

British Warship Concentration In Mediterranean To Be Protested To League Of Nations By Italy

News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

WASHINGTON By RAY TUCKER Safeguard—The consumer may come into his own if Dr. Walton Hamilton can put over his program for setting up an independent federal agency charged with keeping an eye on ultimate prices.

What he has in mind is eventual creation of a body which will have the independent status of the Federal Trade Commission.

Although it has been slow in leaking out, Sue White's resignation from Dr. Hamilton's council discloses the difficulties the New Dealers face in evolving a practical program for checking the rise in living costs.

Miss White is a loyal political soldier, formerly connected with the Democratic National Committee, and would not have stepped out without some provocation.

Private transportation interests—railroads, trucks, air lines, waterways and pipe lines—have organized to beat off the threat of government ownership of passenger and freight facilities.

The new organization, which will soon be born amidst a blare of trumpets, has built from the "grass roots" up after 12 months of preparation. It will represent individuals, corner grocers, big shippers, bondholders and transport interests. It will set up a research division to study how to divide a constantly dwindling total of business among a constantly increasing number of competitors so that all may survive and attract new capital.

Time—New Deal lawyers have changed their pace in advancing toward the supreme court benches. They want to hear the bad—or the good—news as soon as they can.

Whereas government attorneys dawdled deliberately in the first two years, they now believe a speedy determination will prove beneficial.

PROTECTING THE LITTLE MAN

It is good business to plan production so that the greatest possible quantity of oil may be drawn from the least possible number of wells, and good economics to avoid overproduction by cutting out unnecessary drilling; but if these things can be done only to the exclusion of the little fellow from the field and to the advantage of the big fellow, they are wrong and should not be countenanced by the state government.

This was the position taken Monday by Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the state railroad commission, when he declared:

"We realize our activities are circumscribed, but we are not going to stand for any 'share the wealth' plan which would give the property of the little man to monopolistic interests. This commission does not believe that the legislature, the laws or the courts meant to give the little man from business."

Colonel Thompson made this statement in reply to contentions by representatives of major oil interests, that the railroad commission should consider acreage as a basis of allocating production of oil in East Texas.

Profration on the acreage basis would restrict drilling to so many barrels per acre. It would favor the large operators with extensive tracts, permitting them to develop their holdings leisurely by producing more oil from fewer wells. But the effect upon those producing from small tracts is obvious. Those who argued for acreage-basis allocations admitted that marginal wells and those on very small tracts would suffer from such a system; and opponents of the acreage proposal declared that it would put hundreds of wells out of business, halt drilling and throw many men out of work.

Acreage-basis advocates asserted that the supreme court has held that the commission must consider acreage; but one is inclined to give the commission credit for knowing its ground when Chairman Thompson says: "The commission certainly is going to follow the statutes religiously and the mandate of the court."

Chairman Thompson is to be commended for his efforts to protect the rights of the little fellow. —Houston Post.

SPORT SLANTS

Some are inclined to credit Charlie Gorman with a neat bit of maneuvering for changing Augie Galan from an inflieder to a fly-chaser in the Chicago Cubs' outer garden, but Grimm merely smiles and points out that it was the only thing he could do.

Galan was purchased from San Francisco a couple of years ago as an inflieder. It was apparent from the time he first joined the club that he would not fit that role. He just did not seem at home around the bags. Second, third or short—it was all the same. He booted entirely too many grounders and simply could not make the quick, trick throws demanded of a worker in the inner defense.

If he could hit the ball and gave every indication into a dangerous hitter if he had an opportunity to be in there, swinging every day. On the bases he seldom made a mistake. His natural speed made it possible for him to get the utmost out of every drive he hit.

A Fan Favorite
 "I had nothing to lose by giving the boy a fling at an outfield job," explains Grimm, "so I had him shag flies at camp this spring. He was no world beater at first but developed steadily. He has come a long way in one season. Right now he comes close to holding his own on the defense, at least, with any fly-chaser in the league."

Galan is already a great favorite with the Chicago fans and particularly that group which settled in the left field area in the past to root for their favorite, Elgie Stephenson. He has gone a long way to make the fans forget the old host as well as Kiki Cuyler.

