evening, S. P. Gaskin, Sweetwater, area scout executive, spoke briefly and predicted an increased period of activity ahead for scouting in the Buffalo Trail council. Gaskin remained here Friday on business.

He announced plans for Boy Scout parade Monday at 4 p. m. to further publicize the drive. The parade will start from the high school building.

German offensive might come with any break in the weather.

(Naval sources said it was probable that German surface craft other than the pocket battleship Deutchland and whatever other raiders are already at sea could slip through the North sea blockade.

Visibility in that area even on the clearest winter day is only five miles.

Meanwhile, a wrecked German submarine containing between 50 and 60 bodies was found wrecked on the treacherous Goodwin Sands, six miles off the Kentish coast in the Straits of Dover.

Gunfire was heard at nearby Deal on Wednesday, but nothing could be seen until the ebb tide yesterday revealed the wreck.

Edwards Girls In Rodeo Picture In Life Magazine

Pictures of Mary Nell and Anne Belle Edwards, Big Spring's contribution to the "Texas Glamour Girls" entourage in the rodeo being staged at Madison Square Garden in New York City, appear in the current issue of Life, national picture magazine.

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Marion M. Edwards, prominent Howard county ranching couple, appear in a "chick wagon" scene. Recently individual pictures of Mary Nell and Anne Belle were published in the Texas Parade, state road publication, which also carried interesting comment on them. Pictures and stories of the Edwards girls, and other members of the party, have been carried in many newspapers in this area.

Mrs. Edwards is with her daughters in New York. Mary Nell was painfully hurt in a mishap at one of the shows Wednesday evening.

Reconnoitering units skirmished in snow, sleet and icy rain along the 100-mile northern flank last night, getting some artillery support as they walled in the ice-crust mud.

The French morning communiqué said that during the night there was "local activity of reconnaissance units."

The sudden rigid control of German communications with Belgium and The Netherlands also led the French to suspect that a big German push was imminent.

The French have estimated that Germany now has 1,500,000 men either in front-line or supporting positions.

French reports also said huge numbers of naval bombers and fighting planes were being brought up to airfields just behind the Siegfried Line, but the French were depending on the weather to keep them grounded, at least temporarily.

Finland Will Choose Her Own Course

HELSINKI, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Finnish people have been assured that they will be the final decision on any bargain with Soviet Russia.

Foreign Minister Eiljas Erikko, addressing a patriotic meeting last night, appealed for confidence and courage, saying "the people of Finland must decide their own future and choose their own path."

Finland's aged President Kyyosti Kallio brought the meeting to a close by rising and calling for "three cheers for Finland."

Seated in the audience was the delegation headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, which returned from its second trip to Moscow and reported yesterday on Russian demands which Finland has found unacceptable.

Paasikivi's group expected to go to Moscow again Sunday.

FOOLPROOF at testing coffee

W. C. ENGLISHBEE
Coffee Broker

of New Orleans, has been grading and testing coffee for twenty years . . . he knows coffee THROUGH AND THROUGH.

HE SAYS "I've been dealing in green coffee for a long time, and I'm in a position to see WHO buys WHAT coffee. I can honestly say that ADMIRATION has never bought anything but the very best of coffee—THE TOP OF THE CROP! That's why we who use the coffee business know that ADMIRATION is TOPS in quality."

Mr. Englishbee Is Right

ADMIRATION'S finest among all coffee men for accepting only the TOP OF THE CROP.

Are you getting the "TOP OF THE CROP" in the coffee you are drinking?

Put a spoonful of ADMIRATION and one of the coffee you are now using in separate cups . . . note ADMIRATION'S even color. THEN pour boiling water in each cup. NEXT . . . smell each cup—note ADMIRATION'S richer fragrance! FINALLY . . . taste a spoonful of each—sample ADMIRATION'S mellow flavor. NOW you know what experts recognize in good coffee—ADMIRATION'S even roasting color, its wispy fragrance, its tony, full-bodied flavor.

LABOR FEDERATION OPPOSES SALES TAX

GALVESTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The state federation of labor was on record today as opposing a sales tax in any form.

The federation also criticized Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel for his attitude toward social security financing, declaring in a resolution passed at the closing session yesterday, that the governor "has obstinately regarded with disfavor all proposals for an equitable distribution of taxes, and on the contrary regarded none but the pleas of certain special interests."

ISOLATER HURT

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP)—William Woodward's Isolater was declared out of the Washington handicap and possibly the Pimlico special today because of a leg injury suffered in his stall at Laurel.

The six-year-old thoroughbred, favorite for the $15,000-added Washington handicap tomorrow and one of four horses entered in Wednesday's special, cast his left hock last night. The joint was filled and bruised this morning.

MARRIED HERE

Robert Stanley Rice and Isabel Hensley were united in marriage Friday in rites solemnized by J. E. Hefley, justice of peace, in his office at the courthouse.

MARKETS Wall Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Light, but persistent, selling threw the stock market for a lull today and leaders dropped fractions to around 2 points at their worst.

Buying attempts were feeble throughout the session and volume was small in comparison with recent days. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares. At the finish many issues were better than their lows for the day, and some losses were converted into gains.

Reports of continued business recovery appeared almost unheeded as were a flock of favorable third quarter earnings statements and increased dividends.

Cotton
NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Cotton futures finished 2-4 higher.