By a strange coincidence the Cubs began their drive toward a contending position in the pennant races about the same time Galan was installed as a regular outfielder. In July he lifted himself to the 300 class with a spurt of some 30 points and when his batting mark climbed the Cubs climbed with him. If the Cubs do come through to win the pennant no single individual deserves a greater share of the credit than Galan.

He is only a youngster of 23 so he should have a long and successful career ahead of him.

A Belated Arrival
 Ed Heusser, the St. Louis Cardinals' newest starting pitcher looks like a real find. He made his debut in the hard way and at 27 is making a belated bid for big league fame.

From the time he "ran away from home," to use his own words, he did every kind of work imaginable to earn enough money to live. Since entering baseball he has been with teams in Houston, Tex., Fort Wayne, Ind., Danville, Ill., Columbus, O., Rochester, N. Y., Elmira, N. Y., Knoxville, Tenn., and is now with the Cardinals.

He is a big, powerful fellow weighing close to 200 pounds. But he was not always that way. When he married a half-dozen years ago he tipped the scales at 150 pounds.

"Mrs. Heusser gets credit for my fitness—I have done as well as said Ed," and that includes my pitching. Her cooking and looking after me put 50 pounds on my frame."

GEORGIA SWAMP TO BE EXPLORED FOR RARE FISH

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.)—Three boy scouts will enter the Okefenokee swamp in southern Georgia to seek specimens of little-known fish and rare small mammals for the Academy of Natural Sciences.

Members of the expedition are Melbourne R. Carrier, Thomas Reichelderfer and Richard Crowell. The first two named were nature directors at Camp Burton, Allaire, N. J.

The Okefenokee swamp is an area of some 700 square miles in the extreme southern part of Georgia and the northern tip of Florida. Because of its dense forest growth in places and its large water area, the swamp has not been extensively explored in certain places.

The scout expedition will enter the swamp from the eastern border and make its way to Florida's islands, which is one of the many islands which dot the marshland. The boys hope to collect mammals, fishes, amphibians and reptiles. They also will seek some of the unusual frogs which abound in the region.

PONIES IN FAIR SHAPE FOR EASTLAND TILT

Captain Roy Out of Lineup

Sweetwater Coaches Make Radical Changes For Kitchens' Team

SWETWATER (Sp.)—Sweetwater's Mustangs, smarting under the defeat handed them last Saturday by the Roscoe Plowboys, will go into the game Saturday against the Eastland Mavericks determined to break into the win column in their second encounter of the season.

Although they will be without the services of Co-captain A. J. Roy, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Plowboy encounter, the Mustangs will be out there giving every thing they've got, according to sentiment expressed during practice sessions this week. It will be an altogether different team that takes the field against the Oil Belt Mavs, they say.

Browning, who saw service last Saturday in the Roscoe game, at left end, will be sent into the backfield at left half to take the place of Roy, while Whorley will take the terminal post. Five other ball tofers will be the two Bruner boys, Cecil at quarter, and Lawrence at full, and Hobert at right half. There's a possibility that Lawrence Bruner will not get to start due to an ankle injury received in scrimmage Wednesday, however, Coach Ed Hennig announced Thursday that he was improving rapidly and probably would be able to start. If he does not, Joe Hubbard will pinch hit for him.

Playing opposite to Whorley will be Boswell at the right terminal, and M. Williams or Scuddy will fill the left tackle position. Headrick is slated to start at right tackle, while the starting guards probably will be Taylor on the left and Alldredge on the right. English will cover the ball at center.

Coach Johnny Kitchens, who is serving his first year as Maverick coach, is said to have developed a fast, tricky aggregation, and though not touted to be an Oil Belt favorite, the Eastland team is expected to deal the expected favorites plenty of misery. The Mavs this year are using a short punt formation from which they run, spin and other tricky plays.

Devils Play Colorado 'B'

Game Scheduled For Next Tuesday Afternoon In Colorado

Mostly candidates for the Devil football team were hustling on the Steer gridiron Thursday afternoon with Coach Ben Daniels drilling what he hopes will be his best junior club in several seasons.

Little "Red" Womack, fast and shifty, was scampering around in the backfield. Womack has all of the qualifications for another Joe Bob Keltion, the bare-footed Peccos lad who scampered 89 yards for a touchdown against the Steers here last week.

Raymond Lee Williams, unusually adept at tossing the pigskin, caught the attention of observers. Williams is an accurate passer.

Daniels' Devils play their first game of the season next Tuesday afternoon against the Colorado "B" team in Colorado.

Pampa Does Not Have Experience

PAMPA (Sp.)—Texas papers are carrying stories and coaches are talking about Pampa's veteran football squad but Pampa fans know differently. Pampa does not have a veteran squad. In fact, from point of experience, Pampa has the most inexperienced football team in District 1.

If the experience of the Pampa squad of 30 men was totaled, it would not equal that of the starting lineup of the Amarillo Sandies, says one of the veteran back Pampa lost 27 players from its squad of 35 men.

J. R. Green, Pampa end, is talked as one of the many veterans on the Pampa team. Yet Green has played only one year of Harvester football and less than a year of Gorrilla football. Lean Noblett is the only other member of the 1935 Harvester team that was a regular last year. Six other boys were on the squad, but they played less than two games during the entire season of 1934.

Amarillo football players start the game in grade school, take two years in football in junior high, and a year on the Yannis before graduating to the Sandies, where they are called beginners or green material. Thus, an Amarillo boy playing his first year with the Sandies has had four years of experience. The same is true of most other teams in large cities.

School Lunches

I remember a picture I saw not so long ago of Big Brother proudly carrying Little Brother to school for the first time. Little Brother seemed more engaged in his brand new lunch box filled with good things to eat than the school in the distance.
 Children are always ready for something to eat and their hunger seems even greater when they attend school.
 As a mother you probably have one of these problems to face as regards the lunches your children receive at noon. You may live in a community where the school authorities, recognizing the importance of a hot mid-day meal for children, have provided a school lunch or one hot dish to supplement the lunch box sandwiches. If you are a mother who is so fortunate as to have had the lunch problems solved for you in this way, you have little to worry about.
 If you live in the country and your children attend a rural school, you have the problem each day of packing the lunch box. Now we all know that a good lunch contains milk in some form, sandwiches, fruits and vegetables, a sweet and occasionally a surprise. But do we always manage to include all these in nutritious and appetizing combinations that bring "ohs" and "ahs" of delight from those darling youngsters as they explore the depths of their noon-day meal?

Let's consider just a few attractive combinations that are hearty and wholesome for the school lunch box:
 Whole Wheat Bread Sandwiches with Cheese and Pineapple Filling
 Plums or Grapes
 Chocolate Cup-Cakes with Frosting
 Milk or Cocoa
 Biscuit Sandwiches with Chopped Meat or Chicken
 Celery Orange
 Filled Cookies Milk
 Raisin Bread and Butter
 Hard-Cooked Eggs
 Lettuce Sandwiches
 Stewed Prunes or Apricots Milk
 Peanut Butter on Graham Crackers
 Cold Meat Sandwiches
 Shredded Raw Carrots or Cole Slaw
 Fruit Cup
 Milk
 Ginger Snaps

To add color and variety to the lunch, try some of these suggestions:
 1. Use fancy cutters for the sandwiches.
 2. Bake small pieces of dried fruits, such as dates, figs, raisins, etc., one teaspoon of jelly or chopped ham, etc., in the center of muffins for a surprise. Animal cookies make amusing sandwiches if spread with jelly or peanut butter and pressed together.
 3. Stick thin cookies together with an "in-between" stuffing of marshmallow cream or jelly. Sprinkle freshly baked cookies with any of the small colored decorates available in the stores.

 4. Gum drops made into favors are always acceptable.
 5. Occasionally add two or three pieces of candy, a chocolate-bar or salted nuts.

The third problem that many mothers have to face is the hot lunch at home. A foamy omelet is, oh, so good and can be varied by adding a cup of diced ham, bacon or chicken, or half a glass of jelly. Then there is shepherd's pie, which utilizes the meat from last night's dinner. Can't you just shut your eyes already and almost taste its luscious goodness? And there is creamed frizzled beef on toast, and French toast, which utilizes left over bread and is especially scrumptious when served with powdered sugar and cinnamon. Rippling hot waffles, dripping with butter and maple syrup, served with bacon or sausages always are sure to please the most anemic of appetites.
 Scalloped pork sausage is made by arranging one-half dozen links of sausage in the bottom of a baking dish and covering with mashed potatoes, which have been well seasoned with salt and butter and into which some hot milk has been beaten. Bake the sausage and potatoes for just about thirty minutes in a hot oven.
 Frankfurts are always a delight with children if placed between a split roll, and children all like the Baked Potato Special, which is made as follows: Scrub fairly large perfect potatoes until thoroughly clean, bake until well done, remove from oven, slit in the top, pull the sides of the potatoes slightly apart, and insert half of a freshly broiled frankfurter.

W. T. Roberts Opens New Red & White Store

New Place Of Business Is Now Open At 1601 Scurry Street

W. T. "Tracy" Roberts, who is opening a new grocery store at 1601 Scurry street, has had much experience in the grocery business. He gained his first experience at the age of 15 years. For the past four years he has successfully operated a store in east Big Spring. "I have decided to invest my earnings in a building and store of a permanent nature, believing that Big Spring is destined to be West Texas' leading town, a good place to invest earnings and to rear a family," said Roberts.
 Roberts came here in 1927 with Marion Supply company, and married Miss Adele Thomas in 1929. He has been connected with the Red and White independent grocers organization since entering the grocery business for himself, having been a charter member of the group here.

Recluse's Will Makes 2 Boys Heirs To $8,000

BLOOMVILLE, O. (U.P.)—Discovery of a will left by Milton Q. Myers, Bloomville recluse, put an $8,000 estate within grasp of two local school boys.
 They attracted his attention when, as boys of 4 and 2, they romped about the house as he painted the place 10 years ago. Neil and Don Siles were named in the will, discovered in a Tiffin, O. safety deposit box just as preparations were being made to divide the estate between two sisters of Myers' Mrs. Estelle Faust, of De-

BANANAS FIRST IN U. S.; APPLES BRITISH ISLES

LONDON (U.P.)—The United Kingdom is by far the world's largest market for apples, peaches, oranges, lemons, raisins, currants and canned fruits, it is revealed in the Imperial Economic Committee's report on the production and trade of fruit.
 Although the imports of apples into Britain have been reduced from 465,000 tons in 1932 (when the import duties began to operate) to 285,000 tons last year, Britain still takes 132,000 tons more than Germany, the next largest importer.
 The Empire as a whole is an importer of all the important fruits, with the exception of bananas. The United States, in recent years, has taken nearly a million tons, or more than 60 per cent of the world's bananas.

FLOWER SHOW WILL FEATURE ALL CUT ROSES

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (U.P.)—The first rose show in the nation's history in which freshly cut roses from all parts of the United States will be exhibited is scheduled to be held here Oct. 12-13.
 In the unique flower event, the National Rose Show of 1935, fresh blooms will be rushed here by airplane from all parts of the country and some, carried in special refrigerating units aboard ocean liners, will be entered from European gardens.
 Officials of the event, sponsored jointly by the San Diego Rose Society and the California Exposition, say every known variety in America will be on display.
 Through co-operation of a large rose firm in Newark, N. J., new varieties never before formally exhibited are to be brought from Europe for a "World Preview" at the event here.

American Airlines Slogan Contest Is Popular In City

The national slogan contest being conducted by the American Airlines, which daily serves Big Spring, is proving very popular both among young and old, according to Glen Golden, local airlines representative. Over a thousand slogan suggestions from Big Spring have already been sent in to the company headquarters in Chicago, he declares, with nearly two weeks yet remaining before the contest closes.
 When the final decision is made and the winning slogan announced, the winner will receive two round trips over the entire American Airlines system, which extends from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico. Thus the winner will be afforded a trip for him or herself with a companion over approximately 7,000 miles of airline system, with stopover privileges in every city of a million or more population in the United States.
 Many novel presentations of slogan suggestions have been received, Golden states, one of the most unusual having been sent in by an express on a large map of the United States, with the slogan outlined by small model airplanes. Such elaborate offerings are not necessary, he declares, and anyone who embodies the most suitable thought in his slogan will undoubtedly receive the most careful attention. The contest closes the end of September and air minded people of Big Spring will be well represented among the thousands of persons entering this popular contest, Golden concludes.

NATURAL LAXATIVE FOOD WINS NATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Helps Millions to Regular Habits

Millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN thoroughly satisfactory for correcting constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.
 In addition to its popular approval, ALL-BRAN has been accepted by science. Research shows it offers mild "bulk" to aid elimination. Also vitamin B and iron.
 The American Medical Association Committee on "Food" has granted Kellogg's ALL-BRAN its Seal of Acceptance. This delicious cereal is also approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.
 Within the body, ALL-BRAN forms a soft mass which gently clears out the intestinal wastes. More effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down in the body.
 Isn't this food better than patent medicines? Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.
 Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. ALL-BRAN is much more satisfactory than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

East Ward P.-T. A. Hears Ward Supervisor Tell Of Elementary School Problems

Association To Provide Transportation For Members Needing It And Place To Keep Small Children

The East Ward P.-T. A. met Thursday afternoon at the school building with the president, Mrs. C. W. Dickerson in charge of a crowded business session. An excellent program was rendered.

Thomas Pierce, new ward supervisor, was the chief speaker. He was introduced by Mrs. J. T. Brooks, vice-president, as director of elementary education.

Mr. Pierce said that his duties would be seeing that all four elementary schools were given the same advantages; that the same progress would be observed in all of them and a more uniform method followed. The results would be that the town had one school system instead of several units.

He commended highly the Parent-Teacher Association and its work and told how much he enjoyed assisting its members. He understood, he said, that the main purpose of the P.-T. A. was to study the child and his welfare, to bring teachers and mothers closer together and that these were important than long talks and money-raising.

Schools of today, he continued, were not just places to work, but places to live and enjoy every minute of living. The trend of education today is to make it more practical. Schools in Big Spring were so overloaded, however, that parents should be more sympathetic than ever with the teachers and try to help them accomplish their best.

Following this talk, Mrs. W. J. McAdams gave a five-minute drill on parliamentary law.

Mrs. Reese resigned as secretary and Mrs. Claude Hering was elected to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. A. J. Cain gave a report on the council meeting and Mrs. Charles Koberg announced that a

Armies And Araby Furnew Winter Cape Fashions For The Nish Themes

By ADELAIDE KERR

PARIS (AP)—Capes get a "big hand" in winter fashion shows. Monks' capes, mantles, Arabian capes; military, troubadour and fur capes go swinging through mirrored dressing salons each time the mannequins display the shows. They are favored for every hour of the day in designs varying from the simplest to the most lavishly regal.

Shimmering silver laces; velvets in tones of Fra Angelico blue, ruby red, purple and black; soft black wools; changeable velvets and changeable moires make capes for evening wear. Sometimes they are great circular designs, falling to the floor in full folds. Again they are inspired by the full capes of Renaissance monks finished with quilted satin hoods of another color, as flame red on black.

Knee-Length Models
Some designers cut them like long regal mantles swinging from the back and swept up over one shoulder in front or like swathed Arabian capes. Others display swinging knee-length models trimmed with fur—black ones sometimes being lined with ermine and thrown over one shoulder.

Fur capes are the richest they have seen in years. Full length evening capes are made of strips of silver fox or black lynx running from shoulder to hem. Knee length day capes are fashioned of mink, silver fox or dyed red fox, or dyed mole-skin while any number of hip-length models appear in astrakhan, nutria or broadtail. Occasionally the fur capes for day wear are cut with broad shoulders and little fullness below so that they hang straight, though more often they have some fullness.

For Many Uses
By day the capes appear for everything from formal afternoon to sports wear. Broadcloth military capes which reach to the knees top street frocks and hip-length troubadour capes tying under one arm finish colored wool ensembles.

Brown, mulberry, dregs of wine and green costumes combine a frock and hip-length cape of the same color trimmed or lined with fur, and the black frock topped by a black cape trimmed in astrakhan is almost a classic.
Capes for the sports mode reach all lengths from hip to hem. The modern tweeds of rainbow, multi-colored or two tone weaves, plaids and checks are all used to fashion the models which generally accompany a plain colored dark skirt.

school of instruction would be held all day October 4, at the First Methodist church. The school would be open to everyone interested in the work of the P.-T. A.

Mrs. Dickerson announced that arrangements had been made to take care of babies and small children so that mothers could leave them during the meeting and feel assured of their safety, also that transportation would be furnished any member having no way to attend.

Mrs. Long's room won the contest prize for the month.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

Chapter 15 ESCAPE?

The chairman looked uncomfortable. He had a reluctant expression for Emily, but she was too small and too pretty to be so strong-minded. She ran the library beautifully, though, and she was a devoted social asset, so there was no question of dismissing her.

"I think it quite as important," he said blandly, "that they be kept from old as well as young. We cannot pander to the low tastes of the majority."

"Then why expect the majority to read your books?" Emily demanded. "You have to choose, you know. She rose, smiled charmingly into their astonished faces. "If there's no further business I shall ask you to excuse me."

She found the reading-room full to the window-sills with school children, whom the assistant was vainly trying to quell. Her head ached with their demands and with the September heat.

The clock seemed to be moving backwards, Emily decided wearily. Almost an hour until she could usher the shuffling children out and go home for a quick swim before dinner.

She began to catalogue a shipment of new books, and wondered if it wouldn't be simpler to phone for William and the car instead of trudging home in the dusty heat. It seemed ridiculous to be driven home from work by a chauffeur with a hair shirt just because you could afford a silk one.

In the end she decided against phoning, and found Edwin, who had expected to be busy, waiting for her outside. He helped her in to his car solicitously, grateful for the welcoming smile she bestowed. "You look tired," he said gently, with a glance at the heavy shadows beneath her eyes.

Emily's lids drooped. The light was brilliant and grateful after the still, heated darkness of the library.

"I am, September in Alabama ought to be deleted from the calendar."

He was shifting gears, staring hard at the gray-blue pavement ahead of him. The pavement was mottled with shadows from the great elms that almost met overhead.

"Are you going to work on that other year yet?" he brought out at last.

"I haven't decided yet. After my outburst this afternoon they may regret having urged me to."

He looked perturbed. If Emily insisted on working, he considered the library the most genteel calling she could have chosen. He read very little himself, but he had the non-reader's almost superstitious respect for books.

"I hope you didn't offend them," he said.

She smiled ruefully. "I did worse. I offended their prejudices. It was the heat, I think; spontaneous combustion." She told him what had happened.

His perturbation deepened. "But, Emily, I think they're right. There's enough unhappiness and immorality in real life."

"Without reading about it in books," she broke in and finished for him. "I don't understand why they haven't put you on the Board."

He looked so hurt that she was ashamed of herself. Edwin had a positive genius for provoking caustic comments that you immediately regretted. She hesitated to change the subject, but her mind went on turning over the problem with which it was involved.

Could she resign herself to another year of it? She had lain awake a good many nights recently, wrestling with the problem. She had to decide it soon, she knew, because the longer she put it off the more incapable she would be of any decision.

One year of idleness, one year of the library; surely that was enough. But after the library:

She glanced at him beside her, driving deliberately and carefully; his hat perched primly upon his head. Why couldn't he, just once, slump down in his seat and, with the wind playing havoc with his hair, drive his car as fast as it would go?

He couldn't, she knew, because he was incapable of anything so juvenile and unconsidered.

"Why should I risk your life and mine," he would have asked in surprise, "when it isn't at all important that we hurry?"

His car, too, was typical of him; an immaculate small sedan, practical and comfortable. With a quizzical smile she remembered David's roadster of four—no, dear heaven, it was five years ago!

The roadster had had a top, just as David had had a hat, but neither of them was ever used. But like David, she admitted honestly, the roadster had been enjoyable only in fair weather.

Edwin swung the car into her own driveway, and the air was immediately cooler with the mist of innumerable sprays. The lawn was green-gold in the fading sunlight, purple in the shadows; not even September, she thought disrespectfully, dared to lay its searing hand upon Frances Felton's gardens.

"Won't you stay for a swim?" she asked him lazily. "The prospect of one has kept me going all afternoon."

He hesitated, because he wanted so badly to stay, and because he had never outgrown his youthful lack of self-confidence in her presence.

"I'd like to—very much."

"Then I'll see you in ten minutes. There's a suit for you in the bathhouse."

The jade-green water, amazingly cool, was like a tonic. She dove and swam like a porpoise, trying valiantly to shed the day's lethargy, while Edwin watched her with a dog-like devotion. He swam as he drove, precisely and efficiently, without exerting any more speed or effort than the occasion demanded.

ANOTHER GIANT MOUND STAR?

Carl Hubbell, pitching star of the New York Giants, flew from Chicago to Oklahoma City to see his new-born son, weight 8½ pounds. It is the Hubbell's first child. Hubbell had to hustle right back to the Windy City to help Terry's crew battle the Cubs in the ding-dong National league pennant race. (Associated Press Photo)

If it were a case of rescuing someone he would put forth the last vestige of his strength, and, if that was insufficient, would quietly and matter-of-factly drown, without ever realizing that he had been heroic.

It was a pity, she thought for the hundredth time, that all the major virtues were so uninspiring to live with.

The swim over, Edwin hesitated at the door of his car, the stiff straw hat in his hand. "Are you doing anything tonight?"

The same question, hopefully and hesitantly put. Edwin still went through the formality of asking for evenings that had been his for two years. This time she surprised him.

"Nothing but going to bed." She smiled to soften the answer. "But you must be sure to come tomorrow night."

His face glowed, thanking her for the twenty-four hours of anticipation with which she had presented him. He drove almost gaily away.

Dinner was on the terrace, beautifully cool in the September dusk. Frances looked very young in the muted light, but her husband's face looked shadowed and old. Emily felt the old surge of pity for Jeffrey, who had been sentenced to spend his life in the rarefied atmosphere of his wife's ideals.

She hated to matter the evening's peace by introducing a controversial subject, but there was no choice. She could postpone the discussion but she couldn't avoid it. She drank deeply of her tea coffee.

"Mr. Small asked me at the meeting today about this winter."

Her mother glanced sharply at her. "About taking the library, you mean?"

"Yes. My year is up this month."

"What did you tell him?"

She could see that Frances had guessed at her indecision; had dreaded it. Her father was silent.

"I told him I hadn't decided yet."

Frances ate her salad demurely. "If you are still undecided—it seems to me an excellent position to have." She had been very democratic and complimentary about Emily's working. Emily had seen her, fairly glorying in her own consistency.

"I'd hardly call it a position. Sixty dollars a month and no authority whatever. I could make the thing a success if it only gave me a chance."

"But the money," Frances pointed out, "is secondary."

"No, it isn't," Emily said quietly. "It's humiliating to think that what you do is only worth sixty dollars a month. That's why I want to go away."

Her mother's head came up. Her father's fork clattered against the plate. A momentary breeze fluttered the shaded candles.

"LIVES OF A BENGAL LANCER" SUPER-ROAD SHOW AT LYRIC

If actresses dreams ever come true, Gary Cooper, currently playing the leading role in Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," coming Friday to the Lyric Theatre, will be the most-kissed male actor in all of Hollywood!

For, by their own confession, 10 of Hollywood's leading feminine stars have selected Gary Cooper as their ideal of what a leading man and screen lover should be—and have indicated their desire to have him in their pictures.

The foremost is Greta Garbo, with whom Gary Cooper has never had an opportunity to work. Yet the Swedish star has attempted to secure him for her leading man in several of her recent pictures.

That he is Hollywood's most sought-after leading man is further attested by Joan Crawford's repeated attempts to secure his services. But only once was she able to get Cooper, and that was in "Today We Live."

Cooper is also the favorite of Marion Davies, with whom he played in "Operator 13" and, recently, Katharine Hepburn sought him for a new picture.

Dietrich's Favorite Anna Sten, newest of the screen stars, is another who idolizes Gary Cooper. The lanky star may appear opposite her in the next picture she is to make.

Marlene Dietrich, ever since that time she and Gary made "Morocco," has never ceased trying to get him to share another screen venture with her.

There must be a reason for this popularity among the screen ladies. Carole Lombard, who has made several pictures with Cooper, explains it in this wise:

"We like Gary," she says, "because he represents the virile, outdoors type of man that every girl likes. Then too, there is a more personal reason for this liking; his presence in a picture makes it doubly valuable as a box-office attraction."

Plays Fighter-Hero The lucky girl who is favored with Cooper's attentions in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is Kathleen Burke, the only feminine member in the large featured cast.

Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, Sir Guy Standing, C. Aubrey Smith, Monte Blue and Douglas Dupbrille head the cast of the picture which was taken from the book by Francis Yeats-Brown, in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." Cooper enacts the part of a captain of one of the world's most famous cavalry units. He becomes a hero when he dares death to save the Lancers and to keep a soldier-father from ever learning about his son's treason.
